MESSAGE

Lakshmi is Chanchal, (mercurial) Money comes & goes. Monies kept in bank also get eroded in value because of inflation. The best thing to do is to start using money wisely.

I am very happy to know that my contribution to I.T.A.T. Bar Association is put to good use, thanks to the dynamism and vision of Dr. K. Shivaram and his team. The annual Digest will be of tremendous use to the tax lawyers and tax payers.

Such an endeavour requires great labour and hard work and his team is capable of achieving it.

My hearty congratulations for the efforts and the fruit, thereof.

Preface

3017 Digest of Tax Case Laws on Direct Taxes – Reference to Circulars and Articles: Key Resources for the Tax Fraternity

We are pleased to present the "2024 Yearly Digest of Case Laws on Direct Taxes", the 14th consecutive edition of this annual publication. Compiled and published by the ITAT Bar Association, Mumbai, this digest serves as a comprehensive reference for professionals practicing before the High Courts, the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, and the Commissioners of Income-tax (Appeals).

In this edition, our Research Team has meticulously compiled and digested over 3,000 cases reported in 2024 across leading journals, magazines, and online platforms. The sources include ITR (Vols. 460–471), Taxmann (Vols. 296–300), CTR (Vols. 336–341), ITD (Vols. 204–208), ITR (Tribunal) (Vols. 108–116), TTJ (Vols. 227–232), as well as publications from AIFTPJ, BCAS, Chamber's Journal, and online portals such as itatonline.org, taxmann.com, and NYTTJ.

Arrangement of Case Laws.
Case laws are presented section-wise and in descending order of judicial forums—beginning with the Supreme Court, followed by High Courts, and then the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal. Editorial notes have been added to select cases, particularly where Tribunal rulings were upheld or reversed by High Courts, or where the Supreme Court granted or dismissed SLPs. The digest also incorporates allied law decisions and includes a dedicated chapter on circulars and articles, organized both section-wise and subject-wise for ready reference.

Indexing Methodology.
The index of case laws has been prepared alphabetically, based on the assessee or respondent's name, irrespective of whether the Revenue is the petitioner or appellant. For example:

- Alok Industries Ltd. v. ACIT → Alok Industries Ltd. v. ACIT
- CIT v. Noida Golf Course Society (Regd.) → Noida Golf Course Society (Regd.); CIT v. *
- Dy. CIT v. A.P. Knit Fab → A.P. Knit Fab; Dy. CIT v. *
- PCIT (Central) v. Dwarka Prasad Aggarwal → Dwarka Prasad Aggarwal; PCIT (Central) v. *
- UOI v. Rajeev Bansal → Rajeev Bansal; UOI v.*

This approach ensures quick and convenient access to case references, especially for busy professionals searching by party name.

Historical Context.
In 2012, the Association published the "Digest of Case Laws – Direct Taxes (2003–2011): A Tax Companion" to commemorate 150 years of the Bombay High Court. Since then, yearly digests from 2003 to 2024 have been made available on www.itatonline.org, freely accessible on desktops, laptops, mobiles, and tablets for the benefit of tax professionals and taxpayers.

Acknowledgments.
This publication is generously sponsored by the Dr. Y.P. Trivedi Library Fund. We express our sincere gratitude to Dr. Y.P. Trivedi, Senior Advocate and Past President of the ITAT Bar Association, Mumbai, for his continued encouragement and support to the Association's educational initiatives.

We also extend our appreciation to Shri K.G. Gopal, Advocate, President of the ITAT Bar Association, the office-bearers, and Managing Committee members for their wholehearted support in bringing out this annual digest as part of the Association's educational initiatives for the benefit of tax professionals.

We proudly acknowledge the Research and Editorial Teams, who have devoted their time and expertise on an honorary basis, ensuring the digest's high quality and reliability year after year.

Special thanks are due to the Editor of the AIFTP Journal, Mr. Ajay R. Singh, the Editorial Team of AIFTP, the AIFTP Journal Committee, KSA Legal Chambers, and law students Ms. Ananya Sinha, Ms. Riddi Saraf, and Ms. Kairavi Navathe for their valuable contributions.

Unique compilation
This publication uniquely compiles significant reported and unreported case laws in one place. Intended for private circulation in print, it serves as a quick and reliable reference tool for professionals.

While every effort has been made to ensure accuracy, inadvertent errors or omissions may occur. We request readers to kindly bring such instances to our notice so that corrections may be incorporated in future editions. We sincerely hope this Digest proves to be a valuable resource for the tax fraternity. Suggestions may be sent to: itatonline.org@gmail.com or publications.itat@gmail.com.

For Editorial and Research Team,

Yours sincerely,
Dr. K. Shivaram

President's Message

It gives me profound satisfaction to present the fourteenth edition of the "Digest of Case Laws on Direct Taxes – 2025", an endeavour of the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Bar Association, Mumbai.

The practice of law is not confined to the arguments we advance in courtrooms. It is equally nurtured by scholarship, by reflection, and by the systematic organisation of knowledge. This Digest embodies that spirit. It brings within its covers a curated collection of significant rulings from Tribunals across the country, carefully digested with clarity and precision. Each case has been distilled into its essence, with headings, citations, and editorial remarks that make complex principles accessible, while the index provides a ready guide for quick research.

The true worth of such a publication lies not merely in the information it gathers, but in the values it embodies: the belief that knowledge must be shared, that justice is strengthened when the law is transparent, and that the Bar has a continuing duty to contribute to the intellectual resources of the profession. In this respect, the Digest stands as both a tribute to the labours of its compilers and as a resource for generations of professionals.

I extend my deepest gratitude to Dr. K. Shivram and his team, whose tireless commitment and meticulous work over the years have sustained this project. Their endeavour reflects a selfless dedication to the cause of legal learning. I also acknowledge with great appreciation the generous support of Dr. Y. P. Trivedi, whose patronage has enabled this initiative to flourish.

This Digest has, over time, been acknowledged by the professional community as a valuable tool in their day to day practice. With this fourteenth edition, I am confident that it will continue to enrich the practice of law, foster greater understanding of evolving jurisprudence, and contribute to the larger mission that underpins our legal system: that justice must not only be done, but must be accessible, intelligible, and fair.

Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Bar Association, Mumbai

The Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Bar Association Mumbai was established on 18th November, 1965. Over the years, the Association has been led by eminent legal luminaries, including Shri G. A. Gaitonde, (erstwhile President of the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal,) Padma Bhushan Dr. N. A. Palkhivala, Senior Advocate (1967-2002), Dr Y. P. Trivedi , Senior Advocate (2003-06), Shri S. E. Dastur Senior Advocate (2007-08), Shri Dinesh Vyas Senior Advocate (2009-10). Dr. K. Shivaram Senior Advocate (2011-12), Shri Arun P. Sathe Senior Advocate (2013-2014) Shri Subhash S. Shetty Advocate (2015-16) Mrs Arati Vissanji Advocate (2017-18) Shri Hiro Rai Advocate (2019-20),) Shri Vipul Joshi Advocate, (2021- 22 Shri Porus Kaka, Senor Advocate (2022-23). Currently, Shri K. Gopal, Advocate, has been elected President for the term 2025–26.

The members of the ITAT Bar Association include Senior Advocates, Advocates, Chartered Accountants and Tax Practitioners practicing before the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal.

The ITAT Bar Association has one of the best-equipped tax law libraries in Mumbai. More than 25 magazines and journals covering tax and allied subjects are available. The journals subscribed include virtually every journal in the taxation field published in India, International tax journals, and journals of special interest areas, such as company law, excise, sales tax and service tax, AIR and SCC to enable members to keep abreast of the law in other non-tax areas. The ITAT Bar Association Library is considered as one of the finest libraries in India in the field of taxation, both domestic and international. The library is fully air-conditioned. The library was initially funded by Shri Chunilal Karsandas, a past member and has been subsequently supported by the D. M. Harish Foundation. A magnanimous contribution from Shri S. E. Dastur, Senior Advocate Past President of ITAT Bar Association, enabled the ITAT Bar Association to set up a separate section in International Law Library dedicated to Late Shri R. J. Kolah, Advocate Dr Y. P. Trivedi Senior Advocate Past President of the ITAT Bar Association has contributed a substantial amount towards corpus donation for conducting the various. Educational activities of the Association. Shri Dinesh Vyas,Senior Advocate Past President of ITAT Bar Association has contributed a magnanimous contribution to renovate the library.

The ITAT Bar Association plays an active role in matters of vital importance to the Tribunal. It makes representations to concerned authorities from time to time.

The Income Tax Appellate Tribunal has always enjoyed judicial independence. When there was a threat of interference from the Executive in the administration of justice, the ITAT Bar Association filed a public interest petition before the Bombay High Court. The judgment of the Supreme Court in ITAT v. V. K. Agarwal (1999) 235 ITR 175 (SC) dealt with the scope of administrative supervision by the Ministry of Law over the functioning of the ITAT. On another occasion, there was a move to shift the headquarters of the ITAT to Delhi. It was mainly due to the representations and efforts of the ITAT Bar Association that the Government was persuaded against taking this step and the headquarters continued to be in Mumbai. Again, when there was a proposal to constitute 5 additional Benches of Income Tax Appellate Tribunal at Navi Mumbai, it was the ITAT Bar Association that strongly opposed the move and convinced the Government that setting up additional Benches at Navi Mumbai was not in the interest of the taxpayers or the Government. This would not have been possible but for the PIL filed by the ITAT Bar Association before the Bombay High Court. Ad .interim relief of the Bombay High Court was up held by the Apex Court . (ITAT Bar Association v. Secretary of I& B(WP No 624 0f 1999 dt. 3-7 -2025) www.itatonline.org).
It is of significance that not only did the Government accept this suggestion but allotted additional space previously occupied by the All India Radio to the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal so that the additional Benches now function alongside the then-existing five Benches on the same floor.

Honourable Justice Shri V.N. Khare the then Chief Justice of India for the first time in the history of ITAT visited the premises of the ITAT on invitation of the ITAT Bar Association of Mumbai on 11-1-2004 and unveiled the portrait of Padma Bhushan Late Dr. N. A. Palkhivala, Senior Advocate N.A. Palkhivala. On the said occasion three Honourable Judges of Supreme Court, Chief Justice of Bombay High Court and large number of judges of the Bombay High Court graced the function.

For the development of the Tax Bar, the ITAT Bar Association since 2004 in association with All India Federation of Tax Practitioners and Government Law College has started the " Padma Bhushan Dr. N. A. Palkhivala, Senior Advocate Memorial National Tax Moot Court Competition" and "Research in Tax Law". The Moot Court competition now organised on virtual mode in association with All India Federation of Tax Practioners and National Law College Mumbai, where in more than 100 law colleges participate in the Moot court competition and more than 300 law students participate by presenting the research paper on tax law.

On the occasion of 75 th year of independence to celebrate Azadi ka Amrut Mhaostav the ITAT Bar Association in Association with All India Federation of Tax Practitioners and Maharashtra National University, Mumbai initiated "Padma Vibhushan Dr. N.A. Palkhivala Memorial National (Virtual) Tax Moot Court and Research Paper Competition.

Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Bar Association in association with All India Federation of Tax Practitioners has published a publication "Digest of Case Laws — Direct Taxes (including allied laws) (2003-2011)" dedicated to Commemorate the 150th Years anniversary of the Bombay High Court. Annual Digests of Case Laws reported in various journals are published and hosted on www.itatonline.org for the benefit of professionals and taxpayers.

Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Bar Association in Association with All India Federation of Tax Practitioners have published in the year 2016, a publication dedicated Honourable Mr, Justice S.H. Kapadia former Chief Justice of India on the subject of "Interpretation of Taxing Statues – Frequently Asked questions"

Income Tax Appellate Tribunal Bar Association in Association with All India Federation of Tax Practitioners have published in the year 2017, a publication dedicated to Padma Vibhushan Late Dr. N.A. Palkhivala Senior Advocate on the subject of "Income Tax Appellate Tribunal – Fine Balance – Law, Practice, Procedure and Conventions – Frequently Asked Questions"

The members of the Association follow a Code of Ethics, enforced by a Disciplinary Committee headed by eminent professionals.

Website www.itatonline.org to enable the professional members and guests to access the latest news, judgments, cause lists, etc. It has a lively interactive forum where members can post queries which are discussed and answered. For the benefit of our members Research Team is preparing a digest of important case laws which are regularly hosted on the website of www.itatonline.org. S. 2(14)(iii) : Capital asset-Agricultural land-Land situated outside the Municipal limits-As per the last Census i. e., the Census of 2011, Zirakpur had a population of 95,443-Land situated more than four kilometers away from the Municipality Limits of Zirakpur-Sale consideration is not taxable. [S. 45] 1

Assessee sold agricultural land situated in village Chhatt which was outside the municipal limits as described in Notification No. 9447, dt. 6th Jan. 1994. It was by virtue of the Notification dt. 4th Dec. 2012, issued by the Department of Rural Development and Panchayats, Government of Punjab that the Gram Panchayat of village Chhatt was created. The village Chhatt, at that time, was not comprised within the municipal limits of Zirakpur. By virtue of Notification No. 10/16/16-3 SS3/2788, dt. 19th Dec. 2016 issued by the Department of Local Bodies, Government of Punjab, that the municipal limits of Zirakpur were extended and village Chhatt was included therein. The Tribunal held that the land is situated more than four kilometres away from the municipal limits of Zirakpur and as per the last Census i.e., the Census of 2011, Zirakpur had a population of 95,443. Accordingly the land sold by the assessee was agricultural land, not forming part of capital asset within the meaning of s. 2(14), accordingly the amount received by the assessee is was not chargeable to tax. S. 2(14)(iii): Capital asset-Agricultural land-Sale of agricultural land-Land is situated beyond 10 Kms. from Municipal limits-And Shown as wet land-Registration of immovable property by land Registrar-Paid land revenue-Cannot be assessed as capital gains. [S. 45] 2

Held that the assessee had paid the land tax to the local Revenue office as agricultural land and had furnished the certificate issued by the Village Administrative Officer to prove that the land was situated beyond 10 kms. from the municipal limits as to fall outside the definition of capital asset per section 2(14) of the Act. The assessee had also furnished before the Dispute Resolution Panel the land details available in the records of the Revenue authorities showing it to be wet land for the purpose of valuation for registration of immovable property by the Land Registrar. Tribunal held that merely because the Tahsildar had left the columns of crops grown or cultivated blank, that could not lead to the conclusion that the immovable property is a capital asset. Addition as capital gain is deleted. (AY. 2015-16)

3 S. 2(14)(iii) : Capital asset-Agricultural land-Capital gains-Land is not situated within jurisdiction of Municipality-Population of village was 907 persons as per latest published census of 2011-Long term capital gains on sale of agricultural land cannot be taxed as capital gains. [S. 2(14)(iii)(a), 45, 54F]

Assessee sold agricultural land at Mohali in 2014 and claimed deduction u/s. 54B of the Act by buying another agricultural land. AO considered agricultural land sold as a capital asset by rejecting contention of the assessee that land sold was outside the limits of the municipality and hence, it was exempt income. CIT(A) confirmed addition made by the AO. On appeal the Tribunal deleted the addition by accepting the evidence adduced by the assessee showing the population of the village was mere 907 persons as per published census and that land was situated outside the limits of the municipality. The long term capital gains on sale of land can could not be brought to tax. (AY. 2015-16)

4 S. 2(14)(iii): Capital asset-Agricultural land-Sale of agricultural land-Purchaser changed the use for commercial purposes-Not assessable as capital gains. [Gujarat Tenancy and Agricultural Lands (Amendment) Act, 1997, S. 63AA,65B]

The assessee sold four pieces of agricultural land to a company Steel Strips Wheels Ltd. The purchaser received permission for use of the land for bona fide industrial purposes. Assessee has obtained certificate for change of land use from agricultural to non-agricultural. The assessee contented that the land sold by him did not qualify as "capital asset" in terms of section 2(14)(iii) being rural agricultural land. The AO held that the land sold by the assessee as non agricultural land and concluded that it qualifies capital asset and therefore capital gained earned is liable to tax. Tribunal held that, AO has erred in interpreting S. 63AA of the Gujarat Tenancy and Agricultural land laws Act,1997 and the land did not qualify capital asset in terms of s. 2(14)(iii) of the Act. Accordingly the capital gains is not liable to tax. (AY. 2016-17)

5 S. 2(15): Charitable purpose-General public utility-Publishing newspapers-Receipts more than 10 lakhs-Matter remanded for verification. [S. 11, 12A.]

The Tribunal held that the denial of exemption under section 11 by the Revenue authorities without examining whether activities were in nature of trade commerce of or business was not justified merely on the ground that receipts had exceeded the limit of Rs. 10 lakhs. The matter was is remanded to the Assessing Officer to decide the issue in accordance with the judgement of apex court in Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority (2023) 449 ITR 1 (SC), examine the status of charitable entity granted under section 12A of the Act, examine the plea that the assessee has very nominal profit or margin from the main activity of selling IRS reports to members and non-members and also to decide the issue on principle of mutuality in light of the decision earlier years order of the Tribunal. S. 2(22)(e): Deemed dividend-Capital contribution by companies in which assessee Firm's partners were shareholders-Commercial Transaction-Not loans and advances-Not assessable as deemed dividend. [S. 260A] 7

During the year under consideration, the assessee-partnership firm received capital contributions from two partner-companies in which two other partners held substantial interest. The assessee was neither a registered shareholder nor a beneficial owner of shares held in the companies. However, the assessing officer assessed the contributions as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e) and taxed the same in the hands of assessee. The Commissioner of Income-Tax (Appeals) held that the capital contribution could not be treated as loans or advances extended to the assessee and therefore, the assessing officer could not have treated the same as deemed dividend in the hands of the assessee and the same was upheld by the Tribunal. On appeal by the Department, the Delhi High Court affirmed the decision of the Tribunal. The High Court further held that, if at all addition could have been made, it could've been made in hands of two individual partners and that too only by their assessing officers after affording them an opportunity of being heard. S. 2(22)(e): Deemed dividend-Business nexus and business exigency of entire transaction proved-Advance could not be construed as the receipt of dividend. 8

Held that the Assessee is an investment company holding 15. 47 percent. of equity in lender company took a loan from the bank for investment in two other companies against collateral security given by the director of the assesse. The assessee utilized the entire loan for investment. The company in which the assessee held 15. 47 percent equity lent money to the assessee for making monthly payments to the bank. Business nexus and business exigency of the entire transaction were proved, hence advance could not be construed as the receipt of a dividend. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 2(22)(e) : Deemed dividend-Loans and advances-Regular business transactions-Not a share holder-Not taxable as deemed dividend. 9

Held that neither the assessee was a substantial shareholder of ATL nor ATL was a shareholder of the assessee. After relying upon various decisions, the Tribunal held that since the assessee was not a shareholder in ATL, which has given loan/advance to assessee, therefore, the assessee did not fall under any of the limbs of section 2(22)(e) of the Act, and the same could not be invoked in the hands of the assessee but only in the hands of KSWPL. (AY. 2013-14, 2014-15, 2016-17, 2017-18)

Apeejay P. Ltd. v. Dy. CIT (2024) 111 ITR 231 (Kol.) (Trib.)

10 S. 2(22)(e) : Deemed dividend-Loans and advances-From group company (APL)-Beneficial shareholder was KSWPL under whose controlling interest and influence, APL had given loan/advance to assessee-Deeming provisions of section 2(22)(e) under second limb were attracted on KSWPL and not on assessee-loan amount was not taxable in hands of assesse. [S. 5 (1)(b)]
The assesseee was not a registered share holder of APL who was lender company. Assessee received certain sum as loans/advances from its group company (APL). Assessing Officer treated amount of loans/advances received by assessee from APL as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e) on ground that there was a common shareholding by KSWPL having substantial interest in both APL and assessee. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that KSWPL was in a position to control affairs of both APL and assessee. Benefit of transaction between APL and assessee accrued to KSWPL who was in a controlling position having more than 20 per cent of shareholding in both of them-Assessee and APL were in no way in a position to compel KSWPL in any way for exercising its voting rights in a particular manner. Thus, beneficial shareholder was KSWPL under whose controlling interest and influence, APL had given loan/advance to assessee and, accordingly, deeming provisions of section 2(22)(e) under second limb were attracted on KSWPL. Further, taking into consideration provisions contained in section 5(1)(b), income accrues or arises or is deemed to accrue or arise in hands of KSWPL and not in hands of assessee and same was not taxable in hands of assessee. Addition was deleted. (AY. 2013-14, 2014-15)

11 S. 2(24)(xviii) : Income – Subsidy - Incentives – Constitutional validity – Finance Act, 2015 – All subsidies, grants, incentives, concessions, reimbursements etc. to be treated as income – Court cannot substitute legislative judgment of economic policies - Validity upheld. [S. 4, Art. 12, 14, 19, 226, 246, 265, 289]
The assessee challenged the constitutional validity of section 2(24)(xviii) inserted by the Finance Act, 2015, which brought all forms of subsidies, grants, cash incentives, duty drawback, concessions and reimbursements within the ambit of taxable income, irrespective of whether capital or revenue in nature. It was contended that the amendment overruled judicial precedents applying the "purpose test" to subsidies, violated Articles 12, 14, 19, 246, 265 and 289 of the Constitution and was contrary to sections 4 and 5 of the Act. The High Court held that taxation is a matter of legislative policy; there is a presumption of constitutionality and courts cannot substitute legislative judgment in economic matters. Mere reduction in profitability or hardship to the assessee does not render a tax provision unconstitutional. The amendment was a transparent legislative act to recalibrate fiscal policy, and invalidation would cause fiscal chaos and refund claims. The provision was therefore upheld as constitutionally valid.

S. 2(31) : Person-Association of person-Characterization of consortium-Agreement-Terms of the agreement will be the deciding factors-Taxable as an AOP and not as individual members. 12

Held that characterization of consortium as an AOP, has to be determined in terms of the agreement between parties. Circular No 7/2016 dt. 7-3-2016 (2016) 382 ITR 27 (St.). Accordingly the Tribunal held that Consortium failed to fulfil the relevant requirement of the circular. Thus the TRIBUNAL upheld the taxability of Consortium as an AOP and not as individual members. S. 2(42A) : Short-term capital asset-Capital gains-Unlisted shares-Investment in a residential house-Amended provisions of section 2(42A), which exclude holding period of unlisted shares being held for 12 months to be treated as long-term capital gain is applicable from assessment year 2015-16-Shares held around 31 months-Matter remanded to decide issue afresh as per provisions of law. [S. 45, 54F] 13

Assessee sold shares and earned LTCG and claimed deduction under section 54F. Assessing Officer denied exemption under section 54F on ground that period of holding of shares was less than 36 months i. e. 31 months. Drawing support from provisions of section 2(42A), Assessing Officer held that sale of shares gave rise to STCG and taxed same. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that since provisions of section 2(42A) has been amended to exclude holding period of unlisted shares being held for 12 months to be treated as LTCG but said amendment has come from assessment year 2015-16 and applicable therefrom therefore, amended provisions is not applicable. Since holding period of impugned shares was around 31 months, capital gain was to be treated as LTCG and, hence, Assessing Officer should re-consider claim of exemption under section 54F and decide issue afresh as per provisions of law. 16 S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Capital or revenue-Preoperative expenditure pending capitalization-Interest Earned from fixed deposits of unutilised foreign external commercial borrowing loans during period of construction-Interest capitalised in the books of account-Capital receipt-SLP of revenue is dismissed due to failure to explain satisfactorily condonation of delay of 699 days in filing SLP. [S. 28(i), 56, 145, Art. 136]

During this year, the assessee could utilise only part of loan which was borrowed during period of construction. The assessee had temporarily made fixed deposits of the external commercial borrowing funds till utilisation for fixed asset or capital expenditure. The assessee had paid interest of Rs. 13.38 crores on the borrowings and had earned interest of Rs. 4.03 crores on the fixed deposits. The net interest of Rs. 9.35 crores was added to the preoperative expenditure pending capitalization. The Tribunal allowed the capitalisation of interest on fixed deposit receipts earned during the period of construction. On appeal the Court affirmed the order of Tribunal. SLP of Revenue was dismissed due to failure to explain satisfactorily condonation of delay of 699 days in filing SLP (AY. 2012-13), (2013-14)

High Court held that the assessee availed exemption from payment of tax under exemption certificate issued under section 4A of U. P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 on turnover of sales and claimed amount representing tax exemption component as capital receipt, since section 4A clearly indicated that exemption from tax on turnover of sales was not a subsidy granted by Government, aforesaid amount of tax component was a revenue receipt in hands of assessee and it could not be treated as capital receipt. Whether in view of fact that issue regarding exemption granted under U. P. Trade Tax, 1948, and effect thereof was pending consideration before this Court in *Tata Steel BSL Ltd. v. The Delhi High Court relying on various orders had held that the sales tax subsidy received by the assessee has to be treated as a capital receipt and not be added to the income of the assessee. The department filed SLP before the Supreme Court. The Court while dismissing the SLP held that consequent upon holding that the sales tax subsidy receipt by the Assessee was being treated as a capital receipt, the natural consequences as a result of the said declaration would follow. S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Capital or revenue-Amount received under non-compete agreement is capital receipt. [S. 28(i)] 21

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the assessee had been restrained both directly and indirectly from undertaking any business which would compete with the business of WSIL. Clearly, for the period in which the non-compete agreement was to operate, which in this case was ten years, the assessee's source of income had been clamped and, therefore, the compensation received by him is a capital receipt. [S. 56, 145] 22

Assessee-company is a 100 per cent subsidiary company of H, a wholly owned Government enterprise. Government sanctioned certain amount to assessee towards setting up of Integrated Vaccine Complex. Assessee parked certain amounts out of said funds which were not immediately required for construction, in banks and received interest from such short-term deposits. Interest income was set off against expenditure incurred for construction of Integrated Vaccine Complex. Assessing Officer treated interest received as income from other sources. It was noted that in communication from Government of India to assessee it is categorically mandated that funds and income earned out of funds provided by Government was to be utilised only for purpose for which they were released. It is also clarified that any interest income from said funds consequent on bank deposits, would also be utilised only for purpose of project. Since deposits and income were inextricably linked with setting up of project, interest income on short-term deposits of funds infused by Government was in nature of capital receipt and not revenue receipt. Assessee and other co-owners purchased property in their names and thereafter constructed godowns and plinths which were rented out to two companies. Assessee received rental income from these companies and deposited it in a joint bank account held by all co-owners. Assessing Officer assessed rental income received by co-owners as income from AOP under section 4. Tribunal held that the Income was assessable as income of an AOP. On appeal the Court held that rental income being paid by Government companies jointly in hands of co-owners treating them as a single land lord and amount was also being deposited in single account. There was no defined share to rental income and AOP had jointly received income. Accordingly the rental income received by co-owners was to be assessed as income from AOP and not in hands of assessee as income from house property under section 22. (AY. 2005-06)

Trade Tax Act, 1948 on turnover of sales and claimed amount representing tax exemption component as capital receipt. Assessing Officer treated aforesaid amount of tax component as revenue receipt. Appellate Authority allowed claim of assessee. On appeal by the Revenue the Court held that since section 4A of U. P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 clearly indicated that exemption from tax on turnover of sales was not a subsidy granted by Government and section 4A had not authorised assessee either to collect tax component on exempted sales or to retain it, aforesaid amount of tax component was a revenue receipt in hands of assessee and it could not be treated as capital receipt. S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Capital or revenue-Subsidy received from Government-Purpose test-Sales-Tax subsidy received from State Government as incentive to set up new unit or large-scale investment in fixed capital-Capital receipt. [S. 28(i), 260A] 26

The Government of Maharashtra to achieve the dispersal of industries outside the Mumbai-Thane-Pune belt and to incentivise the setting up of new and expanded units in underdeveloped and developing areas, had, in 1964, forged a scheme titled "Package Scheme of Incentives". The Package Scheme of Incentives introduced in 1964 underwent changes from time to time. The 1993 Scheme was rooted in the Package Scheme of Incentives put in place by the Government of Maharashtra, as indicated above, in 1964. The 1993 Scheme was forged to achieve three broad objectives : (i) first, to disperse industries outside the now Mumbai-Thane-Pune belt and to attract new and expanded units to developing and underdeveloped areas of the State ; (ii) second, to rationalise incentives accorded by intensifying and accelerating the dispersal of units from developed to underdeveloped and developing areas ; and (iii) third, the development of underdeveloped regions of the State, particularly those which were at some distance from the Mumbai-Thane-Pune belt. Thus, the central theme, object and purpose of the 1993 Scheme was to industrialise underdeveloped and developing areas which fell outside the now Mumbai-Thane-Pune belt by incentivising the setting up of new and expanded units. The common thread running through various incentives provided under the scheme was the setting up of new units or large-scale investment in fixed capital. The fact that the eligibility certificate was to be issued by the agency implementing the scheme after the commencement of commercial production by the eligible unit had been incorporated in the 1993 Scheme to ensure that the object and the purpose of the 1993 Scheme, which was to industrialise underdeveloped and developing areas was fulfilled. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the assessee was entitled to avail of sales-tax subsidy and incentives under two eligibility certificates dated December 13, 1994 and October 15, 1996 (as amended) for 14 years and 13 years and 11 months, respectively, subject to a maximum entitlement of 110 per cent. of the capital investment made in setting up of the industrial units. A perusal of the eligibility certificate dated December 13, 1994 would show that it was issued for setting up a "new unit", while the eligibility certificate dated October 15, 1996 was given to a "pioneer unit" which had undertaken expansion. The sales tax subsidy or incentive received by the assessee under 1993 Scheme was a capital receipt. (AY. 1997-98, 2005-06, 2006-07, 2008-09, 2013-14, 2014-15)

S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Interest-Capital or revenue-Auction sale-Interest against principal amount deposited-Auction sale is nullified by court-Interest is capital receipt and cannot be assessed as income from other sources. [S. 56(2)(viii)] 27

Assessee deposited principal amount pursuant to auction sale. However, said auction was eventually nullified by court. High Court directed for refund of whole amount deposited by assessee along with interest accrued thereon. Assessing Officer made addition on account of amount of interest received by assessee under section 56(2)(viii) of the Act. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. Assessee contended that said amount of interest was in nature of capital receipt not chargeable to tax. Tribunal held that principal amount could not be characterized as compensation granted by Court on account of cancellation of auction. Rather, such an amount was a bonafide amount of successful auction bidder, which he had deposited against purchase of land. Amount so received by assessee was entitlement of successful bidder which was given back to assessee vide an order of Court. Thus, when amount was not in nature of compensation, then, as a natural corollary, interest accrued on said amount could not tantamount to revenue receipts, and hence, same could not be subjected to tax as per section 56(2)(viii) of the Act. On appeal by Revenue High Court affirmed the order of the Tribunal. (AY. 2012-13)

28 S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Subsidy-Capital or revenue-Bengal Incentive Scheme, 2004-Linked to establishment of new units-Capital in nature. [S. 28(i)]

Assessee received subsidies from Govt. of West Bengal under West Bengal Incentive Scheme, 2004 for industrial projects. The Assessing Officer held that subsidy is revenue receipts. On appeal the Tribunal treated subsidy as capital in nature, intended for industrialization, and not taxable as revenue receipts. Tribunal also held that as per provisions of Industrial Promotion Assistance Scheme as framed by State of West Bengal, receipt of subsidies was clearly linked to a total investment exceeding INR 25,00,00,000 being made and would have become payable on commencement of commercial production. Affirming the order of the Tribunal the Court held that since, subsidy being clearly linked to establishment of new units, it would be treated as capital in nature. As regards the issue of Advertainment, Marketing and Promotion ("AMP"), the appeals would be re-notified, since both sides seek an opportunity to address submissions in greater detail.

The assessee-society owned certain residential flats. The plot of land on which the said flats were constructed was held by the assessee as a lessee under a long-term lease. The assessee along with its members decided to redevelop the flats by demolishing the old flats and constructing new flats. Accordingly it entered into redevelopment agreement with one developer, whereby it granted rights and entitlements to the developer for the aforesaid land. The members of the society agreed to transfer their old flats to the developer. The developer, in turn, agreed to pay a certain amount to each member of society apart from a certain amount to the corpus fund of assessee. The payment was in addition to the flats and parking spaces to be constructed and handed over to the members. The Assessing Officer taxed the amount received by the members from the developer in the hands of the assessee. The Commissioner (Appeals) partly allowed the appeal of the assessee. The Tribunal, on appeals filed by both the assessee and the revenue, held that the facts in the instant case were almost similar to the facts in the case of CIT v. Raj Ratan Palace Co-operative Housing Society Ltd. [IT Appeal No. 2292 of 2011, dated 27-2-2013 (Bombay High Court)] and relying on the said judgment concluded that as the members of the society had offered the amount received by them from the developer for taxation, the Commissioner (Appeals) was not justified in taxing the aforesaid amount to some extent in the hands of the assessee, as the same was the income of the members. It accordingly allowed the appeal of the assessee and dismissed the appeal of the revenue. Dismissing the appeal the Court held that the revenue is not even questioning the finding of the Tribunal that the facts in the case at hand were almost similar to the facts in the case of Raj Ratan Palace CHS (supra). Further against the above order of the High Court, the revenue had preferred a Special Leave Petition in the Apex Court, which came to be dismissed. Followed, *CIT v. S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Consideration received for relinquishment of trustee ship-Not capital in nature-Assessable as income-Reimbursements of certain sum for construction expenses-Not taxable in the hands of trustees-Not taxable in the hands of trustees-Donations were received by trusts-Not taxable in the hands of the Trustees. [S. 132, 260A] 30

Assessees were trustees of certain educational trust. Said trust was taken over by certain church and assessees relinquished trusteeship of said trust in favour of trustees of said church, and received consideration for same. The Asseessing Officer assessed the receipt as income. CIT(A) confirmed the addition. Tribunal deleted the addition. On appeal the Court held that since no power was conferred on trustees to relinquish their position as trustees en banc, therefore, en banc resignation/relinquishment by assessees, of their position as trustees of Trust, that too for a consideration, could not get imprimatur of this Court. Therefore, consideration received for such relinquishment would not qualify as a capital receipt and would be treated as individual income of assessees. Assessing Officer held that assessees had received reimbursements of certain sum for construction expenses and brought same to tax in their individual hands. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) held that evidence obtained in course of search proceedings revealed that no construction work had actually been undertaken by said assessees or any of trustees, and hence, payments shown as contractual receipts were nothing but payments received for voluntary relinquishment of trusteeship. On appeal Tribunal held that there was construction activity carried out by those two assessees as evidenced by agreements and construction was reflected in balance sheet of assessees which was subjected to TDS and it could not be said that payments were not made towards construction of building which was for establishment of educational institution. On appeal the Court held that since Tribunal had relied on audited balance sheet of church and TDS payments made to Department in relation to said payments, the order of Tribunal is affirmed. Donations were received by certain trust in which assessees were trustees. AO taxed same in hands of assessees. CIT(A) affirmed the Order of the Assessing Officer. Tribunal deleted the addition. On appeal the Court held that payments were actually made to trust and not to trustees in their individual names and therefore, same could not be taxed in hands of assessees. (AY. 2009-10 to 2011-12)

S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Capital or revenue-Business income-Compensation-Other payments-Income chargeable to tax-Compensation for termination (nonrenewal) of professional contract-Profession-Retrenchment-Freelance journalist-Compensation being capital receipt is not taxable. [S. 4, 28(ii)(e),32(1)(iv), 56(2)(xi), Industrial Relations Code, 2020, S. 2(ZA)] 38

The assessee has received compensation from Spiegel Verlag Spiegel Publishers which she claimed as exempt under section 4 of the Income tax Act. The AO held that the compensation is taxable as business income under section 28(ii)(e) of the Act read with Board Circular No. 8 /2018 dt. 26 December, 2018 (2019) 306 CTR 21 (St). The AO also held that said compensation is also taxable under section 56(2)(xi) of the Act. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that as per section 28(ii)(e), the compensation for termination compensation received by any person on termination or modification of the terms and conditions of any contract relating to his business is taxable under the head Profits and gains of business or profession. Wherever the legislature thought of referring to both business and profession, it has used both the words in the enactment. This means that wherever the word only business is used, it does not include profession. The reference to business in S. 28(ii)(e) would not amount to reference to profession. On the facts of the case the assessee is a freelance journalist. Relevant clauses of the agreement refer to renewal of the agreement. Since the contract was not renewed, it came to an end. Compensation was received by the assessee by way of mutual agreement between Spiegel Verlag Spiegel Publishers and the assessee. As per S. 2(zh) of the Industrial Relations Code, 2020, non-renewal of any contract does not amount to retrenchment. Therefore the compensation received by the assessee is not taxable under S. 28(ii)(e). In S. 56(2)(xi) the reference is to termination of employment. This section is also not applicable on the facts of the case. Followed G. K. Choksi & Co. v. CIT (2007) 213 CTR 431 / 295 ITR 376 (SC). [S. 40(a)(ia), 145, 194A, 195]

The assessee is involved in the business of selling holiday membership plans to its members. It had certain affiliation with certain hotels which provided accommodation to its members. Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) vide order dt. 21 st August, 2015 held that schemes floated and prescribed by the assssee constitute Collective Investment Schemes (CIS). Only 2% of the members /investors have availed of the holiday facilities other 98% investors who have invested money with the sole motive of receiving the assured returns in the form of interest. The assesee has not deducted the tax at source. The AO assessed the deposit as income and also disallowed the interest for failure to deduct tax at source. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the schemes floated by the assessee were held to be in the nature of CIS and therefore, the NAC paid by the assessee to its members was considered as interest on deposits, such deposits by the members cannot be treated as revenue in the hands of the assessee. The deposits received from the members cannot be treated as revenue receipt in the hands of the assessee. Tribunal also held that it is trite law that entries in the books of account are not decisive or determinative of the true nature of the entries. Accordingly the amount received by the assessee from its members, to the extent the same is treated as income in its books of account, is directed to be reduced while calculating the total income of the assessee. Held that as the information was available before the Assessing Officer, there could not be any violation of rule 46A ; secondly, the sum was received on account of capital receipt on sale of hotel assets and could not be treated as business asset. Such amount represented sale consideration as against sale of capital asset and should be adjusted against capital work-in-progress and not be treated as business income. S. 4 : Charge of income-tax-Doctrine of mutuality-Club-Complete identity between contributors and participators of funds-Letting out Air-conditioned hall and lawns to non-members-Member was only a name lender-Usage of Air-conditioned hall and lawns facility by non-members are not covered by principle of mutuality-Income from such activity is not exempt. [S. 143(3)] 44

Held that the facts were that the booking was done in the name of the member clearly mentioning the fact of the usage of facility by an outsider or non-member, the liability for payment for the usage of the facility was raised in the account of the member, and the facility was utilised by non-members or guests, and payment also was made by the guests or non-members. The fact that the non-members paid for the usage of these facilities was a clear pointer to the fact that the facility was given to the non-members not on behalf of the members as their guests but for the benefit of the non-members alone. Clearly the member was only a name lender, a conduit. His role ended with the lending of his name, the facility was thereafter utilised by non-member on making payment. The mere fact that the club held the member liable for making the payment, did not take away the fact that in every such letting out to non-members, the payment invariably was made by the non-members. There was no doubt, therefore, that the letting out of these facilities to non-members was not for the contributors in the common fund of the assessee club. In other years, before the Tribunal, it was noted that the facilities had been extended to the non-members on the behest of the members as his guests and the fact that the payment was being made by non-members was not brought to the knowledge of the Tribunal ; and, therefore, it proceeded with the belief that the extension of the facility to non-members was for and on behalf of the members itself. Since the facility was not being given to the non-members for and on behalf of the member, but was being exclusively given to the non-members alone, the usage of the air-conditioned hall and lawns facility by non-members in the facts of the present case was not covered by the principle of mutuality. The Assessing Officer had made an addition of the commission earned on guarantee issued by the bank relating to the unexpired period of the guarantee contract during the year but offered to tax by the assessee in succeeding years over the period of the guarantee. Likewise, an addition was also made on account of interest income on non-performing assets. The Dispute Resolution Panel, though noting that an identical addition of commission income made in the preceding years stood deleted by the Tribunal, directed the Assessing Officer to make the addition for the reason that the Department had appealed the Tribunal's decision before the High Court. Neither the Dispute Resolution Panel, nor the assessee, had brought out any distinction in facts from the preceding years. Therefore, as there was no case made out by the Revenue for not applying the Tribunal's decision in favour of the assessee, the addition of commission income and of interest income from non-performing assets is directed to be deleted. Assessee had made a claim with insurance company on basis of insurance cover purchased by it in respect of its corporate office where fire took place and had received interim claim of Rs. 2. 75 crores and it had incurred loss. Assessing Officer had treated payment received by assessee as insurance claim on ad hoc basis and taxed same under head business or profession. Commissioner (Appeals) held that amount received by assessee was revenue receipt taxable under head business or profession. On appeal the Assessee contended that since assessee had ultimately incurred a loss, said receipt could not be taxed in its hand as revenue receipt. Tribunal held that since assessee did not produce evidence regarding loss incurred by it due to accidental fire, issue was to be remitted back to Assessing Officer to decide afresh for on verifying actual loss incurred by assessee. Where the assessee had terminated the sub-lease and filed a suit for eviction, while the tenant also filed a cross-suit, the Small Causes Court permitted the tenant to deposit lease rent in Court without prejudice to the rights of either party. Assessee had a permanent home in India as well as in USA. Assessee claimed that his centre of vital interest lay in USA as his family was US national holding US passport, he was overseas citizen of India, had larger investments in US and one daughter out of three children was studying in USA. Assessing Officer held that assessee had stayed in India for more than 183 days and he was staying with his wife and children who had shown their place of residence as India. He treated assessee as resident of India for tax purposes and his US income was also taxed in India under section 5. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had a home in India. Assessee had come back to India for carrying on business in a private limited company which was set up by him and his wife. Assessee had an active involvement in running of this company in India. In India he had operative bank accounts and he had also investment in mutual funds. From USA, assessee was deriving rental income where his house property was rented out, he had investments in bank accounts as well as alternative investments. He did not have any active involvement in USA for earning wages, remuneration, profit Personal relationship and economic relationship of assessee and tilt more in favour of being close to India than US and thus, assessee was held as a resident of India in terms of article 4(2)(a) of Indo-(USA). Consequently, all his income derived in USA, was chargeable to tax in India by virtue of provisions of section 5. (AY. 2013-14)

Held Allowing the appeal, the Tribunal held that the assessee was a non-resident employee in an Indian company and was sent abroad to the United Kingdom for rendering services there. Service was rendered in the United Kingdom though the appointment made in India. The assessee received total salary which the assessee offered to tax in the United Kingdom. The Income-tax return and certificate of residence had been placed on record. The assessee claimed relief under the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement between India and the United Kingdom which was not allowed for the want of tax residency certificate by the Assessing Officer. Once the assessee qualified to be treated as non-resident under section 6 of the Act the scope of income taxable in the hands of the assessee would be in terms of section 5(2)(b) of the Act. The assessee was a non-resident and therefore the salary received by the assessee while rendering service abroad was not taxable in India. The addition was deleted. (AY. 2014-15)

Assessee, a tax resident of both India and US, employed with Indian-company was on an international assignment to US. He stayed and exercised his employment in US and received salary income. He claimed that as he had stayed in India only for 16 days, salary income earned by him was not taxable in India but was taxable in USA as per provisions of article 16 of Indo-US DTAA. Assessing Officer placing reliance on provisions of section 90(4) rejected assessee's claim of exemption from taxation of salary in India and made an addition of same. CIT(A) held that the remuneration was paid by the employer who was is always a resident of India and therefore, the assessee's salary was taxable in India. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had not made any submissions relating to status of assessee of cumulative stay of less than 365 days in four years preceding year in question, therefore, assessee by virtue of provisions of section 6(1) had failed to establish his status of non-resident. During year, assessee did not have permanent home in US, whereas, he had a permanent home in India. The Assesseee is in permanent employment of Indian-company and bank account of assessee i also in India, wherein, salary is deposited. Address of wife of assessee mentioned in income tax return filed in USA for year 2019 is also in India. In view of provisions of section 6 read with article 4 of Indo-US DTAA, assessee is to be treated as a resident of India. Since assessee is a resident of India, however he had exercised employment and received remuneration in US, income of assessee is taxable in USA and not in India. Therefore, additions made by Assessing Officer is deleted. (AY. 2019-20)

[S. 2(17), 2(23A), 90, Art. 24(2)] 61

Assessee is a branch of ABN Amro Bank NV incorporated in Netherlands with limited liabilities having its original office at Singapore. In India, assessee is registered as a scheduled bank in terms of Second Schedule to RBI Act, 1934 Since assessee had a PE in India, it was liable to tax in respect of income attributable to PE. Held that in terms of Article 24(2) of DTAA between India and Netherlands, containing provision of non-discrimination, assessee is liable to Income Tax at rate applicable to a domestic company. It was found that Explanation to section 90 is not in conflict with provisions of DTAA and that there is no conflict between provisions of DTAA and Income-tax Act, 1961 regarding non-discrimination. Further, section 2(17) defining word 'Company', section 2(22A) defining word 'Domestic Company', section 2(23A) defining word 'Foreign Company', and section 90 of Act, 1961 read with Explanation and section 2(1), section 2(12)(a), Paragraph 'E' of First Schedule to Finance Act are plain, unambiguous and lead only to one conclusion that two classes of companies, namely, 'domestic company' and 'company other than a domestic company' are liable to tax at prescribed rates. Therefore, there being no ambiguity in classification and rates of tax, assessee, which was not a 'domestic company', was liable to tax at rates prescribed for a company 'other than a domestic company'.

[Art. 5, 7(1), 7(2)]

The Full Bench was constituted to decide one of the questions arising in the petitions is whether any taxable income can be attributed to the Permanent Establishment (PE) in India if the overseas entity has incurred a loss in the relevant assessment year. Assessee contended that in case an enterprise at an entity level had suffered a loss at an entity level in relevant assessment year, no profit or income attribution would be warranted insofar as PE in India would be concerned. Court held that Article 7(1) constructs clear dichotomy between profits that may be earned by an enterprise on a global scale and those which are attributable to a PE situate in contracting state. It becomes further evident from Article 7(2) which stipulates that where an enterprise carries on business through a PE in other Contracting State, profits would be liable to be attributed to that PE as if it were a distinct and separate enterprise engaged in similar activities and independent of enterprise of which it may be a part. Article 7(1) itself excludes profits of an enterprise from being subjected to tax till such time as such an entity carries on no business in other Contracting State through a PE. The fact that a PE was conceived to be an independent taxable entity could not be questioned. Article 7 cannot be viewed as restricting right of source State to allocate or attribute income to PE based on global income or loss that may have been earned or incurred by a cross border entity. Thus, where an assessee had a PE in India, it would be liable to pay tax on income attributable to that PE notwithstanding that assessee at an entity level had suffered a loss. The matters are placed before the appropriate Roster Bench for disposal of petitions. (AY. 2009-10 to 2017-18)

S. 9(1)(i): Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Business connection-Strategic Oversight services-Not royalty-Business income-Since hotel premises were at disposal of assessee in respect of its business activities, Tribunal had rightly held that assessee had a PE in India in form of fixed place through which it carried on its business-DTAA-India-UAE. [S. 9(1)(vi), Art. 5(2)(a), 12] 64

Assessee, a tax resident of UAE, entered into two Strategic Oversight Services Agreements (SOSA) with an Indian company in respect of hotel located at Delhi. In terms of SOSA, assessee agreed to provide strategic planning services and know-how to ensure that hotel was developed and operated as an efficient and high quality international full-service hotel and received fee (strategic fee as well as incentive fee) as set out in SOSA. Assessing Officer and Tribunal held that payment received from owner under SOSA was royalty under DTAA as same related to provisions of know-how, skill, experience, commercial information and other intangibles. The Court held that the fee was not a consideration for use of or right to use any process or for information of commercial or scientific experience but was in consideration of providing services as set out in SOSA. Therefore, fee revived by assessee was not royalty under article 12 of DTAA but was in nature of business income. Court also held that in terms of SOSA, assessee agreed to provide strategic planning services and know-how to ensure Hotel was developed and operated as an efficient and high quality international full-service hotel. Order of Tribunal holding that the assessee had a Permanent Establishment (PE) in terms of article 5(2) of DTAA was affirmed. Court observed that the assessee exercised control in respect of all activities at hotel, inter alia, by framing policies to be followed by hotel in respect of each and every activity, and by further exercising apposite control to ensure that said policies were duly implemented. Admittedly, assessee also performed an oversight function in respect of hotel which was also carried out, at least partially if not entirely, at hotel premises. Since hotel premises were at disposal of assessee in respect of its business activities, Tribunal had rightly held that assessee had a PE in India in form of fixed place through which it carried on its business. 65 S. 9(1)(i): Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Business connection-Business profits-Disallowed engineering fees on the ground that time log sheets were not filed, debit notes furnished provided sufficient information as to nature of duties and number of hours spent-Order of Tribunal deleting the disallowance is affirmed-Article 7 of OECD Model Convention. [S. 260A]

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that, the involvement of the assessee in the project which was under execution was not in doubt. The DMRC had availed the engineering services rendered by the employees of the head office. The assessee only remitted the engineering fee to the head office. There is no dispute with regard to the fact that the debit note provided sufficient information not only concerning the names of the employees but also as to the nature of duties and number of hours that they spent on the job assigned to them. As the Tribunal was being the final fact-finding authority, hence no interference was called for, especially when revenue had not proposed any question which was indicative of the fact that any of the findings returned by the Tribunal was perverse. Therefore Disallowance was correctly deleted. (AY. 2005-06)

The Assessing Officer computed the long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of shares of 'A' and proposed addition. The assessee submitted that Explanation 7 of section 9(1)(i) ought to have been given retrospective effect. The DRP up held the addition. Tribunal deleted the impugned addition holding that Explanations 4 and 5 inserted via the Finance Act, 2012 would operate retrospectively with effect from 1-4-1962. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that, though assessee had entered into a contract with MRVC for the supply of equipment and services, offshore as well as onshore, the terms of the contract distinctly set out the quantum of offshore supplies to be made by the assessee to MRVC and also the quantum of payment to be received by the assessee from MRVC outside India. The composite contract specifically records the quantum of goods to be supplied outside India, the property in the plant and machinery got transferred to MRVC once they were loaded on the mode of transport from the country of origin to India and even the payment is made outside India. Therefore the income arising from offshore supplies is not taxable in India. (AY. 2012-13)

Article 1 itself mentions that the assessee-company as a principal reserves the right to quote price, place orders of the goods and otherwise deal directly with buyers and/or sellers located in the territory or visiting Japan from the territory, if all the actions of the assessee as principal, circumstances make it necessary advisable to do so. Because the nature of business of trading is a continuous flow of the business process, that cannot be a foundation to conclude a principal-agent relationship for the purpose of art. 5 of the DTAA. [S. 90, Art. 4, 12]

Assessee is a Limited Liability Company (LLC) incorporated in USA. Assessee claimed to be a resident of USA and offered to tax income by way of receipts on account of fees at rate of 15 per cent, applying rate given in India-USA DTAA. Assessing Officer held that LLCs were fiscally transparent entities according to US tax law, i. e., their income is not subject to tax in their own hands in USA and such corporations, therefore, did not qualify as residents of USA in terms of Article 4 of India-USA DTAA. He, accordingly, proceeded to bring to tax returned income of assessee at rate of 25 per cent. DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that under US federal income tax law, an LLC with a single owner was disregarded as separate from its owner unless LLC elected to be treated as a corporation for US federal income tax purposes-Ability of LLC to elect its tax classification under US federal income tax law also supported legal situation or aspect of LLC being liable to tax. Further, where a LLC was disregarded as separate from its tax owner for US federal income tax purposes, tax owner of LLC paid tax on tax owner's share of taxable income attributed from LLC. Assessee being a resident under Article 4 of Indo-US Tax Treaty by virtue of incorporation and its recognition as a separate existence from its members qualified as a person. Accordingly the assessee was liable to tax in resident State by virtue of US Income-tax Law hence the tax authorities had fallen in error in not extending treaty benefit to assessee. General Motors Company USA. v. ACIT IT, (2024) 209 ITD 60 (Delhi) (Trib.)

S. 9(1)(i): Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Business connection-Non-Resident-Royalty-Licence to incorporate software belonging to non-Resident in Indian company's Vehicles-Receipts from supply of software is not royalty-Receipts business income not taxable in India in absence of a Permanent Establishment in India-Delay in filing of return-Extended notification-Matter remanded for verification-Interest-Income received after deduction of tax at source-Levy of interest is not valid-DTAA-India-China. [S. 9(1)(vi), 139, 209(1)(d), 234A, 234B, Art. 12(3)] 74

Held that under the licence agreement no rights were provided to make copies of software products or to modify, merge or combine with other software ; no right to change the object code from source code and make any derivative products from that had been provided and the technical documentation for the software remained the property of the assessee, the assessee was responsible for any claims of patent infringement and thus all intellectual property rights in the licensed products belonged to the assessee and its licensors only. The Indian company was required to get the terms of the legally binding end user licence agreement agreed by its customer before allowing use of the licensed products. The Indian company merely purchased the licensed software which was embedded in the head unit and fitted into cars for end use by the buyer of the car. The end user licence agreement was signed with the end user for use of the licensed software. The end user had limited right to use the application. The receipts from supply of software were not royalty income. The expression "imparting of information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience" alludes to the concept of "know-how" which is defined to mean "undivulged technical knowledge, information, experience or technique that is necessary for the industrial reproduction of a product or process". The licence agreement specifically provided for supply of software licence only, and the assessee had only supplied a standard, off-the-shelf software to the Indian company and had not given any "know-how" to the Indian company from which the Indian company could reproduce it for its perpetual use as the Indian company had to purchase licences equal to number of cars manufactured by it. The payments received by the assessee was not for the use of the copyright or imparting information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience and thus would not fall within the scope of article 12(3) of the DTAA to be taxed as royalty income. The receipts were business income in the hands of the assessee which was not taxable in India in the absence of a permanent establishment of the assessee in India. Held that interest under section 234A of the Income-tax Act, 1961 is levied only in cases where the assessee does not furnish its return of income or furnishes it after the due date prescribed under section 139 of the Act. The facts on record revealed that the assessee filed its return of income within the prescribed (extended) due date applicable to the assessment year. The Assessing Officer was to verify the date of filing of the return vis-a-vis the due date of filing of return for the assessment year 2020-21 in the light of the CBDT Notification No. 93/2020/F. No. 370142/35/2020-TPL dated December 31, 2020 by which the due date for furnishing of returns for the assessment year 2020-21 was extended to February 15, 2021 and decide it afresh in accordance with law. Tribunal also held that the proviso inserted in section 209(1)(d) of the Act by the Finance Act, 2012 with effect from April 1, 2012 would apply only where the person responsible for deducting tax has paid or credited such income without deduction of tax. Since the income had been received by the assessee after deduction of tax at source the levy of interest under section 234B of the Act was not called for. (AY. 2020-21)

The Assessee contended that the overseas company did not carry out any dredging operations in India but only gave dredgers to the Assessee Company in India on a time charter basis, for which it charged a fixed fee/remuneration irrespective of the actual usage of such vessel. The Revenue argued that the foreign company had a business connection in India as the dredgers were continuously operating in Indian territorial waters. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that the foreign company did not have a business connection or permanent establishment in India. That the foreign company only provided dredgers on a lease basis without engaging in any active business operations in India. Further that the operational staff and the captain worked under the supervision and control of the Assessee, and the payments were for the use of equipment, not for any business activity conducted by the foreign company in India. The Assessee a US-based company, entered into Participating Carrier Distribution and services agreements with various airlines in India to facilitate ticket booking and related services through its computer reservation system (CRS). The company also had subscriber agreements with global travel agencies, allowing them access to the CRS. The Assessing Officer (AO) and the Dispute Resolution Panel (DRP) held that the Assessee had a fixed place PE and agency PE in India based on earlier assessment years' findings, despite changes in the business model post-2005. The Assessee contended that after 2005, there was a significant change in its business model. The company no longer provided computers, printers, or communication lines to travel agents in India. Instead, global travel agencies independently sourced these requirements. The Assessee argued that it did not have any office or employees in India and was not responsible for providing any equipment to Indian travel agents, thus negating the existence of a fixed place PE or agency PE in India. The Revenue contended that the Assessee had a fixed place PE and agency PE in India based on the company's operations and income generated from India. The AO and DRP relied on earlier assessment years' findings, arguing that the CRS gateway used by travel agents constituted a fixed place of business in India. They also maintained that the business model changes post-2005 did not materially alter the company's operations in India.

The Hon'ble Tribunal ruled in favor of the Assessee holding that the company did not have a fixed place PE or agency PE in India post-2005 due to changes in its business model. The Hon'ble Tribunal noted that the Assessee no longer provided equipment or communication links to Indian travel agents and had no office or employees in India. That the burden of proving the existence of a PE lies with the Revenue, which failed to establish this in light of the changed business model. (AY. 2012-13 to 2016-17)

The assessee had received income tax refund. In the return of income the assessee offered the interest at the rate of 10 percent as per Article 12 of DTAA between India and France. The Assessing Officer assessed the interest as business income in terms of Article 7 read with Paragraph 5 of Article 12 of the DTAA. DRP affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that interest on income-tax refund is not effectively connected with permanent establishment either on basis of asset-test or activity-test, it could not be taxed under article 7 but was to be taxed under article 12 of India-France DTAA. Assessee, a Mauritius based company, was engaged in telecasting sports channel called 'Ten Sports'. It appointed its Indian subsidiary (Taj India) as its advertising sales agent to sell commercial advertisement time to prospective advertisers in India. It also appointed Taj India as its distributor to distribute subscription supported television programming service solely for exhibition to subscribers in India. Later, by addendum in distribution agreement assessee gave Taj India authority to conclude contracts in its name. Assessing Officer held that assessee had a dependent agent PE in India within meaning of article 5(4)(i) of DTAA on ground that Taj India had authority to conclude contracts in name of assessee hence the income is taxable in India. On appeal the CIT(A) held that the assessee did not have any PE with respect to its distribution functions. On cross appeal the Tribunal held that since Assessing Officer failed to establish that Taj India habitually exercised authority to conclude contracts on behalf of assessee, in such case Taj India could not be said to be dependent agent PE of assessee under article 5(4) of DTAA and distribution income of assessee was not be taxable in India. Assessee had entered into various contracts with Indian clients for supply and delivery of equipment and supervision, installation, erection and commissioning activity. Assessee did was not involved in any installation activity. Installation, erection and commissioning of projects was handled by wholly owned subsidiary of Germany company-Assessing Officer was of view that turnkey contract was a single composite contract between assessee and clients in India, thus he made an addition towards income attributable to Indian PE from said contracts and taxed same in hands of assessee-Whether in view of decision of Tribunal in assessee's own case for subsequent assessment years, contracts entered into by assessee with Indian clients was single composite contract and income arising therefrom was to be assessed in hands of the assessee, because project office of assessee constituted a PE in India. Further since assessee had failed to provide necessary information to justify that there was an error in computation of profit attribution to PE in India and there was duplication of income

The assessee, a tax resident of Thailand, which is engaged in the business of manufacturing of train control and signalling systems for mass transit system. In terms with the contract, the assessee made offshore supply of goods and equipments to DMRC from outside India and received certain amount of consideration for such supply. The Assessing Officer held that the assessee had a service PE in India, through which, it executed the contract. Accordingly, out of the receipts from offshore supplies, the Assessing Officer attributed 10 per cent of the total receipts as profits of the PE and accordingly, brought the same to tax same. The DRP upheld the view taken by the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that, that the assessee did not have any place of business in India and all business activities with respect to offshore supplies were carried outside India. Equipment supply had been manufactured at overseas manufacturing facility of assessee and sale of equipment had occurred outside India and payment had also been received by assessee outside India. Therefore, addition made by Assessing Officer was deleted. (AY. 2020-21)

[S. 2(25A), 5(2)(b) 6, Art. 8] 83

Assessee is an Engineer (Under Water Inspector) working at offshore fields. During year under consideration, it he had received salary income from his Singapore based employer for work done in oil fields in Bay of Bengal in international water and had claimed same as exempt income. Assessing Officer held that oil fields in Bay of Bengal was part of Indian Territory and therefore, work performed by assessee could not be termed as work outside Indian Territory and also held that co-ordinates of oil fields in Bay of Bengal were situated within Exclusive Economic Zone of India and same was within part of "India" as defined in section 2(25A). Accordingly, he had made an addition of same under section 5(2)(b) read with section 9(1)(ii). CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that sub-section 9 of section 7 of Territorial Waters, Continental Shelf, Exclusive Economic Zone and Other Maritime Zones Act, 1976 gave freedom of navigation to foreign ships and therefore employees working on such ships who were not carrying out activities as specified by said notification were not deemed to be working in India. On facts, salary income received by assessee from his foreign employer was exempt income because of his non-residential status as salary was earned for working in international waters. The salary and the compensatory allowances were paid to the Assessee at Vienna from the company in India which were permissible to be utilized through a credit card which was valid only in Austria. The AO made an addition on account of salary and allowances as the Assessee did not furnish a TRC. The Tribunal reproduced the provisions of S. 5 and 9 and observed that the Assessee neither had any rest period nor leave period which is preceded and succeeded by the services rendered outside India. Since, the Assessee, being a non-resident, has rendered services outside India, the salary can was not be taxable in India. (AY. 2016-17 2017-18)

[S. 2(28A), 5(2), 260A, Art. 7, 12(5), 23(3), Art. 136]

Assessee, a tax resident of United Kingdom, is engaged in manufacture of specialty chemicals. During relevant year, assessee had extended guarantees to various overseas branches of foreign banks on a global basis in relation to credit facilities extended by those financial institutions to its Indian subsidiaries. In its return of income, it had characterized amount of guarantee fee as interest and, thus, taxable under article 12. Assessing Officer held that said sum would be liable to be taxed under Article 23(3) being in nature of other income. Tribunal held that guarantee charges were not received by assessee in respect of any debt owed to it by its Indian subsidiary and guarantee charges were levied for service of providing parent company guarantees and counter indemnification of liabilities of Indian subsidiaries. Therefore on facts, guarantee charges could not be viewed as 'interest' under Article 12. Further since guarantee charges became leviable every quarter at a rate already agreed upon by parties and on outstanding balance, guarantee charges clearly answered to description of income accruing or arising in India. S. 9(1)(v) : Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Interest-Other income-Guarantee to various banks to extend credit facilities to its Indian subsidiaries-Guarantee charges were not received by assessee in respect of any debt owed to it by its Indian subsidiary-Guarantee fee would not fall within expression 'interest' in article 12 of India UK DTAA-Accrue-Arise-Income-DTAA-India-UK-Northern Ireland [S. 2(28A), 5(2), 260A, Art. 7, 12(5), 23(3)] 87

Assessee, a tax resident of United Kingdom, is engaged in manufacture of specialty chemicals. During relevant year, assessee had extended guarantees to various overseas branches of foreign banks on a global basis in relation to credit facilities extended by those financial institutions to its Indian subsidiaries. In its return of income, it had characterized amount of guarantee fee as interest and, thus, taxable under article 12. Assessing Officer held that said sum would be liable to be taxed under Article 23(3) being in nature of other income. Tribunal held that guarantee charges were not received by assessee in respect of any debt owed to it by its Indian subsidiary and guarantee charges were levied for service of providing parent company guarantees and counter indemnification of liabilities of Indian subsidiaries. Therefore on facts, guarantee charges could not be viewed as 'interest' under Article 12. Further since guarantee charges became leviable every quarter at a rate already agreed upon by parties and on outstanding balance, guarantee charges clearly answered to description of income accruing or arising in India. Assessee-company, a tax resident of Mauritius, earned certain amount as interest income from securities. Assessee claimed said income would be exempt under clause (c) of article 11(3) of India-Mauritius DTAA. Assessing Officer disallowed said claim of assessee. Revenue contended that clause (c) of article 11 of DTAA would not apply to assessee as it did not have a banking business license from RBI. DRP upheld the findings of the Tribunal. Tribunal held that interest income from securities would be exempt under clause (c) of article 11(3) of India-Mauritius DTAA. On appeal the Court held that in draft assessment order Assessing Officer had granted exemption to interest on ECB by accepting that assessee was carrying on bona fide banking business in Mauritius. Since assessee was carrying a bona fide banking business in Mauritius, interest that assessee earned would be exempt in India. (AY. 2011-12)

Assessee-company made interest payment to China Development Bank (CDB) without deducting tax at source under section 195 claiming benefit of article 11. AO held that since as per Financial Statement of CDB only 36. 45% shares in said Bank was held by Government of China during relevant period, i. e., FY 2015-16, CDB could not claim benefit of DTAA and, hence, assessee was liable to deduct tax under section 195. CIT(A) held that the CDBB is a financial institution wholly owned by the Government of China and is eligible for the beneficial provisions of Article 11(3) of the India-China DTAA. On appeal the Tribunal held that in protocol to India-China DTAA, paragraph 3 was simultaneously inserted by deleting erstwhile paragraph 3 which defined term 'any financial institution wholly owned by Government of other Contracting State' and specific institutions listed in protocol for both India and China, were always covered as Government owned financial institution for purpose of article 11. Therefore CDB being a financial institution wholly owned by Government of China was eligible for benefit of provisions of Article 11(3) the assessee could not be treated as assessee in default with respect to non-deduction of tax on interest payments made to CDB. Assessee is a Cyprus based company and was a wholly owned subsidiary of a company based in Mauritius. It invested in compulsorily convertible debentures (CCDs) of an Indian company and earned interest. Assessee claimed benefit of tax rate of 10 per cent as per India-Cyprus DTAA. Assessing Officer denied benefit of said rate on ground that Mauritius based company was beneficial owner of interest income and not assessee and taxed same at domestic rate of 40 per cent. Held that investment in CCDs was done by assessee in its own name through proper banking channels and assessee had complete right to receive and enjoy interest income earned on CCDs without any obligation to pass on same to any other person. Assessee had also got complete control over interest income on investment in CCDs and was free to enjoy same as per its own wish. On facts, assessee being beneficial owner of interest income on CCDs from Indian entity, was entitled for taxability at a concessional rate as provided under article 11(2). (AY. 2017-18)

[S. 195, Art. 136]

High Court held that a Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement being a sovereign document between two countries the assessee was entitled to take the benefit thereunder. Therefore, the Tribunal's view that the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement cannot be considered in proceedings under section 201 was untenable. Held that amendment to the provisions of section 9(1)(vi) inserting the Explanations would not result in amendment of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreements. The Supreme Court had held that Explanation 4 to section 9(1)(vi) was not clarificatory of the position as on June 1, 1976 and had expanded that position to include what was stated therein by the Finance Act, 2012. Explanations 5 and 6 to section 9(1)(vi) had been inserted with effect from June 1, 1976. Held that the fact that for the subsequent years in the assessee's own case, the Tribunal had held that tax was not deductible under section 195 when payment was made to non-resident telecommunications operators was not refuted. Therefore, the payments made to non-resident telecommunications operators for providing inter-connectivity services and transfer of capacity in foreign countries was not chargeable to tax as royalty under section 9(1)(vi). Held that the Department had no jurisdiction to bring to tax income that arose from extra-territorial sources. The non-resident telecommunications operators to whom the assessee had made payments had no presence in India. The assessee's contract was with B, a Belgium entity which had made certain arrangement with OMT for utilisation of bandwidth and B had permitted the assessee to utilise a portion of the bandwidth which it had acquired from OMT. The facilities were situated outside India and the agreement was with B, a foreign entity which did not have any permanent establishment in India. Therefore, the assessee was not liable to deduct tax at source under section 195 on the payments made to the non-resident telecommunications operators. Held that Deputy Director (International Transaction) was not right in holding that for the assessment years 2013-14 to 2015-16 the withholding of tax liability could be levied at a higher rate at 20 per cent. Held that as a deductor, the assessee was not liable for deduction of tax at source for payments made for the assessment years 2008-09 to 2012-13 on the basis of a subsequent amendment to section 9(1)(vi) whereby Explanations 5 and 6 were introduced. SLP of Revenue is dismissed on account of delay of 222 days and also on merits. (AY. 2008-09 to 2012-13, 2013-14 to 2015-16)

High Court held that where assessee, a US based company, earned revenue from sale of software to its Indian clients, since grant of right to install and use software did not include providing copyright of said software to clients, revenue earned from said sale would not be taxable in hands of assessee as royalty in India.. High Court also held that where assessee, a US based company, provided cloud computing infrastructure to its Indian clients through subscription agreement and even though cloud based services were based on patents/copyright but subscribers did not get any right of reproduction, thus, subscription fee was merely a consideration for online access of cloud computing services and would not be taxable as royalty in India. Assessee, a non-resident company, received consideration for supply of software to Reliance and claimed same to be business income not taxable in India in absence of any permanent establishment in India. [S. 90(2),260A, Art. 3(2), 12(3)]

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue, Court held that consideration received on basis of agreements from telecommunication operators for Bandwidth and inter-connectivity usage of their customers. Provisions of double taxation avoidance agreement override statutory provisions and amendments thereto. Receipts not assessable as royalty in India. No alienation of copyrighted articles, patents, trademarks, designs, models, secret formulae or processes, property or information. Mere advantage or benefit derived from service provided cannot be countenanced to fall within meaning of expressions use or right to use. Receipts under agreements for provision of bandwidth not royalty. That even if Explanations 2 and 6 to section 9 applied, the position would remain unaltered since there was no transfer or conferment of a right in respect of a patent, invention or process. Customers and those availing of the services provided by the assessee were not accorded a right over the technology possessed or infrastructure by it. The underlying technology and infrastructure remained under the direct and exclusive control of the assessee and the parties availing of the assessee's services were not provided a corresponding general or effective control over any intellectual property or equipment. The agreements merely enabled them to avail of the services offered by the assessee. A person who was provided mobile communication services or access to the internet did not stand vested with a right over a patent, invention or process. The consideration that the service recipient paid also could not be recognised as being intended to acquire a right in respect of a patent, invention, process or equipment. The word "process" being liable to be construed ejusdem generis was lent added credence by clause (iii) employing the expression "or similar property" which followed. It was intended to extend to a host of intellectual properties. Neither the concept of process nor equipment royalty were attracted and the considerations for the transactions in question were not taxable under article 12 of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement. Assessee provides web hosting services, the registration and transfer of generic top-level domains, such as .com,. net, org. and info-Besides this, the assessee also provides the same service for country code top-level domains, which includes a mark, distinguishes the goods and services of one person from those of others. Agreement in no uncertain terms, establishes that the assessee has given up exclusive ownership or use of data elements for all registered names submitted by it to the registry database or sponsored by it. Agreement clearly establishes that the assessee who acts as a registrar and, in that capacity, provides domain registration services to its customers does not have any proprietorship rights in the domain name. Therefore, the submission advanced on behalf of the assessee, i. e., that since it is not the domain name's owner, it cannot confer the right to use or transfer the right to use the domain name to another person/ entity, is accepted ance. Therefore, the fee received by the assessee for registration of domain names of third parties, i. e., its customers, cannot be treated as royalty. Appeal of assessee is allowed. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that since the copyright in the application was never transferred nor vested in a subscriber, the fees were not assessable under section 9 of the Act. Court also held that article 12(4)(b) of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement between Singapore and India would have been applicable provided the Department had been able to establish that the assessee had provided technical knowledge, experience, skill, know-how or processes enabling the subscriber acquiring the services to apply the technology contained therein. The explanation of the assessee, which had not been refuted even before the High Court was that the customer was merely accorded access to the application and it was the subscriber which thereafter inputs the requisite data and took advantage of the analytical attributes of the software. This would clearly not fall within the ambit of article 12(4)(b) of the Agreement. (AY. 2011-12 to 2017-18)

[S. 9(1)(vii) Art. 12]

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that consideration received by assessee, a company incorporated and based in Israel, for sale of software to Indian company was not royalty since there was no transfer or use of copyright in sale of 'off shelf' software that could come within ambit of royalty and, hence, it was not taxable in India. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the services rendered by the assessee were project specific and terminated with submission of bid by ABB India after making necessary changes or corrections in the bid based on the evaluation report. If the agreement permitted the assessee to make available the results for guidance to other entities in the group, that could not be attributed as services "made available" which could be used in perpetuity. No income accrued or arose to the assessee in India. Appeal of Revenue is dismissed. (AY. 2009-10)

[S. 195, Art. 7(1), 12(3)]

The assessee was appointed official sponsor of International Cricket Committee events, and entered a sponsorship agreement with GCC and WSN. The assessee sought authorisation for remittances to GCC without tax deduction at source, asserting that the payment to GCC was not taxable in India in terms of article 7(1) of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement between India and Singapore in the absence of a permanent establishment. The Assessing Officer rejected this and deemed the amounts to be in the nature of "royalty" and directed deduction of tax at source at 24 per cent. and education cess at 2 per cent. The Commissioner (Appeals) granted part relief to the assessee holding that 50 per cent. of the payment was for usage of trademark, trade name, and copyright in the nature of "royalty" and taxable under article 12. On appeal claiming refund of excess tax paid in respect of remittances made to GCC, The Tribunal held that that the assessee had made payment primarily for the right to use and display event marks, etc. The other right to use official status, advertising and promotional rights before and at each event, and right to tickets and corporate hospitality were ancillary rights which the assessee had been allowed to exploit. The assessee had the non-exclusive right to use footage relates to the events or matches which IDI and GCC owned. That the payments made by the assessee to GCC were not in the nature of royalty as defined under section 9(1)(vi) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 or article 12(3) of the DTAA. That the State could not charge tax more than what was due from its subjects. If any tax had been paid by the assessee to the Government exchequer in the form of tax deducted at source on the payment made in pursuance to the sponsorship agreement, the assessee may claim refund thereof, in accordance with law.

Assessee, Google Ireland, an Ireland based company, which is engaged in business of sale of online advertisement space to GIPL and to direct advertisers. Assessing Officer held that assessee had given marketing and distribution rights of Ad words program to GIPL and income received from sale of online advertisement space was in nature of royalty. He, thus, issued reopening notice on ground that assessee had not offered receipts for tax and income had escaped assessment. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal in assessee's own case for assessment year 2007-08 held that payment made by GIPL to assessee is not in nature of royalty or FTS and, consequently, it could not be brought to tax in hands of assessee. Order of the CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2008-09)

[S. 9(1)(vi), Expln 2(iva), 195] 120
The assessee, a Danish Company, had entered into a global agreement with Microsoft for procuring various shrink-wrapped software user licenses such as Microsoft Visual Studios, dynamic 365, remote Desktop, office 365, etc., for entities within the Saxo group. The assessee received payments against the above licenses from its associated enterprise, M/s. Saxo Group India P. Ltd. (SGIPL) on which tax was withheld under section 195 of the Act. The assessee claimed that receipts from, its associated enterprise, M/s. Saxo Group India P. Ltd., was exempt which the Revenue treated as taxable as Royalty u/s. 9(1)(vi) of the Act because such receipt was for allowing use of its information technology infrastructure which consists of various third-party software, owned/leased/supported platforms including hardware systems. On appeal to the Tribunal, after going through the documents produced and agreements, it held that the amount cross charged by the assessee did not pertain to any use or right to use of any copyright as neither the assessee nor M/s. Saxo Group India P. Ltd., could sub-licence, transfer, reverse engineer, modify or reproduce the software/user licence. M/s. Saxo Group India P. Ltd., acknowledged that the Microsoft Software had been granted to the assessee by Microsoft Denmark ApS under an object code-only, non-exclusive, non-sublicensable, non-transferable, revocable licence to access and use the object code version of the proprietary software, solely for the assessee and its group/associate companies' internal business purposes. Therefore, it held that mere fact that tax has been deducted does not automatically make the receipt taxable as royalty. (AY. 2020-21)

Assessee, a US based company, was engaged in business of providing access to online journals/online library. Assessee entered into agreements from outside of India with customers in India to provide access to online journals/online library available at its online database maintained outside of India and earned revenue. Assessee claimed that said receipts from Indian customers were not chargeable to tax as Royalty/FTS/FIS under provisions of Act, 1961 read with India-US DTAA-DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee sold compiled, indexed or curated articles obtained from other authors as copyrighted article/product, for easy access to customers and limited rights to access online journals granted by assessee to Indian customers did not amount to granting of any right in copyright in any manner whatsoever, receipts from Indian customers did not constitute royalties under DTAA. Accordingly receipts from Indian customers for offshore sales of books/journals or providing access to online journals/online library did not qualify as royalties under Act as well as under Treaty. Tribunal also held that services of providing access to online database/journals did not fall under FIS as services did not satisfy clause 'make available' as required for provisions of article 12 of DTAA. Assessee, a Singapore based company, had entered into franchise agreement with Indian companies to sub-license brand names to third party hotels in India. Assessee offered amounts received towards franchise, license fee etc. as royalty income. However, assessee did not offer receipts from reservation services, marketing services and loyalty programme to tax in India pleading that they were neither in nature of royalty nor fees for technical services. Assessing Officer held that amount received for services rendered in connection with use or right to use any trade mark fell within scope of royalty and, thus, treated said receipts as royalty/fee for technical services under section 9 and under article 12 of India-Singapore DTAA. DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that since in assessee's own case for earlier assessment year 2015-16, on similar facts, it was held that there was no transfer of use or right to use any industrial or commercial or scientific equipments and, thus, amount in dispute would not qualify as royalty. Addition was deleted. (AY. 2020-21, 2021-22)

Assessee, Netherlands based dredging contractor, filed its return of income declaring a business loss. VOIPL a subsidiary of assessee in India, had entered into a service agreement with assessee to avail ongoing assistance and support in field of information technology, operations, quality, health & safety estimating and engineering, marketing, administration, personnel, etc.. For rendering above services, assessee had recovered a certain sum from VOIPL, without any mark-up. Assessing Officer had considered said payments to be for use of information concerning industrial, commercial or scientific experience in India and had, accordingly, held same to be taxable as royalty in India. DRP approved the draft assessment order. On appeal the Tribunal held that since for rendering of these services, there was no element of imparting of any know-how or transfer of any knowledge, skill or experience, none of services provided by assessee in terms of 'service agreement' fell within scope and ambit of 'royalty' as defined in article 12(4). Since management services fees charged was on allocation of cost which was without mark-up, same being in nature of reimbursements did not constitute royalty as per India-Netherlands DTAA. Assessee, a foundation, which is engaged in running of an educational school. It had made annual payments under various heads like evaluation fees, authorization fees workshop/training charges, fees for enrolment/registration fees etc. to various foreign educational institutions in UK and Switzerland. Assessing Officer held that foreign educational institutions were providing services related to use and application of trademarks and hence such payments were taxable in India as royalty as per provisions of article 13 of India-UK DTAA and article 12 of India-Swiss Confederation DTAA. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assesee had not offered explanation regarding basis for raising invoice on assessee and also on what basis discount was offered to assessee by overseas educational institutions even after affording several opportunities to assessee both during course of assessment as well as appellate proceedings. Tribunal held that unless and until nature and basis of raising invoices by overseas educational institutions was clear to tax authorities, it was not possible to come to conclusion that no payments were made for use of trade name/brand of national educational institutions and payment was only for authorizing assessee to act as a mediator between students and educational institutions outside of India. Accordingly the matter is remanded to Assessing Officer to understand basis on which lump sum fee was charged by overseas entities from assessee and also basis for allowing/affording discount to assessee. Assessee, a UK based company, which is engaged in providing software development services and sales & marketing support services to its group entities. It had obtained certain receipts from various customers in India which was sale proceeds of off-the shelf software and offered same to tax in India as Royalty Income. During assessment proceedings, assessee claimed that receipts from sale of software had been wrongly offered to tax as income from royalty. The Assessing Officer assessed same as Royalty Income. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee could not be prevented from raising a claim that receipts from sale of software were not chargeable to Indian Taxation merely because such income was wrongly offered in ROI and which was not revised. However, since nature and character of sale proceeds qua underlying evidences did not appear to have been verified by Assessing Officer at any stage of proceedings, matter was to be remitted back to file of Assessing Officer for fresh determination. [Art. 12(3)]

The Assessee is a Singapore-based entity which received income from the sale of software to Indian entities. The AO treated these receipts as taxable u/s 9(1)(vi) of the Act and Article 12(3) of the India-Singapore DTAA. The Assessee challenged the AO's order and submitted that the agreements merely granted the right to use software without transferring copyright ownership. It emphasized that the software was licensed to Indian entities for specific business purposes, and modifications were limited to operational needs. The TRIBUNAL scrutinized the clauses of the agreements between the Assessee and Indian entities and noted the discrepancies in the AO's interpretation of the DTA, emphasizing that the contractual terms aligned with the judgment in Engineering Analysis Centre of Excellence Pvt. Ltd. v. CIT CA Nos. 8735-8736 of 2018. After considering the arguments and contractual clauses, the Tribunal held that the receipts from software sales to Indian entities were not taxable under the India-Singapore DTAA. (AY. 2020-21)

Assessee, a tax resident of USA, was engaged in business of maintaining online data base (Lexis Nexis) pertaining to legal and law related information. It received subscription fee for providing access to data base-Since assessee had no PE in India, it filed return of income by treating subscription fee received for providing access to data base as business income, not taxable in India as per provisions of India-US DTAA. Assessing Officer, treated receipt of assessee as FIS on ground that same was in nature of technical consultancy. Tribunal held that subscription fee received by assessee was in nature of business profit which could not be brought to tax in India in absence of Permanent Establishment (PE). On appeal the Court held that access to data base did not constitute rendering of any technical or consultancy services and in any case did not amount to technical knowledge, experience, skill, know-how or processes being made available to subscriber neither there was any transfer of copyright. Order of Tribunal is affirmed. (AY. 2018-19, 2019-20)

Editorial: Order in Relx Inc v. ACIT (2023) 103 ITR 54(SN) (Delhi)(Trib), affirmed.

S. 9(1)(vii):Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Fees for technical services-Software-Sub-contracted certain overseas subsidiary-Not liable to deduct tax at source-No substantial question of law. [S. 195, 201(1), 201(IA), 260A] 133

Assessee is an Indian software development company. Assessee sub-contracted its onsite overseas work to its subsidiary in China and made payment of sub-contracting charges to said subsidiary. Assessing Officer held that payments made to subsidiary in China was liable for tax deduction under section 9(1)(vii) as fees for technical services (FTS) in view of retrospective amendment to section 9 by Finance Act, 2010 and substitution of Explanation to said section. High court held that substitution had taken place in Finance Act, 2010 which was effective from 2011-12, thus, same would not apply to assessee during relevant years. Accordingly the assessee is not liable to deduct tax at source on payments made by it to its subsidiary in China. No substantial question of law. (AY. 2009-10, 2010-11)

Editorial : SLP of revenue dismissed as there is gross delay of 296 days and also on merits, CIT(IT) v. Infosys Ltd. (2024) 300 Taxman 177 (SC)

S. 9(1)(vii) : Income deemed to accrue or arise in India – Fees for technical services – "Make Available" test – Business income under DTAA (India–UK) – Service Permanent Establishment – Services utilised outside India- No transfer of skill, technical knowledge, expertise, process-Mere usage or utilisation of research material, technical or consultative material in aid of business not sufficient to attract Article 13 of Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement- Not taxable - The income attributable to the Indian service PE remained taxable as business income under Article 7- DTAA-India-United Kingdom. [S. 9(1)(i), 9(1) (vii) (b),44DA, Art. 5(2)(k), 7, 13] 134

The Assessing Officer held that payments made by BCCI to IMG (UK) for designing and managing the IPL were taxable in India as fees for technical services (FTS) under section 9(1)(vii) and Article 13 of the India–UK DTAA. The Tribunal partly upheld this view, holding that the income was divisible: services attributable to IMG's Indian service PE were taxable in India as business income under Article 7, whereas income attributable to IMG's UK office was not taxable in India. On appeal Court held that the services performed by IMG UK did not satisfy the "make available" test under Article 13(4)(c) since no technical knowledge, skill or know-how was transferred to BCCI. The Court emphasised that mere furnishing of advice, reports or research material does not constitute transfer of expertise enabling the recipient to act independently in future. It further held that services connected with IPL seasons shifted to South Africa and UAE were utilised outside India and income therefrom arose from sources outside India, hence not taxable under section 9(1)(vii)(b). However, the income attributable to the Indian service PE remained taxable as business income under Article 7. (AY. 2010-11 to 2018-19)

Held that ABB USA provided project-specific technical and consultancy services to an Indian company, that did not satisfy the 'make available' clause, did not warrant tax under Article 12(4)(b) of the DTAA between India and the US. (AY. 2009-10)

Held that merely because the assessee has a customized landing page, it does not mean that the assessee provides technical services, that too, through human intervention. Even assuming for argument's sake that the services provided by the assessee are of technical nature, that by itself would not be enough to bring such receipts within the purview of art. 12(4) of the DTAA, unless the make available condition is satisfied. The receipts of the assessee do not qualify as fees for included services under art. 12(4) of India-USA tax treaty. (AY. 2020-21, 2021-22)

[S. 192, 195, Art. 12] 139

Held that no material or evidence had been brought on record by the Revenue to substantiate its claim that the assessee rendered any managerial, consultancy or technical services to the Indian associated enterprises through the expatriates in furtherance of its business in India. The payment made by the Indian associated enterprises was purely reimbursement of the expatriates' salary costs, which the assessee had cross-charged by raising debit notes on the Indian associated enterprises. It could not be regarded as "fees for technical services" in the hands of the assessee as it was taxable as salary in the hands of the expatriate employees, who worked under the direct control and supervision of the Indian associated enterprises, and during the entire period of secondment, the associated enterprise were the real and economic employer of these expatriates. The expatriates had offered the entire salary income to tax in their respective returns of income as supported by form 16. As a result, the receipts were in the nature of employees' salary reimbursement cost, not having any element of income and not taxable in India as fees for technical services under the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement between India and Japan. Consequently, the addition made on account of assessee's cross-charge raised on its Indian associated enterprises is deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

[S. 9(1)(vi), Art. 12(4)(a), 12(4)(b), 13] 140

Held, that the services rendered under information technology and systems, applications and products support service agreement were completely different in nature and had no connection with the services rendered under the technical collaboration agreement. While the services rendered under the service agreement were for day-to-day office functioning and maintenance of the information technology infrastructure, the services rendered under the technical collaboration agreement were purely and strictly in connection with the drip irrigation system required for agricultural purposes. Therefore, the services rendered under the services agreement could not be considered ancillary and subsidiary to the services rendered under technical collaboration agreement. Further, they did not relate to application or enjoyment of right to property or information resulting in payment of royalty. Not taxable in India. (AY. 2014-15, 2015-16)

Assessee is engaged in business of logistics and freight forwarding across globe. During relevant assessment year, assessee earned network fees from its Indian associate enterprise (AE). Assessee did not offer said fees to tax on ground that it did not have any permanent establishment (PE) in India and network fees were business income. Assessing Officer held that network fees were in nature of fees for technical services (FTS) as per explanation 2 to section 9(1)(vii) and is taxable in India. DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that Tribunal in assessee's own case for earlier assessment years had held that nothing was brought on record to substantiate that any technical know how was made available to Indian AE and thus, network fees received by assessee from its Indian is deleted. Assessee paid software licensing fee to a US company. Assessing Officer held that payment is in nature of fee for included services as per article 12(4)(b) of India-US DTAA and section 9(1)(vii). DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that only commercial information was transferred to end user and not technical knowledge as required under article 12(4)(b) to constitute fee for included services, said payment could not be taxed as fee for included services. Tribunal also held that installation and integration services provided by assessee to US company were merely support services dealing with installation and integration and when primary services themselves were not taxable as FTS, these ancillary services qua primary services could not be taxed as FTS. Assessee, a US based company is subsidiary of SEPL India. Assessee-company procured local sales orders in US for its AE for products to be manufactured, executed by SEPL India, and received payment from customers which was remitted to SEPL India. Assessee received certain sum as commission on sales and marketing services. Assessing Officer held that payments received by assessee from SEPL India were in nature of FTS under section 9(1)(vii) and was chargeable to tax in India under article 12 with Indo-USA DTAA. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee, performed pure sales function with connecting potential customers from US by performing pre sales activity of introducing SEPL India to potential customers and rest of activity was predominantly taken care by SEPL India. The assessee did not render services resulting in provision of FTS or make available technical knowledge to SEPL India. Accordingly commission on sales and marketing services cannot be treated as FTS in hands of assessee in terms of section 9(1)(vii). (AY. 2013-14, 2014-15)

Held that the fact that provision of services may require technical input by the person providing the service did not mean that technical knowledge, skills, etc., were "made available" to the person purchasing the service. Therefore, payment made by the assessee to the non-resident service provider could not be brought under article 12 of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement. Held, dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Tribunal held that the included services were ancillary or auxiliary in nature and being an integral part of the job undertaken by the assessee, they were neither independent of, nor separable from, the job undertaken by the assessee in relation to publicity, advertisement and sales promotion of the hotel business worldwide, which were the main services rendered by the assessee to the Indian company, keeping the use of trademark, trade name and other enumerated services incidental to the main service, and that, thus, the payments received were neither in the nature of royalty under section 9(1)(vi), Explanation 2 nor in the nature of fees for technical services under section 9(1)(vii), Explanation 2 but in the nature of business income not taxable in India owing to the absence of a permanent establishment for the assessee in India. ACIT v. Westin Hotel Management L. P. (2024) 111 ITR 69 (Delhi)(Trib)

S. 9(1)(vii): Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Fees for technical services-Supply of drawings and designs-Plant and equipment supplied from outside India and sale transaction concluded outside India-Receipts cannot be taxed in India-Amount not taxable in India-Receipts from supervisory services for erection and Commissioning of equipment-Amount received falls within definition of fees for technical services-DTAA-India-Switzerland, Switzerland. [Art. 12(4)] 146
Held that the designs and drawings were made outside India in Switzerland and were supplied to the contractee from Switzerland and the sale transaction was completed in Switzerland and amounts were received in Switzerland. From the details of designs and drawings as well as documentation submission, schedule of drawings and designs, it was clear that the drawings and designs supplied by the assessee were specifically related to the supply of plant and equipment for the JSW steel project. Though both the contracts, one for supply of plant and equipment and the other for supply of drawings and designs had been separately executed, they had been executed on the very same date. The purchaser was vested with the right to terminate the contract unilaterally, inter alia, due to the delay in delivery of the equipment in excess of 120 days for the reasons solely attributable to the seller and if the seller failed to take necessary remedial action. Thus, failure to supply plant and equipment within the stipulated time period could determine the contract for supply of drawing and design and the purchaser could terminate the contract in that eventuality. Therefore, the contract for supply of drawings and designs was inextricably linked to the contract for supply of plant and equipment. When the supply of plant and equipment had been treated as sale transaction completed outside India, and hence, not taxable in India, the sale and supply of drawings and designs being inextricably linked to sale and supply of plant and equipment had to be considered cumulatively and as a part of sale and supply of plant and equipment. Therefore, the amount received by the assessee from supply of drawings and designs was not taxable in India as fees for technical services. Tribunal also held that the assessee had entered into a contract for supply of electromagnetic stirrer. According to the assessee's admission, technical personnel were deputed to supervise the erection and commissioning of the plant and equipment. Thus, in course of such supervisory activity, the qualified technical personnel deputed by the assessee must have imparted technical services for erection and commissioning of the plant and equipment. Therefore, the amount received fell within the definition of fees for technical services, both under the domestic law as well as under article 12(4) of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement and it was immaterial whether the assessee had a permanent establishment in India or not. Therefore, the amount having qualified as fees for technical services, had rightly been brought to tax in the hands of the assessee. (AY. 2008-09)

147 S. 9(1)(vii) : Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Fees for technical services-Reimbursement of expenses-Not fees for technical services-Living allowance-No employer and employee relation ship-Agency commission-Not liable to deduct tax at source-Article 12 of OECD Model Convention-Levy of interest is not barred by limitation. [S. 192, 194J 195, 201]

The Assessee, an Association of Persons (AOP) engaged in providing technical expertise in oil exploration and refinery, made payments to its member companies for the salary expenses and other benefits of seconded employees without deducting TDS. The Assessing Officer held that the reimbursements constituted fees for technical services as per Explanation 2 to section 9(1)(vii), making TDS deductible under section 194J for resident secondees and section 195 for non-resident secondees and payments to foreign agents. CIT(A) deleted the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that, reimbursements for Indian salary and other benefits to member companies were not fees for technical services within the meaning of Explanation 2 to section 9(1)(vii), hence TDS was not deductible. Payments made to resident secondees did not require TDS under section 194J as there was no employer-employee relationship between the Assessee and the secondees. Payments made to non-resident secondees were not chargeable to tax under section 5(2)(b) as the services were rendered outside India, thus no TDS was required under section 195. Payments to foreign agents did not attract TDS under section 195 as there was no business connection in India, and the agents did not perform any operations in India. The Tribunal also held that levy of interest is not barred by limitation. (AY. 1996-97 to 1998-1999)

S. 9(1)(vii) : Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Fees for technical services-Marketing contribution, priority club receipt and reservation contribution with Indian hotels for using trade marks and providing support programs and systems-Fees received from Indian Hotels is not royalty-Addition is deleted-DTAA-USA. [Art. 12(3)] 148
The assessee, a tax resident of USA, had entered into licence agreements with various Indian hotels allowing them the use of trademarks 'Holiday Inn' and 'Crowne Plaza' in the business. The Royalty income earned was offered to tax in India. However, the marketing contribution and reservation fees received by the assessee from hotels in India were claimed as not taxable on the basis that the same is in the nature of reimbursement of common expenses. However, while completing the assessment u/s 143(3) rws 144C (3), the AO held it to be part of Royalty and added the same as income of the assessee. The CIT (A) upheld the addition. On further appeal, it was pleaded that the money received on account of marketing contribution and reservation fees were with a corresponding obligation to use it for the agreed purposes. The fund so created was obligated to expend assessment proceeds on behalf of the hotels and the fund's objective is to be self-funded each year. The report of independent auditor was filed in support thereof. Taking into account orders of the coordinate benches in the case of other assessee as well as assessee's own case for other assessment years, the Tribunal held that the marketing contribution and reservation fees received by the assessee was not royalty and therefore, the impugned addition was deleted. S. 9(1)(vii): Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Fees for technical services-Income from providing worldwide marketing, advertising and other services-Services were provided from outside India-Income is in not fees for included services and is business income-Not taxable in India-DTAA-India-USA. [Art. 7, 12(4)] 149
The assessee is engaged in providing worldwide Marketing and advertising services to Indian hotel owners through worldwide system of sales, advertising, promotion, Public relations, etc. Services are provided from outside India. Assessee does not have any PE in India. Assessee claimed refund of TDS deducted by Indian hotels and claimed income received from Indian Hotels to be exempt as per Section 9(1)(vii) and Article 7 of India-USA DTAA, as the centralized services provided by Sheraton Overseas from outside India cannot be treated as Fees for Included Services under Article 12(4) of India-USA DTAA as it were not technical in nature and further 'make available' condition of Article

12 of India-USA DTAA was not satisfied, and, as a natural corollary, the income was held to be business income as per Article 7 of India-USA DTAA, not taxable in India. The Hon'ble ITAT relied on the decision of Hon'ble Delhi High Court in the case of Sheraton International Inc. (group concern of the assessee) (2009) 313 ITR 267 (Delhi) (HC) and earlier decision of Delhi ITAT in assessee's own case upheld by the Delhi High Court. (AY. 2021-22)

150 S. 9(1)(vii):Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Fees for technical services-Human resource screening services for clients in India-Reports provided to clients about candidates proposed to be hired not copyrightable but bound by confidentiality-Receipts is neither taxable as royalty nor as fees for technical services-DTAA-India-United Kingdom. [S. 9(1)(vi), Art. 7, 13(4), Copyright Act, 1957 13(1), 14(a)]

Held that the role of the assessee was restricted to verification of the information concerning various candidates proposed to be hired by its clients. The information collected by the assessee was not protected by any copyright, but its circulation was regulated under the U. K., and other local laws, which cast a duty upon it to ensure the confidentiality of the reports as they contained details of the applicants. None of the requisites under article 13(3) of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement was satisfied so as to qualify such receipts as "royalty". The assessee was merely providing a report summarising its findings with respect to the background check undertaken by it, which report constituted factual data and could not per se qualify as literary, artistic or scientific work, patent, trademark, design, model, plan, secret formula or process or information. It did not fulfil the requirements enlisted under section 13(1)(a) of the Copyright Act, 1957. Moreover, none of the rights mentioned in section 14(a) thereof had been vested with the client by the assessee. The client did not have any right to publicly display, sell, distribute, copy, edit, modify or commercially exploit the report. The consideration received by the assessee was purely towards provision of background screening services and not for use, or right to use, any copyrightable material. Further, the assessee did not provide access to any database to its clients but only access to reports requisitioned by the client, in electronic form. Nothing had been brought on record by the Revenue to refute the assessee's claim. Online access to background screening results was not tantamount to providing access to the database maintained by the assessee. That the information obtained by the assessee from various sources was in the nature of factual data about prospective candidates, which did not involve imparting any kind of commercial experience, skill or expertise. It was a validation report assuring its client about the authenticity of the information contained therein. It did not involve any transfer of either commercial experience or the right to use the experience, nor transfer of any skill or knowledge of the assessee to the customers. As the assessee's services did not involve any technical skill, knowledge or consultancy or make available any technical knowledge, experience, skill, know-how or processes to the clients, the services should not be considered fees for technical services under article 13(4) of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement. No addition could be made on account of royalty(AY. 2021-22)

Assessee, a Hong Kong based company, which is engaged in business of distribution of telecommunication products. During relevant assessment years, assessee received reimbursement of connectivity charges from its AE, Indian subsidiary for provision of connectivity services for international communication. Assessing Officer held that the assessee provided plethora of services to its AE right from negotiating agreements with third parties entering into purchase agreement, to issuing inspection certificates certifying products and services-He, thus held that these services would fall within ambit of technical consultancy' or managerial services and would qualify as fees for technical services under section 9(1)(vii). DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that from purchasing service agreement between assessee and AE that all activities agreed to in writing by and between company and service provider were considered as steps involved in processing product purchased as per purchasing service agreement and could not be treated as other technical services. Since assessee was only paid for connectivity services which were merely ancillary to enabling provision of inter-connect services and part of processing product, same could not be treated as technical or managerial or consultancy services. Amount received by assessee could not be regarded as FTS under section 9(1)(vii) of the Act. (AY. 2018-19, 2019-20)

Assessee, an Indian company, made payments to its US parent company (AE) towards administrative services, IT services, technical services and royalty without deduction of tax at source. Assessing Officer held that since foreign party performed all administrative services as part of group global policies to maintain control over employed staff in India, services were in nature of managerial service. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO.. Tribunal held that though Assessing Officer had observed that AE had made available technical knowledge to assessee, but had failed to bring on record any relevant material to support same and, consequently, payments made by assessee could not be treated to be in nature of FTS. (AY. 2013-14)

Assessee is a foreign firm situated in USA, which is engaged in business of cloud and hosting services, disaster recovery services, and IT consultancy services. It received certain amount from its Indian customer and claimed said income to be not taxable in India. Assessing Officer taxed said receipts as fees for technical services. DRP up held the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that very same issue in assessee's own case was decided in favour of assessee by Tribunal for earlier assessment years 2017-18 to 2019-20 holding that article 12(4)(b) stipulates taxability of income arising therefrom only if services concerned make available technical knowledge to recipient/payer. Since condition of make available had not been satisfied, services would not be taxable in India. (AY. 2020-21)

[Art. 12]
Assessee, a US company, which is engaged in business of providing global freight logistics services worldwide. Assessing Officer made additions to income of assessee on account of sale of logistic services treating same as Fees for Technical Services ('FTS') under Act as well as India-USA DTAA. DRP up held the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal Tribunal following assessee's own case in earlier year held that amount received by assessee from freight/logistic support services could not be treated as FTS/FIS. Consequently, amount received by assessee in question could not be treated as FTS/FIS or royalty under Act as well as India-USA DTAA. Held that the amount received by assessee, a non-resident company, for reimbursement of global account management charges for services rendered outside India could not be treated as royalty under Act as well as India-USA DTAA. S. 9(1)(vii):Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Fees for technical services-Managing diamond factories and facilitating diamantaires to operate economically for high quality diamond factories across the Globe-FTS income received by assessee would not be taxable in India-DTAA-India-Mauritius. [S. 9(1)(i), 115A(1)(b)), Art. 12, 12A] 156

Assessee, a tax resident of Mauritius, which is engaged in business of managing diamond factories and facilitating diamantaires to operate economically for high quality diamond factories across the Globe. It had entered into a technical collaboration with its Associated Enterprises [AEs] in India viz., for providing technical, process, marketing and sales assistance services outside India and received fees for technical services (FTSs). Assessing Officer invoking provisions of section 9(1)(vii) read with section 115A(1)(b) and held that FTS were chargeable to tax in India. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that there was no specific clause in DTAA entered into between India and Mauritius and article 12A was inserted with effect from 1-4-2017 which could not be applied for financial year 2017-18. It is a settled position of law by various co-ordinate benches and High Courts that in absence of a clause in DTAA not dealing with a particular item of income, payments are not be regarded as residuary income but as business income which is not chargeable to tax in India, in absence of any PE of non-resident assessee in India. Accordingly the FTS income received by assessee would not be taxable in India. (AY. 2017-18)

Assessee, a non-resident company, had received certain amount of consideration on account of subscription payments, training and professional fees. Assessing Officer held that said receipts were taxable as fee for technical services under article 12 of India-Netherlands DTAA. DRP up held the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had merely granted only access to software and there was no transfer of technology by assessee, services rendered by assessee did not fall within definition of FTS. S. 10(1) : Agricultural income-Soil placed on trays-Agricultural activity-Mushroom is an agricultural product-Income from sale of mushrooms constitutes agricultural income. [S. 2(IA)] 158

Held that soil is a part of land and, therefore, part of earth. The only part of the land that is cultivable is the soil, which is the top layer of land. When soil is placed on trays, it did not cease to be land and operations carried out on that soil would be agricultural activity. Whether such soil was attached to the land or placed in containers above the land made no difference. Soil which is placed on a vertical space above the land in trays is also land. That the word product could not be restricted to plants, fruits, vegetables or such botanical life only. The only condition was that the product should be raised on the land by performing some basic operations. Mushroom is a product raised on land or soil by performing certain basic operation. It drew nourishment from the soil and was grown by human skill and labour. The product had utility for consumption, trade and commerce and, hence, would qualify as an agricultural product the sale of which gave rise to agricultural income. (AY. 2020-21)

Assessee is a director of a seed company and graduate in agricultural science, claimed exemption on agricultural income under section 10(1). Assessing Officer added agricultural income to taxable income, citing lack of books of account as required under section 44AA of the Act. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that requirement to maintain books of account under section 44AA does not include agriculturist. Since the assessee submitted copies of sales bills for agricultural produce, even though to related parties and consistently declared agricultural income over years addition is deleted. (AY. 2015-16)

Assessee retired from services of State Bank of India and claimed exemption u/s10(10AA) of the Act. The exemption is denied. The assessee contended that law discriminating the Central or State services, in case of employees of other establishments, period of leave was capped at 10 months and maximum amount exempted from income tax was subject to such limit as Central Government might notify in Official Gazette, that same being in year 2017 to be Rs. 3 lakhs was discriminatory and hence be declared ultra vires. On writ the Court held that State has wide discretion in matter of classification for taxation purposes. Accordingly the differentiation made by State between employees of Central and State Governments on one hand and employees of other establishments on other in section 10 (10AA) was neither discriminating nor violative of article 14 of Constitution. Therefore, a retired employee of State Bank of India could not claim parity with employees of Central and State Government. Writ petition is dismissed.

S. 10(10AA) : Leave salary-Superannuation benefits-Employee of the Central Government or State Government-Maharashtra State Electricity Board (MSEB)-Transferred to power companies-Grand-fathering-Assessees have to be treated as employees of a State Government and eligible for S.. 10(10A) and 10(10AA) benefits. [S. 10A, Electricity Act, 2003, 131, 133 (2)] 161

Assessees had joined the then Maharashtra State Electricity Board (MSEB) in regular employment. All of them ended up retiring from the re-designated power companies constituted under the provisions of the Electricity Act, 2003. The AO denied the exemption which is affirmed by the CIT(A). On appeal the Tribunal held that going by a conjoint reading of s. 131 r/w s. 133 of Electricity Act, 2003, the services of all officers and employees of the erstwhile MSEB first stood vested in the State Government of Maharashtra on Reorganization of the Board, followed by the transfer to various transferee entities engaged in generation, transmission and distribution of power. All these assessees had been assigned to their respective new employers after getting protection of their service conditions in the light of S. 133(2). These assessees have also undergone the very reorganization finally culminating in their respective superannuation. Not only these assessees have to be held entitled for exemption under S. 10(10A) and 10(10AA) as employees of MSEB, they are also eligible for the exemption in the newly set-up transferee entities. Therefore, these assessees have to be treated as employees of a State Government duly eligible for ss. 10(10A) and 10(10AA) benefits. (AY. 2018-19, 2019-20)

S. 10(10D) : Life insurance policy-Key man insurance policy-If Keyman Insurance policy was transferred before its maturity then it would lose its character and thus sums received on surrender of such insurance policy would be eligible for exemption under section 10(10D) and it could not be taxed under section 28(vi). [S. 2(14), 28(vi)] 162

Assessee claimed exemption under section 10(10D) in respect of sums received on maturity of life insurance policy. Assessing Officer deemed it taxable under section 28(vi) as part of a Key man Insurance policy. In appeal, assessee argued that policy's character changed in 2008 when it was assigned from a proprietorship concern to assessee, justifying exemption under section 10(10D) as an ordinary policy. The Tribunal held that there was some merit in contention of assessee that if policy was transferred before its maturity then it would lose its character. Therefore, it had become ordinary policy, premium received under this policy, would not be subjected to tax in view of section 10(10D). Therefore, lower authorities were not justified in denying benefit of exemption to assessee. (AY. 2016-17)

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that since the Assessing Officer in his order had reached the conclusion that the assessee had claimed exemptions under section 10(23C)(iiiab) since it was substantially financed by the Government of more than 20 per cent., and expenditure had been incurred by the assessee towards its aims and objects in carrying out educational activities alone, the exemptions were rightly granted. The Tribunal had found that rule 2BBB of the Income-tax Rules, 1962 was not applicable during the assessment year 2012-13, since it came into force with effect from December 12, 2014. There was no error in the orders passed by the Tribunal and the Assessing Officer and, therefore, need not be interfered with. No substantial question of law. (AY. 2012-13)

Assessee is a non-profit organization, which is engaged in promoting export of leather items. It is facilitating participation of its members in trade fairs and had claimed exemption under section 10(23C)(iv). Assessing Officer denied the exemption. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. Assessee-trust claimed exemption of administrative expenditure under section 10(23C). Assessing Officer held that assessee had not filed audit report, denied exemption. Assessee submitted before Commissioner (Appeals) that it was not registered under section 10(23C) and it had wrongly mentioned in return that it was registered under section 10(23C) and its real income after reducing expenditure or application of income be taxed. Commissioner (Appeals) without adjudicating submissions of assessee dismissed appeal. On appeal the Tribunal held that once assessee had no registration under section 10(23C) then its income was required to be computed by applying normal provisions of Act and net income only was required to be taxed as AOP. Since Commissioner (Appeals) had not adjudicated submissions of assessee, issue was to be remanded back to him to decide afresh by applying normal provisions of Act. (AY. 2019-20, 2020-21)

S. 10 (25) : Approved superannuation fund-Exemption-Only Chief Commissioner has power to withdraw approval-Approval not withdrawn-Denial of approval on ground that conditions for approval had not been complied with-Order of denial is not valid. [S. 10(25)(iii)] 180

The Assessing Officer passed an order denying exemption. On appeal CIT(A) directed the Assessing Officer to allow the exemption. On appeal the Tribunal, affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Court held that the approval of the assessee-fund granted by the competent authority, i.e., the Commissioner by order dated September 29, 1995 continued for the assessment year in question, i.e., the assessment year 2005-06 and it had neither been withdrawn nor cancelled. Exemption had been denied on the ground that the assessee-fund did not comply with the conditions of approval and therefore the fund lost its recognition. The denial of exemption was not valid. Order of the Tribunal is set aside. (AY. 2005-06)

Assam Frontier Employees Pension Fund v. CIT (2024) 464 ITR 102/ 336 CTR 319/164 taxmann.com 116 (Cal)(HC)

S. 10(26): Schedule Tribes-Partnership firm-Person-Hotel business-A partnership firm being a separate assessable 'person' under Income-tax Act, would not be entitled to same exemption under section 10(26) as any or all of individual partners would be in their individual capacity. [S. 2(23), 2(31)(iv), Art. 366(25)] 181

Assessee-firm is running a hotel business. It consisted of two partners who were related to each other (brothers) and belonged to Khasi tribe which was enlisted as Scheduled Tribe in State of Meghalaya and was covered under article 366(25) of Constitution of India. They were residents of Khasi Hills Autonomous District and thus were entitled to exemption under section 10(26) in their individual capacity. Assessee firm claimed exemption under section 10(26) on plea that since a partnership firm in itself was not a separate juridical person and it was only a collective or compendious name for all of its partners having no independent existence without them, and since partners of assessee-firm were entitled to exemption under section 10(26), therefore, same exemption under section 10(26) is available to firm. AO rejected the claim. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that a partnership firm being a separate assessable person under Income-tax Act, would not be entitled to same exemption under section 10(26) as any or all of individual partners would be in their individual capacity. Advantages and disadvantages conferred under Income-tax Act on separate class of persons were neither transferable nor inter changeable and, thus, scope of beneficial provisions could not be extended to a different person under Income-tax Act as it might defeat mechanism and process provided for assessment of different class/ category of persons. Ratio decidendi in judgment of Gauhati High Court in CIT v. Mahari & Sons (1993) 67 Taxman 449 (Gauhati)(HC) in context of a Khasi family would not be applicable in case of a partnership firm, though consisting solely of partners, who in their individual capacity are entitled to exemption under section 10(26). 182 S. 10(38) : Long term capital gains from equities-STT was not paid at time of acquisition of shares-Entitled to exemption. [S. 115U]

Assessee is a trust registered as Venture Capital Fund. Assessee claimed exemption of long-term capital gains (LTCG) under section 10(38) in respect of sale of unlisted shares of a company. Assessing Officer held that assessee was not eligible for exemption as it had not paid Securities Transaction Tax (STT) at time of acquisition of shares. CIT(A) allowed the exemption. On appeal the Tribunal held that condition prescribed in clause (a) and (b) of section 10(38) were fulfilled and assessee would be covered by exemption provided in clause (b)(i) of Notification No. SO 1789(E) dated 5-6-2017. Therefore, even if assessee did not pay STT at time of acquisition of shares, still it was eligible for exemption under section 10(38). (AY. 2018-19)

183 S. 10(46):Body or Authority-Specified income-Commercial Activity-Granting loan-Agent of State Government to support development activities-Entitled to exemption-The order rejecting exemption under section 10(46) was quashed-The Revenue was directed to process the application for exemption made by the assessee. [S. 2(15), 10(20A), 119, Art. 226]

The assessee is an entity constituted under the Uttar Pradesh Industrial Area Development Act, 1976. The Central Board of Direct Taxes rejected its application to grant exemption under section 10(46) on the ground that the assessee extended loans to various entities and such activities undertaken were otherwise than for the benefit of the general public. On a writ petition the Court held that that the assessee had been constituted under the 1976 Act with the objective of undertaking developmental activities in an industrial development area. It acted as an arm and an adjunct of the State charged with undertaking planned development in the industrial development area. In that connection, the assessee undertook planning and development of the area, acquired land and property, engaged in construction of housing units or industrial units. In order to fulfil these objectives, it was provided funds by the State Government and additionally created a corpus from the revenue and receipts generated and received in the course of its operations. The assessee primarily was an agent of the Government obligated to undertake planned development of areas placed under its control. It could not be viewed as being a corporation intended to have been incorporated for a profit or commercial motive. The provisions of the 1976 Act and the material on record clearly dispelled any notion of the assessee being a "hardcore trading corporation". Statutory bodies like the assessee, were intended to act as an "architectural agent" of development and growth. The Revenue had erred in holding that the loans and advances extended by the assessee would fall within the ambit of commercial activity. The grant of those loans had also not been established to have been motivated with a view to profit. Some of those loans were extended to finance activities supportive and supplemental to the development activity that was liable to be undertaken by the assessee. The finding in the order that the assessee had advanced loans to private entities was factually incorrect. The assessee did not claim exemption of interest income earned from bonds and shares for the purposes of section 10(46) and the interest income had been ploughed back for the purposes of carrying out the statutory functions and duties cast upon the assessee. Although the assessee was called upon to provide all financial details, the Revenue did not specifically place on notice to answer or tender any explanation with respect to the amount of interest income that was earned from bonds, shares and fixed deposits. The order rejecting exemption under section 10(46) was quashed. The Revenue was directed to process the application for exemption made by the assessee. S. 10A : Free trade zone-Rental income-Sub lease of two units-Eligible for inclusion in profit as they were intimately connected with business of undertakings-SLP of Revenue is dismissed. [Art. 136] 184

Assessee had taken on lease certain area in STPI (Software Technology Park of India). As assessee could not use entire area for its operation, it sub-leased portion of premises to two units and was receiving rent for same. It claimed deduction under section 10A. Assessing Officer disallowed deduction in respect of rental income received from said two units on ground that lease amounts could not be considered as income derived from export of any software. Commissioner (Appeals) held that rental income received by assessee was eligible for inclusion in profit as they were intimately connected with business of undertakings. Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A). On appeal High Court held that since conditions such as location of unit in STPI having been complied with, benefit of section 10A would be available to assessee. Special leave petition filed against the order of High Court is dismissed. (AY. 2005-06)

[S. 10A(2)(ia), Export-Import Policy 1992-97]

Held that the amendment by introducing sub-s. (ia) to cl. (2) of s. 10A stipulates that the exports should not be less than 75 per cent of 'the total sales'. The provisions of the Export Import Policy, 1992-97 provide that 'the entire production of EOU/EPZ units shall be exported except 25 per cent of the production in value terms may be sold in the Domestic Tariff Area when the use of indigenous inputs is more than 30 per cent in value terms'. On the basis of the aforesaid provision, it appears that the section imposes a value based restriction and not a quantitative restriction. What is required to be satisfied as per sub-s. (ia) to cl. (2) of s. 10A is that the export turnover should constitute at least 75 per cent of the total turnover, although in quantitative terms, the export quantity might be less than 75 per cent of the total sale quantity. As the issue needed verification, it was restored to the Assessing Officer for a decision in terms of the principle laid down by the Tribunal in the assessee's own case for an earlier assessment year. The assessee is incorporated on 7-9-2007, which established its unit on May, 2012, at Kandla Special Economic Zone, Gujarat, for manufacture of specialized refractories and commenced operations from May, 2012. It became eligible for claiming exemption under section 10AA, from the assessment year 2013-14 onwards. On 1-4-2018, an Explanation was inserted after section 10AA(1) by the Finance Act, 2017, with effect from the aforesaid date prospectively. On writ, the assessee contested the Explanation to section 10AA(1) inserted by the Finance Act, 2017 with prospective effect, as unconstitutional and allegedly violative of articles 14, 19(1)(g), and 265 of the Constitution of India. Court held that explanation after sub-section (1) of section 10AA, inserted by amendment with prospective effect from 1-4-2018, applicable in respect of the assessment year 2018-19 and subsequent years is constitutional and is a valid piece of legislation and is not arbitrary, discriminatory and is not violative of articles 14, 19 & 265 of the Constitution of India. 192 S. 10AA : Special Economic Zones-Qualifying profits-Computation-Gross total income-Deduction to be allowed from the total income and shall not exceed such total income. [S. 80AB]

Held, that section 80AB of the Act states that the amount of income computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act and included in the gross total income is eligible for deduction. Hence, section 80AB is concerned with the quantum of income that is eligible for deduction under the heading "C. Deduction in respect of certain income" in Chapter VI-A. The Explanation inserted in section 10AA of the Act states that the deduction to be allowed under section 10AA of the Act shall be allowed from "the total income" and shall not exceed such total income. Hence, the Explanation specifies "the stage" at which the deduction under section 10AA of the Act should be allowed (i. e., from the total income) and also states that quantum of deduction should be restricted to the amount of total income. Accordingly, section 80AB and the Explanation inserted in section 10AA operate in different fields. The decision of the Commissioner (Appeals) did not require any interference. The Government of India has corporatized the department of telecom into BSNL with effect from 1-10-2000. The assessee has credited 280 days of leave at the time of retirement for the service rendered department of telecom till the date of corporatization and claimed exemption of 280 days salary. The CPC calculated the exemption u/s 10(10AA) basing on the present declaration that the assessee was an employee of BSNL and hence the exemption u/s 10(10AA) was restricted to Rs. 3 lakhs. Rectification application was rejected. On appeal the Tribunal held that The CIT as well as the AO has not taken cognizance of these facts and wrongly denied the benefit of exemption of leave encashment u/s 10(10AA) of the Act. S. 10B: Export oriented undertakings-Manufacture or processing-Preparation and export of pickles-Change in characteristic of raw materials from vegetables to bottled pickle, with different use-New product Entitled to benefit-Entire sale proceeds must be received in convertible foreign exchange within stipulated time-Bank realisation certificates, certified statement of forex receipts and certificate of auditor establishing realisation of export proceeds-Eligible for deduction to extent of foreign exchange received during specified period-Entitled to deduction. [S. 80IC] 195

Held that in the manufacture of pickles, there was a change in the characteristic of the raw materials from that of vegetables to a pickle, whose use was also different. Moreover, section 80-IC(2) talked of manufacture or production and Schedule XIV to the Income-tax Act, 1961, gave the list of articles or things or operations under item I recognising fruit and vegetable processing industry manufacturing or producing canned or bottled products. Obviously, the assessee was a vegetable processing industry and, in terms of the Schedule, was manufacturing or producing the bottled product of pickles. There was no reason to hold that the assessee was not engaged in manufacturing activities. The process of manufacturing pickles from raw vegetables, fruits, masala and other ingredients brought about a new and different marketable commodity than the raw material. Entitled to deduction. Held that the assessee had produced bank realisation certificates, bank certified statement of forex receipts and certificate of the auditor to show the realisation of export proceeds. There was no infirmity in the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) in allowing the assessee's claim under section 10B to the extent of foreign exchange received during the specified period. Both of the assessee's units had become 100 per cent. export-oriented units. The Commissioner (Appeals) gave a categorical finding about acquisition of the machinery in different years after obtaining the remand report. There was no reason to sustain the disallowance made by the Assessing Officer. (AY. 2001-02 to 2008-09)

Assessee-society was registered under section 12A with main objective to take up construction work of any nature to establish a chain of retail outlets. It undertook construction activities under State PWD department in lieu of 2.5 per cent supervision charges and accordingly claimed certain amount as applied for charitable purposes. Assessing Officer held that construction work was an activity of trade, commerce or business for consideration and assessee could not claim status under section 12A since activities carried on by it did not fall within the meaning of charitable purpose warranting exemption from income tax. Order was affirmed by Tribunal. On appeal High Court held that where assessee executed construction work for benefit of Government and received certain amount from Government for same, purpose of such construction work could not be accepted as an activity coming within meaning of advancement of other object of general public utility. It further held that since assessee was involved in carrying on of any activity in nature of trade, commerce or business, proviso to section 2(15) would be attracted and assessee would not be entitled to benefit under section 11 of the Act. The assessee-trust had accumulated income under section 11(2) and extended donations to other charitable trusts. The Assessing Officer held that extending donations to other charitable trusts would amount to utilization of the funds for a purpose other than those for which the surplus was accumulated under section 11(2) and thus being violative of section 11(3)(c) and section 11(3)(d). On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) held in favour of the assessee. On further appeal, the Tribunal affirmed the view taken by the Commissioner (Appeals). Allowing the appeal the Court held that the amounts paid by the parents of the students admitted to the educational institution of the assessee-trust were payments towards corpus donation and were not collected by way of capitation fees. The Assessing Officer had not conducted any inquiry with regard to examination of parents who had admitted the students in school as to whether the payment was made towards corpus fund or capitation fee. Though it was true that the donation was bound to have been given for material gain in securing admission, it could not be characterised as donation towards charitable purpose and the assessee would not be entitled to have the benefit, but in the absence of any material on record, such view could not be taken. Therefore, the Tribunal had committed an error by treating the admission fees charged from the students as not forming part of the corpus fund of the trust. Therefore, the Tribunal was not justified in confirming the addition of the corpus fund to the income of the assessee by holding that the receipts could not be treated as corpus donation and not eligible for exemption under section 11(1)(d). It was established with a specific purpose, object and mission to promote the quality of construction and bring in international standards, and undertook activities for the promotion of education, training, research and imparting professionalism and skill formation at all levels of construction. For this a joint venture company H was constituted for holding exhibitions and also to promote the object and mission of the assessee. For the assessment year 2002-03 the Assessing Officer held that the investment of the assessee in the joint venture was in violation of section 11(5) and rejected the claim for exemption under section 11. The Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal affirmed his order. On appeal dismissing the appeals, (i) that the assessee-society had acted contrary to its purpose, objects and mission and could not claim exemption under section 11. There were concurrent findings by the Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal based on facts available on record that the assessee had earned profits in contravention of its mission and objects. In addition to the establishment of a joint venture, the assessee had also parted with hundred acres of land allotted by the Government to the joint venture which had utilised the land for purpose of holding exhibitions of all natures and in the process, had earned income in the form of rent. The joint venture had also used the land for commercial purposes by allotting the land to other commercial establishments. These aspects had been duly considered by the Assessing Officer and the appellate authorities who had rejected the exemption under section 11. The deviation and contravention disentitled the society from claiming the benefit of exemption under section 11. That the contention of the assessee that the Tribunal could have restricted the denial of exemption under section 11 to the extent of investment made in the joint venture could not be accepted for the reason that the amount of investment already carried out by the assessee in the joint venture, coupled with the fact that the assessee had parted with hundred acres of land to be used by the joint venture company for gaining rental and other income and the rental income earned by the joint venture having been shared with the assessee to some extent, in contravention of the object, purpose and mission for which the assessee was established. That the Government instructions or Government orders on the basis of which the assessee had received funds were no longer in existence but were struck down by the court. In view of passing of G. O. Ms. No. 92, dated May 19, 1998, by the State Government, the corpus amount generated by the assessee was not voluntary contribution and therefore, the amount invested by the assessee in the joint venture company could not be treated as group corpus fund. The amount of investment in shares of the joint venture company and the transfer of hundred acres of land by the assessee to the joint venture company were covered under section 13(1)(d). Therefore, the assessee-society rendered itself disentitled to the benefit under section 11 in view of violation of section 11(5) Finance Act, 1983 ([1983] 142 ITR (St.) 13), (AY. 2002-03)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Information to charity commissioner-Remuneration to trustees-Denial of exemption is not justified. [S. 13(1)(c), 260A] 203
Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the Tribunal had followed its own decision in which it had granted exemption under section 11 to the assessee for the assessment years 2008-09 and 2009-10. Since there was nothing on record that such orders had been set aside or overruled in any manner by the court, the Tribunal had found no reason to interfere with the order of the Commissioner (Appeals). There was no infirmity in the order of the Tribunal granting exemption under section 11 to the assessee for the assessment year 2010-11. (AY. 2010-11)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Capital gains-Memorandum of Understanding (MOU)-Symbolic possession-Permission from the Charity Commissioner-Capital asset is held to be wholly for the purpose of charitable purpose-Legal possession-Sale proceeds were invested with nationalised bank-Entitled to claim exemption-Order of Tribunal is affirmed-No substantial question of law. [S. 11(IA), 260A] 204
Assessee, a public charitable trust, entered into an agreement in 1994 with a builder, Buildforce to sell a property and as per MOU, symbolic possession was given to Buildforce. Certain dispute arose between Buildforce and assessee and a suit came to be filed which was settled and under which assessee agreed to accept a certain sum in full and final settlement and transfer property in favour of nominee of Buildforce and sale proceeds were invested with nationalised bank and assessee claimed that no capital gain was to be assessed in hands of assessee in view of provisions of section 11(1A). Assessing Officer did not accept this stand of assessee because, according to him, assessee entered into an agreement with Buildforce in 1994 and sale deed was executed in favour of its nominee after a period of almost 12 years and since in this intervening period of 12 years, possession of property was with Buildforce as per MOU, assessee was not in possession, it could not be held that property was being held under trust wholly for charitable or religious purposes and, thus, assessee had not fulfilled requirement of section 11(1A). CIT(A) allowed the claim. Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A). On appeal the Court held that once legal possession had been handed over by assessee only in 2008-09 then it was to be presumed and accepted that said capital asset was held by assessee trust wholly for charitable purposes till date of its sale and thus, assessee was entitled to claim benefit under section 11(1A). 205 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Reassessment-Accumulation of income-Filed revised form-Assessee could not be precluded from filing a revised Form No. 10 during reassessment proceedings. [S. 11(2) 12A,143(1), 147, 148, Form No. 10, Rule 17]
Held that there is no doubt about the fact that a revised Form No. 10 was filed after the notice under section 148 was issued, albeit, along with the ROI, in response to the said notice. Therefore, the point of inflection between the respondent/assessee and the appellant/revenue was whether a revised Form No. 10 could have been filed by the respondent/assessee during the reassessment proceedings. To claim the benefit of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 11, the respondent/assessee had to file a statement in the prescribed form, i. e., Form No. 10. The Tribunal has noted that there is no adverse finding by the Assessing Officer concerning the fulfilment of conditions subject to which the accumulation of income was allowed under section 11(2). Accordingly the assessee is not precluded from filing a revised Form No. 10 during reassessment proceedings. (AY. 2008-09)

Assessee filed its return of income claiming exemption under section 10(23A). In course of assessment proceedings, assessee claimed exemption under section 11 and also filed Form 10 along with application, seeking condonation of delay in filing same. Assessing Officer passed assessment order without taking into consideration exemption claimed by assessee. CIT (E) dismissed condonation of delay application preferred by assessee, holding that assessee had no intention of filing Form 10 within due date and was not prevented by any reasonable cause from filing same. On writ the Court held the delay in filing Form 10 occurred because amendments went unnoticed by officials of assessee. Assessment year 2016-17 was first occasion subsequent to amendments in section 11 and 13 by way of Finance Act, 2015. Therefore, there was no reason to disbelieve explanation furnished by assessee to explain delay in filing Form 10. Further, mere failure to claim accumulation could not be read as reasons to believe that assessee did not intend to file Form 10. Order passed by Commissioner (E) is to be set aside and, delay in filing Form 10 is condoned. [S. 10(23C)(iv), 11, 12, 12A, 12AA, 132, 148, 245D(6), 260A]
The Court ruled that the assessee was not eligible for exemptions under Sections 11 and 12, as charging capitation fees was contrary to the objectives of a charitable trust.

The Tribunal's decision to uphold the exemption was erroneous. The Court clarified that the term "wholly" in Section 11 pertains to the purposes of the trust, not the property, and is akin to "solely," leaving no room for purposes to be only partially charitable or religious in nature. Additionally, the Tribunal wrongly relied on a Settlement Commission order, which is final and conclusive only for the specific assessment year of the application, not for subsequent years. Consequently, the Tribunal's order was set aside. (AY. 2007-08)

[S. 2(15), 13(1)(c), 22, 24, 37(1), 133A]
Assessee-trust is running Kalyan Mandapam on commercial lines for fees and cess like any other persons carrying out business operations. Except a minimum amount of donations, the assessee has not spent any amount for charitable purpose as per its objects specified in the deed of trust. Receipts from the marriage hall related activities are more than the specified limit as per proviso to S 2(15). Rejection of exemption is justified. Printing a diary of trustees and their family members does not per se amount to diversion of trust funds for the benefit of trustees. Amounts spent for the Diwali get-together of the trustees in the course of carrying on activities of the trust cannot be considered as diversion of trust funds for the benefit of trustees-No violation under section 13(1)(c). The assesseee Trust is denied the exemption hence the depreciation is directed to be allowed on commercial principle. When exemption is denied corpus donations is to be includable in total income as per the provisions of the Act. As the exemption is denied the expenditure is to be allowed for earning of income including its activities as deduction. As the house property is used for the benefit of the members of one family the expenditure incurred is not allowable as deduction. (AY. 2013-14 to 2019-20)

Tribunal directed the Assessing Officer to examine the matter afresh keeping in mind that if some profits were generated from such activities, the assessee could be granted exemption provided the receipts from such profit do not exceed the quantitative limit of 20 per cent. in terms of the second proviso to section 2(15). Further, the prohibition against carrying on business or service of a commercial nature would not be attracted, if the quantum of such profits did not exceed 20 per cent. of the overall receipts. [S. 11(2), 11(6)] 216

Held, that the assessee is eligible to claim application of income towards acquisition of fixed assets. Though, section 11(6) was introduced in the statute with effect from April 1, 2015, it was clarificatory in nature and applicable for the year under consideration as well. The Assessing Officer, without verifying the submissions of the assessee, had held that no proper system was followed for utilisation of the accumulated income and that the capital expenditure could not be claimed as an application against accumulation under section 11(2). The finding of the Assessing Officer is not in accordance with the provisions of the Act. The matter is set aside to the Assessing Officer to re-examine the assessee's claim. Commissioner (Appeals) had condoned the delay in filing form 10 and the Revenue had not challenged this issue. Hence, the first reasoning on which the Assessing Officer disallowed the accumulation under section 11(2) did not survive. Tribunal held that substantial justice should be preferred to technicalities in deciding the issue. The purpose for which the amount was claimed to be accumulated was specifically mentioned in form 10 of assessment year 2016-17 as to be applied to promote and support research scientists for the advancement of research and development in future. Held that the return was filed by the assessee on November 29, 2014, and form 10 was filed one day later on November 30, 2014. The assessee also brought on record evidence of filing of forms 10 and 10B on November 30, 2014, which was within the due date as prescribed under the Act and Rules. The audit report was filed in this case on November 30, 2014, which was within the time as admissible under the provisions of section 139(1) of the Act. Direction of the Commissioner (Appeals) to allow the deduction under section 11(2) of the Act is affirmed. (AY. 2014-15)

Held that that as on the date on which the intimation under section 143(1) of the Act was passed, the auditor of the assessee-trust had already filed the audit report in form 10B, before such intimation under section 143(1) of the Act was issued. There was no deliberate or mala fide intention on the part of the assessee or its auditor to file the audit report in form 10B belatedly. The claim of application of income could not be denied to the assessee only on the ground that the assessee or the auditor of the assessee omitted to file form 10B along with return of income, when it was submitted to the tax authorities before the intimation under section 143(1) of the Act was issued. The assessee-trust had filed its return of income as on September 26, 2018, within the prescribed time-limit under section 139(1) of the Act. Section 234F is not applicable. (AY. 2018-19)

Held that the audited financial statements, statement of income and the return of income for the assessment year 2013-14 were not filed by the assessee during the proceedings before the authorities but had been filed along with the return of income, meaning thereby, that these documents were already available with the authorities below, but they did not look into them. In the interest of justice and fair play, the matter was to be remanded for fresh adjudication. That the balance-sheet of the assessee showed that the capital fund shown by the assessee was utilised in fixed assets, capital work-in-progress and current assets. Such amount represented the application of income and, therefore, was to be excluded while calculating the amount to be invested under the provisions of section 11(2) read with section 11(5) of the Act. Nevertheless, the assessee had not represented the facts properly, the matter is remanded to the Assessing Officer for de novo adjudication as per the provisions of law. (AY. 2018-19)

Assessing Officer denied exemption under section 11 on reasoning that there was a delay of 235 days in filing Form No. 10B (audit report). CIT(A) dismissed appeal by stating that neither he nor the Assessing Officer were empowered to condone delay. On appeal the Tribunal held that requirement of filing audit report in Form No. 10B is procedural in nature and, therefore, not filing audit report along with return of income was a procedural omission only and could not be impediment in law in claiming exemption. Since due to confusion in interpretation of law audit report in Form No. 10B was filed after specified period, delay in filing audit report in Form No. 10B deserved to be allowed. Matter is restored to CIT(A) to allow exemption. (AY. 2021-22)

Assessee, an apex sports body in India representing country, claimed exemption under sections 11 and 12. During the year, assessee entered into sponsorship agreements with few Indian business groups and received certain amount as sponsorships. Assessing Officer held that the nature of activities in respect of sponsorship agreements with various sponsors is in nature of business and held that assessee was hit by second proviso to section 2(15) and, hence, not eligible for benefit of exemption under sections 11 and 12. CIT(A) allowed the exemption. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee is representing country under aegis of Government in amateur international sports events and arranging these sponsorship contracts is in itself a great task for assessee as sponsors were paying out of their profits for motivating assessee and sportspersons of country in participating in international events. Therefore neither sponsor nor assessee could be attributed any profit motive from outcome of these sponsorship agreements. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2017-18)

Assessee-trust was denied benefit of section 11 by Assessing Officer on ground that it did not furnish audit report in Form 10B within prescribed time. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. Tribunal held that since assessee had filed an application for condonation of delay of 31 days in filing Form 10B before CIT (E), but said application was still pending for disposal. Tribunal directed the Assessing Officer to restore exemption proceedings and to decide claim of assessee for exemption under section 11 after taking into consideration decision of CIT(E) on application of assessee for condonation of delay in filing Form 10B (AY. 2022-23)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Delay in filing Form No. 10-Matter remanded to the file of Assessing Officer-Assessee is directed to file exemption application before CIT(E). [S. 11(2), Form No. 10] 227

Assessee-trust claimed exemption under section 11(2). Assessing Officer disallowed claim of exemption on ground that assessee filed Form No. 10 after due date. CIT(A) confirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that in view of Circular No. 17/2022, dated 17-7-2022, matter is restored back to Assessing Officer with direction to assessee for applying to Commissioner (E) and seek condonation of delay in filing Form No. 10 and after condonation of delay in filing Form No. 10 by Commissioner (E), Assessing Officer would decide claim of exemption under section 11(2). Shree Pushkar Foundation v. ITO (2024) 209 ITD 219 (Mum) (Trib.)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Return was filed within time allowed under section 139(4)-Assessing Officer is directed to allow assessee's claim of exemption. [S. 12A, 139(1), 139(4), Form No. 10B] 228

Assessee-trust had filed e-return of income on 9-2-2019 along with Form No. 10B declaring total income at nil after claiming exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer disallowed assessee's claim on ground that return of income was filed beyond time limit prescribed under section 139(1). CIT(A) confirmed the action of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that provision of section 139(4) with effect from 1-4-2017 lays down that any person who has not furnished return of income within time allowed under section 139(1), may furnish return for any previous year at any time before end of relevant financial year or before completion of assessment whichever is earlier. Since relevant assessment year ends on 31-3-2019, return filed by assessee on 9-2-2019 was within provision of section 139(4). The Assessing Officer is directed to allow claim of exemption under section 11. (AY. 2018-19)

CIT (E) v. Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority (2022) 291 Taxman 11/ 449 ITR 1 (SC). [S. 2(15), 12AA] 229

Assessee, is an autonomous body, was established by Government of Gujarat for development of areas and infrastructural activities. It claimed exemption under section 11 of the Act. The Assessing Officer denied exemption. Commissioner (Appeals) allowed exemption holding that activities of assessee were not covered by proviso to section 2(15) read with section 13(8). On appeal the Tribunal set aside the matter to file of Assessing Officer to consider the same in accordance with law as enumerated by Supreme Court in case of *Asstt. CIT (E) v. 230 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Accumulation of income-Failure to file Form 10-Assessing Officer is directed to reconsider issue after disposal of application filed by assessee for condonation of delay in filing Form 10. [S. 11(2), 11(5), Form No. 10]

Assessee-trust earned income from various sources and invested balance amount in fixed deposits. Assessee neither filed Form 10 explaining purpose of accumulation of income under section 11(2) nor filed any details of investment in fixed deposits before Assessing Officer. Assessing Officer made additions. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee submitted that it had not filed Form 10 either with return of income or at assessment/appellate stages, but said Form-10 had been filed along with resolution of executive committee indicating accumulation of income for purpose of objects of trust and also filed relevant proof of investment under section 11(5). Assessee had also filed a petition for condonation of delay in filing Form 10 and said petition was pending for disposal. Since assessee had filed Form 10 along with resolution of executive committee and petition for condonation of delay was pending for disposal, matter is remanded back to Assessing Officer to reconsider issue in light of Form 10 filed by assessee after disposal of application filed by assessee for condonation of delay. CIT (E) v. Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority(2022) 291 Taxman 11/ 449 ITR 1 (SC) [S. 2(15)]

Assessee was a non profit organization having objects to promote welfare of craftsmen. During assessment, Assessing Officer invoked proviso to section 2(15) in respect of certain income which in her view were in nature of trade and commerce and denied exemption available under section 11. Commissioner (Appeals) by an ex parte order upheld denial of exemption. On appeal the Tribunal held that Commissioner (Appeals) should have remanded appeals to Assessing Officer for fresh adjudication in light of judgment of Supreme Court in case of Asstt. CIT (E) v. Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority (2022) 291 Taxman 11/ 449 ITR 1 (SC) rather than giving ex-parte decision as same was in complete violation of principles of natural justice. Accordingly the Assessing Officer is directed to consider claim of exemption under section 11 in light of Judgment of Supreme Court in case of Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority (supra). Crafts Council of India v. Jt. CIT (2024) 209 ITD 581 (Chennai) (Trib.)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Accumulation of income-Accumulated certain amount for purpose of building funds-Re development work-Delay in redevelopment-NOC from Airport Authority-Application filed under section 11(3A) was pending consideration before Assessing Officer-Section 11(3)(c) is not applicable-Period of accumulation was ending on 31-3-2018 vide resolution dated 29-3-2018 and in order to rectify said mistake revised Form 10 was filed by assessee stating period of accumulation to be till 31-3-2023-Claim was under section 11(2) and not under section 11(1)(a), revised Form 10 should be considered for determining accumulated funds available with assessee under section 11(2). [S. 11(2), 11(3A), 11(5), 12A, 13(3)(c), Form No 10] 232

Assessee is a charitable trust registered under section 12A. Assessee had accumulated an amount of Rs. 4 crore during year 2012-13 for purpose of building funds. The assessee did not have surplus money to set apart or accumulate under section 11(2). Thereafter, assessee filed revised Form 10. Assessing Officer made additions in income of assessee on ground that income accumulated under section 11(2) did not satisfy conditions laid out under section 11(3). On appeal the CIT(A) deleted the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee has submitted that funds accumulated in financial year 2012-13 for redevelopment work could not be utilised in year under consideration as it operated very close to Mumbai Airport and for any extension/redevelopment work it had to take NOC from Airport Authority of India and because of said reason redevelopment work of its school building was delayed. Furthermore assessee had filed an application under section 11(3A) in this regard. Since assessee's application filed under section 11(3A) was pending consideration before Assessing Officer, section 11(3)(c) would not apply to instant case. The Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A). Assessing Officer also rejected assessee's claim of accumulation of funds under section 11(2) on ground that period of accumulation was stated to be ending on 31-3-2018 and, thus, assessee did not have income which it intended to accumulate or set aside under section 11(2). Amount was decided to be accumulated for carrying out purposes of trust vide resolution dated 29-3-2018 and in order to rectify said mistake revised form 10 was filed by assessee stating period of accumulation to be till 31-3-2023. Further, mode of investment was also as per section 11(5) as amount was deposited in scheduled banks or co-operative societies as per section 11(5)(iii). CIT (A) deleted the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee's claim was under section 11(2) and not under section 11(1)(a), revised Form No. 10, which stated period of accumulation till 31-3-2023, should be considered for determining accumulated funds available with assessee under section 11(2). Order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed. (AY. 2018-19)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Donation to another trust with similar objects-Allowed as deduction in earlier years and latter years-Denial of exemption is not valid. [S. 12A] 233

Held that the Assessing Officer himself in the subsequent assessment year has allowed the claim of the assessee under section 11 of the Act and restricted the donation paid to the Council alone for disallowance. Therefore, there was no merit in denying the benefit under section 11 of the Act without considering the actual charitable activities of the assessee-trust. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2015-16

[S. 12A 13(2)(c), 13(2)(c), 13(2)(g), 13(3)]
Held that the Assessing Officer had not demonstrated how the business support expenses paid to F Ltd. were not commensurate with the market value of the services availed of from F Ltd. an entity said to be covered under section 13(3) and thus the assessee violated the conditions under section 13(2)(g) of the Act. The statement of assessable income, balance-sheet and statement of profit and loss account of F Ltd. showed income. The disallowance is not sustainable. That salary expenditure to faculty members was disallowed due to non-filing of qualifications and experience and elaborate the services rendered by persons. The assessee had engaged highly technical qualified persons in whole-time management activities of trust as well as regular time teachers in business school. The details of educational qualification and experience in absence of any other evidence to the contrary could not be said to be not just fair and reasonable. That the payment as commission to consultants and counsellors is justified. That keeping in view the invoices, quotations and student-wise list the disallowance of expenses on computers to students is not fair and reasonable. Additions confirmed by the CIT(A) is deleted. 236 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Denial of exemption-Exemption denied due to personal benefit-Interest-free loans to trustees-Trustees using loans to acquire immovable properties-Expenditure disallowed as capital expense-Remand for fresh consideration. [S. 12, 13(1)(c)(ii), 250]
The assessee, a charitable trust, had provided interest-free loans to trustees, who used the funds to acquire immovable properties for construction of nursing college. These properties were leased back to the trust. The Assessing Officer disallowed a lease deposit of ₹ 25 lakhs, treating it as capital expenditure, and also disallowed hostel expenses of ₹ 27,72,490 as unpaid during the year. Further, the AO found that the trustees had received loans totalling ₹ 1,70,11,398, which were used to buy properties in their individual capacities, violating Section 13(1)(c)(ii), leading to denial of exemption under Sections 11 and 12. The CIT(A) upheld the AO's decision but did not address specific grounds relating to disallowed expenditures and the use of loans for property acquisition. The CIT(A), despite the assessee making specific submissions and enclosing documentary evidence, did not adjudicate specific grounds taken before him. The Tribunal, noting this, directed the CIT(A) to reconsider these issues. (AY. 2013-14)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Engaged in upliftment of poor, providing training and skill development of poor in rural areas in backward districts-Entitled to exemption. [S. 2(15)] 237
Held, dismissing the appeals, that the Tribunal having held for the assessment years 2011-12 to 2014-15 that the assessee was not engaged in any trade, commerce or business and thus the mischief of proviso to section 2(15) was not attracted in the case of the assessee, and there being no change in facts order of CIT(A) is affirmed. ITO (E) v. Professional Assistance for Development Action (2024)111 ITR 87 (SN)(Delhi)(Trib)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Prima facie adjustments-Claim inadvertently made under Section 10(23C)-Failure to file mandatory form-Prima facie adjustment is proper-No action can be taken merely on basis of Form 10B filed in Appellate Proceedings-Direction of Commissioner (Appeals) to avail of remedy under Section 119 to file revised return is proper [S. 11, 119, 143(1), 154, Form No 10B] 238
Held that there was no denial of the fact that the claim for deduction under section 11 of the Act was not made in the return of income. The assessee had claimed deduction under section 10(23C) of the Act in the return. As the form essential for claiming exemption under section 10(23C) was not furnished, the claim had been rightly rejected. Therefore, the adjustment made while processing the return, could not be faulted. Tribunal also held that there is no error in the direction of the Commissioner (Appeals) to avail of the remedy under section 119 of the Act to file a revised return. The assessee was allowed an opportunity in the intimation to file a rectification application, if so required, which was not availed of. Accordingly, the remedy of rectification of mistake had to be availed of before resorting to the alternate remedy under section 119(2)(b), if required. The assessee may file an application under section 154 of the Act to rectify the mistake in the intimation, if deemed proper. The assessee was also free to avail of the remedy under section 119 of the Act, if he so desired. (AY. 2022-23)
Shri R. V. Shah Charitable Trust v. Dy. DIT (2024)111 ITR 83 (SN)(Ahd)(Trib)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Accumulation-Not routed through income and expenditure Account-Addition is deleted-Nodal agency for rebuilding portions of the State of Uttarakhand affected by floods-Income-Received funds for rebuilding flood-hit State-Utilised funds as per requirements of State Government-Balance remaining after work repayable to payer-Assessee is not owner of funds-Funds not income-Addition is deleted. [S. 4, 11(2)] 239
The Assessing Officer held that the sums so received and accumulated ought to have been routed through the income and expenditure account and ought not to have been transferred directly to the balance-sheet. An addition was made as income. On appeal the Commissioner (Appeals) deleted the addition. On further appeal the Tribunal held that since there was a categorical finding that the sum under the Swachh Bharat Abhiyan Scheme had been routed through the income and expenditure account. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. Assessee received funds from public sector undertakings and then disbursed them as per the requirements of the State Government. It contended that these funds never formed a part of the income of the assessee as the assessee was not the owner of those funds but merely facilitated their collection and disbursal. Any balance in the relevant bank account after the rehabilitation work was complete was to be returned to the respective public sector undertakings. The AO assessed as income. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee was not the owner of the funds received from the public sector undertakings in relation to the relief and rehabilitation work in Uttarakhand. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2015-16)

The assessee is an association of various industrialists, organisations and other commercial entities for the development of trade, commerce and industry, was set up with the sole purpose of promotion and protection of Indian business and industry and was duly registered under section 12A of the Act as a charitable association with the main objects to promote and protect the trade, commerce and industries in or with which Indians were engaged or concerned. The membership of the assessee was comprised of business houses, corporate houses within the country and abroad. The assessee derived income from organising meetings, conferences and seminars for members and non-members on cost-to-cost basis and by way of membership fees from members besides earning or accruing interest on fixed deposit receipts, rental income and miscellaneous income from the properties held by the assessee. For the assessment year 2013-14, the assessee claimed exemption under section 11 of the Act. The Assessing Officer treated the activities of organising conferences, meetings and seminars as business activities by invoking the proviso to section 2(15) read with section 13(8) on the ground that the assessee was charging consideration in the form of sponsorships, that the receipts from these activities exceeded Rs. 25 lakhs in terms of the proviso to section 2(15) and denied the exemption claimed under section 11 by bifurcating the total receipts into two components, namely, business income and charitable income under section 11 and computed the income accordingly and brought to tax the business income whereas the deduction was allowed in respect of charitable income. Accordingly, he added Rs. 2,00,75,470 as net business income by apportioning the administrative expenditure proportionately between the business and charitable receipts or income based on the gross quantum of receipts under these heads. The exemption was allowed to the assessee only in respect of interest, rental and miscellaneous income. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals), after issuing show-cause notice under section 251(2) of the Act, enhanced the income treating the entire receipts as business receipts and taxed it at the rate applicable to companies. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee, in order to protect and promote trade, commerce and industry had been organising the activities of seminars, meetings and conferences in order to disseminate knowledge on specialised issues to members and non-members on the subject with specialised knowledge. During the events experts on the subjects were invited to speak on the occasion and also participative discussion and interactions were held and members and non-members were invited to such activities of the assessee. It was not organising any trading programs to impart skill development courses by specialist and skilled knowledge and certified courses but general meetings, conferences and seminars were organised to discuss and debate issues in current topics, amendments of the Income-tax Act, Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, foreign trade policy and other issues concerning trade, commerce and industries. During the year, the receipts from the activities of holding and organising meetings, seminars and conferences were Rs. 9,48,14,435 and the profits as computed by the Assessing Officer constituted only 2 per cent. of such receipts. Thus, the consideration charged by the assessee was just a cost basis and nominally above the cost. However, if the administrative expenses were allocated on a rational and scientific basis between the activities of holding meetings, seminars and conferences on the one hand and other charitable receipts such as interest, rental and miscellaneous income on the other hand, then there would be a huge loss from these activities meaning thereby that the assessee had not been even charging from these sponsors, participants, members or non-members sums enough to cover the cost of the assessee and therefore it could be reasonably presumed that the assessee had provided these activities below the cost. In the subsequent assessment year 2014-15, the Assessing Officer had computed loss of Rs. 77,87,698. Therefore, the assessee was not carrying on any activity of holding meetings, seminars and conferences for business purpose but only in support of its main object and it charged from its participants, members and non-members the amount of fee which did not even covers the cost of holding such events. That the administrative and other incidental expenses of holding and organising seminars, conferences and meetings were met out of other charitable income received from interest on fixed deposit receipts, rental and miscellaneous income. Hence, the assessee was entitled to exemption under section 11 as the activities of the advancement of main object was not hit by the proviso to section 2(15) of the Act even post-amendments. Tribunal directed the AO to allow depreciation as application of income. As regards capital gains in respect of sale of old motor car and purchase of new car, there is no opening written down value for the year. Even if entire cost claimed as application of income, assessee is entitled to claim deduction of written down value from sale consideration for calculating capital gain. The accumulation of income is to be computed on gross receipts and not net receipts. (AY. 2013-14, 2014-15)

Held that the return was filed in form 7 and form 10B on March 31, 2021 and March 30, 2021 while the extended due date for filing the return in the relevant assessment year was February 15, 2021. Due to the covid-19 pandemic, the Supreme Court had extended the period of limitation with respect to judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. Therefore, there was no delay in filing the return or form 10B. Assessee, an association, was engaged in research work in area of micro wave electronics. It claimed exemption under sections 11 and 12. Assessing Officer held that activities of assessee were purely research work and did not fall under section 2(15). CIT(A) held that dominant purpose is charitable and did not carry on business hence the exemption is allowed. On appeal the Tribunal held that since in earlier years, claim of assessee was accepted and for current assessment year also, there was no change in facts and circumstances, order of CIT(A) allowing the claim is affirmed. Assessee-trust granted loan scholarships to Indian students in India for their higher education overseas. It filed nil return claiming exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer held that assessee had given loan/grants to various students who were studying outside India hence denied claim of exemption on ground that charitable purpose and its execution should be in India. CIT(A) allowed the claim. On appeal the Tribunal held that in assessee's own case for assessment year 2012-13 it was held that loan scholarships given to Indian students in India for education/higher education abroad would be considered as application of income for charitable purposes in India and, thus, would qualify for exemption under section 11. Assessee-society registered under section 12AA, filed its return claiming exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer denied the exemption on ground that assessee had not furnished details of fresh registration under section 12AB obtained by it. On appeal the CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On further appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had applied for fresh registration under section 12AB in prescribed form within time allowed by statute. Original registration obtained under section 12AA would protect assessee up to assessment year 2021-22 for claim of exemption under section 11 as long as other conditions prescribed in section 11 to 13 had been fulfilled by assessee. Therefore, assessee would be duly entitled for claim of exemption under section 11 for assessment year 2021-22 (AY. 2021-22)

Assessee trust was registered under section 12A and was running several educational institutions. It filed its return of income claiming exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer made certain additions to assessee's income on ground that assessee had spent less than mandatory 85 per cent of total receipts. Assessee filed appeal before National Faceless Appeal Centre (NFAC) and submitted that relevant Form No. 10, which was filed before department explaining amount of money, which was yet to be spent and how they planned to spend remaining amount in course of next five years, needed to be examined and considered by Assessing Officer while framing assessment order, which was not done by him. NFAC dismissed assessee's appeal holding that there was no material on record to warrant interference with order of Assessing Officer. Tribunal held that since NFAC had not adjudicated issue on merits, matter is remanded back to file of NFAC for de novo adjudication. (AY. 2016-17)

247 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-General utility to public--Acquisition and sale of immovable properties-Issue is remanded to Assessing Officer to consider afresh strictly in light of observations made by Apex Court in CIT(E) v. Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority (2022) 291 Taxman 11/ 449 ITR 1 (SC). [S. 2(15)]

Assessee is engaged dominantly in activity of development and sale of properties. It filed its return of income declaring profit on total income/gross receipt which was claimed exempt as per provisions of section 11. Assessing Officer held that assessee is engaged in activity in nature of trade, commerce or business in as much as one of dominant activities of authority is acquisition and sale of immovable properties and receipts from which were in excess of ceiling stipulated in second proviso of section 2(15). He disallowed exemption under section 11 of the Act. CIT(A) allowed the exemption. On appeal the Tribunal held that since verification/examination had not been carried out by authorities below in terms of observations and guidelines framed by Apex Court in case of CIT(E) v. Ahmedabad Urban Development Authority (2022) 291 Taxman 11/ 449 ITR 1 (SC) issue is to be remanded to file of Assessing Officer to consider same afresh upon examining nature of assessee's activities and to pass a reasoned order strictly in light of observations made by Apex Court. 248 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Failure to furnish Form 10/10B before due date prescribed under Section 139(1)-Directory in nature-Exemption cannot be denied. [S. 11(2), 139(1), 143(1), Form No 10A, 10B]

Assessee-trust claimed exemption under section 11 in return of Income. CPC, Bengaluru disallowed claim concluding that assessee failed to e-file Audit Report in form 10B one month prior to due date of filing return. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal, Tribunal held that requirement of filing Form 10/10B is merely directory in nature and failure to furnish Form 10/10B before due-date prescribed under section 139(1) cannot be so fatal so as to deny very claim of exemption under section 11(2). Since delay in filing Form 10B is due to technical issues and was beyond control of assessee, procedural requirement should not deny substantive claim of exemption under section 11. The AO is directed to grant exemption under section 11. (AY. 2022-23)

249 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Delay in filling Form 10B-Not mandatory-Issue is remanded back to Assessing Officer to consider claim of assessee in accordance with law by carrying out necessary verification of Form 10B filed by assessee-Delay of 29 days in filing of appeal before CIT(A) is condoned. [S. 119, 143(1)(a), 249 Form No 10B]

Tribunal condoned the delay of 29 days in filing the appeal before CIT(A). Assessee-trust filed its return of income declaring shortfall in application of income. Assessee filed Form 10B i. e. audit report, before filing return of income. However, there was a delay of 29 days in filing same. Assessee had made applications to condone delay in filing Form 10B. However, same was not accepted and assessee's return was processed wherein exemption claimed by assessee under section 11 was denied. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that filing of Form 10B was not mandatory but directory, when audit report was available while passing intimation under section 143(1)(a) and requirement of law were complied with, exemption under section 11 could not be denied. It was further noted that circulars issued by CBDT which were available at time when assessee had made applications to condone delay in filing Form 10B had not been considered by authorities. On facts, issue is remanded back to Assessing Officer to consider claim of assessee in accordance with law by carrying out necessary verification of Form 10B filed by assessee. (AY. 2022-23)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Delay in filing Form 10B-Audit is completed before due date of filing of return-Procedural delay-CIT(A) is directed to pass fresh order on merits as per law. [S. 12A, 139(1), Form No. 10B] 250
Assessee trust claimed exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer disallowed same on ground that Form 10B is not submitted by auditor within due date i. e. under section 139(1). However, same was filed after delay of 31 days and the audit is completed well before due date fixed for filing Form 10B. The AO disallowed the claim of exemption. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the Assessee had provided a reasonable cause of lapse on part of auditors in filing Form 10B hence the Commissioner (Appeals) is supposed to take into consideration that non-filing of audit report along with return of income was a procedural omission. Therefore the matter is remanded to the file of Commissioner (Appeals) with the direction that he should take into consideration Form 10B of assessee and pass an order afresh on merits as per law. Assessee-trust claimed exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer by an intimation order under section 143(1)(a) disallowed claim on grounds that section 12A registration number was not mentioned and Form No. 10B (audit report) was not furnished one month prior to due date of filing of return of income under section 139(1). CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee is granted registration under section 12A during pendency of assessment proceedings and Form No. 10B is available with CPC while processing return, assessee is entitled to exemption under section 11. Assessee-trust filed return of income on 14-3-2022 and also furnished Form No. 10B. Assessing Officer denied exemption under section 11 holding that Form No. 10B/10BB was not filed in time. CIT(A) allowed the exemption. On appeal the Tribunal held that since up to March, 2022, country was passing through COVID-19 Pandemic and due dates for filing of return of income as well as compliance made by assessee also fells during that period, in such circumstances, delay caused in filing of Form No. 10B was to be condoned and the order of CIT(A) allowing the claim is affirmed. (AY. 2021-22)

253 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Form No 10B-Audit report-Delay of 28 days-COVID-19-Delay is condoned-Exemption is allowed. [S. 119, Form No 10B]
The assessee-trust was denied exemption under section 11 due to a delay in furnishing audit report in Form 10B along with return. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that from March, 2020 to March, 2022, country was passing through Covid Pandemic which restricted normal activities and it was also an accepted fact that many changes had been brought into Act regarding procedure of filing of income-tax return as well as audit reports and certain technical glitches had been faced time and again. Considering those aspects, CBDT authorized condonation of delays up to 365 days for assessment year 2018-19 onwards and by Circular No. 16/2022 dated 19-07-2022 extended that to delays up to three years. Since delay was merely of 28 days, the delay is condoned and exemption under Section 11 allowed. (AY. 2020-21)

Assessee-society which is registered under section 12A as a charitable society offering services to the nation as arm of Govt. of India under Software Technology Park of India (STPI) scheme. Assessing Officer held that assessee is indulged in business activities and treated all income except interest income as income from business and profession. Commissioner (Appeals) held that assessee is eligible for benefit of exemption under sections 11 to 13. On appeal the Tribunal held that assessee's own case for succeeding assessment year on identical issue Tribunal had held that assessee is a charitable society and income had to be computed in accordance with provisions of sections 11 to 13. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. Claim of depreciation cannot be treated as double deduction. (AY. 2011-12)

[S. 10(23C)(vi), 11(6),12A(a), 32]
Assessee-trust claimed depreciation in its return of income and submitted that there was application of income of more than 85 per cent of total income. The AO disallowed depreciation, which was affirmed by the CIT(A). On appeal the assessee submitted that before depreciation, there would not be any tax liability, even if depreciation was inadvertently claimed in return. Tribunal held that looking into entire conspectus of section 11(6), it was necessary to set aside issue to file of Assessing Officer to look into application of income by assessee afresh. S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Activities for upliftment of poor, providing training and skill development to poor in rural areas-Denial of exemption is not justified. [S. 2(15)] 256

Assessee-trust is engaged in activities for upliftment of poor, providing training and skill development of poor in rural areas in backward districts of States. Assessee had been allowed benefit of exemption under section 11 continuously up to assessment year 2010-11. The Assessing Officer denied exemption to assessee by invoking proviso to section 2(15). CIT(A) allowed the exemption. On appeal the Tribunal held that the Assessing Officer had not brought on record any evidences which would suggest that activities of assessee had been carried out with profit motive and thus, mischief of proviso of section 2(15) was not attracted in case of assessee. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2015-16 to 2017-18)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Specified persons –Adequate consideration-Rental value adopted by Assessing Officer was less than 10 per cent rent received by assessee-Denial of exemption is not justified. [S. 12, 12A(a), 13(2)(b), 13(3)] 257

Assessee filed return of income disclosing nil income on account of it being registered as a company under section 25 of Companies Act, 1956 as also registered under section 12A(a). Assessing Officer held that assessee had made available building owned by it to persons referred to in section 13(3) without charging adequate rent or compensation and had violated provisions of section 13(2)(a) and 13(2)(b) read with section 13(3). Accordingly, he assessed total income of assessee at certain amount by denying claim for application of income and exemption under section 11 on account of infringement of section 13(2)(b) read with section 13(3). On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) held that difference between rental value adopted by Assessing Officer and rental value adopted by assessee being less than 10 per cent, rent received by assessee could not be said to be not adequate hence allowed benefits of exemption under sections 11 and 12 to assessee. On appeal the Tribunal held that on facts order of Commissioner (Appeals) is affirmed. Followed *CIT(E) v. [S. 12AA, 139(4A), 139(9), 139C, 143(1), 154, Form No 5, Form No 7] 258

Assessee, a charitable trust, filed its return claiming loss for relevant years. Return is processed under section 143(1) disallowing application of income under section 11(1)(a). Assessee did not act thereon and filed appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) with a delay of 3 years 2 months and 2 years and 2 months for two years respectively. CIT(A) dismissed the appeal as not maintainable on finding of gross negligence. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee-trust filed its return in Form 5, which was meant for business income, processing of returns denying exemption under section 11(1)(a) was a mistake apparent from record and Commissioner (Appeals) should have directed

Assessing Officer to consider assessee's returns of income as rectification petitions. Matter remanded. (AY. 2014-15, 2015-16)

259 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Rent receipt-Receipt from rent by assessee-society was in course of actual carrying out of objects of general public utility and same was below 20 per cent of total receipt-Commissioner (Appeals) is justified in allowing benefit under sections 11 and 12-Corpus donation-Donation received by assessee-society were with specific direction and also utilized for construction of fixed assets i. e. bhawans only, same was corpus donation exempted under section 11(1)(d) [S. 2(15), 11(1)(d), 12A]

Assessee-society, registered under section 12A, which is engaged in arrangement, management and enhancement of immovable property in order to earn rent, to earn profit after sale, to earn donation etc. -It had claimed exemption under section 11 in respect of its rental income. Assessing Officer, rejected assessee's claim of exemption under section 11 holding that assessee-society was advancing object of general public utility and rent receipt from such activity was more than prescribed limit of Rs. 25 lakhs, therefore, activities of assessee were not for charitable purpose. Commissioner (Appeals) allowed the benefit of exemption under sections 11 and 12 to assessee. On appeal the Tribunal held that there was no material brought on record to support the fact that assessee was acting with profit motive so far in activities carried out. Receipt that assessee received was invested or expended for object of society and Assessing Officer failed to bring on record as to why rental income was treated as commercial income. Since receipt from rent was in course of actual carrying out of objects of general public utility and same was below 20 per cent, Commissioner (Appeals) is justified in allowing benefit under sections 11 and 12 to assessee. Tribunal also held that since copies of receipts contained direction of donor that money were for construction of fixed assets i. e. bhawans only and assessee had done that activity, Commissioner (Appeals) was justified in allowing benefit of section 11 to assessee. 260 S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Grants received from Government-Spent 85 percent of such income-Balance income is exempt under section 11 of the Act. [S. 11(5), 13(1)(d)]

Assessee is a Board established by Central Government to act as a nodal agency in developing activities of fisheries among various states in the country. Major source of receipt was grants from Central Government, and outflow was utilization of grants for projects developed by respective State Governments which were supervised by assessee. Assessee based on stage of completion of project released grants to State Government. Assessing Officer, held that the assessee did not utilise 85 per cent total grants-in-aid received during year and funds received back as refunds from various projects during year. He was of view that assessee had invested in equity shares of SDMSSL and thereby had contravened provisions of section 13(1)(d) read with section 11(5). Accordingly, he taxed shortfall in application of income below 85 per cent of total income of trust. Commissioner (Appeals),held that on an incorrect appreciation of accounting policies followed by assessee, Assessing Officer had rejected books, without actually bringing on record any defect in audited accounts of assessee and, therefore, he allowed claim of exemption under section 11. It was observed that assessee had maintained books of account, bills, vouchers and all other requisite supporting documents in respect of grants received, spent and other activities. Such books were audited by independent auditors-Assessee had been following accounting procedure as defined in GFR 230(5) of Government of India and directions of Integrated Financial Division of Ministry of Agriculture, Government of India (IFD) over years and treating all grants as liabilities and only when grants were utilised by implementing agencies they were treated as income and when utilisation certificates were received, they were treated as expenditure irrespective of year in which grant was received, as per directions of Government of India. There was no income element on grant of funds by Central Government, nor any expenditure incurred merely by allocation. Assessee had spent 85 per cent of income for objectives. Further, such an investment was made in SDMSSL, in financial year 2008-09 and not during current year and never in earlier years any objection on that aspect was taken. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. [S. 2(15), 12A] 261

Assessee is a registered under section 12A and had derived income by way of contributions from the head office, membership fee, income from publication of Indian Foundry journal, other grants and donations etc. besides receiving interest on fixed deposits. It had claimed exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer, rejected claim of exemption on ground that assessee-society was advancing object of general public utility and gross receipt of assessee from such activity was more than Rs. 10 lakhs in previous year and, therefore, activities of assessee were not for charitable purpose. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that on similar issue in case of Indian Chamber of Commerce v. Dy. CIT [IT Appeal Nos. 933 & 934 (Kol.) of 2023, dated 22-12-2023] had held that if primary purpose of an institution was advancement of objects of general public utility, it would remain charitable even if an incidental or ancillary activity or purpose for achieving main purpose, is profitable in nature. Since profit derived from services rendered as public utility service was very meagre, Assessing Officer is directed to allow exemption under section 11. (AY. 2014-15)

[S. 11(6), 11(1)(a), 12A, 13(3), 32] 262
Assessee, a charitable institute, had incurred advertisement expenses pertaining to advertisement work that which handled by Red Eye Media Pvt Ltd (REM)) a related party and a specified person, falling within the meaning of section 13(3). Assessing

Officer held that REM was charging substantially higher amounts on every bill, disallowed 15 per cent of total amount of advertisement expenses paid by assessee-society to REM. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that REM being agent of newspaper company received a discount of 15 per cent from newspaper company on bill amount. Further, REM had charged assessee-society for advertisements in newspaper, same rates which were fixed by newspaper company. Since discount of 15 per cent was received by REM from newspaper company on bill amount in its capacity as that of an agent of newspaper company, same, could not have any bearing on determining reasonableness of charges that were borne by assessee-society for advertisements in newspapers carried out through aforesaid specified person. Since REM had not availed any profit from assessee-society, Commissioner (Appeals) is justified in deleting addition made by Assessing Officer on account of excess payment made to REM. As regards addition on account of brokerage and commission expenses incurred by assessee without giving any cogent reason and without examining documentary evidence supporting assessee's claim of aforesaid expenditure, matter is restored to Assessing Officer for re-adjudication. Held that prior to section 11(6) made available on statute with effect from assessment year 2015-16, assessee was entitled to claim depreciation under section 32 on assets whose cost had been allowed as application for charitable purposes under section 11(1)(a). Assessee-trust maintained separate accounts for various donations, including corpus donations, which were earmarked for specific purposes and utilized accordingly. Assessing Officer added back a sum of Rs. 14 lakhs to disclosed income of assessee, citing non-compliance with provisions of section 11(2) due to late filing of Form No. 10. The assessee filed appeal against intimation and also rejection of application under section 154 of the Act. On appeal the Tribunal held that statutory provisions requiring filing of Form No. 10 online along with return of income came into effect from assessment year 2016-17. Since return of income was filed within time provided under section 139(1) and Form No. 10 was also filed manually before filing of return before Territorial Jurisdictional Assessing Officer, delay caused in electronically filing Form-10 for rectification, should have been condoned. Therefore, assessee was directed to upload form electronically within 30 days from receipt of order. (AY. 2016-17)

Assessee is a company, registered under section 12A, was primarily engaged in conducting surveys/research into readership, viewership and listenership of various media and dissemination of research to various members and non-members who were basically industrial business entities. Assessee outsourced research to outside agencies who prepared Indian Readership Survey (IRS) reports which were sold to subscribers/ members (more than 165) and to non-members. The Assessing Officer denied the exemption on the ground that since assessee's receipts from its activity even though it was for general public utility exceeded threshold limit of Rs. 10 lakhs, therefore, it is not entitled for exemption under section 11. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that it had to be examined that main activity for which section 12A registration was obtained itself falls within category of carrying of any activity in nature of trade, commerce or business. Only if it carries out any other activity which falls in such nature, then only proviso to section 2(15) would be applicable. Lower authorities did not examine the same and merely rejected claim under section 11 as receipts exceeded Rs. 10 lakhs. Therefore, matter remanded back to revenue to decide whether nature of receipts of income garnered by assessee in course of carrying out these activities of publishing newspaper could be characterized as in nature of trade, commerce or business for consideration. S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Audit report in Form No 10B was filed after expiry of time allowed under section 139(1)-Not filed any application for condonation of delay-Denial of exemption is justified. [S. 12A, 13(2(c), 13(3), 139(1), Form No 1OB] 265

Assessee-society registered under section 12A filed return of income for relevant assessment year within due date specified under section 139(1) declaring nil income after claiming exemption under section 11. Assessing Officer declined claim for exemption for reason that assessee had filed audit report in Form No. 10B after expiry of time allowed under section 139(1). CIT(A) up held the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee did not cumulatively satisfy set of conditions specified in Para 4(i) of Circular No. 10, dated 22-5-2019 and also had not filed any application for condonation of delay under section 119(2)(b) as provided in Para (ii) of said Circular, there remained no occasion for condonation of delay involved in filing Form No. 10B beyond stipulated time period. Accordingly the lower authorities had rightly declined claim for exemption under section 11. As regards salary paid to a doctor (trustee of assessee-society) and Assessing Officer disallowed claim on ground that assessee had failed to substantiate its claim and added amount to its income by invoking provisions of section 13(2)(c) read with section 13(3), since Assessing Officer in immediately preceding assessment year had accepted assessee's claim for deduction of salary paid to aforesaid doctor, matter is restored to him to verify authenticity of assessee's claim. S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Dividend received on the shares which were received as donation towards corpus fund-Treated as part of corpus fund-Cannot be treated as income from other sources-Entitled to exemption. [S. 11(1)(d),11(5), 13(1)(d)] 266

The issue in dispute is whether the dividend received on the shares, which were received by the assessee as donation towards corpus fund, could also be treated as part of corpus fund or to be treated as income of the assessee which was to be applied or invested as per the provisions of section 11 of the Act. The assessee received 5,00,000 equity shares of Majesco Ltd. as corpus donation. The donor vide its letter dated 17. 12. 2020 directed the assessee that said shares, any receipt thereof in the form of dividend/ sale proceeds and receipts on securities /deposits made out of dividend/sale proceeds was to be treated as corpus donation. According to the assessee the dividend received and interest received on deposit made out such dividend was to be treated as corpus donation, which was claimed exempt u/s 11(1)(d) of the Act while filing the return of income. According to the Assessing Officer, once the asset is donated and transferred, generation of future income from asset will be governed as per the provisions of the Act only, and not under any conditions set by the donor. According to the Assessing Officer, the entire interpretation of section 11(1)(d) of the Act was done wrongly by the assessee and claimed the dividend as exempt under the corpus fund and therefore, he assessed income from dividend as income from other sources. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal by the Revenue the assessee contended that the dividend received and interest received on deposit made out such dividend was to be treated as corpus donation, which was claimed exempt u/s 11(1)(d) of the Act. AO passed order u/s 143(1) whereby exemption u/s 11(2) was restricted as per original return on the ground that assessee had not filed ITR and form no. 10 within due date prescribed u/s 139(1). On appeal the CIT(A) allowed the deduction. Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A) holding that the Assessing Officer was not justified in not allowing the deduction for amount accumulated under section 11. (AY. 2019-20)

Assessee-trust filed Form 10 beyond due date and had sought accumulation of income under section 11(2) which was in contravention of section 13(9). Assessing Officer disallowed benefit of accumulation and made addition to income of assessee-trust. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee submitted that there was a delay in filing return of income and assessee had filed application for condonation, which was pending consideration. Matter is restored to file of Assessing Officer and he was to be directed to take a decision in accordance with law after assessee's application for condonation of delay in filing return of income had been disposed off by relevant authority. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 11 : Property held for charitable purposes-Application of income-Expenses incurred on the repairs or renovation of its assets used for charitable purposes are also considered as income application towards the charitable aims. [S. 11(1)(a), 12A] 269
The appellant-society, a charitable trust registered under section 12A of the Act, runs a school in a building owned by another trust. The appellant-society incurred expenditure on repairs/renovation of the school building and certain amount towards payment of property taxes. The AO disallowed the expenditure and the property tax on the ground that the building does not belong to the appellant-society. The CIT(A) upheld the disallowance on the ground that the appellant-society did not provide any agreement or MOU with the owner of the building regarding the maintenance of the building.
The Tribunal allowed the appeal of the appellant-society and set aside the impugned order of the CIT(A). The Tribunal held that the expenditure incurred by the appellant-society on the repairs of the school building and the property tax paid was for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the charitable trust, which is to impart education to the poor and needy children. The Tribunal relied on the decisions of the Gujarat High Court in Satya Vijay Patel Hindu Dharmashala Trust v. CIT [1972] 86 ITR 683 (Gujarat) and the Supreme Court in *S. R. M. CT. M Triuppani Trust v. [Form No. 10AB, Art. 226] 270
The assessee could not submit application Form No. 10 AB, due to some technical glitches he could not succeed in submitting his application form through online mode. On a writ, the petitioner prayed that only to the extent of submission of his application Form No. 10 AB, in view of the circular dated 17-7-2022, the purpose would be sub served if the Commissioner is directed to accept the application Form No. 10 AB of the assessee in physical mode treating the same is filed prior to the last date of submission of the application i. e. 30-6-2024 and to decide it on its own merits, considering the period of delay and reasons for delay, as the same has been explained by the assessee that due to technical glitches he could not succeed in filing the application form. Court held that although the Commissioner (E) has not been made a party respondent in the case, yet in the interest of justice, the assessee is directed to submit his application Form No. 10-AB in physical mode to the Competent Authority/Commissioner (E) Bhopal along with an application as well as necessary documents under the circular dated 17-7-2022 within 3 weeks from today, then the Commissioner (E) is directed to consider

271 S. 12A : Registration-Trust or institution-Application for registration erroneously made while charitable institution continued to be registered-Assessee is permitted to withdraw application filed inadvertently-Interpretation-Precedent-Doctrine of merger-Difference between decision of Supreme Court rejecting appeal by Special Leave and decision decided on appeal. [S. 12AA, 12AB, Art. 141, 226]
The assessee is a trust engaged in educational activities and was granted registration under section 12A of the Income-tax Act, 1961. The assessee stated that it could not trace the certificate and although it availed of the benefits for certain number of years without any objection from the Department, the authorities called upon the assessee to produce the registration certificate. Hence, the assessee made an application on October 14, 2019 to obtain a duplicate certificate of registration under section 12A but was not responded. The assessee made a fresh application on April 19, 2022. The assessee contended that both the applications were not decided and the duplicate certificate was also not issued. On March 25, 2022, the assessee applied for a fresh provisional certificate under section 12A(1)(ac)(i) in the prescribed form 10A as per rule 17A of the Income-tax Rules, 1962, that although the application for provisional registration was made on April 4, 2022, an order on form 10AC under section 12A(1)(ac)(i) for the assessment years 2022-23 to 2026-27 was passed by the competent authority thereby granting registration to the assessee. Thereafter, the assessee inadvertently applied for registration under the same provision in form 10AB on September 30, 2022. The Commissioner (E) issued notices requiring the assessee to submit copy of the provisional registration granted under section 12AB and the assessee furnished the necessary details. Another notice was received by the assessee on March 9, 2023 to which the assessee failed to submit a reply. On March 31, 2023, the Commissioner (E) passed an order rejecting the assessee's mistaken application on the ground that the assessee did not possess a copy of the provisional registration granted under section 12AB. On a writ petition contending that the Commissioner (E) might take further actions to cancel the registration dated April 4, 2022, of the assessee and seeking to be fully protected under the decision of the Supreme Court in CIT v. Society For The Promotion of Education(2016) 382 ITR 6 (SC) and to permit withdrawal of the application inadvertently filed under section 12A(1)(ac)(i). Court held that the assessee having already been granted registration under section 12A(1)(ac)(ii) read with section 12AB(1)(a) of the 1961 Act on April 1, 2022, for a period of five years, i. e., from the assessment years 2022-23 to 2026-27, there was no need to make a fresh application on September 30, 2022 under which the order rejecting the application for registration had been passed. Hence the assessee could withdraw its application filed under section 12A(1)(ac)(i), dated September 30, 2022 rendering the order dated March 31, 2023 of no consequence. Honourable Court also explained the difference between decision of Supreme Court rejecting appeal by Special Leave and decision decided on appeal.

S. 12A : Registration-Trust or institution-Method and manner of service of notice under statutory provisions-Notice and reminders issued by CIT(E) were reflected only on portal and not sent to the assessee at its registered email address-Order passed was set aside holding that before any action is taken, a communication of notice must be in terms of provisions of section 282 and rules made thereunder [S. 12A(1)(ac)(ii), 282, Rule 127, Art. 226] 272

The CIT(E) issued notice u/s. 12A(1)(ac)(ii) and subsequent reminders which were reflected only on the portal instead of sending the same on the assessee's email address. The assessee challenged the same as it was not provided sufficient opportunity. Revenue contended that as the assessee had submitted his form himself on the said e-portal, a presumption can be drawn that he was having knowledge of the notice/reminders which were placed on the e-portal as there was no requirement of submitting notice personally through e-mail or otherwise. However, High Court rejected the contentions of the Revenue and held that an individual or a Company is not expected to keep the e-portal of the Department open all the time so as to have knowledge of what the Department is supposed to be doing with regard to the submissions of forms etc.. The principles of natural justice are inherent in the income tax provisions and the same are required to be necessarily followed. Hence, the notices and order passed were set aside with the direction that the Department would provide an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner and they will also allow the petitioner to appear personally for the purpose and pass a speaking order independent of the order passed earlier by them.

[S. 12AA(1), Maharashtra Public Trust Act, 1950, S. 36(IA), Maharashtra Stamp Act, 1958, Registration Act, 1908,S. 17] 273

The CIT(E) has not granted the registration on the ground that lease agreement was entered in to by violating the conditions of Maharashtra Stamp Act, 1958 and Maharashtra Public Trust Act, 1950. On appeal the Tribunal held that the lease agreement was not registered as per the provisions of section 17 of the Registration Act,1908, violated the provisions of Maharashtra Stamp Act, 1958 as no stamp duty was paid. The Tribunal also held that the assessee has not obtained permission of the Charity Commissioner as per section 36(IA) of the Act. Assessee filed an application for registration under s. 12A(1)(ac)(iii) in Form No. 10AB before the CIT(E). Notices were issued by the CIT(E) on the online portal, which were not served on the registered email id of the assessee as per the provisions of S. 282. CIT(E) rejected the application. On appeal the Tribunal held that before any action is taken, a communication of the notice must be made in terms of the provisions of law. The assessee cannot be faulted for not responding to the queries raised by the CIT (E). The order passed by the CIT(E) rejecting the application filed in Form No. 10AB due to non-compliance of the notices cannot be sustained. [S. 11, 12A(2), 12AA, 143(1)]

Held that according to section 12A(2) of the Act, if any assessment proceeding was pending during the pendency of registration under section 12AA of the Act, then the registration granted shall be applicable to the pending assessment proceedings. The Central Board of Direct Taxes Circular No. 1 of 2015(2015) 371 ITR 22 (St) explained section 12A(2) of the Act. The proviso to section 12A(2) was introduced to remove hardship caused to genuine trusts. It had not been alleged by the Department that the assessee's activities or objects were not charitable in nature, rather it was an admitted fact that the assessee's objects and activities were charitable in nature. The Commissioner (Exemptions) after examining the objects and activities of the assessee-trust, had granted registration under section 12AA of the Act to the assessee-trust. The order under section 143(1) was issued on January 2, 2018 and registration under section 12AA of the Act was granted on October 20, 2016, which meant that at the time of issue of the order under section 143(1), the assessee already had registration under section 12AA of the Act. Therefore, in terms of the proviso to section 12A(2) of the Act, the assessee is eligible for deduction under section 11 of the Act for the assessment year 2016-17 as it had received registration under section 12AA of the Act before the order under section 143(1) for the assessment year 2016-17 was passed. Tribunal also held that only the profit can be taxed and not the entire receipt if benefit of section 11 is to be denied. Therefore, the CPC has erred in taxing entire receipt of the assessee under section 143(1) of the Act. (AY. 2016-17)

Assessee-trust was established in 1953 It applied for registration under section 12A/12AB. Commissioner (E) rejected the application on ground that objects of assessee were restricted to a particular community and, thus, assessee-trust is established for benefit of a particular community and not for general public, and accordingly, provisions of section 13(1)(b) were applicable. On appeal the Tribunal held that since the assessee trust was established much prior to commencement of Income-tax Act, 1961, embargo of section 13(1)(b) would not apply and, therefore, matter is remanded back to Commissioner (E) to reconsider application of assessee on merit.

Held that merely uploading of information about the date of hearing on the Income-tax portal was not an effective service of notice in terms of the provisions of section 282 of the Act. The notices were uploaded on the e-portal of the assessee but the assessee stated that he did not receive any notice of hearing. Assessee-trust had been granted provisional registration in Form 10AC for five years. After grant of provisional registration, assessee applied for final registration-Commissioner (E) rejected application of assessee being premature and not maintainable. On appeal the Tribunal held that where trust or institution was provisionally registered under section 12AB, application for final registration could be made at least six months prior to expiry of period of provisional registration or within six months of commencement of its activity, whichever was earlier. There was no bar in moving application at earliest possible event. Order of Commissioner (E)is set aside and matter is restored to Commissioner (E) to consider the application of assessee for final registration and grant same, Matter remanded. Tribunal also held that after grant of provisional approval, application for final registration could not be rejected on ground that institution had already commenced its activities even prior to grant of provisional registration and under such circumstances, date of commencement of activity would be counted when an activity was undertaken after grant of provisional registration either under clause (i) or clause (iv) to first proviso to section 80G(5) (AY. 2022-23 to 2026-27) *Rajbalhat Cultural Circle v. Assessee-trust filed an application for registration under section 12AB. However, at time of filing online application, it selected inadvertently section 12A(1)(ac)(iv) instead of section 12A(1)(ac)(iii). Assessee prayed to treat application as under section 12A(1)(ac)(iii). However, said prayer was not accepted by Commissioner (E) on ground that he had no power to change or rectify application filed in Form 10AB. On appeal the Tribunal held that since it was an inadvertent mistake and assessee had already explained facts and prayed for correction, mistake in filing entry was not fatal and thus issue could be considered in appropriate sub-clause of section 12A(1). Therefore, the order of rejection is set aside and Commissioner (E) is directed to treat application of assessee under section 12A(1)(ac)(iii) and to consider case on merits.

Assessee-trust filed an application for registration under section 12A(1)(ac)(iii). Commissioner (E) held that assessee did not furnish note on activities giving details of activities actually carried out by assessee, details furnished were general in nature without activity-wise details. He further held that photographs submitted by assessee did not prove that activities were carried out by trust itself. He also observed that assessee did not provide details of expenditure on object of trust by producing bills/vouchers and supportings of expenditure incurred on object of trust. Accordingly, he rejected application of assessee for registration. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had not provided necessary supporting evidences of expenditure incurred shown as spent on object of trust, matter is remanded back to file of Commissioner (E) with a direction to assessee to substantiate objects with activities carried on and necessary supporting of expenditure incurred shown as spent on object of trust. Tribunal also held that provisional registration granted to assessee-trust under section 12AB was cancelled on ground that assessee did not furnish note on activities giving details of activities actually carried out by it and matter remanded matter back to Commissioner(E) in view of fact that registration under section 80G(5) also depended on registration for disposal afresh. Child Education and Vision Foundation v. CIT (2024) 206 ITD 683 (Mum) (Trib.)

S. 12A : Registration-Trust or institution-Mismatch of name-Registration application should not be rejected on mere mismatch of name especially when steps had been taken by assessee to update correct name in PAN database. [S. 12A(1)(ac)(iii)] 288

Assessee's registration application under section 12A(1)(ac)(iii) was rejected by CIT(E) due to a name mismatch. On appeal the assessee argued for reconsideration, asserting correct name as 'Surat Halai Memon Jamat and Halai Memon Jamat Kabrashatn' and refuting any benefit to a particular religious community or caste. Tribunal held that mismatch in name might be rectified and corrected and it should not be a reason to deny registration of assessee-trust. Further, since assessee had already taken steps to correct above name in PAN database, above name should be treated as a correct name and hence, Commissioner (E) is directed to consider above stated name of assessee-trust and registration should not be denied only on the ground of mismatch of name.

Surat Halai Memon Jamat v. CIT(E) (2024] 205 ITD 607 (Surat) (Trib.)

S. 12A : Registration-Trust or institution-Trust, corpus contribution-Corpus specific voluntary contribution-Trust not registered u/s 12A/12AA of the Act-Capital receipt cannot be assessed as income. [S. 2(24)(iia), 11(1)(d), 12A, 12AA] 289

Assessing Officer held that assessee-trust had received corpus donation grant from another trust. Since assessee was not registered under section 12A, he held that it was not eligible for exemption under section 11(1)(d) in respect of corpus donation received by it and, accordingly, treated said receipts as income of assessee. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that since corpus specific voluntary contribution being in nature of capital receipt, was outside scope of income under section 2(24)(iia), same could not be brought to tax even in case of trust not registered under section 12A/12AA. (AY. 2019-20)

290 S. 12A : Registration-Trust or institution-Insufficient time to respond to notice-Violation of the fundamental principles of natural justice-The ITAT also set aside the order rejecting the application u/s 80G (5) and directed the CIT (E) to decide the application afresh in accordance with law. [S. 12AB 80G(5), Form No. 10A]
The appellant trust is a charitable trust formed with the objects of Indian Native Breed Cow cultivation, development, protection and awareness etc. It applied for registration u/s 12AB r. w. s. 12A of the Act in Form 10A and received a provisional registration. It also applied for registration u/s 80G (5) of the Act in Form 10AD. The ld. CIT(E) issued notices to the appellant trust seeking certain details and information regarding its activities, income and expenditure, and compliance with the conditions of registration. The appellant trust failed to respond to the notice within the stipulated time of five days. Consequently, the ld. CIT (E) rejected both the applications and cancelled the provisional registration by passing separate orders. The appellant trust challenged the orders before the ITAT on the grounds of violation of principles of natural justice, insufficient time to respond, and non-consideration of the merits of the case. The ITAT set aside the order rejecting the application u/s 12AB and remanded the matter to the ld. CIT (E) for de novo disposal after affording due opportunity of being heard to the appellant trust. The ITAT also set aside the order rejecting the application u/s 80G (5) on the same grounds and directed the ld. CIT (E) to decide the application afresh in accordance with law. (AY. 2023-24)

291 S. 12A : Registration-Trust or institution-Rejection of application on the ground of wrong code selected for provisional registration-and barred by limitation-Mistakes committed while applying registration could be condoned-Commissioner (E) directed to hear and dispose of request of assessee by allowing it to apply under Form 10A. [S. 12AB, Form 10A, 10AB]
Held, that the Central Board of Direct Taxes by Circular No. 6 of 2023, dated May 24, 2023, had extended the date up to September 30, 2023, whereas the assessee filed form 10AB by May 15, 2023. Though the assessee did not plead before the Revenue authorities by that day about the mistake of selection of wrong section code while applying in form 10AB and seek rectification, the request of the assessee for regular registration was pending by that date. Therefore, the mistake committed by the assessee while applying for registration in form 10AB instead of form 10A and also by making a selection of the wrong section code, namely, 02-sub-clause (iii) of clause (ac) of sub-section (1) of section 12A of the Act instead of 02-sub-clause (i) of clause (ac) of sub-section (1) of section 12A of the Act was condoned. The Commissioner (E) is directed to hear and dispose of the request of the assessee by allowing it to apply under form 10A. (AY. 2024-25)
Mandava Foundation v. ITO (E) (2024)111 ITR 16 (SN)(Hyd)(Trib)

S. 12A : Registration-Trust or institution-Technical mistake in preparing application-Typographical error corrected-Remanded back to file of Commissioner (E) for fresh adjudication by considering amended application. [S. 12A(1)(ac)(ii), 12(ac)(iii), Form No10AB] 292

Assessee had committed a technical mistake in preparing application under section 12A(1)(ac)(ii) instead of section 12A(1)(ac)(iii). Thereafter, assessee had filed revised Form No. 10AB for seeking registration under correct provisions i. e. section 12A(1)(ac)(iii). Commissioner (E) rejected application of assessee society for grant of registration on ground that in application made in Form No. 10AB, section 12A(1)(ac)(ii) was mentioned. On appeal the Tribunal held that since typographical error made by assessee is corrected, appeal is remanded back to file of Commissioner (E) for fresh adjudication by considering amended application. S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Condonation of delay-Application was rejected-Denial of exemption is justified-SLP rejected. [S. 260A, Art. 136] 293

The assessee had applied for registration under section 12AA as a charitable institution only in the year 2011-12 and the applications for condonation of delay, for certification for the previous years, having been rejected, exemption could not be allowed by the court exercising jurisdiction under section 260A of the Act, in a year in which such registration was not available. On petition for special leave to appeal to the Supreme Court. (AY. 2007-08, 2008-09, 2009-10)

S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Cancellation of registration-Commissioner had no jurisdiction to cancel registration certificate once granted by him to assessee under section 12A till 1-10-2004. [S. 12A, 260A] 294

Assessee, an educational trust, claiming to be engaged in charitable activities by providing financial assistance to poor and needy students by way of fee concession. It had filed an application under section 12A for grant of registration which was allowed. Commissioner passed an order on 2-3-2010 cancelling registration on ground that assessee was not carrying out any charitable activities. Tribunal had restored registration holding that once Commissioner had granted registration to assessee-undertaking, he had no power to cancel same. Tribunal also held that an express power was conferred on Commissioner to cancel registration for first time by enacting sub-section (3) in section 12AA only with effect from 1-10-2004 by Finance (No. 2) Act, 2004, and, hence, such power could be exercised by Commissioner only on and after 1-10-2004. On appeal High Court affirmed the order of Tribunal. (AY. 2004-05, 2005-06, 2006-07, 2007-08)

295 S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Charitable purpose-Object and genuineness of Trust-Tribunal justified in directing the Commissioner to grant registration and also approval under section 80G(5)(vi) of the Act. [S. 11, 80G(5)(vi), 254(1)]

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the Tribunal had recorded its satisfaction as the trust fulfilled the following two basic conditions for grant of registration under section 12AA of the Act : the object of the trust, and the genuineness of the activities of the trust/institution. The Tribunal had rightly directed the Commissioner to grant registration under section 12AA and also the approval under section 80G(5)(vi) of the Act to the assessee. The Commissioner was not to examine the genuineness of the activities of the trust and whether, if the trust transfers funds to another charitable society, it can be given exemption under section 11 of the Act. This power is restricted to the Assessing Officer. Hence, no useful purpose would be served by remanding the matter to the Commissioner to pass appropriate orders. (AY. 2016-17)

296 S. 12AA: Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Violation of provisions of section 13(1)(c)-Rejection of application not erroneous. [S. 11, 13(1)(c), 132, 133A]

Held that no error was committed by the authority in scrutinizing the genuineness of activities of the institution in obtaining satisfaction to grant registration. Before the amendment of s. 12AA by the Finance Act, 2019 with effect from September 1, 2019, the requirement for obtaining satisfaction was only about the genuineness of activities of the trust or institution. The authority had found that the activities were done in such a way that it had led to surveying under section 133A against the assessee and a search and seizure operation under section 132 on the premises of its secretary. When the authority was confronted by the activities requiring survey, search, and seizure, there was the conclusion that satisfaction had not been obtained to grant registration. This, the authority had done as required and empowered by the provision existing before the amendment. The facts that the assessee had suffered survey and search and seizure operations in the course of conducting its activities under its objects and that there had been a violation of the provisions of section 13(1)(c) could be considered for satisfaction on the application for grant of registration under section 12AA. 297 S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Contribution for establishment of a Dam from PHD Rural Development Foundation which is a social arm of PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industry-Not for profit-Matter is remanded to CIT(E) to decide whether activity is genuine or not. [S. 2(15), 12AB, 13(3), 80G (5)]

Held that the applicability of the provisions of s. 13 is required to be looked into at the time of assessment of the trust income and if the assessee has given any benefit to the trustees which is violative of the provisions of s. 13, naturally the assessee will pay the higher taxes on the above sum as per the provisions of the law. While granting registration to the CIT(E) is required to make an enquiry about the genuineness of the activities of the trust and compliance with the requirement of any other law, if those are material for the purpose of achieving its objects. The issue about the genuineness of the activity was decided only on the basis of few vouchers made available to the ITO(E). Assessee was never confronted with the views expressed by the CIT(E) about the genuineness. The matter is remanded to the file of CIT(E) in accordance with law. (AY. 2023-24)

Foundation for Ecological & Environmental Sustainability Trust v. CIT (E) (2024) 232 TTJ 210 (Jodhpur)(Trib)

S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Hospital-Letting of shops-Income is used for the objects of the Trust-Cancellation of registration is not valid. [S. 12A, 12AA(3)] 298

Held that though the receipts of the assessee-trust from the hospital activities are less, income from letting of shops are used for the objects of the Trust. Trustees have not misused the property of the trust. Genuineness of the trust is not in doubt hence the cancellation of registration is not valid.

S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Cancellation of registration-Trust contains a covenant that enables the settlor to utilize the premises for herself or her family-Cancellation of registration is set aside. [S. 11(5), 12A, 12AA(3), 13 (3)] 299

Held that mere fact that the trust deed of the assessee-trust contains a covenant that enables the settlor to utilize the premises for herself or her family cannot empower the CIT to cancel the registration, as it does not lead to any conclusion that either the activities of the trust are not genuine or the activities are not being carried out in accordance with the objects of the trust. Similarly, the fact that huge Investments are made in mutual funds cannot also lead to the conclusion that the activities of the trust are not genuine-Since the settlor has died in the year 1965, the relevant clause has become infructuous and thus there is no question of violation of provisions of s. 13(3). Investments in mutual funds are only in order to meet the statutory requirements of S. 11(5). Order cancelling the registration is set aside. Followed *CIT(E) v. S. 12AA : Procedure for registration –Trust or institution-cancellation of registration-New Section brought with effect from 1-4-2022 providing for reference by Assessing Officer to Principal Commissioner or Commissioner proposing withdrawal of registration in case of Specified violation by trust or institution-Amendment is prospective-Law inserted with effect from 1-4-2022 would not apply retrospectively-Cancellation of registration is bad in law and registration is to be restored. [S. 2(15), 11, 12AB(4), 13(2(a), 13(2)(g), 13(3)] 300

Held that in the case of the assessee, it had been held that doing business or not, did not warrant the cancellation of registration. The Department could not raise the issue again and there must be some finality on the issue. The observations or reasons in the order of the Commissioner (E) under challenge had no validity as the issue had already become final. That in the absence of specific mention that the amended provisions operate retrospectively, the cancellation could not operate from a past date, in this case from the assessment year 2017-18. That the Commissioner (Exemption) had initiated proceedings of cancellation of registration based on the reference received from the Deputy Commissioner (E) dated February 6, 2020. There was no such reference after registration was granted on September 23, 2021. The provision for making the reference was inserted in law with effect from April 1, 2022 and at the time of reference, there was no provision for making such reference under the second proviso to section 143(3) of the Act for trusts and institutions referred to under section 11 of the Act. Therefore, the reference itself was without the authority of any statutory provisions and there is no fresh reference by the Assessing Officer. That the cancellation of registration under section 12AA(3) / 12AB(4) by the Commissioner (E) is bad in law and the registration already granted to the assessee is to be restored. (AY. 2017-18)

Assessee-trust filed an application for registration under section 12AA. CIT (E) rejected on ground that assessee-trust had not incurred any expense on actual charitable activity as mentioned in its Memorandum of Association. On appeal the Tribunal held that, since assessee had failed to establish carrying out of any of activities in consonance with stated charitable purposes of trust, in view of natural justice, it is deemed fit that assessee should be allowed one more opportunity to prove its claim before CIT(E). Accordingly, CIT(E)is directed to pass a de novo order in accordance with law after providing reasonable opportunity.

302 S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Cancellation of registration-Provisions of section 12AA/12AB do not provide for cancellation of registration with retrospective effect. [S. 12AB]
Assessee trust had been granted registration under section 12A on 21.5.2014 w. e. f. 1.4.2013. A show cause notice was issued upon assessee on 6-10-2022 to cancel registration granted to assessee under section 12AA w. e. f. 1.4.2014 and passed an order cancelling registration. On appeal the Tribunal held that provisions of section 12AA/12AB do not provide for cancellation of registration with retrospective effect. Therefore, since show cause notice for cancellation of registration had been issued upon assessee by Principal Commissioner (E) on 6-10-2022, he could not have cancelled registration retrospectively with effect from 1-4-2014. Delay in filing of appeal was caused due to bonafide mistake hence the delay of 840 days is condoned. On merit since subsequently upon filing of second application for registration, assessee was granted registration on same set of facts which pointed to fact that assessee had been able to establish that it was carrying on genuine charitable activities, in interest of justice, matter was to be restored to Commissioner (E) to consider first application of assessee afresh, in accordance with law. S. 12AA : Procedure for registration-Trust or institution-Produced numerous documents under Rule 29 and also produced financials statements for relevant period-Matter remanded back for consideration afresh. 304

Assessee-society applied for registration under section 12AA. Commissioner (E) rejected registration application on ground that genuineness of activity undertaken by society i.e., selling of medicines or charity activities had not been proved. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had produced numerous documents under rule 29 of Income-tax Appellate Tribunal Rules and also produced financials for period ending on 31-3-2019. Matter remanded back for consideration of documents produced by assessee. (AY. 2019-20)

S. 12AA : Procedure for registration –Trust or institution-Collusive arrangement with SRMAMET (a trust formed by same management committee as that of assessee-society)-Funds were channelized directly/indirectly for members of management committee, assessee-society-Violation of section 13(1)(c)-Cancellation of registration is justified. [S. 12A, 12AA(4)(a), 13(1)(c)(ii)] 305

Assessee-society is engaged in imparting education through a school and was granted registration under section 12A of the Act. Commissioner (E) cancelled registration granted to assessee on the ground that the assessee-society had not paid tax dues and it had entered into collusive arrangement with SRMAMET whereby school of assessee was transferred to SRMAMET; and application for registration under section 12AA was made by SRMAMET; in order to make assessee lose significance in running of school; with larger aim of frustrating lawful recovery of tax dues of assessee. In order rejecting application of SRMAMET seeking registration, it had been stated that entirely new institution (SRMAMET) was created by way of a trust which was formed by same management committee as that of assessee-society. Funds of assessee were channelized directly/indirectly for members of management committee and, thus, assessee-society clearly stood in direct violation of section 13(1)(c). The assessee had also not filed returns of income under section 139 and the activities of assessee were not genuine within meaning of section 12AA(3). Accordingly the activities of the Trust is hit by section 12AA(4)(a) read with section 13(1)(c)(ii) and section 12AA(4)(b). On appeal Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(E) cancelling the registration.

Commissioner (E) rejected assessee's application for registration under section 12AB on grounds that assessee was not registered under Rajasthan Public Trust Act, 1959, genuineness of activities of assessee could not be verified due to not submitting sought details, and assessee had filed incomplete Form No. 10AB. On appeal the Tribunal held that since Rajasthan Public Trust Act is applicable to assessee-trust but assessee had not followed provisions of Rajasthan Public Trust Act and assessee had not filed single document to prove genuineness of activities of trust, assessee is not eligible for registration under section 12AB of the Act. [S. 12A(1)(ac)(v), 12AB(4), Form No. 10AB] 311

Tribunal held that there is no whisper in the order of the CIT(E) that there is violation of conditions on the basis of which the registration to the assessee-trust was granted. Genuineness of the religious activity carried on by the assessee trust cannot be doubted as it was only after the CIT(E) was satisfied about the genuineness of the religious activity of the trust that the registration to the trust was granted under s. 12AB. Non-compliance of any other law/furnishing of incomplete or false or incorrect information has also not been noticed by the CIT(E). The registration granted to the assessee under S. 12AB has been cancelled without following the due process of the principles of natural justice. The CIT(E) is not justified in cancelling the registration already granted to the assessee-trust. The CIT(E) is directed to consider the assessee's application under s. 12A(1)(ac)(v) in Form 10AB seeking approval for change in its objects/rules/ regulations as per the new trust deed and pass order afresh in accordance with law.

The assessee Trust is registered under the jurisdiction of Commissioner of Income tax Faridabad. There was search action in the case of Aggarwal Vidya Prachrani Sabha, hence the matter is centralized at Gurgaon by passing an order under section 127 of the Act. The Block assessment was completed from the Asst years 2014-15 to 2020-21. PCIT (Central) Gurgaon passed an order cancelling the registration by passing an order under section 12AB (4) of the Act. On appeal the Tribunal held that order passed under sub-cl. (a) to sub-s. (2) of S. 127 only referred to transfer of jurisdiction of 'AO' subordinate to CIT(E), Chandigarh to Dy. CIT, Central Circle-2, Faridabad as AO and not original jurisdiction of CIT(E), Chandigarh with regard to the subject matter as stands vested by order of CBDT dt. 22nd Oct., 2014. This delegation of powers by CIT(E), Chandigarh could have been qua officers subordinate to the CIT(E) only and he had no power to pass an order under S. 127(2) (b) to transfer powers vested by the Board to any other tax authority. Notification dt. 22nd Oct., 2014 does not mention specifically that the powers which can be exercised by the Principal CIT under S. 12AB can be transferred to other authorities. Accordingly while passing the order under S. 127, the CIT(E), Chandigarh could have transferred his powers under S. 12AB to any other authority. Term 'case' as defined in Explanation to S. 127 refers to assessment initiated as a consequence of search or consequential proceedings to such assessments only and cannot be extended to special powers of CIT(E) Principal CIT at Gurgaon did not have the power to cancel the registration of the assessee trust under S. 12AB(4) on the basis of the order under S. 127. Principal CIT has initiated action under s. 12AB(4) on the basis of a proposal conveyed through a letter dt. 23rd Aug., 2022. Since the assessment by the said AO was completed in September, 2021, i.e., before the letter dt. 23rd Aug., 2022, there was no occasion for the concerned AO to invoke reference powers under second proviso to sub-s. (3) of s. 143. The 'reference' by the jurisdictional AO was to be made not to the Principal CIT or CIT, to whom this AO was subordinate but one authorised by the Board for the purpose of S. 12AB. Assumption of jurisdiction for cancellation of registration under S. 12AB(4) by virtue of aforesaid transfer of jurisdiction order under S. 127 is not valid. The Principal CIT has not mentioned as to which amongst the various specified violations mentioned in Explanation to sub-s. (4) of S. 12AB were attracted so as to show-cause the assessee. Accordingly the order passed by Principal CIT, Gurgaon, without jurisdiction in the context of territorial powers apart from the fact that it is not in accordance with law, hence quashed.

S. 12AB: Procedure for fresh registration-Company registered under Section 8 of the Companies Act, 2013-Withdrawn application under wrong advice-CIT(E) is justified in rejecting request for restoration of application under section 12AB of the Act [S. 12A, 12AB, Companies Act, 2013, S. 8] 314

The assessee withdrawn the application of registration under section 12AB of the Act for pursuing the Registration under Rajasthan Public Trust Act. The assessee came to know that State Registration is not required, if the trust is registered under the Companies Act. The assessee moved an application for restoration which was rejected y the CIT(E). On appeal the Tribunal also affirmed the order of the CIT(E) on the ground that the Revenue has not taken any advantages of the ignorance of the assessee. Appeal of assessee is dismissed.

S. 12AB: Procedure for fresh registration-Cancellation of registration-Order of cancellation of registration is quashed-Document Identification Number-Order in CIT v. Brandix Mauritius Holdings Ltd (2024)158 taxmann. com 247 (SC) is suspended till issue decided by Supreme Court. [S. 12A, 12AA, 12AB(4)] 315

Held that the circular issued by the Central Board of Direct Taxes is binding on the authorities and the Commissioner (E) being an authority under the Central Board of Direct Taxes, his order passed without a document identification number, was non est and liable to be quashed, in view of Circular No. 19 of 2019, dated August 14, 2019(2019) 416 ITR 140 (St) issued by the Central Board of Direct Taxes. However, as the issue was stayed by the Supreme Court in the case of CIT v. Brandix Mauritius Holdings Ltd. (2024)158 taxmann.com 247 (SC), the Tribunal's quashing of the order of the Commissioner (E) would be suspended till the issue was decided by the Supreme Court. On merit all the issues on the basis of which, the Commissioner (E) had cancelled the assessee's registration had already been settled by various appellate authorities on earlier occasions and the issues, having reached finality, could not be used for cancelling the assessee's registration. Therefore, the order under section 12AB(4) of the Commissioner (E) cancelling the assessee's registration is quashed on the merits.

Allowing the appeal, the Tribunal held that the provisions of section 13 of the Act can be invoked only at the time of assessment while considering the applicability of sections 11 and 12 with respect to the assessee's set of facts and not at the time of grant of registration under section 12A of the Act. The matter is restored to the Commissioner (E) for de novo consideration.

Assessee filed an application seeking registration under section 12AB-Commissioner (E) held that the assessee had failed to annex required documents as contemplated under rule 17A(2)(k). In absence of compliance from assessee, Commissioner (E) rejected grant of regular registration and cancelled provisional registration granted to assessee under section 12AB read with section 12A(1)(ac)(vi). On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee was accorded only ten days to cure defects and explain discrepancies. Accordingly the matter remanded to the file of CIT(E) for de-novo consideration.

Assessee-trust filed an application for registration under section 12AB declaring its aims and objectives primarily related to educational, social, and economic welfare activities. Commissioner (E) rejected registration application on ground that objects of trust were confined to a particular community, thus, attracting provisions of section 13(1)(b). On appeal the Tribunal held that registration under section 12AB is merely a recognition of charitable status of trust and that section 13(1)(b) is not relevant at stage of registration under section 12AB but rather comes into play at time of assessment when determining exemption under section 11 depending on actual income and activities of trust. Accordingly the CIT(E) erred in rejecting application for registration under section 12AB. (AY. 2022-23)

Assessee is a charitable trust established with objects of construction and maintenance of crematorium for monks and Saints, to maintain and manage temple, gurumandir, upashraya, construction of canteen, guest house etc.. It filed an application for registration under section 12AB. Commissioner (E) rejected the application on ground that objects of trust were for benefit of particular religion, community and that assessee had failed to substantiate charitable nature of trust as well as genuineness of its activities. On appeal the Tribunal held that the objects of assessee were for general public benefit and were not restricted to particular persons or community or caste. Facilities provided by assessee were intended to serve needs of attendees of various activities without any discrimination based on caste, colour, or creed. It is open for benefit for all sections of society and general public. Bhojansala is only for providing food to poor and needy persons of general public without any discrimination and it was open only for poor and needy persons to provide them food. Moreover, construction of a crematorium and maintenance thereof was for objects of trust, which was not for particular caste, or community. CIT(E) is directed to grant the registration.

Assessee-trust is in existence since 1946. It applied for registration under section 12AB. Commissioner (E) rejected application for registration on ground that objects of assessee-trust were restricted to benefit of a particular religious community or caste and, therefore, provisions of section 13(1)(b) would be applicable and it would not be eligible for exemption under section 11. Tribunal held that since assessee-trust is in existence prior to Income-tax Act came into force, provisions of section 13(1)(b) would not be applicable to it, even if it is created only for a particular community. *CIT v. The assessee trust was formed on 26-12-2012. It filed an application for registration under section 12AB on 15-6-2022. CIT(E) rejected the application under S,12AB on ground of non-registration with the Rajasthan Public Trust Act, genuineness of activities could not be ascertained due to non-compliance and in completed Form 10AB filed by the assessee. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had not followed provisions of Rajasthan Public Trust Act, as it was applicable to it, assessee would not be eligible for registration under section 12AB of the Act. Assessee is a charitable trust, filed application for registration in Form No. 10A under section 12A(1)(ac)(ii) and consequently, Form No. 10AC was issued granting provisional registration under section 12A(1)(ac)(vi). Subsequently, six months prior to expiry of provisional registration, assessee filed Form No. 10AB seeking registration under section 12A(1)(ac)(ii). Commissioner (E) rejected assessee's application treating it as infructuous and non-maintainable on ground that assessee ought to have applied under section 12A(1)(ac)(iii) instead of section 12A(1)(ac)(ii). On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had simpliciter made a technical mistake in applying under section 12A(1)(ac)(ii) instead of section 12A(1)(ac)(iii) and even now assessee had filed fresh Form No. 10AB seeking registration under section 12A(1)(ac)(iii), order of Commissioner (E) is to be set aside and matter is remanded back to his file for fresh adjudication. Assessee-trust filed application under section 12AB. Commissioner (E) issued notice requesting assessee to furnish detailed note on activities carried out by trust, as well as certain details/documents mentioned therein. As there was no response to notice, three hearing opportunities were given to assessee. However, assessee failed to file income tax returns and audit report for previous three years. Consequently, application of assessee was rejected. On appeal before the Tribunal it was contended that since it was granted provisional registration under section 12AA, final registration under section 12AB could not have been denied. Tribunal restored the matter to the file of CIT(E) with a direction upon him to provide further opportunity of being heard to assessee and consider documents, evidences which assessee would file as per notice issued by Commissioner(E).

Assessee-trusts is registered under section 12AA/12A. During course of search proceedings, Principal Commissioner cancelled registration granted to assessees under section 12AA/12AB with effect from previous assessment year 2017-18 and that of subsequent years as per provisions of section 12AB(4)(ii). On appeal the Tribunal held that in income-tax matters, law to be applied is law in force in assessment year unless otherwise stated or implied. Therefore, without a specific mention of amended provisions to operate retrospectively, no cancellation for earlier years could be made. Accordingly, invoking of provisions of section 12AB(4)(ii) which had been introduced by Finance Act, 2022 with effect from 1-4-2022 for cancellation of registration with retrospective effect from relevant assessment year 2018-19, is bad in law as it was not explicitly provided in amended provisions to operate retrospectively. S. 12AB: Procedure for fresh registration-Name mismatch-Translating name from Gujarati to English-Objects-Not any particular community-Matter remanded with the direction to examine the issue fresh. [S. 12A, 13] 326

Assessee a charitable trust, applied for regular registration under section 12AB after receiving provisional registration. However, said application was rejected by Commissioner (E) due to a name mismatch between official documents-Assessee clarified that their official name in Gujarati, Parul University Bhutpurva Vidhyarthi Mandal was translated to Parul University Alumni Association in English, preserving trust's legal status. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee has provided supporting documents to confirm accuracy of translation. Since the assessee had provided detailed explanation in support of alleged name mismatch, in such circumstances, rejecting trust's application based solely on this discrepancy is unwarranted. Accordingly, Commissioner (E) is directed to examine this issue afresh after taking on record detailed submissions filed by assessee. As regards the object of assessee-trust showed that it did not benefit a particular community and moreover, consideration of community benefit should occur during grant of exemption under section 11, and not during registration under section 12AA, therefore, is remanded to Commissioner (E) to examine if trust genuinely carried out activities eligible for registration under section 12AA/12AB.

Assessee-trust filed an application for registration under section 12AB. Commissioner (E) held that trust is religious-cum-charitable trust and its objects were in nature of charitable but same were restricted to benefit of a particular religious community or caste 'sunni muslims' and, thus, assessee would not be eligible for exemption under section 11 by virtue of section 13(1)(b). On appeal the Tribunal held that all objects of trust were not restricted to particular religious community or caste sunni muslims. Therefore, matter is remanded back to file of Commissioner (E) to reconsider application of assessee regarding registration under section 12AB.

Assessee-trust filed application for registration of trust under section 12AB. Commissioner (E) denied same observing that various objects which were otherwise charitable in nature, were for benefit of a particular religious community i. e. Muslims only. On appeal the Tribunal held provisions of section 13 can be invoked by Assessing Officer while framing assessment and not by Commissioner while considering application for registration under section 12A/12AB. [S. 12A(1)(ac)(iii), 80G]

Assessee-trust applied for final registration under section 12A(1)(ac)(iii) after being provisionally registered under section 12AB. CIT(E) rejected application as premature, citing existing provisional registration valid until A. Y. 2026-27. On appeal the Tribunal held that as per section 12A(1)(ac)(iii) an application for final registration has to be made at earliest possible event i.e. either within six months of commencement of activities or at least six months prior to expiry of provisional registration and aforesaid provision does not mean that there is any bar on applicant to move an application before period of six months from expiry of provisional registration. Accordingly the order of CIT(E) is set aside and matter was to be restored to CIT(E) to consider application of assessee for final registration and grant same if same was otherwise so admissible. The Tribunal also held that where assessee-trust had been granted provisional approval under section 80G(5)(iv), application for final approval could not be rejected on ground that institution had already commenced its activities even prior to grant of provisional registration. CIT(E) is directed to decide application of assessee for final approval as expeditiously as possible but not later than two months from receipt of this order. (AY. 2026-27)

Assessee-trust is already registered under section 12AA. It due to amendment in Income-tax Act, i. e., insertion of clause (ac) to section 12A(1) with effect from 1-4-2021 filed an application in Form No. 10A well within due date for fresh registration under section 12AB. Commissioner (E) granted registration in Form No. 10AC only from assessment year 2022-23 instead of from assessment year 2021-22 for reason that CPC processed return filed by assessee, wherein CPC had noted that new registration details were not available in return and denied benefit under section 11 to assessee. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee was not able to file details of registration along with return for reason that no fresh registration was available with it as per amended law, the Commissioner (E) by following observations of CPC could not have denied registration to assessee from assessment year 2021-22. Accordingly the assessee is entitled for grant of registration from assessment year 2021-22.

S. 12AB: Procedure for fresh registration-Charitable or religious trust-Objects of assessee-trust were primarily charitable rather than favouring any specific religious community, CIT(E) was not justified in denying registration under section 12A, by invoking section 13(1)(b) as said provisions would be attracted only at time of assessment and not at time of grant of registration. [S. 11, 12A, 13(1)(b)] 331
Assessee-trust applied for registration under section 12AB. Commissioner (E) denied registration, on ground that trust's objectives primarily benefitted a specific religious community, Muslims. By invoking section 13(1)(b), Commissioner denied registration under section 12A. Tribunal held that provisions of section 13(1)(b) would apply only at time of grant of exemption under section 11, and not at time of grant of registration under section 12A. Since majority of objects of assessee-trust was found to be not catering to a particular community and there was no finding of assessee actually catering for benefit of a particular community, there was no case for invoking section 13(1) (b). Therefore, denial of registration was to be overturned, and Commissioner (E) was to be directed to grant registration under section 12A to assessee-trust. (AY. 2022-23)

Assessee, an educational society, had applied for registration under section 12AA of the Act. CIT (E) rejected registration application of assessee on ground that assessee-society favoured some students through fee concession etc. which was held as against stated objects of society. On appeal, Tribunal had set aside matter back to Commissioner (E) for one more opportunity to assessee for substantiating its claim. - Meanwhile, assessee in view of amended provisions of registration under section 12AB applied before Commissioner (E) invoking section 12A(1)(ac)(v). Commissioner (E) rejected application of assessee observing that no change or modification in objects of society was made. Thereafter, in compliance of order of Tribunal, Commissioner (E) vide his order dated 27-2-2023 allowed registration under section 12AA for period from assessment years 2017-18 to 2021-22 subject to certain conditions. Tribunal held that in view of registration under section 12AA granted post facto, since assessee-society had become eligible for applying for registration under section 12AB by making application under section 12A(1)(ac)(i), matter is restored to Commissioner (E) for deciding afresh.

Amrut Antimdham Charitable Trust v. CIT (E) (2024) 204 ITD 625 (Ahd) (Trib)

S. 13 : Denial of exemption-Trust or institution-Investment restrictions-Purchase of luxury vehicle-Registered in name of managing trustee-Not able to establish that vehicle was utilized for purpose of charitable activities-Exemption under sections 11 and 12 is denied on value of vehicle purchased [S. 11, 12, 13(1)(c)] 336

Assessee-trust was conducting its activities in carrying out charitable activities, i. e., education, relief to poor, etc.. During year, assessee purchased a luxury vehicle by utilizing funds of assessee-trust and same was registered in name of managing trustee. Assessing Officer denied exemption under sections 11 and 12 to extent of value of that vehicle on ground that objects of assessee trust were carrying out of charitable activities and fund collected for this charitable purposes was utilized for enjoyment of trustees by means of purchase of said vehicle in name of managing trustee which was a clear violation under section 13(1)(c). CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Assessee contended that car was purchased in name of managing trustee for simple reason that it gave relief by way of lower road/life tax and insurance charges. Tribunal held the assessee could not prove as to what use this asset was put to by trust in work of trust and for purposes for which trust had been set up. Since assessee was not able to establish that said vehicle is utilized for purpose of charitable activities, the order of lower authorities denying the exemption under sections 11 and 12 is affirmed. Sri Karpaga Vinayagar Educational and Charitable Trust v. ITO (2024) 208 ITD 333 (Chennai) (Trib.)

S. 13 : Denial of exemption-Trust or institution-Investment restrictions-Payment to specified person-Payment of salaries-Much higher educational qualification or they were having much experience in service-Exemption is allowed-Payment of rent-Market rental report prepared by a Government approved registered Valuer-Provisions under section 13(3)(c), 13(2)(c) read with section 13(2)(g) were not attracted. [S. 11, 12A, 13(2)(c), 13(3), 13(2(g)] 337

Assessing Officer held that the assessee had made large payment of salaries to certain specified persons under section 13(3) who were in occupation with educational institutes run by trust which were not justifiable as compared to payments made to other persons who had rendered same services. Assessing Officer by invoking provisions under section 13(3)(c), 13(2)(c) read with section 13(2)(g) rejected claim of exemption under section 11. CIT(A) allowed the claim. On appeal the Tribunal held that the persons were either having much higher educational qualification than other staff members or they were having much more experience in service, as compared to other staff members having similar educational qualification. On facts, salaries paid by assessee was not found to be excessive of what be reasonably paid to specified persons under section 13(3) and, thus, provisions under section 13(3)(c), 13(2)(c) read with section 13(2)(g) were not attracted. Exemption is allowed. To justify payment of rent paid, assessee had furnished Market Rental Report prepared by a Government Approved Registered Valuer who computed market rent of certain amount. However, Assessing Officer merely on ad hoc basis considered a small amount as monthly rent and disallowed balance rental payments made by assessee. On appeal the Tribunal held that rent was not found to be excessive of what be reasonably paid to specified persons under section 13(3) and therefore, provisions under section 13(3)(c), 13(2)(c) read with section 13(2)(g) were not attracted. (AY. 2017-18)

338 S. 13: Denial of exemption-Trust or institution-Investment restrictions-The transaction for purchase of land was a genuine and commercial transaction therefore, the provisions outlined in section 13(2)(a) do not apply to it. [S. 11, 12A, 13(1)(c), 13(2)(a)]
The appellant society is a charitable institution registered u/s 12A of the Income Tax Act, 1961 (the Act), engaged in the promotion of education. It claimed exemption u/s 11 of the Act for the surplus of income over expenditure for the assessment year. The Assessing Officer (AO) denied the exemption on the ground that the appellant society had violated the provisions of section 13(1)(c) and 13(2)(a) of the Act by diverting funds to a specified person, who is the son of the founder and the managing trustee of the society. The AO also added notional interest on the advance paid by the society to the individual in question, for the purchase of land, which remained in his name for more than 10 years. The Commissioner of Income Tax (Appeals) (CIT(A)) confirmed the additions made by the AO. The appellant society challenged the order of the CIT(A) before the Tribunal.
The Tribunal allowed the appeal of the appellant society and deleted the additions made by the AO and confirmed by the CIT(A). The Tribunal held that:
The advance paid by the appellant society to the individual for the purchase of land was a genuine and commercial transaction and not a diversion of funds to a specified person. The transaction was accepted by the department in the earlier and subsequent years and no adverse inference was drawn. The transaction was also examined and approved by the CIT(E) who dropped the proceedings for withdrawal of registration u/s 12AA of the Act. The provisions of section 13(1)(c) and 13(2)(a) of the Act were not applicable to the transaction as it was not a case of money lent to a specified person. The appellant society was entitled to the exemption u/s 11 of the Act for the surplus of income over expenditure.
The addition of notional interest on the advance paid by the appellant society to the individual for the purchase of land was not justified as there was no income accrued or received by the society. The interest income on notional basis cannot be subjected to tax as per the settled law. The provisions of section 13(1)(d) of the Act were not applicable to the transaction as it was not a case of investment in the name of a specified person. The appellant society had notorized the agreement to sale and recorded the land in its balance sheet as an asset. (AY. 2016-17)

Assessee, a political party, claimed exemption under section 13A. Assessing Officer disallowed assessee's claim for exemption under section 13A and raised demand. During pendency of matter, several demands were made during month of March, 2024, therefore, assessee sought for an urgent hearing of application. Revenue submitted that issues which arose in these appeals were yet to be adjudicated upon but having regard to impending elections, revenue did not wish to precipitate matter inasmuch as no coercive steps shall be taken with regard to total demand of Rs. 3,500 crores approximately. Revenue also submitted that a date may be notified for hearing these appeals in second week of July, 2024 and till then, assessee herein could have no apprehension regarding any coercive step being taken with regard to aforesaid demand. In view of submission by way of a concession made by revenue, no coercive action of any nature shall be taken against assessee till next date of hearing on 24-7-2024. (AY. 2018-19)

The petitioners have instituted proceedings under Art. 32 of the Constitution challenging the constitutional validity of the Electoral Bond Scheme, which introduced anonymous financial contributions to political parties. The petitioners have also challenged the provisions of the Finance Act, 2017 which among other things, amended the provisions of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, (S. 135 of the Finance Act, 2017 "RBI Act"), the Representation of the People Act, 1951 (S. 137 of the Finance Act, 2017 ; "RPA") the IT Act, 1961 (S. 11 of the Finance Act, 2017; IT Act") and the Companies Act, 2013)(S. 154 of the Finance Act, 2017 ; "Companies Act"). Court held that, Electoral Bond Scheme does not fulfil the least restrictive means test. The Electoral Bond Scheme is not the only means for curbing black money in electoral finance. There are other alternatives which substantially fulfil the purpose and impact the right to information minimally when compared to the impact of electoral bonds on the right to information. Financial contributions to political parties are usually made for two reasons. First they may constitute an expression of support to the political party and second, the contribution may be based on a quid pro quo. The law as it currently stands permits contributions to political parties by both corporations and individuals. The huge political contributions made by corporations and companies should not be allowed to conceal the reason for financial contributions made by another section of the population: a student, a daily wage worker, an artist, or a teacher. When the law permits political contributions and such contributions could be made as an expression of political support which would indicate the political affiliation of a person, it is the duty of the Constitution to protect them. Not all political contributions are made with the intent of attempting to alter public policy. Contributions are also made to political parties which are not substantially represented in the legislatures. Contributions to such political parties are made purely with the intent of expressing support. At this juncture, the close association of money and politics needs to be recounted. Money is not only essential for electoral outcomes and for influencing policies. It is also necessary for true democratic participation. It is necessary for enhancing the number of political parties and candidates contesting the elections which would in-turn impact the demographics of representatives in the assembly. It is true that contributions made as quid pro quo transactions are not an expression of political support. However, to not grant the umbrella of informational privacy to political contributions only because a portion of the contributions is made for other reasons would be impermissible. The Constitution does not turn a blind eye merely because of the possibilities of misuse. Accordingly the Court held that Electoral Bond Scheme, the proviso to section 29C(1) of the Representation of the People Act, 19951 (as amended by S. 137 of the Finance Act, 2017, S. 182 (3) of the Companies Act (as amended by S. 154 of the Finance Act, 2017) and S. 13A(b) of the IT Act (as amended by S. 11 of the Finance Act, 2017) are violative of Art. 19(1)(a) and unconstitutional ; deletion of the proviso to S. 182(1) of the Companies Act permitting unlimited corporate contributions to political parties is arbitrary and violative of Art. 14. *Association for Democratic Reforms v. [Art. 19(1)(g)]

Electoral Bond Scheme was declared unconstitutional by Supreme Court on ground that non-disclosure of information regarding funding of political parties was violative of right to information of citizens under article 19(1)(a) of Constitution. To give full effect to said judgment, State Bank of India (SBI), which was authorized Bank to deal with Electoral Bonds under Electoral Bond Scheme, was directed to submit details of Electoral Bonds purchased by contributors and redeemed by political parties between 12-4-2019 (date on which an interim order was passed by Supreme Court directing Election Commission of India to collect details of contributions) till 15-2-2024 (date of said judgment). SBI filed a miscellaneous application seeking extension of time until 30-6-2024 for complying with said directions on ground that process of 'decoding Electoral Bonds and matching donor to donations' was a complex and time-consuming exercise. Since details of Electoral Bonds which had been purchased and which had been directed to be disclosed were readily available, SBI was not justified in seeking extension of time. Accordingly the miscellaneous Application filed by SBI seeking an extension of time for disclosure of details of purchase and redemption of Electoral Bonds until 30-6-2024 is dismissed and SBI is directed to disclose details by close of business hours on 12-3-2024.

Assessee claimed deduction on interest paid on borrowed capitals for investing in shares of his two companies. Assessing Officer disallowed interest, by holding that purpose of investment was to earn income in form of dividend from two companies and same being not taxable, therefore, deductions were not permissible for expenses related to income not forming part of total income under Act. CIT(A) and Tribunal affirmed the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that since dividend income from two companies was not taxable, in that scenario expenditure incurred on interest paid on funds borrowed in respect of investment in shares of two operating companies was hit by section 14A inasmuch as dividend received on such shares did not form part of total income. Therefore, interest paid on borrowings is not allowable as deduction. Followed Maxopp Investment Ltd v. CIT (2018) 254 Taxman 325 / 402 ITR 640 (SC). High Court affirmed the order of Tribunal. S. 14A : Disallowance of expenditure-Exempt income-Interest-No exempt income –Income of an assessee has both taxable and non-taxable elements, it would be principle of apportionment of expenditure relating to non-taxable income which would have to be identified for purpose of making disallowance under section 14A-No disallowance can me made-Explanation in S. 14A came to be inserted by virtue of the 2022 Act, w. e. f. 1st April, 2022 will apply in relation to the asst. years. 2022-23 and subsequent assessment years. [S. 260A, R. 8D] 348

Held that on a plain textual reading of S. 14A, it is found that the provision mandates that no deduction would be allowed in respect of expenditure that may be incurred for the purposes of earning income which would ultimately not form part of total income under the Act. The expenditure which is thus identified is that which may have been expended for the purposes of earning income which is otherwise not liable to be included in total income and is thus viewed as exempt. The expenditure which is spoken of is thus in respect of income which is specified in S. 10 and which stands placed in Chapter III. S. 14A, on the other hand, is placed in Chapter IV and which contains various provisions relating to computation of total income. Both sub-ss. (1) and (2) of s. 14A, use the expression "income which does not form part of the total income" in conjunction with the expenditure that may be incurred by an assessee in relation thereto. The two expressions noted above are coupled together by the phrase "in relation to". Explanation in S. 14A came to be inserted by virtue of the 2022 Act, w. e. f. 1st April, 2022 will apply in relation to the asst. years. 2022-23 and subsequent assessment years. Income of an assessee has both taxable and non-taxable elements, it would be principle of apportionment of expenditure relating to non-taxable income which would have to be identified for purpose of making disallowance under section 14A.

S. 14A : Disallowance of expenditure-Exempt income-No reasons recorded-Order of Tribunal is affirmed. [R. 8D] 356
Held that the Assessing Officer made disallowances under section 14A read with rule 8D, but there was no reason recorded by him, as to why he was not satisfied with the claim made by the assessees. Further, there was no examination by the Assessing Officer about the nature of investment by the assessees in their subsidiary companies and expenditure incurred by them. The Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal had pointed out certain errors committed by the Assessing Officer, accepted the contentions raised by the assessees and directed the Assessing Officer to modify the disallowances under section 14A. Such course adopted by the appellate authorities was justified. (AY. 2003-04 to 2014-15)

S. 14A : Disallowance of expenditure-Exempt income-Depreciation-Rule of consistency followed-Appeal of Revenue is dismissed. [S. 32, R. 8D] 357
On appeal by revenue, the Delhi High Court considered four issues: A. whether the disallowance calculated under rule 8D should only take into account investments made by the assessee in order to earn exempt income, B. whether the addition made by the Assessing Officer was to be deleted in cases where the Assessing Officer had disallowed a portion of an expense because it was unrelated to the assessee's business but failed to specify which expenses were not incurred for that purpose. C. Whether computer software that is essential to the operation of hardware can be depreciated at a rate of sixty percent and D) Is the money spent developing a website considered a revenue expenditure. The Hon'ble Delhi High Court observed that with respect to question 'A', the issue is covered by Cargo Motors (P.) Ltd. v. Dy. CIT [2023] 291 Taxman 208/453 ITR 554 (Delhi) wherein the coordinate bench has ruled that the disallowance calculated under Rule 8D of 1962 Rules should factor in only investments made by an assessee to earn exempt income. With respect to the second issue, the same was covered by the decision of a coordinate bench in same as also covered by Pr. CIT v. Times Internet Ltd. [2023] 156 taxmann.com 577 (Delhi)(HC). With respect to question 'C' and 'D', the same were covered by decisions of the CIT(A) taken in previous assessment years, and the disallowance was deleted. Hence, it was held that rule of consistency should apply and accordingly appeal of Revenue is dismissed. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 14A : Disallowance of expenditure-Exempt income-Apportionment of expenses-Demat charges-Interest expenses-Disallowance under R. 8D(2)(iii) is to be restricted to 0. 5 per cent of the average value of investment which yielded exempt income in terms of statutory formula-The suo motu disallowance, no basis has been given by the assessee for making such ad hoc disallowance-AO shall be guided by the statutory formula. [R. 8D(2)(ii)] 361

Held that the Demat charges which are in the nature of direct expenses, same are disallowable under r. 8D(2)(i). As regards interest disallowance is concerned since assessee's own funds (share capital plus reserves) exceed the investment which yielded dividend income, disallowance of interest expenditure under r. 8D(2)(ii) is not warranted. The Commissioner (Appeals) had erred in deleting the disallowance. The Tribunal also held the Commissioner (Appeals) was right in holding that the adjustment of disallowance under section 14A of the Act read with rule 8D of the Rules was not required to be made in the book profits for minimum alternate tax liability by resorting to section 115JB of the Act. The employees' associations challenged before the High Courts the constitutional validity of Rule 3(7)(i), which prescribed valuation of perquisite on interest-free or concessional loans given by employers by adopting the rate of interest charged by the State Bank of India for similar loans. The High Courts upheld the rule, holding that it provided a definite method of valuation and did not treat unequals as equals, since the effect differed across employees based on their income levels and interest rates. On appeal, the Supreme Court held that under section 17(2)(viii), CBDT validly framed Rule 3(7)(i), which treats interest-free or concessional loans as 'fringe benefit'/'perquisite' and prescribes the method of valuation by adopting SBI's benchmark rate. Such prescription is neither excessive delegation nor arbitrary under Article 14. The Court clarified that 'perquisite' is understood in common parlance as a benefit incidental to employment and in addition to salary, and interest-free/concessional loans clearly fall within that scope. Accordingly, Rule 3(7)(i) was upheld as intra vires, and the appeals were dismissed affirming the decisions of the Madras and Madhya Pradesh High Courts.

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the AO is not justified in holding that although the assessee had been allotted shares at a concessional rate of Rs. 15 per share, the market price as quoted at the relevant time stood at Rs. 49. 45 and therefore the difference between the two figures, namely Rs. 34. 45 per share, is liable to be taxed as perquisite in terms of s. 17(2)(iiia); in light of the restriction with respect to marketability and tradability of the stock in question, the FMV could not have been recognized to exceed the face value of the shares

S. 17(2) : Salary-Perquisite-Stock options were merely held by assessee and same had not been exercised till date, same would not constitute income chargeable to tax in hands of assessee as none of contingencies specified in section 17(2)(vi) had occurred-Payment in question was not linked to employment, rather it was a onetime voluntary payment to all option holders of ESOP, compensation would not tantamount to perquisite under section 17(2)(vi) of the Act. [S. 17(2)(vi), 197, Art. 226] 385

Assessee, an ex-employee of a company, FIPL which was wholly owned subsidiary of Flipkart (FPS), was granted certain stock options by FPS under Employee Stock Option Plan (ESOP)). Thereafter, FPS announced disinvestment of its wholly owned subsidiary. Pursuant to said disinvestment value of stock options fell. Assessee received compensation towards loss in value of options. Assessee filed an application under section 197 seeking 'Nil' deduction at source certificate on deduction of TDS on said compensation by FPS. Assessing Officer rejected said application on ground that amount received was linked to ESOPs and would be in nature of perquisite under section 17(2)(vi). The Assessing Officer rejected the application under section 197 of the Act. On writ allowing the petition the court held that the assessee had not exercised his vested right with respect to stock option under ESOP. Since stock options were merely held by assessee and same had not been exercised till date, same would not constitute income chargeable to tax in hands of assessee as none of contingencies specified in section 17(2)(vi) had occurred. On facts since payment in question was not linked to employment, rather it was a onetime voluntary payment to all option holders of ESOP, compensation would not tantamount to perquisite under section 17(2)(vi) of the Act. Assessee is engaged in business of hiring and leasing of properties. It declared an income from a self-owned property as income from house property. Assessing Officer assessed the entire rental income as income from business. CIT(A) affirmed the view of the AO. On appeal Tribunal held that in respect of properties owned by the assessee, the assessee has correctly has offered the income as income from house property. On appeal by the Revenue the court held that even if assessee was to be in business of letting or subletting of properties and deriving income therefrom, there was no embargo on assessee from accounting income received by it, from property owned by assessee as Income from house property and at same time, categorizing rental income from other properties not of assessee's ownership under the head Income from business. Court applied the Rule of constancy and affirmed the order of the Tribunal. (AY. 2008-09, 2009-10, 2010-11)

[S. 23(4), 23(5)]
Assessee is a firm engaged in construction activities as a promoter and builder. The assessee is holding closing stock of 9 units/flats at end of assessment year and out of these 9 flats, rental income was shown for 1 flat only. The Assessing Officer did not accept reply of assessee and determined deemed rental income as per provisions of section 22 read with section 23(4) and added income of assessee. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that it is only from assessment year 2018-19 that a new section 23(5) was inserted which permits Assessing Officer to calculate deemed rental income of property held as stock-in-trade even if such property was not let during whole or any part of previous year. Tribunal held that when operation of sub-section (5)of section 23 is not made retrospective, annual value/deemed rental income of property held as stock in trade can be calculated and shall be chargeable to income tax only with effect from assessment year 2018-19 and not prior to that. S. 22 : Income from house property-Business of all kinds of engineering products including financing, manufacturing, selling-Rental income assessable as income from house property and not as business income. [S. 28(i), 263] 391

Assessment of assessee was completed and Assessing Officer accepted stand of assessee that rental income was to be assessed as a house property Commissioner passed the revision order adjudicate the issue whether the rental income be assessed as business income. The AO assessed the income as income from business. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that main objective of the assessee-company is to carry on business of all kinds of engineering products including financing, manufacturing, selling or in any other form. Since assessee had not declared any income for providing additional facilities to occupiers of premises and those aspects had not been considered by Assessing Officer in impugned assessment order therefore, rental income declared by assessee deserved to be assessed as a house property income and not as a business income. Rule of consistency is followed. (AY. 2014-15)

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Tribunal held that insertion of section 23(5) by the Finance Act, 2017 with effect from April 1, 2018, it is clear that for the computation of annual value of property held as stock-in-trade certain moratorium period had been given. However, the newly inserted provisions in section 23(5) were to be applicable only with effect from assessment year 2018-19 and not for the year under consideration. S. 23 : Income from house property-Annual value-Higher rent and lower security deposit-Matter remanded to Assessing Officer to determine annual lettable value and after giving an opportunity to assessee. [S. 22] 394

Held, that for the assessment year 2007-08 the Tribunal had restored the matter to the Assessing Officer. The Commissioner (Appeals) followed that order but instead of restoring the matter to the Assessing Officer, deleted the addition. The Commissioner (Appeals) does not have any power to remand the matter to the file of the Assessing Officer. The Assessing Officer had compared the rent received from D and then made the addition. According to section 23 of the Income-tax Act, 1961, the annual value of let out property is to be determined on the basis of the sum for which the property is expected to be let out from year-to-year. Therefore, it had to be the market rate of the rent. As in the assessee's own case for earlier years the Tribunal had resorted the matter to the Assessing Officer to determine the annual lettable value, the matter was to be restored to the Assessing Officer for this year also, because he had compared the rent of the financial year 2010-11. Assessing Officer held that all premises were spacious and located in posh and active locality with reasonable annual rent values. Assessing Officer added deemed rent even though no actual rent was received. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. The assessee claimed interest as deduction on housing loan for let out property, supported by bank certificate. CIT(A) disallowed the claim incorrectly stating loan was for renewal of already rented property. Interest on housing loan for let-out property fully deductible under section 24 without maximum limit. S. 28(i):Business income-Capital or revenue-Capital asset-Relinquishment in settlement agreement-Receipt on Arbitral Award-Difference between lease and licence-Trading and service agreement-No rights conferred except running hotel-Termination of agreement as result of settlement or compromise of all claims, counter-claims and disputes-Receipt on Arbitral Award on termination of agreement-Revenue receipt and not capital receipt. [S. 2(14), 4, 45, 260A, Indian Easement Act, 1882 S. 52] 403

Allowing the appeal the Revenue the Court held that under the operating agreement the assessee was authorised to run and operate hotel with all the employees, staff including managerial staff of ELEL Hotels and Investments Ltd. No right, title or interest of any kind was created by ELEL in favour of the assessee in any of the assets or properties of Hotels and Investment Ltd to carry on the commercial activity of operating the hotel Hotel SeaRock, ELEL was to get 23 per cent. of the gross turnover as licence fees, subject to some variations as provided in the agreement. Considering the terms of the licence operating agreement in its entirety, it was a trading contract. Accordingly the the sum received by the assessee by way of arbitral award from ELEL for relinquishment of right to operate its hotel SeaRock under the operating licence as mentioned in clause 3(n)(iv) of the consent terms was in terms of a trading contract to settle all disputes, claims and counter claims, and was not the transfer of any capital asset. The amount was part of the arbitral award received by the assessee to finally adjust, compromise and settle all disputes, allegations, claims, counter claims and case pending in courts arising out of or relating to operating licence agreement to run the hotel SeaRock. Held that from Classical Economists distinction point of view also, the receipts on arbitral award from ELEL being not for transfer or loss of any capital asset but at best was in lieu of circulating capital introduced to operate the hotel SeaRock and was a revenue receipt which arose from the trading contract of operating licence agreement. The assessee had no fixed capital investment to run the hotel SeaRock under the operating licence agreement and according to the agreement, the assessee had introduced some circulating capital to run it. Mere use of the word "relinquishment" in the settlement agreement and in the consent terms, without disclosing any rights in any capital asset or relinquishment of any rights in any capital assets, was not decisive rather established that the receipt was not capital receipt. Therefore, the receipt is revenue in nature consequently forming part of assessee's income. Order of Tribunal is set aside. (AY. 2006-07)

S. 28(i) : Business income-Income from house property-Main object of company acquiring and holding property-Business of leasing and renting of property-Lease or rental income to be taxed as business income. [S. 22] 404

Held that according to the objects and memorandum of association of the assessees, HRP and CMDP, they were capable of being engaged in the business of land developing and were also builders, but the test was as to the actual business carried on by the assessees. According to the Department the buildings were handed over to the company in a finished mode and the company had also received advance for their buildings from the prospective purchasers, which the sale had not fructified by transfer of ownership

since the full consideration had not been rescinded, that the assessees had therefore let the building out for rent and that the rental income was not a business income under section 28 but income from house property under section 22. The Assessing Officer had found the specific object from the memorandum of association, that the assessees had held the buildings as stock-in-trade for more than 20 years. That though there were many objects in the memorandum of association, the Assessing Officer had found that the assessee HRP did not have any other business but lease of the properties and that no construction project had been carried out by it since its incorporation in the year 1975 nor it had made any sale since the financial year 2000-01. The presumption of the Assessing Officer that no prudent person would wait for more than 10 to 20 years even after payment of twice the cost of the building could not be countenanced. If the building had not been conveyed to the purchaser and had remained with the developer there was nothing wrong in the developer leasing out the premises. The absence of legal proceedings by the intending purchasers could have no impact on the tax levy of the assessee. The fact remained that the Assessing Officer had clearly found that but for the lease of properties the assessee was not engaged in any other business. That irrespective of whether they were held as stock-in-trade or fixed assets, it was admitted by the assessee CMDP and accepted by the Assessing Officer, that the lease of buildings was the only business carried on by it and it had been receiving rental income from these buildings. The Commissioner (Appeals) had rightly held that the income was from business and not income from house property, especially since the assessees had only the business of renting out buildings in the assessment years 2002-03 to 2007-08. The order of the Tribunal reversing his order and affirming the order of the Assessing Officer was therefore, set aside. (AY. 2002-03 to 2007-08)

Assessee is a partnership firm and acted as reseller of government paper lottery tickets. It credited certain sum under head prize money from unsold lottery tickets in profit and loss account and reflected net profit which was offered as business income. Assessing Officer held that winnings from lottery would be chargeable to tax as income from other sources and assessee is not entitled to claim any expenditure against same. CIT(A) allowed the claim. On appeal the Tribunal held that view of decision of Tribunal in assessee's own case in earlier year, prize winnings from unsold lottery tickets would be part of business income and assessee would be eligible to set-off its losses against this income. During course of survey under section 133A, assessee surrendered excess stock, cash and receivables, stating that same was to be taxed as business income. Assessing Officer treated said surrendered amount as unexplained investment under sections 69A and 69B and charged same to tax as per provisions of section 115BBE. CIT(A) affirmed the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that since during survey proceedings, assesse was confronted not only with discrepancies found but also with nature and source thereof and it had emerged that source of income of assessee was from its business operations, income surrendered by assessee during survey could not be brought to tax under deeming provisions of section 69A and 69B and same had been rightly offered to tax by assessee under head of business income. Accordingly deeming provisions cannot be applied to tax under section 115BBE of the Act. (AY. 2015-16, 2016-17 & 2019-20)

Assessee-company ran a hospital. In the course of survey loose sheets were found. The asessee filed the revised return and offered the alleged profits as business receipts.

Assessing Officer held that unaccounted receipts were an unaccounted income of assessee and added same to assessee's income by invoking provisions of section 68 and taxed same under section 115BBE. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had already disclosed unaccounted receipts offered during course of survey in revised return filed, there was no reason to add same again in assessee's income invoking provisions of section 68 and brought them to tax under section 115BBE. As unaccounted receipts were relating to business operations of assessee's hospital, they were taxable as business income under section 28; section 68 read with section 115BBE is not applicable. [S. 45, 54F]
Assessee along with seven co-owners had purchased a land in 2006. Assessee along with very same seven co-owners established a partnership firm. Thereafter, co-owners entered into a development agreement with their own partnership firm to develop said land and construct 18 bungalows. Assessee had shown long-term capital gain (LTCG) on sale of said land. Assessing Officer held that land was purchased for business purpose for developing a commercial project, therefore, he treated said profits arose on transfer of land as business income and also denied claim of exemption under section 54F made by assessee. CIT(A) up held the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee along with seven co-owners had purchased another parcel of land in 2014 and constituted another partnership firm with same set of co-owners and engaged in business of land development. This clearly established motive, intention and interest of assessee in doing real estate business. It was further noted that moment when assessee had entered into development agreement, value of land increased. Assessee was liable to file wealth tax return but assessee never filed wealth tax return. The said piece of land was treated by assessee as stock-in-trade and no question of capital gain arose in said set of facts. On facts, impugned order treating LTCG shown by assessee as business income and denying claim of deduction under section 54F to assessee is upheld. (AY. 2015-16)

Assessee is a partnership firm engaged in business of civil construction, sold a land to Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd for a sum of Rs. 1.20 crores through an unregistered agreement and received an advance of Rs. 10 lakhs. Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd further sold said land for consideration of Rs. 4.70 crores to Swami Vivekanand Institute of Neurology Neurosurgery & Spine and M/s Swami Mediservices Pvt Ltd. Sale consideration amount of Rs. 4.70 crores was received by assessee from Swami Vivekanand Institute of Neurology Neurosurgery & Spine and M/s Swami Mediservices Pvt Ltd. Assessee retained balance due of Rs. 1.10 crores from Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd and passed excess amount to Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd. Assessee offered to tax sale consideration of Rs 1.20 crores received from Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd as its business turnover. Assessing Officer held that Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd was not at all owner of assessee's land and assessee was trying to swindle amount of Rs. 3.50 crores as income of Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd and eventually trying to evade tax by presenting an unrealistic picture of financial accounting. Therefore, he made additions on account of entire sale consideration of Rs. 4.70 crores as business income of assessee. On appeal the CIT(A) deleted the addition of Rs. 3.50 crores made by the Assessing Officer. CIT(A) enhanced the income under section 251 for failure to charge the interest as per the terms of the agreement. Accordingly addition of an amount of Rs. 6.40 lakhs was made on account of notional interest. On cross appeal the Tribunal held that in view of law laid down in case of CIT v. Balbir Singh Maini (2017)86 taxmann.com 94 (SC) an unregistered agreement 'has no efficacy in eyes of law, therefore, Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd. could not be treated as owner of land on basis of impugned unregistered agreement, and accordingly, there was no transfer or sale of immovable property by Shri Govind Reality Pvt Ltd. to Swami Vivekanand Institute of Neurology Neurosurgery & Spine and M/s Swami Mediservices Pvt Ltd. Accordingly, addition made to income of assessee was justified. Tribunal deleted the enhancement made by the CIT(A). (AY. 2015-16)

S. 28(i) : Business income-Capital gains-Own capital-Share dealings-Assessable as business income. [S. 45] 413
Assessee-company traded in shares and had showed short term capital gain from some transactions. Assessing Officer held that purchase of shares is about 65 per cent of total income. Out of total assets, assessee also made investment in shares which was 76 per cent of total assets, therefore, Assessing Officer held that assessee is dealing in shares and treated income under head business income. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that one of objects of the assessee is to carry on the business as shares and stock brokers and to buy, sell and deal in all kind of shares, stocks, securities, bonds, debentures, units and such other instruments of all types. The claim of assessee that it is investing its own funds which were lying idle was not in itself sufficient to establish that trading in shares is done as investments to earn capital gain. Order of the AO is affirmed in taxing said income as business income. (AY. 2010-11)

S. 28(i) : Business loss-Penny stock-Share trading-Information from investigation wing-VAS Infrastructure Ltd (VASIL)-Not black listed by SEBI-Order of Tribunal allowing the loss is affirmed by High Court-Delay of 224 days-SLP of Revenue is dismissed on account of delay. [S. 10(38), 45, Art. 136] 414
On the basis of the information received from the Investigation Wing that the assessee made transaction with penny stock scrip VAS Infrastructure Ltd (VASIL) to launder money to grab long-term capital gain and claimed exemption under section 10(38). Scrip of the VAS were manipulated by the assessee to generate bogus losses. Additions were made to income of assessee on account of bogus loss incurred in penny stock. The Tribunal deleted the additions. On appeal to the High Court, the Revenue submitted the order of the Tribunal was ex-facie erroneous, illegal and perverse because Tribunal deleted the additions on account of disallowance of bogus loss in penny stock incurred, without appreciating that the transaction was pre-arranged as well as sham and was carried out through penny scrip company/paper Company. High Court held that the Tribunal held that the assessee was continuously dealing in share trading of various shares/scrips and said fact was not disputed. Further the Tribunal had observed that scrip of VAS was not black listed by SEBI at relevant point of time. Tribunal had also considered order passed by SEBI and nowhere in said order, scrip of VAS was blacklisted or was penny stock or sham and bogus scrips/shares. Tribunal had also observed that entire transaction of purchase and sale of scrips was through Stock Exchanges, through authorized brokers and payments made to brokers were reflected in bank account. Tribunal had therefore opined that merely on conjecture and surmises, Assessing Officer could not make disallowance. Court affirmed the order of the Tribunal. SLP of Revenue is dismissed on account of delay of 224 days in filing of SLP. (AY. 2012-13)

(Assessee is engaged in trading penny stocks, specifically shares of Alang Industrial Gases Ltd (AIGL) and Kappac Pharma Ltd (KPL). AO disallowed the loss. On appeal the CIT(A) and Tribunal allowed the loss on the ground that the assessee had no control over share prices and had genuinely incurred losses, particularly with AIGL shares where only a portion were sold, and rest were held into subsequent assessment year. Regarding shares of KPL, Tribunal reasoned that market rate being lower, justified business loss, even though shares were not sold. High Court affirmed the order of the Tribunal. (AY. 2015-16)

[S. 28(va), 45, 55]
Assessee-company had entered into an Agreement for Distribution, Manufacturing and Agency of products (ADMA 1997) with one BM Germany in 1997. In 2004 RDG had acquired BM group all over world and in same year RDG unilaterally terminated certain obligations under 1997 agreement, which was challenged by assessee in UK court and thereafter assessee and RDG entered into out of court settlement as per which assessee and RDG mutually agreed to terminate (ADMA 1997) and RDG paid compensation to assessee. Assessing Officer proceeded to hold that proceeds received by assessee-company from RDG on account of termination of agency and distribution of products in India fell under provisions of section 28(ii)(c) read with section 28(va)(a) and made addition thereof to business income of assessee. CIT(A) confirmed the addition. On appeal the Assessee submitted that since it had transferred entire business and its rights under agreement had been terminated, amount received in consideration thereof was assessable as capital gain. Tribunal held that the assessee-company by virtue of agreement got non-transferable, non-assignable license to manufacture, market, distribute and sell products for a satisfied commission as agent and entire intellectual property qua distribution and manufacturing of product would remain with BM and assessee would not be entitled for any such ownership or title to same and there was no loss of business. Further, neither capital structure of assessee had been affected nor it had affected trading structure of business of assessee rather after settlement agreement assessee's sales had enhanced. Therefore, compensation received by assessee from RDG in out of court settlement was a business income and not an income assessed to capital gains as claimed by the assessee and as such provisions contained under section 28(ii)(c) read with section 28(va)(a) were attracted. Order of Assessing Officer is affirmed. (AY. 2005-06)

[S. 2(24)(xviii), 4] 425

Held that sub-cl. (iiia) of s. 28 which explains profits on sale of a license granted under the Import (Control) Order, is not applicable in the facts and circumstances of the case. Further, sub-cl. (iiib) of s. 28 provides cash assistance (by whatever name called) received or receivable by any person against exports under any scheme of the Government of India. There was no cash assistance granted to the assessee in the present case, thus, it is not applicable. Further, sub-cl. Further, sub-cls. [S. 41(1)] 427

Held that the facts on record did not suggest that the sale price of the optionally convertible preference shares was artificially deflated as supported by an independent report of a merchant banker and later on, the same investment was sold at a lower price to a third party. There was no infirmity in the sale consideration of the optionally convertible preference shares. The Assessing Officer had mixed up both the transactions in arriving at the conclusion that the investment made by WEP in the optionally convertible preference shares issued by WEC was also sham even though it was an independent transaction. The Assessing Officer was not justified in disallowing the claims of both long-term and short-term capital loss. The order of the Commissioner (Appeals) deleting the disallowance is affirmed. (AY. 2017-18)

On appeal the Tribunal held that since agreement entered into by assessee with joint venture company was a negative covenant restricting assessee from carrying out its certain activities, which nevertheless was a loss of source of business to assessee, non compete fee received by assessee is in nature of capital receipt for year under consideration and it is not liable to tax. The assessee filed an application for rectification u/s 154, claiming that full set off of the unabsorbed depreciation had to be granted and the denial of that benefit to the assessee was illegal. The petition filed by the assessee was rejected with a finding that there was no ground for rectification. On writ, the assessee contended that a reading of S. 72 would indicate that where such loss in the form of depreciation was carried forward to the next year, the same could be set- off against income arising from heads other than 'profits or gains of business or profession. Dismissing the writ petition, the court held that the right u/s 32(2) is specifically made subject to the provisions of sections

72(2) and 72(3). It is clear from the reading of the provisions of S. 72 that even if the depreciation allowance u/s 32, which was carried forward in terms of sub-section (2) of S. 32, is deemed to be a business loss for the purposes of sections 71 and 72, it can be set off only against profits or gains of any business or profession and it cannot be set off against income from any other sources. Though the Petitioner took considerable efforts to establish that S. 72 is always subject to the provisions of S. 71 going by the express provisions in sub-section (2) of S. 32 permitting the carry forward of depreciation allowance subject to the provisions of S. 72, there is no merit in the said contention taken by the petitioner. Writ petition is dismissed. (AY. 2023-24)(SJ)

S. 32 : Depreciation - Hotel - Temporary closure - Block of assets - Put to use less than 180 days - Second proviso - Acquired in earlier years - Second and third proviso is not applicable - Depreciation is allowable. [S. 32(1), 260A] 439
The question before the High Court was whether depreciation allowed in respect of hotel assets used for the purpose of business can be reduced in any manner because of temporary closure of the hotel for part of the year and if the Tribunal is justified in restricting the allowance to 50%. Allowing the appeal, the High Court held that block of assets on which the depreciation has been claimed by the assessee are old and none of it were acquired during the previous year relevant to AY, therefore, the second and third proviso to S. 32 (1) shall apply. Appeal of the assessee is allowed. Followed, CIT v. Wallfort Shares & Stock Brokers (P)(Ltd (2010) 233 CTR 42/ 41DTR 233 (SC)/ (2010) 8 SCC 137. (AY. 1999-2000, 2000-01)

S. 32 : Depreciation - Carry forward and set-off of unabsorbed depreciation - Amendment of S. 32(2) by Finance Act, 2001 - Unabsorbed depreciation or part thereof not set off till AY 2002-03 - Carry forward and set-off permitted without limit. [S. 32(2) 260A] 440
Held, dismissing the appeal, that the Tribunal was justified in confirming the order of the CIT (Appeals) allowing carry forward and set-off of unabsorbed depreciation of the AY s 1996-97 to 1998-99 and the amount on account of increase in written-down value for the AY s 2004-05 and 2005-06, in the AY 2007-08, without any limitation of period. 441 S. 32 : Depreciation - Temporary erections - wooden structures - 100% Depreciation allowable.

Court held that the Tribunal was correct in deleting the disallowance of depreciation on temporary wooden structure at 100% in the form of wooden furniture, cabins and wiring which were temporary in nature, on the ground that the issue was covered in favour of the assessee by the order of the Tribunal for the AY 2007-08. The Department had not raised any ground in the appeal with regard to the allowance of depreciation on temporary wooden structures against such decision. Therefore, applying the principle of consistency, for the AYs 2013-14, 2014-15 and 2015-16, the assessee should have been allowed depreciation on the temporary wooden structures. 442 S. 32: Depreciation - Intangible Assets - Goodwill - Amalgamation - The order of the Tribunal allowing the depreciation claim of the assessee was upheld by the High Court. [S. 32(1)(ii)]

Digital Equipment Corporation, United States of America was taken over by the assessee for an amount of Rs. 83. 99 Crores and the details of net assets taken over and the particulars of liability, loans, etc. were furnished in the agreement. However, no particulars concerning depreciation claims on intangible assets of Rs. 9,07,25,000/-were furnished. The AO held that the assessee was not entitled to depreciation on intangible assets u/s 32(l)(ii) of the Act. However, the CIT (A) allowed the claim of the assessee by following the previous decision of the Delhi Bench of the Tribunal, which has been upheld by the High Court of Delhi in CIT v. Hindustan Coca-Cola Beverages (P.) Ltd. [2011]198 Taxman 104/331 ITR 192/ 238 CTR 1 (Delhi)(HC). The Tribunal upheld the order passed by the CIT (Appeals). On further appeal by Revenue, the High Court by following the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of SMIFS Securities Ltd. (328 ITR 302) upheld the order passed by the Tribunal and held that the AO himself had found that goodwill was calculated on which depreciation u/s. 32 of the Act was allowable. (AY. 2000-01)

443 S. 32 : Depreciation - Claimed in accordance with Appendix I - No substantial question of law. [ITR. 5(1), 5(1) (IA)]

The assessee claimed depreciation on the written down value which the AO disallowed on the ground that the assessee had not opted therefore in terms of the proviso to rule 5(1A) of the Income-tax Rules, 1962. The CIT (Appeals) upheld this. The Tribunal accepted the assessee's appeal on the question of permission to claim depreciation on written down value basis holding that no particular format or procedure had been laid down in the second proviso in relation to exercise of option by an assessee and that for the AY 1999-2000, the assessee had claimed depreciation in accordance with sub-rule (1) read with appendix I and this was in proper compliance with the requirements of the second proviso to rule 5(1A) of the Rules. High Court dismissed the appeal of the Revenue as no substantial question of law. (AY. 2000-01)

S. 32: Depreciation- Actual cost - Grant in aid received from Government - Grant-in-aid basis the scheme is directly attributable to the cost of plant and machinery and technical civil works- Grant-in-aid is therefore, required to be reduced from the value/ cost of the assets eligible for depreciation. [S. 32(1)(ii), 43(1), Expln 10.] 444
Tribunal held that the nature of grant-in-aid is in the form of financial assistance subject to maximum of Rs. 10 crores for setting up of cold chain value addition and preservation infrastructure so that India usher's into a new dawn. However the nature of such grant-in-aid is restricted to technical civil work and plant and machinery. Broadly the financial assistance i. e., grant-in-aid are for technical civil work and plant and machinery and nothing else in the broad scheme of Government of India, MFPI which was called "Scheme for Cold Chain Value Addition and Preservation Infrastructure". Grant-in-aid is therefore required to be reduced from the value/cost of the assets eligible for depreciation. (AY. 2014-15)

S. 32: Depreciation - Written down value - Non-receipt of insurance claim of amalgamating company - Mere claim - Claim actually allowed only to be considered - Depreciation is directed to be allowed on enhanced amount - State capital investment subsidy - Not required to be deducted from the WDV for computing the depreciation. [S. 43(6)(c), 43(1), Explanation 10.] 445
Held that the expression moneys payable should refer to the amount over which the assessee got a right to receive. When the assessee made insurance claim of Rs. 22.44 crores, it was merely a claim only and the assessee did not acquire any right to receive the same. Hence, the assessee was not right in reducing the amount of Rs. 22.44 crores from the WDV in AY 2001-02. The assessee should have reduced the moneys payable for destruction of asset as finally determined as payable by the insurance company. The insurance claim of Rs. 22.44 crores was rejected, but a claim of Rs. 8 crores was granted to the then parent company by the insurance company. Said amount of Rs. 8 crores would be the moneys payable for destruction of asset and the same is required to be reduced from the WDV in AY 2001-02. WDV of AY 2005-06 should be recomputed accordingly from AY 2001-02 onwards. Depreciation for AY 2005-06 should accordingly be allowed on the enhanced WDV. The net result is that the WDV of the block should be increased by Rs. 14.44 crores in AY 2001-02 and the WDV of AY 2005-06 should be arrived at accordingly. Tribunal also held that amount of State Capital investment subsidy received from the State Government under West Bengal Incentive Scheme, 2000 is not required to be deducted from the WDV for the purpose of computing depreciation. 446 S. 32 : Depreciation - User for business - Entitled to full depreciation on the aircraft for the whole year. [S. 32 (1) (ii)]

Held that Aircraft certainly was not allowed to fly to carry passengers or cargo in the absence of this certification by the competent authority, but that did not stop the assessee from holding it in its own name for the purpose of its business. Phrase used for the purpose of business in S. 32 does not mean that the use should be by way of generating revenue only. Use here is in the context of the direct connection of the asset with the purpose of business which is initiated in the relevant year. Expenses which were incurred for making the aircraft functional and ready to use during the year from India, when stand allowed, the same also establish that the certificate of airworthiness issued by the DGCA was only for the statutory compliances and to avoid legal liability, which is part of the business activity. Held that the trial run of the aircraft was obviously for the purpose of business and nothing else. As the statute did not prescribe a minimum time-limit for "use" of the machinery, the assessee could not be denied the benefit of depreciation on the ground that the aircraft was used for a very short duration for trial run. Consequently, depreciation and maintenance expenses of the aircraft were held to be allowed as a deduction. (AY. 2003-04)

Assessee is a company engaged in the business of sale of high-end branded readymade garments in reasonably decorated showrooms which were obtained on lease basis for 3-5 years. Assessee improved said leased premises by interior decoration like false-ceiling, racks, electrical light fittings, painting, partitions and change of flooring, etc. and since expected life of said items were from 1 to 5 years, assessee wrote off total expenditure at 20 % ascertaining life of expenditure incurred between 3 to 5 years. AO disallowed depreciation and completed assessment under scrutiny determining income of assessee which was confirmed by CIT (Appeals). On appeal the Tribunal held that since there was no dispute regarding method of write-off and claiming by way of depreciation claim of depreciation is justified. (AY. 2014-15)

S. 32: Depreciation - Car registered in name of director - Funds utilized of the company - Depreciation is allowable to the company. 453

Assessee company claimed depreciation on a vehicle purchased in the name of the Director of the assessee company. AO disallowed the depreciation claimed @15%. CIT(A) confirmed the disallowance. Revenue submitted that interest on the car loan and insurance expenses were allowed to the assessee. Therefore, the disallowance of depreciation on the car was deemed unwarranted. It was undisputed that purchase of a car was made by assessee company, of matter following Supreme Court's decision in Mysore Minerals Ltd v. CIT [1999] 239 ITR 775 (SC) which was also reflected in books of account of the assessee company. Therefore, it could be asserted that the car was commercially used for the purpose of business. Consequently, depreciation thereon could not be denied. Moreover, interest on car loan and car insurance was allowed by AO. Thus, on facts and circumstance the depreciation was allowed in accordance with law. [ITA No. 828/Ahd/2023 dt. 23/02/2024)(AY. 2017-18)

Held that the invoices of purchase of slurry machine and other related cost, bill of entry regarding import of slurry machine, user manual of slurry machine and log book of slurry machine for the periods March 27, 2014 to March 31, 2014 showed that the observations of the CIT (Appeals) that the personnel from Germany stayed till March 30th could not be ground to derive the conclusion that the machine had been put to use only after that date. The employees may have every reason to stay a day or more after completion of the work in India. Hence, keeping in view the documentary evidence, the machine was to be held to have been put to use even before March 31, 2014 and hence, the depreciation is directed to be allowed (AY. 2014-15)

Held that the eligibility of the assessee's claim of depreciation had not been examined in detail by the AO during the course of assessment proceedings, i. e., whether the assessee was eligible to claim depreciation on "goodwill" as per assessee's books as "intangible assets" u/s 32 of the Act, as per assessee's submissions before the Department. Accordingly, in the interest of justice, this issue was restored to the AO to examine firstly, whether or not depreciation was allowable on the asset and under which category the assessee was claiming depreciation, i. e., as depreciation on goodwill or as depreciation of "any other commercial right" or "intangible asset" u/s 32 of the Act. 465 S. 32 : Depreciation - Goodwill - an intangible asset, qualifies for depreciation under the section, in acknowledgment of its value and impact on a company's financial performance.
The assessee, a private limited company engaged in providing financial information and analytics services, claimed depreciation on goodwill arising out of amalgamation with another company in the previous year relevant to the AY under consideration. The AO disallowed the claim on the ground that goodwill is not a depreciable asset under the Act. The assessee challenged the disallowance before the DRP, which upheld the AO's order and also rejected the assessee's alternative claim for additional depreciation on goodwill. The assessee appealed to the Tribunal against the final assessment order. The Tribunal allowed the assessee's appeal and held that goodwill is an intangible asset eligible for depreciation u/s 32 of the Act, following the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Smifs Securities Ltd. The Tribunal affirmed the principle that goodwill of a business or profession is a depreciable asset under the Act, irrespective of the mode of its acquisition, and rejected the Revenue's attempt to distinguish the Supreme Court's ruling in Smifs Securities Ltd. based on the facts of the case. The question before the High Court was whether the rental income earned by the appellant and assessed as income from house property will qualify for deduction u/s 32AB of the Act. Allowing the appeal the Court held that it was not the case of the Revenue or the finding of the Tribunal that the assessee had in its accounts not shown rental income as part of the business income. In fact as per the assessment order, these charges had been considered as part of business income but the AO had excluded them for the purpose of profits to arrive at the eligible business income for the purpose of S. 32AB of the Act. Therefore, so long as the rental income was part of the business income, it would be included in the term "eligible business" because rental income was not excluded in the definition of eligible business. The rental income earned by the assessee and assessed under the head Income from house property would qualify for deduction u/s 32AB of the Act. Accordingly the Court held that the rental income assessed under head income from house property will qualify for deduction u/s 32AB of the Act. (AY. 1987-88)

S. 32AC: Investment in new plant or machinery - Installation of machinery - Blending of lube oil tantamounts to manufacture or production - Entitlement to deduction. 467

Assessee is engaged in the business of manufacture and production of lube oil. During relevant AY it commissioned a lubricants blending plant and claimed investment allowance u/s 32AC of the Act. AO disallowed the claim by holding that the blending process undertaken by assessee-company did not amount to manufacture or production of an article or thing and that threshold limit of investment of INR 100 crores as prescribed u/s 32AC was not met. CIT(A) allowed the claim. On appeal, the Tribunal held that blending of lube oil tantamounts to manufacture or production as contemplated u/s 32AC. Since revenue could not controvert claim of assessee that it had made investment exceeding threshold limit and fact that installation of plant & machinery had been completed during year under consideration was not in dispute at all, assessee was entitled to investment allowance as claimed. No. 142/13/2015, dt. 20th July, 2016 - reference to Memorandum Explaining the Provisions in the Finance Bill, 2015 - held, the provisions of S. 32AD are applicable for the investment made in FY 2015-16 i. e. AY. 2016-17. 468

The assessee had set up an undertaking for manufacture or production of an article or thing after 1st April, 2015 and the new asset was acquired and installed during the period beginning from 1st April, 2015 from which the date S. 32AD was introduced. The assessee claimed deduction u/s 32AD of the Act. The AO rejected the claim which was affirmed by the CIT (Appeals). On appeal, due to difference of opinion, the point of reference was made to the third member to decide the issue i.e. whether the assesee is entitled to deduction u/s 32AD(1), in respect of investment made in FY 2015-16. The third member held that the assessee is entitled for allowance under S. 32AD. Neither the S. 32AD nor Notification No. 61/2016/F. No. 142/13/2015, dt. 20th July, 2016 states that the deduction under S. 32AD is allowable only for the period starting from the date of notification. If the contention of the Revenue that the assessee is entitled to claim the benefit of S. 32AD only from the date of notification is accepted, then the condition of getting the benefit for a period five years from 1st April, 2016 is not fulfilled and this cannot be the mandate of the legislation. Once the notification was issued under S. 32AD specifying the area to be a backward area, it relates back to 1st April, 2015 onwards. Therefore, the provisions of S. 32AD are applicable for the investment made in financial year 2015-16 i. e., AY. 2016-17. (AY. 20016-17)

469 S. 32AD: Investment in new plant or machinery in notified backward areas in certain States - Additional investment allowance - Notification specifying backward area relates back to 1-4-2015 - Entitlement to additional investment allowance - The notification is neither taxing nor exempting the tax either in full or in part to any class of assessees but it only specifies the details requisite for implementation of the section - Issuance of notification by the CBDT is only pursuant to the delegated legislation, but not a conditional legislation - Circular No. 19 of 2015, dt. 27-11-2015 (2015) 379 ITR 19 (St), Notification dated 20-7-2016 (2016) 386 ITR 6 (St))
On appeal by the assessee, the Judicial Member held in favour of the assessee, while the Accountant Member affirmed the disallowance. On a reference to a Third Member allowing the appeal the Tribunal held that the undertaking was set up subsequent to 01. 04. 2015 and the new asset was acquired and installed during the period between 01. 04. 2015 and 31. 03. 2016. A combined reading of the Memorandum Explaining the provisions in the Finance Bill, 2015 as well as the CBDT Circular No. 19 of 2015 clearly mentioned that the provisions of S. 32AD were applicable from AY 2016-17 for a period of 5 years. Therefore, the provisions of S. 32AD of the Act, were applicable for the investment made in FY 2015-16, i.e., AY 2016-17. That the notification issued by the CBDT on 20. 07 2016 did not keep the operation of the provisions of S. 32AD of the Act in abeyance till 20. 07. 2016. The notification stating that it shall come into force as on the date of its publication in the Official Gazette cannot override the provisions of S. 32AD(1) of the Act. That since S. 32AD is a beneficial provision and the assessee fell in the beneficial provision, the provision as well as the notification needs to be interpreted liberally, i. e., in favour of the assessee and the assessee is entitled to deduction u/s 32AD. Held that S. 32AD(1) requires the executive to notify the areas constituting backward areas in the relevant States and to that extent it cannot be said that S. 32AD(1) is complete on its own. Even according to the Revenue, Parliament required the executive to issue the notification specifying what areas constitute the backward areas in the relevant States, but not in respect of the future date of promulgation or the provision nor with applicability or withdrawal of the provision to any class of persons, areas or properties. The provision itself is in the nature of beneficial legislation favourable to the assessee, and the notification neither brings the provision into force on any later day nor does it extend or exempt the operation of the provision to any class of persons, properties or areas. It only specifies details regarding the backward areas in the relevant States for implementation of the provision. The notification is neither taxing nor exempting the tax either in full or in part to any class of assessees but it only specifies the details requisite for implementation of the section. Issuance of notification by the CBDT is only pursuant to the delegated legislation, but not a conditional legislation(AY. 2016-17)

S. 35 : Expenditure on scientific research - Weighted deduction - In-house scientific research - Expenditure on clinical trials conducted outside approved - Clinical research outside facility would also be eligible for weighted deduction under S. 35(2AB). [S. 35(2AB)] 470

Held that prior to 1st July, 2016 there was no requirement by DSIR to certify the amount eligible for weighted deduction and therefore, assessee cannot be denied weighted deduction for the reason that the amount claimed is more than what is mentioned in Form 3CL. Accordingly, the amount as mentioned in Form 3CL as expenses incurred towards clinical research outside the facility would also be eligible for weighted deduction under S. 35(2AB). (AY. 2010-11)

S. 35 : Expenditure on scientific research - Purchase of capital equipment for research facility - Clinical trial expenditure allowed by Tribunal in earlier years which is upheld by High Court - Order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed - CBDT Circular No. 14(Xl-35), Dated 11-4-1955. [S. 35(2AB)] 471

Held that the CIT (Appeals) correctly appreciated the fact and found the capital items were used in the research facility only and that the impugned capital expenditure was approved by the DSIR as evidenced by the certificate issued by it in form 3CL. When the specified authority itself had approved the incurrence of the capital expenditure for the purpose of in-house research, there was no question of the AO doubting it or arriving at a finding that the capital expenditure was not incurred in the assessee's research and development facility. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed (AY. 2008-09, 2009-10)

S. 35: Expenditure on scientific research - DSIR approved only part of expenditure claimed - Prior to 1-4-2016 there is no requirement of quantification of eligible expenditure incurred on in-house research and development facility that has to be approved by prescribed authority - Entitled to 200% of actual expenditure incurred on Scientific Research. [S. 35(2AB] 472

Held that S. 35(2AB) is amended on April 1, 2016 whereby the quantum of eligible expenditure incurred on in-house research and development facility is required to be quantified by the prescribed authority. Prior to April 1, 2016, there was no such requirement for claiming the deduction. Merely because the DSIR had quantified such expenditure in the current year, which was prior to April 1, 2016. Disallowance is deleted. The AO is directed to allow at 200%. of the actual expenditure incurred on scientific research in its in-house research and development facility. (AY. 2013-14, 2017-18)

Held that the assessee had undertaken the research work and had spent certain amount during the relevant AYs on scientific research, not being the capital expenditure in the nature of land and building. The AO's reliance solely on the DSIR report, without considering the detailed books of account and certification by a chartered accountant, is not justified. Deduction is allowed. (AY. 2016-17)

476 S. 35 : Expenditure on scientific research - Capital expenditure allowable as deduction - Disallowance of balance amount is affirmed as per order of CIT(A). [S. 35(2AB]
Held that the matter regarding the assessee's claim of weighted deduction u/s 35(2AB) was decided by the Tribunal in the assessee's favour in its own case for earlier AYs. The CIT (Appeals) had not erred in facts and in law in making any disallowance thereto. As for the other items of expenditure under this section, weighted deduction in respect of foreign patent filing expenses to the extent it was of capital nature was allowed and the balance amount was disallowed in terms of the order of the CIT (Appeals). Disallowance of balance amount is affirmed as per order of CIT(A). (AY. 2009-10, 2010-11, 2011-12)

Assessee-company earned LTCG on sale of factory land. During relevant AY, assessee made a donation to a trust and claimed weighted deduction u/s 35(1)(ii) on said donation. AO disallowed deduction on ground that there was discontinuation of business after sale of factory land. Assessee claimed that it continued its operation even after the sale of factory land. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that no lease agreement or confirmation from the buyer of factory land, had been submitted to substantiate the claim of carrying on business at the same premises. Since there was loss under head income from business or profession and assessee had discontinued its business after selling factory land, assessee could not claim deduction u/s 35(1)(ii) from such business loss. Since assessee earned huge capital gains on sale of factory land and there was immediate and proximate nexus between impugned donation and capital gain, assessee was not entitled to claim deduction u/s 35(1)(ii) from capital gain chargeable to tax u/s 45. S. 35 : Expenditure on scientific research - Weighted deduction - DSIR not certified part of expenses and did not furnish reason-AO is directed to examine issue a fresh thereafter. [S. 35(2AB), R. 6(7A)] 478

Held, that on a combined reading of S. 35(2AB), (3) read with rule 6(7A), the reports mentioned therein would cover the report to be furnished by the DSIR, even though the reports are forwarded directly to the CIT. The amendment made in sub-section (3) may be considered as enabling provision which triggered inserting of rule 6(7A), which was amended enabling DSIR to quantify the expenditure incurred. If any question arises u/s 35 of the Act as to whether and if so, to what extent any activity constitutes or constituted scientific research, S. 35(3) provides for making a representation to the prescribed authority. Since, the DSIR had not certified part of the expenses incurred by the assessee and since it did not furnish any reason for doing so, there was violation of principles of natural justice. Unless the prescribed authority furnishes the reason for not certifying the expenses, it would not be possible for the Tribunal to adjudicate this issue. Accordingly, the assessee as well as the AO were to take appropriate action to ascertain the reasons for non-certification. After ascertaining them, the AO may examine this issue afresh and take appropriate decision in accordance with law, after affording adequate opportunity of being heard to the assessee.). Assessee had claimed research and development expenses incurred during the year under consideration for its units. AO disallowed said expenses on ground that no approval in prescribed Form no. 3CM had been enclosed before AO. On appeal the ITAT held that since, assessee had applied for approval in Form No. 3CM which was still pending, issue was to be restored to AO for providing an opportunity to assessee to furnish approval of competent authority in prescribed manner for claiming deduction u/s 35(2AB). Assessee-company had claimed deduction u/s 35A qua acquisition of trademark by SPPL which had been merged with assessee. AO disallowed the same. On appeal the Tribunal held that in view of decision of Tribunal in assessee's own case that trademark is not alien to patent right as there is direct link between patent right and trademark, assessee was eligible to claim deduction u/s 35A. While the allowability of varied license fees as capital expenditure was finalized in the earlier judgment, the issue of whether royalty payments to the Wireless Planning Commission (WPC) should be treated as revenue expenditure was neither argued nor decided in that judgment. The Supreme Court de-tagged the appeal from the batch and restored it to be adjudicated separately on the merits of the case for the treatment of royalty payments as revenue or capital expenditure.

Held that the hotel run by the assessee was not granted any star rating for the FY s relevant to the AYs 2017-18 to 2019-20, and subsequent to the close of the assessment proceedings, the assessee got the four star rating certificate on 14.12.2021 valid for the period starting 14.12.2021 to 13.12.2026 which was furnished during the course of appellate proceedings before the CIT (Appeals). The hotel being run by the assessee has been duly granted a four star rating certificate by the Ministry of Tourism, Government of India and thus, it qualified as a specified business for the purposes of claim of deduction u/s 35AD of the Act. Assessee-company ran a hospital. Subsequent to survey action u/s 133A, assessee filed revised return u/s 139(5) claiming deduction u/s 35AD for first time. AO held that benefit of S. 139(5) could not be claimed by a person who had filed fraudulent returns. He rejected claim of deduction u/s 35AD for reason that assessee failed to furnish any documentary evidence to prove that it satisfied all conditions laid down in S. 35AD(2). CIT(A) allowed the claim. On appeal, the Tribunal held that since assessee during appellate proceedings submitted all details of capital expenditure incurred before date of commencement of hospital which showed that it had more than hundred beds at relevant time and as it had filed original return in time as per provisions of S. 139(1), deduction u/s 35AD claimed for first time in revised return filed as per provisions of S. 139(5) is allowable. [S. 154, 263, Art. 136]
The assessee claimed amortization of preliminary expenses u/s 35D in AY 2007-08 which was allowed by the AO. However, for AY 2008-09, the Commissioner invoked revisionary powers u/s 263 to disallow the claim on the ground that the assessee had wrongly claimed the deduction u/s 35D as it was not an industrial undertaking within the meaning of such expression as envisaged u/s 35D. The Hon'ble High Court held that once a claim u/s 35D is granted in the first year, it cannot be disallowed in subsequent years without disturbing the initial year's assessment. This action by the Commissioner was deemed invalid. The Revenue filed an SLP against the High Court's decision. The Hon'ble Supreme Court disposed of the SLP as infructuous as the rectification order passed u/s 154 of the Act which is against the Revenue for the AY 2008-09 has been made to the relied upon judgement. Assessee-company incurred certain expenditure in relation to initial public offer of shares such as advertising, travelling, postage, market research, etc. and claimed deduction of same as revenue expenditure AO invoking provisions of S. 35D disallowed expenditure. Tribunal affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Court held that since S. 35D permitted only certain capital expenses as deductible and not others and assessee had already been granted benefit of deduction of direct expenses incurred in connection with initial public offer of shares, it could not claim deduction of indirect expenses incurred in connection with same object as revenue expenses. S. 35DD:Amortisation of expenditure-Amalgamation-Merger expenses-The year in which the High Court order was received can be treated as the 1st year from which the merger expenses can be claimed u/s 35DD and allow to claim the said expenses in next 4 Assessment years. 486

The Assessee had undergone amalgamation by order of the Calcutta High Court dated 26.10.2006 and the Bombay High Court dated 01. 12. 2006, which was to be effective from 01.04.2005. The Assessee claimed 2/5th of the expenses incurred during the present AY 2007-08 u/s 35DD in the computation of income by stating that since the Assessee could not claim the deduction in AY 2006-07, the Assessee has claimed 2/5th i. e. 1/5th for A. Y. 2006-07 & 2/5th A. Y. 2007-08. The Tribunal observed that S. 35DD is unambiguous and there is no provision u/s 35DD to claim 2/5th of the expenditure incurred towards amalgamation / demerger. The Assessee had also raised an additional ground to treat AY 2007-08 as the first year from which the merger expenses are claimed u/s 35DD and allow the Assessee to claim the expenses in next 4 Assessment years subsequent to AY 2007-08. The Tribunal found merit in this contention and allowed the same. (AY. 2007-08)

499 S. 36(1)(iii): Interest on borrowed capital - Interest free funds - Capital withdrawn - Addition is deleted.
Held that if there is sufficient interest-free funds available with the assessee and such funds were advanced without charging any interest, the disallowance u/s 36(1)(iii) on account of notional interest was unjustifiable. As the assessee's interest-free funds were adequate to cover the amounts overdrawn by the partners, the addition made by the AO u/s 36(1)(iii) is not valid. (AY. 2018-19)

500 S. 36(1)(iii) : Interest on borrowed capital-Interest paid on cash credit account-Investments in immovable properties and shares of other companies-Business expenditure. [S. 37(1)]
Held that the funds remained invested in immovable properties and shares of other companies and the investment under the head "debtors" would not debar the assessee from the claim of interest expenses thereon since the investment was in productive assets related to the assessee's business. As a result, the addition made by the AO for the year in question was to be deleted. (AY. 2015-16)

S. 36(1)(iii) : Interest on borrowed capital-Capital expenditure on plant and machinery, electrical installation and other fixed assets-Accounted s capital work-in-progress-Disallowance of interest is not warranted. 501
Held that where huge funds were available with the assessee without any interest liability and there was no evidence to hold that borrowed money was utilised for the purpose of making capital work-in-progress advances, no disallowance of interest was warranted. There was no infirmity in the order of the CIT (Appeals). (AY. 2009-10, 2010-11, 2011-12)

S. 36(1)(iii) : Interest on borrowed capital-Trade receivable-Borrowed fund is used for the purpose of business-Notional interest cannot be charged. 502
Held that the assessee had demonstrated that the borrowed funds were used for business purposes, and the conditions laid out in S. 36(1)(iii) were met. The outstanding amounts with the holding company and other customers were part of normal business transactions, with no interest charged in alignment with industry practices. Given the regular business transactions and fluctuating balances, the question of notional interest did not arise. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2015-16)

509 S. 36(1)(iii) : Interest on borrowed capital-Work-in-progress-Out of own funds and borrowed funds-Disallowance is deleted.
Held that the AO had worked out the disallowance based on the closing balance of the capital work-in-progress at the rate of 12%. While doing so, the AO had ignored the availability of the assessee's own funds and had wrongly assumed that the addition to the capital work-in-progress was entirely out of borrowed funds. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2013-14)
Gujarat Infrapipes P. Ltd. v. Dy. CIT (2024)111 ITR 47 (SN)(Ahd)(Trib)

510 S. 36(1)(iii) :Interest on borrowed capital-Advanced funds for commercial purposes without charging interest-Advanced from interest free funds-Order of CIT(A) confirming the disallowance is deleted.
Assessee advanced funds to three parties for commercial purposes without charging interest. Since no interest was charged by assessee on such advances made to above parties, AO added back an amount u/s 36(1)(iii). CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO.

On appeal the assessee contended that advances were for business dealings and were funded by interest-free loans, as shown in the audited balance sheet. Tribunal held that there was neither any reason nor any material to disbelieve figures contained in audited balance sheet, particularly availability of unsecured loans (free of interest) duly reflected in balance sheet under unsecured long-term borrowings, which was sufficient to meet advances given to parties in question. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2015-16)

Tata Steel Ltd. v. Dy. CIT (2024)109 ITR 18 (Mum) (Trib)

S. 36(1)(iii) :Interest on borrowed capital-Loans and advances-Own funds are more than interest bearing funds-No disallowance can be made. 512
Assessee had advanced interest-free loans/advances to outside parties. AO held that since 55. 05% of all funds were from interest-bearing sources, hence it was fair and reasonable to hold that 55. 05% of claimed interest-free advances had been sourced from interest-bearing funds and to that extent, interest-bearing funds had been shifted to cost-free advances. AO disallowed interest paid to extent of Rs. 52. 30 lakhs out of total interest paid of Rs. 66. 05 lakhs. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee's own funds were more than interest-free advances, disallowance is deleted. (AY. 2017-18) AY. 2017-18)
Jasmatbhai Nanubhai Vidiya v. DCIT (2024) 206 ITD 44 (Surat)(Trib.)

S. 36(1)(iii) :Interest on borrowed capital-Loan raised from bank for repayment of capital-Allowable as deduction. 513
Assessee-firm had borrowed a loan from the bank and raised fresh capital from the incoming partner to settle a debt/capital account of retiring/outgoing partners. AO characterized settlement as a family arrangement and disallowed interest paid by assessee-firm to capital account of partners and loan borrowed from Punjab National Bank u/s 36(1)(iii). CIT(A) affirmed the disallowance. On appeal, the ITAT held that when asset was owned by partnership firm, any settlement out of assets belonging to firm to outgoing partners, could not be considered as settlement of family property and just because, partners were family members and merely because assets were revalued before reconstitution of partnership firm, could not be a reason for AO to treat settlement of firm properties among partners as settlement of family property. Settlement of capital account of outgoing partners became debt of partnership firm and discharge of said debt out of borrowed funds assumed character of loans/funds borrowed for purpose of business of assessee. Since, loan borrowed from bank and capital raised from incoming partner was for purpose of business of assessee, any interest paid on said loan and capital account was nothing but interest paid on loan borrowed for purpose of business of assessee and allowable u/s 36(1)(iii). Held that when the borrowed amounts from Banks and Public Financial institutions which are used for the purpose of business, the interest paid would be allowable as deduction as per provisions of S. 36(1)(iii) read with provisions of S. 43B in year in which payment was made irrespective of its treatment in books of account. 515 S. 36(1)(iii) : Interest on borrowed capital-Interest free advances-Sufficient funds-No disallowance can be made.

Assessee-company had given a security deposit to its subsidiary company. AO held that there was possibility of assessee having utilised interest bearing funds for the purpose of giving interest free deposit. CIT(A) confirmed the disallowance on pro rata basis. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had share capital and reserves and surplus of Rs. 119.03 crores which was more than interest free advance of Rs. 100.12 crores given by assessee. Since the assessee had sufficient own funds for giving interest free deposit, disallowance is deleted. (AY. 2016-17)

PNP Maritime Services (P.) Ltd. v. DCIT (2024)204 ITD 810 /231 TTJ 31 (Mum) (Trib.)

516 S. 36(1)(iii) : Interest on borrowed capital-Addition made are unjustified as the balances reflect business transactions, & not loans and advances. [S. 37(1)]

The Revenue contended that the assessee has not shown interest income on loans and advances given to related parties. The Revenue argues that interest @ 12% should be imputed on the average of opening and closing balances of the loans and advances. The assessee, however, contends that the payments are made in congruence to the terms and conditions of the agreements and that no interest income was accrued or received. The ld. CIT(A) verified the assessee's contention and deleted the addition. The Hon'ble Tribunal observed that the outstanding balances are outcome of the business transactions and not loans and advances and further held that the AO has erred in imputing an imaginary income which is neither accrued nor has arisen to the Assessee. S. 36(1)(va) : Any sum received from employees-Late deposit of employee's contribution to PF and ESI-Disallowance is justified-Assessment order u/s 143(1)(a) would make no difference. [S. 143(1)(a), 260A] 518

Assessee filed its return of income. AO made disallowance u/s 36(1)(va) towards late deposit of employee's contribution to PF and ESI by assessee. CIT(A) and Tribunal upheld the disallowance. On appeal the court held that since assessee had not deposited such sum within stipulated time as prescribed in respective Acts, in view of decision in case of Checkmate Services (P.) Ltd. v. CIT [2022] 143 taxmann.com 178/290 Taxman 19/448 ITR 518 (SC) disallowance on account of employees contribution to ESI and PF u/s 36(1)(va) was justified and fact that assessment order was made u/s 143(1)(a) would make no difference. Held that once the bad debts were written off by debiting the sum in the profit and loss account and by giving a corresponding credit in the loans and advances/debtors on the assets side of the balance-sheet, the requirement under law was satisfied. It was not necessary to make a corresponding entry towards each individual account separately to qualify as a valid write off. The Department had not disputed the entries in the profit and loss account and balance-sheet. Once the sums were written off in the books maintained for the purpose of the Act and debited in the profit and loss account and satisfied the other requirement, it was sufficient to hold that the assessees were entitled to the allowance. 531 S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Capital or revenue-Broken period Interest-Stock in trade-Allowable as revenue expenditure. [S. 28(i)]

Government securities purchased by banks to meet the statutory liquidity ratio (SLR) requirements are held as stock-in-trade. The securities were treated as stock-in-trade in the hands of the bank, in compliance with RBI guidelines and CBDT circulars. The RBI Circular of 21. 04. 1998 clarified that Banks should not capitalise broken period interest paid to the seller as a part of the cost but treat it as an item of expenditure under the profit and loss account. The Court emphasized that whether a particular security is held as an investment or stock-in-trade is a factual determination within the knowledge of the assessee. If securities are held as investments, the benefit of broken period interest deduction would not apply. However, for securities held as trading assets, the deduction is permissible. Considering that the assessee held the securities as stock-in-trade, the broken period interest is treated as revenue expenditure and is deductible u/s 37(1). Further, Interest income on these securities was taxed as business income u/s 28(i) (AY. 1990-91 to 1992-93)

S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-Compensation-Subsidiaries-Captive use-Delay of 526 days-SLP of revenue dismissed. [Art. 136] 533

Assessee owned two mines which were used by its subsidiaries for captive use. However, ores available in said mines were not suitable for production and were sold in open market. Later, subsidiaries purchased ores of desired grade from outside parties which resulted in substantial financial loss. Assessee paid compensation to its subsidiaries for financial loss incurred and claimed the same as expenditure. AO denied said claim on ground that it was not incurred wholly and exclusively for the purpose of business of assessee. High Court held that it could not be said that there was no intimate connection between assessee and two subsidiaries as far as business activities were concerned and since compensation paid by assessee was to recoup business losses of subsidiaries which was irrecoverable as far as assessee was concerned, expenditure claimed by assessee was to be allowed. On SLP filed by revenue, it was found that there was a gross delay of 526 days in filing SLP and explanation offered for condonation of delay was not satisfactory. SLP of revenue dismissed. S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-Capital or revenue-Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)-Amendment is not retrospective-Explanation 2 was inserted by the Finance Act, 2014 with effect from April 1, 2015 to S. 37(1) of the Act and is prospective-SLP of revenue dismissed. [Art. 136] 534

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue, the High Court held that the assessee had provided funds in discharge of its obligation as mandated by law on the advice of the Department of Public Enterprises and therefore, it could not be said that the obligation placed on the assessee by law was not connected wholly and exclusively to its business. There is nothing on record which would show that the assessee had directed investment of funds which were offered in fulfilment of discharge of its legal obligation in a capital asset. The Tribunal had concluded that the corporate social responsibility expenses incurred by the assessee were allowable u/s 37. Explanation 2 appended to S. 37(1) was not retrospective in nature. Followed, PCIT v. PEC LTD. (2023) 451 ITR 436 (Delhi)(HC). SLP of revenue dismissed.

Court held that expenses were not connected to the work undertaken by the assessee and were bogus expenses. As regards the additional ground that was raised, by a reasoned order, the ITAT had considered it to a certain extent which covered the partly allowed claim by the CIT (Appeals) and taking into consideration the tax deducted at source deposited by the assessee. A reasoned order had been passed disallowing the claim of the assessee. No substantial question of law. SLP of assessee rejected. (AY. 2010-11)

Dismissing the appeals of the Revenue, the High Court held that the assessee's investment to develop a software platform for desktops had become obsolete due to rapid change in the technology and the assessee had abandoned further development as a result of which it had abandoned the product and incurred a loss. The project having been abandoned, the assessee would not get any enduring benefit. The ITAT, on a correct analysis of the facts, had held that the expenditure was revenue and not capital in nature. Assessee is engaged in business of software development solution and management. It incurred expenditure in connection with development of a new software product and treated expenditure as a part of capital work-in-progress for AYs 2004-05 to 2007-08. However, new product never came into existence and development of this software was abandoned and assessee then claimed whole capital work in progress as revenue expenditure in AYs 2006-07 and 2007-08. AO held that expenditure incurred was capital in nature and disallowed same. High Court held that since no new asset came into existence which would be of an enduring benefit to assessee, expenditure could only be said to be revenue in nature. SLP of revenue dismissed. S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-Capital or revenue-Purchase of software-Not necessary that income must be earned because of such expenditure-SLP of revenue dismissed. [S. 28(i), Art. 136] 540

Assessee claimed expenditure incurred for purchase of software as revenue expenditure. AO held that assessee had not started any effort to earn income and it was just in process of making a brand for future utilization and when there was no income chargeable u/s 28, no expenses under sections 30 to 37 could be claimed in this regard and noted that assessee had not earned any revenue from its business and treated expenditure as capital expenditure. Tribunal relying upon its order passed in assessee's own case for previous AY reversed view taken by AO and allowed claim. High Court held that proposition put forth by AO that when there was no income chargeable u/s 28, no expenses could be claimed by an assessee under sections 30 to 37 was completely unsustainable and since issue that revenue sought to raise before Court was very same issue which Tribunal grappled with in previous AY, no substantial question of law arose for consideration. [S. 40A(2), Sugarcane (Control) Order 1966 clauses, 3, 5A] 541
AO held that the difference between the price paid as per Clause 3 of the Control Order, 1966, determined by the Central Government, and the price determined by the State Government under Clause 5A of the Control Order, 1966 (and consequently paid by the assessee to the cane growers) can be said to be a distribution of profit, as in the price determination under Clause 5A of the Control Order, 1966, there is an element of profit and therefore the price paid to the cane growers determined by the State Government is excessive and therefore it is not deductible as expenditure, and is required to be included in the income of the assessee. AO also held that cane price paid to the cane growers over the SMP is disallowable as per S. 40A(2)(a) of the Act by observing that purchase price paid is excessive and unreasonable. On appeal CIT(A) allowed the appeal following SB in Dy. CIT v. Manjara Shetkari Sakhar Karkhana Ltd (2004) 91 ITD 361 (SB) (Mum) (Trib)(dt. 19.08.2004). Order of CIT(A) was affirmed by Tribunal. High Court dismissed the appeal of the revenue following the decision in CIT v. Manjara Shetkari Sahakari Sakar Karkhana Ltd (2008) 301 ITR 191 (Bom) (HC). On appeal by the revenue the Supreme Court considering the decision in Maharashtra Rajya Sahkari Sakkar Karkhana Sangh Ltd v. State of Maharashtra (1995) Supp. (3) SCC 475 held that the AO has to take into account the manner in which the business works, the modalities and manner in which SAP/additional purchase price/final price are decided and determine what amount forms part of the profit. Whatever is the profit component is sharing of profit/distribution of profit and the rest is deductible as expenditure. Question of law is answered partly in favour of the revenue and partly in favour of the assessee. [S. 35ABB, The Telegraph Act, 1885, S, 4(1), 8, 20, 20A and 21] 545

Assessee is engaged in business of telecommunication services, procured licenses in different telecom circles initially under 1994 agreement which was subsequently governed by New Telecom Policy, 1999. In terms of licence agreement, assessee had to pay entry fee payable up to 31-7-1999 and, thereupon, licence fee was payable as a percentage of gross revenue under licence effective from 1-8-1999. Assessee claimed license fee paid on revenue sharing basis as revenue expenditure. AO held that licence fee paid ought to be treated as capital expenditure and amortised over remainder of twelve years licence period. Held that licence granted under Policy of 1999 was non-transferable and non-assignable and if there was a default in payment of licence fee, entire licence could be revoked after sixty days' notice. Supreme Court by impugned order held that since license fees paid to Department of Telecommunications (DoT) under New Telecom Policy, 1999 was non-transferable and non-assignable and furthermore said payment was intrinsic to existence of licence as well as trade itself, entry fee as well as variable annual licence fee paid would be capital in nature and was to be amortised in accordance with S. 35ABB. Assessee filed a review petition seeking reconsideration of impugned order. Held that there was no error apparent on face of record or any merit in review petition, warranting reconsideration of impugned order. Review petition was dismissed. (AY. 1999-2000 to 2007-08)

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that even if the allegation of the AO were accepted that the assessee was doing some illegal mining and the production of the assessee to the extent of 40%. of production was out of illegal mining, the expenses incurred for such production did not attract the disallowance under Explanation 1 to S. 37(1) of the Act because the expenses incurred for mining could not be considered as for an offence or prohibited by law in itself. It was not the case of the AO that any deduction had been claimed by the assessee for facilitating the carrying out of illegal mining or for any penalty in respect of such illegal mining. The assessee had produced evidence to show that the expenditure claimed had been for purposes of transportation. The oral statements of the transporters recorded behind the assessee's back could not be used in evidence in the present proceedings. That was opposed to principles of natural justice contrary to law and therefore vitiated. Court also held that if a director of the company had been benefited by the expenses in respect of repairs and maintenance and depreciation on helicopter, the AO of the director was at liberty to make additions as per law in the hands of such director. No disallowance could be made in the hands of the assessee-company. (AY. 2010-11)

Held that view of the Tribunal is a reasonable one and could not be termed perverse. This was especially in view of the seasonal nature of the business carried out by the assessee and the short shelf life of the seeds. The Tribunal held that it was imperative for the assessee to take into account the quantity of unsold seeds at the end of the year and the need to revalidate their further utility and to take them into stock for the next season. Therefore, it could not be said that the provision for sales return was unascertained or unreasonable. There was no error or infirmity in the view taken by the Tribunal. 562 S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-CIT (Appeals) directed to decide the issue on disallowance of deduction claimed on debenture resumption within 3 months as matter pertains to year 1997-98-Revenue has accepted the finding of Tribunal in assessee's own case in previous years regarding disallowance of expenses on entertainment expenditure and expenses related to school the same question of law cannot be raised in a subsequent year. [S. 40A (9), S. 246A, 260A].
The Hon'ble Bombay High Court in an appeal filed by the Revenue had to decide on questions of law arising out of the order passed by the Tribunal, relating to disallowance of certain expenses. The Hon'ble Court as regards the first question held that the question was covered by the decision of Supreme Court in T. R. F. Ltd. v. CIT [2010] 323 ITR 397 (SC). The second question became a non-issue and as regards the third question, as the matter had been remanded to the CIT(A) for admission of additional ground, the Hon'ble Court directed the CIT(A) to decide the same on merits within 3 months. As regards question nos. 4, 5 and 6, the Hon'ble Court observed that the same had attained finality as the Revenue had not contested the findings of Tribunal in assessee's own case in previous years on the same question of law. Accordingly, the appeal was dismissed. (AY. 1997-98)

563 S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-Foreign Exchange losses towards loan in nature of external commercial borrowings for acquisition of assets from outside India and from within India-The Tribunal failed to look at substance of expenditure and erroneously interpreted the provisions of S. 43A-Matter remanded back to the Tribunal for an effective adjudication of specific issue. [S. 43A, 254(1), 260A]
The assessee Company had availed foreign currency loan in the nature of external commercial borrowings towards capital expenditure. As per Accounting Standard (AS) 11, the assessee claimed foreign exchange losses owing to change in exchange rate between the Indian Rupee and foreign currency. The assessee broke up such loss amounts in proportion of the value of capital goods imported into India and value of capital goods acquired within India. The proportionate amount of loss on the value of capital goods imported into India was capitalized as the cost of assets, while the proportionate amount of loss on the value of capital goods acquired within India claimed as revenue expenditure u/s 37(1) of the Act. The AO, while applying the amended provisions of S. 43A, disallowed the entire loss treating it as capital. The CIT (Appeals) upheld the order of the AO with the extended view that foreign currency loss would be treated as revenue expenditure only if foreign exchange loan utilized for trading activity. On further appeal, the Tribunal held that S. 43A could have no relevance and deleted the disallowance made by the AO and confirm the order of CIT (Appeals). On further appeal, the Hon'ble Court observed that it was important for the Tribunal to examine whether, on its own merit, such expenditure would qualify as revenue expenditure for purposes of S. 37(1) and towards that end, whether it can be stated conclusively that such expenditure cannot be regarded as capital expenditure and since such analysis is missing, the order of the Tribunal is set aside and remanded back to the Tribunal for an effective adjudication. S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Banking business – Capital or revenue-Stock in trade-Broken period interest paid on the purchase of securities is revenue expenditure since securities constitute stock-in-trade. [S. 145, 260A] 564

In an appeal preferred by the Revenue against an order of the Tribunal, the Hon'ble Telangana High Court had to decide whether the broken period interest which is paid on purchase of securities is revenue expenditure, more so when such securities constitute the stock-in-trade of the assessee. The Hon'ble Court observed that the assessee had been holding its securities all along as stock-in-trade which is not in dispute. For successive AYs, the Revenue has accepted the fact that the assessee had been holding the securities as stock-in-trade. In this backdrop, the Hon'ble Court placed further reliance on Circular No. 665 dated October 5, 1993 ([1993] 204 ITR (St.) 39) which clarified that where the banks are holding securities as stock-in-trade and not as investments, principles of law enunciated in Vijaya Bank Ltd. v. Addl. CIT would not be applicable. Therefore, the CBDT has clarified that the AO should determine on the facts and circumstances of each case as to whether any particular security constitutes stock-in-trade or investment considering the guidelines issued by the Reserve Bank of India from time to time. In light of this, the Hon'ble Court found no infirmity with decision of the Tribunal and accordingly, the appeals were dismissed. (AY. 1996-97)

S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Compensation-Breach of contract-Real estate and land development-Agreement entered into by managing partner in his individual capacity-Terms and Conditions of the agreement relevant-Arbitral Award-Not allowable as business expenditure. [S. 145, 260A, Indian Partnership Act, 1932, S. 14] 565

The assessee firm was engaged in the business of real estate and land development. One of the partners, Dayanand Pai entered into an agreement with MIPL in his individual capacity wherein he has agreed to transfer his part of the interest in the built up area of four properties which were proposed to be developed by various builders under JDA and as per the terms of the agreement, Dayanand Pai shall be responsible for all the losses and consequential damages. As per another agreement, Dayanand Pai undertook to deliver the built up area within a certain time frame, but did not hand it over. The arbitration proceedings were initiated. Based on the arbitration award, the assessee shall refund a sum of Rs. 22 Crores and Rs. 64 Crores as compensation and accordingly, the assessee claimed a sum of Rs. 64.75 Crores as compensation paid in its return of income. However, the AO disallowed the claim on the ground that on the date of agreement with MIPL, the assessee was not the owner of the properties. The CIT (Appeals) confirmed the order of the AO. However, on further appeal by the assessee, the Tribunal allowed the claim of the assessee u/s 37(1) of the Act. On further appeal by the Revenue, the Hon'ble Court observed that as per the provisions of S. 14 of the Indian Partnership Act, 1932, subject to contract between the partners, the property of the firm includes all properties originally brought into the stock of the firm or acquired for the firm in the course of business, that the claim for deduction of compensation was for the Asstt. Year: 2005–06, whereas the date of appointment as the arbitrator was 27-06-2005, the compromise petition was filed on 05-08-2005 and the arbitral award was passed on 30-08-2005 and accordingly held that there is no material to prove that the liability was crystalized or provided during the relevant AY and there is no mention in the agreement that the said Dayanand Pai was acting as the partner of the firm or that the properties which were the subject matter of the agreement were the properties of the firm. Held the reasoning adopted by the Tribunal is clearly erroneous and contrary to law and hence, the substantial questions of the law are answered in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee. Assessee increased cement manufacturing capacity at its Bilaspur plant, involving purchase and erection of plant and machinery in previous year relevant to AY 1984-85. It filed income-tax returns claiming deductions for pre-operative expenses (power, fuel, and lease rent for machinery) for AY 1986-87. AO disallowed pre-operative expenses. CIT (Appeals) partly allowed appeal, accepting assessee's contention that pre-operative expenses for expansion should be allowed as revenue expenditure. On appeal, Tribunal reversed the order, treating expenses as capital expenditure. On appeal the Court held that from records that in earlier years (AY 1984-85 and AY 1985-86), Tribunal had treated similar expenses as revenue expenditure and the High Court upheld that treatment. Further, for subsequent years (AY 1990-91, AY 1994-95, and AY 1997-98), High Court consistently maintained that position. Accordingly the Tribunal was not justified in reaching a conclusion contrary to view expressed by it in its order for AYs 1984-85 and 1985-86 without there being any change in factual or legal situation and without giving any reasons for taking a different view. Assessee, a civil work contractor, had undertaken civil contract for widening and strengthening of existing road, repairing widening of road side shoulders etc.. He claimed to have spent certain amount on purchase of marble for construction of office of Highway Authority. AO disallowed expenses claimed for purchase of marble. On appeal the Tribunal held that parties in whose names cheques were alleged to be issued had deposed on oath that they had neither encashed cheques nor received amount from assessee. Furthermore, no document was found on record, which showed that contract of construction of such office was also given to assessee. Tribunal held that since expenses were not connected to work undertaken by assessee, expenses incurred were bogus expenses. On appeal the High Court affirmed the order of Tribunal. Assessee owned two mines which were used by its subsidiaries for captive use. However, ores available in said mines were not suitable for production and were sold in open market. Later, subsidiaries purchased ores of desired grade from outside parties which resulted in substantial financial loss. Assessee paid compensation to its subsidiaries for financial loss incurred and claimed same as expenditure. AO denied said claim on ground that it was not incurred wholly and exclusively for purpose of business of assessee. Tribunal allowed the claim. On appeal the High Court held that it could not be said that there was no intimate connection between assessee and two subsidiaries as far as business activities were concerned and since compensation paid by assessee was to recoup business losses of subsidiaries which was irrecoverable as far as assessee was concerned, expenditure claimed by assessee was to be allowed. (AY. 2006-07 to 2009-10)

Dismissing the appeals of the Revenue the Court held that the assessee's investment to develop a software platform for desktops had become obsolete due to rapid change in the technology and the assessee had abandoned further development as a result of which it had abandoned the product and incurred a loss. Assessee (Market Committee) paid a certain amount to Haryana State Agricultural Board (Board) and stated that payment had been made to the Board on account of development works on its behalf and claimed deduction of the same as application of income. AO held that payment as repayment of loan taken by assessee from Board for construction of rural roads and held that payment of liability of old loan was not allowable as application of income. CIT (Appeals) held that amount had been paid to Board for expenditure which Board had incurred on behalf of assessee and same is allowable as application of income. ITAT set aside the order of CIT (Appeals) and restored order of AO. On appeal the Court held that since receipt issued by Board for aforesaid payment showed that amount was paid for development works and Board had incurred expenditure on development works on account of assessee, payment is made to Board towards statutory functions and it is not for repayment of any loan. Accordingly, held as allowable as application of income. As the quantum addition is deleted. Penalty order is quashed. (AY. 2007-08) memorandum of settlement between management and employees signed on 8-5-1987 and claimed deduction of same as expenditure in AY 1987-88. AO disallowed the assessee's claim. Tribunal held that liability for salary and wages arising out of Justice Palekar Award is not allowable as expenditure in AY in question but only in year in which agreement between management and employees was entered into. On appeal the Court held that since services were rendered by employees during relevant previous year, Tribunal is not right in its view. S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Cash payments –Distributor of milk products-The AO is directed to disallow 4 %of cash expenses. 591

Tribunal held that considering the nature of business being Distributor of milk products, profit margin being very less, the AO is directed to disallow 4% of cash expenses. (AY. 2008-09 2010-11 to 2013-14)

ITO v. K. Murugan (2023) 37 NYPTTJ 861 / (2024) 227 TTJ 121 / 233 DTR 72 (Chennai) (Trib)

S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Professional fees-Negotiating debt funding-Tax deducted-Payment through banking channels-, Recipients did not file return is not sufficient to disallow payment 592

Held that the assessee could not be penalised for the failure, if any, of the recipients. If the recipients of professional fees are able to arrange loan funds for the assessee, then a businessman would necessarily pay fees. The loan of Rs. 43 crores was obtained by the assessee from PNB and the professional fees had been paid for negotiating the loan. Therefore, the AO, is not justified in disallowing the claim of payment of professional fees, when the payment was through banking channel and tax is deducted at source merely because the recipient has not filed the return of income. Dy. CIT v. Rajendra Gulabchand Shah (2024)116 ITR 21 (SN)(Mum)(Trib)

S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Method of accounting-Completed-contract method-Books of account not rejected-Expenditure on completed project for defects and finishing allowable. [S. 145(3)] 595

Held that though the project was complete and handed over, the expenditure incurred on defects and finishing touches of the building was an allowable expenditure. The AO did not dispute the expenditure except for the cost of lift, which was an allowable expenditure as no builder would purchase the lift till the structure was complete, and the address on the invoice showed purchase of the lift for the completed project.

Moreover, no incriminating material was found against the assessee and the expenditure in the books was examined during survey. Neither S. 145(3) was invoked nor were the books of account rejected. Expenditure on the lift for the completed project is allowable as deduction. (AY. 2016-17)

Held that the ad hoc disallowances made without pointing out any specific instance with respect to any of the disallowance and for the general reason of preventing any possible revenue leakage, could not be upheld. The assessee could not be subjected to increased tax demand only on the presumption that there could have been revenue leakage, when the assessee had duly explained each and every expenditure. Disallowance is deleted. (AY. 2013-14)

S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Community development-Operation of aluminium mines causing pollution in neighbourhood-Assistance with respect to drinking water, education, women and children welfare, etc., for villagers-Commercial exigency to ensure smooth running of factories-Allowable as deduction. 603

That the Tribunal decision was set aside by the Calcutta High Court as the assessee, being in the business of manufacturing aluminium products that caused pollution in the surrounding areas, incurred expenses for drinking water supply, women and children welfare, medical services and educational support, which were backed by commercial exigency to foster harmony with the villagers in the areas surrounding the mines and necessary to ensure smooth running of the factories and to avoid industrial problems. The expenditure incurred on sundry development was wholly and exclusively for the purpose of the business. *CIT v. Nicholas Piramal (India) Ltd. (I. T. A. Held that all international transactions between associated enterprises were primarily guided by the principle of commercial expediency. The amounts advanced by the assessee towards the associated enterprises were inextricably linked with export sale of finished goods or yielded economic benefits to the assessee or that the advances were given out of interest-free funds available with the assessee, were irrelevant consideration while deciding the issue of charging of interest by the assessee from its associated enterprises since transfer pricing in respect of international transactions between associated enterprises was to ensure that there was no tax-base erosion at the India level nor shifting of profits to an overseas jurisdiction with a view to avoid taxes. S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Warranty provision-Provision is calculated based on DCF method in a scientifically sound and consistent method which complied with Accounting Standard 29 (AS-29)-Allowable as deduction. [S. 145] 621

Assessee is engaged in manufacturing of engineering goods. It made provision for warranty expenses in relation to a contract with Chhattisgarh Government for supply, installation, and commissioning of solar photovoltaic (SPV) irrigation pumps, which included a five-year (60 months) on-site warranty. Assessing Officer held that since it was first year of operation for SPV pumps, warranty provision was deemed a contingent liability under AS-29, as it lacked a reliable estimate based on past data. He further concluded that warranty provision was an ad-hoc estimate without a scientific basis. He thus, classified provision as a contingent liability and disallowed. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. Tribunal held that assessee calculated provision for warranty expenses based on discounted cash flow (DCF) method, which considered inflow from solar project, five-year warranty period and discount rate of 14 per cent. Provision for warranty expenses made by assessee in a in a scientifically sound and consistent method which complied with AS-29. Disallowance is deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

Assessee, a corporate entity engaged in dredging and marine engineering services, claimed a provision for expected contract losses based on AS-7. Assessing Officer termed provision as contingent liability and accordingly, disallowed same. The CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that although actual billed revenue was less, assessee, following Percentage of Completion Method (POCM), recognized additional revenue and applied same method for costs. Further, as per AS-7, probable losses from contracts must be recognized immediately, and assessee complied by estimating losses and recognizing a portion as actual loss, with remainder as a provision for losses and provision was reversed in subsequent years based on updated estimates. On it could be said that provision constituted an ascertained liability/probable loss for assessee and was made on a scientific basis. Therefore provision would be an allowable deduction and question of adding same to Book-Profit would not arise. (AY. 2016-17)

624 S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-Depreciation-Temporarily suspension of business-Dormant for some times-Eligible to claim revenue expenditure and depreciation of fixed assets. [S. 32]
Assessee is engaged in business of generating, transmitting, distributing and supplying electricity. The AO held that assessee had not carried any business activities during current assessment year and since, no revenue had been claimed for same during year, no expenses could be allowed. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) allowed claim. On appeal the Tribunal held that since temporarily suspension of business of assessee was with a proper reason declared on record, assessee is eligible to claim revenue expenditure as well as relevant depreciation of fixed assets during current year. Followed, Laxmi Narayan Chettiar v. CIT(1994) 205 ITR 88(Cal)(HC), L. VE. Vairavan Chettiar v. CIT (1969) 72 ITR 114 (Mad)(HC) (AY. 2012-13)

Assessee claimed deduction for bad debts in profit and loss account, which Assessing Officer partially disallowed, classifying it as capital in nature and noting it had not been offered to tax in previous years, thus not meeting Section 36(2) conditions. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO.

On appeal, the Tribunal held that there is no allegation on behalf of lower authorities regarding those expenditure to be not genuine and moreover, Commissioner (Appeals) had not disposed of said ground in toto, which had caused prejudice to assessee. Therefore, issue is remanded to Commissioner (Appeals) to verify those expenditure and to consider claim of assessee in accordance with law.
Assessing Officer applied an adhoc 20% disallowance on staff welfare, marketing, conveyance, travel, and miscellaneous expenses. CIT(A) upheld the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that 20% disallowance is excessive and therefore, disallowance is reduced to 10%. (AY. 2016-17)

Held, that Explanation 2 to section 37 of the Act, put a restriction on deductibility of expenditure of any kind referred to under section 135 of the 2013 Act, i. e., corporate social responsibility expenses, with effect from the assessment year 2015-16. The corporate social responsibility expenses had been incurred by the assessee as per mandate of section 135 of the 2013 Act. Therefore, the assessee is not entitled to deduction and the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals) were upheld. As regards qualified Institutional placement expenses, matter is remanded for verification. (AY. 2015-16 to 2017-18)

Held that the payment made to the three sister concerns is not out of its own discretion exercised in favour of these sister concerns but one made due to obligation arising out of agreement. The expenditure of Rs. 2,19,42,019 to the three sister concerns of the assessee was revenue neutral as far as the group was concerned because one of the group entities had claimed the sum of Rs. 2,19,42,019 as business expenditure and the recipients of that sum which were also group companies had offered it, in the aggregate, as income. The Commissioner (Appeals) was correct to hold that adding it in the hands of the assessee would make it a case of double addition. The expenditure of Rs. 2,19,42,019 claimed as business expenditure by the assessee is justified. (AY. 2014-15)

631 S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Provisions for gratuity and leave encashment-Accounting Standard-15-Claimed only actual payment made to employees-Not to be reduced earlier year provisions from current profit and loss account. [S. 145]
Assessee-bank made annual provisions for gratuity and leave encashment based on total number of employees, following AS-15, without treating those as expenses in books. Those provisions were debited to employee benefits (Schedule 16) but were not claimed as actual expenses; only actual payments made to employees were claimed. At year-end, assessee deducted those provisions from Schedule 16, resulting in net expenses in profit and loss account. Assessing Officer held that those amounts did not pertain to current year and should not be reduced from profit and loss account. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that amount which was being debited to assessee's profit and loss account was after excluding provisions of gratuity and leave encashment and real expenses pertaining to assessment year under consideration were taken into account only. Therefore, findings of Assessing Officer that same amount did not pertain to year under consideration did not match with accounting treatment made by assessee-bank, and amount not to be reduced earlier year provisions from current profit and loss account. 632 S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Advertisement expenditure-Hospital-Unethical acts-Violation of provisions of Indian Medical Council Act, (professional conduct, Etiquette and Ethics) Regulations, 2002-Not allowable as deduction.
Assessing Officer disallowed the advertisement expenditure on ground that such expenses were categorized under unethical acts as per section 6. 1. 1 of Indian Medical Council (Professional Conduct, Etiquette and Ethics) Regulations, 2002. Commissioner (Appeal) restricted the disallowance to 50 percent of expenditure claimed by the. On appeal by assessee and cross objection by Revenue the Tribunal held that since assessee had violated provisions of Indian Medical Council Act (professional conduct, Etiquette and Ethics) Regulations, 2002, advertisement expenditure claimed by assessee cannot be allowed as business expenditure. Order of the AO is affirmed. (AY. 2018-19)

S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Robbery-Theft-Embezzlement-Business of gold-Loss arising from robbery-Incidental to normal business-Allowable as deduction. [S. 28(i)] 633
Assessee is engaged in business of gold. Assessing Officer disallowed the claim of loss with respect to robbery pertained to previous assessment year. The robbery loss was not debited to trading account in year ended 31-3-2014, as at initial stage robbers/ conspirators were apprehended and there was hope for recovery. Subsequently, assessee lost his hope and debited loss in profit and loss account for year ended 31-3-2015. The AO disallowed the loss. CIT(A) partly allowed the loss. On appeal the Tribunal held that loss due to embezzlement, theft, etc., is allowable deduction, if it could be proved to have arisen, out of carrying on of business and same must be incidental to it. Loss is directed to be allowed. (AY. 2015-16)

S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Provision for expenses-Unascertained liability-Not allowable as deduction. 634
Held that the assessee could not prove that the liability had arisen for the assessment year in question for services availed of in the course of the assessee's business. The provision could only be treated as unascertained liability, which had not crystallised during the assessment year under consideration. Therefore, the Assessing Officer and the Commissioner (Appeals) were justified in disallowing the provision for expenses. (AY. 2010-11, 2012-13, 2013-14, 2016-17, 2017-18)

S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Donation to trust for construction of statue of Sardar Vallabhai Patel former statesman-Enhancing brand value-Allowable as business expenditure. [S. 80G] 635 Held that as the agro products of the assessee were sold under the brand name "Sardar", which was very popular amongst the farming community, the assessee's contention that the statue of Sardar Vallabhai Patel would significantly enhance the brand value of its products and improve sales and exports, was justified. The expenditure was, therefore, wholly and exclusively for the purpose of business on account of commercial expediency and, accordingly, was allowable under section 37. Moreover, the funding was for the State Government. Relied on Dy. CIT v. Gujarat Narmada Valley Fertilizers Co Ltd (Tax Appeal Nos 770 of 1999, 77, 78 of 2008, dated May 6, 2011. (AY. 2011-12)

The assessee, engaged in trading sugar, had submitted complete audited books of accounts and explanations for the expenses. The Assessing Officer made disallowances on an ad hoc basis without rejecting the books, which the Tribunal found unjustified. The Tribunal deleted the disallowance related to various business expenses such as salary, interest, and administrative costs, noting that the accounts were duly audited, and no specific defects were pointed out by AO. Additionally, the AO had made an addition based on discrepancies in purchases from different suppliers. The Tribunal accepted the reconciliation provided by the assessee, explaining that the differences were due to accounting treatments of freight and timing issues. All disallowances are deleted. [S. 36(1)(va), 37(1), Expl. 1]

Held that the assessee having submitted that given an opportunity, the assessee was in a position to produce the copy of the resolution of the board of directors approving the treatment of the chairman of the company in the U. S. A. and also file a copy of the return of the chairman declaring such amount as perquisites, in the interest of justice, the issue was to be restored to the Assessing Officer with a direction to grant an opportunity to the assessee to file the requisite details to his satisfaction and decide the issue as per fact and law.

On second issue held that there was no infirmity in the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) allowing the payment of interest on customs duty as directed by the Supreme Court holding that the interest paid on customs duty was allowable as revenue expenditure and was not in contravention of Explanation 1 to section 37(1) of the Act The Tribunal also held that there was no infirmity in the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) disallowing the delayed payment of contributions to the provident fund. S. 37(1): Business expenditure-Sales promotion expenses-Disallowance is restricted to 15% based on earlier year. 640
Held that for earlier year the Tribunal restored the issue to the Assessing Officer for examination afresh. In the remand proceedings, the Assessing Officer made the disallowance of 15 per cent. of the expenditure and this had been accepted by the assessee. Since, the nature of the expenditure was similar to the preceding year, the Assessing Officer was to restrict the disallowance to 15 per cent. of the expenditure. (AY. 2013-14)

[S. 69C, 133(6), 145]

The assessee claimed expenses for infrastructure project purchases. The assessee was asked to prove the identity and creditworthiness of the vendors. The Assessing Officer issued notices under section 133(6) of the Income-tax Act, 1961, to vendors, some of whom responded. On the ground that the assessee did not verify the parties or provide vendor ledger confirmation, the Assessing Officer disallowed specific purchases, adding amounts for the assessment years 2009-10, 2010-11 and 2011-12. The Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the disallowance in respect of one party holding the purchase not genuine, citing missing permanent account number, Income-tax return and counter-signed ledger. The Commissioner (Appeals) in respect of the second party sustained the disallowance on the ground that the assessee did not deduct tax at source. The Assessing Officer also made additions based on loose sheets and diaries. The Commissioner (Appeals) limited the addition for the assessment year 2010-11 and sustained the entire addition for the assessment year 2011-12. The Assessing Officer made an addition on the basis of the difference between the value shown in the Departmental Valuation Officer's report and the value shown by the assessee in the books of account. This was sustained by the Commissioner (Appeals). On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had filed a copy of the taxpayer identification number of the supplier to prove the identity and existence of business concern. Therefore, simply because the assessee had not filed copies of the permanent account number or Income-tax returns, these purchases could not be treated as not genuine. That failure to deduct tax at source is not a valid reason for considering the purchases not genuine. That the Assessing Officer picked-up certain entries in the diary reflected as cash. The Assessing Officer had not made any sort of enquiry or any investigation to find out whether the entries appearing in the diary reflected that either the assessee had received the payments or made the payments though the names of the persons were clearly mentioned in the entries made in the loose sheets. There was no statement recorded from the assessee during the course of search vis-a-vis the seized material. The Assessing Officer did not undertake a proper investigation or verification and simply added the amounts from the diary as unexplained income. The Assessing Officer also did not verify the contention that the loose sheets were unrelated or meant for site purposes. Consequently matter is remanded. That following the Tribunal's order in favour of the assessee for the assessment years 2006-07 and 2007-08, once the assessee was maintaining regular books of account and in the course of its business the assessee had recorded the transactions in its books of account, then, without pointing out any defect in the books of account and without rejecting the books of account the Assessing Officer could not proceed to make addition on the basis of the Departmental Valuation Officer's report. [S. 32]

Held, that looking into the nature of expenses incurred by the assessee coupled with the fact that the Department had not brought anything on record to show that any capital asset of enduring nature was brought into existence, the claim of the assessee on expenses incurred on preliminary drilling expenditure was to be allowed. Held, that the expenditure qualified as revenue expenditure and may be allowed as revenue expenditure. The other sundry expenses may also be allowed as revenue expenditure since no capital asset of enduring nature was brought into existence. However, expenses towards purchase of furniture and fixtures for the new office had been incurred for purchase of capital assets and were in the nature of capital expenses. These could not be allowed as revenue expenditure in the hands of the assessee. However, the Assessing Officer was to allow depreciation on such fixed assets in accordance with law after carrying out the necessary verification. Held that the expenses had been incurred primarily to bring into existence a new capital asset and did not qualify as being revenue in nature. They were not allowable. However, the assessee was entitled to claim depreciation on such expenses. Expenditure on repairs and maintenance of leased premises is allowable as revenue expenditure. (AY. 2007-08, 2008-09)

Held that from the assessment years of 2007-08 to 2011-12, the assessee had offered income from carbon credits amounting to Rs. 3,09,67,422 and the Department had accepted it as other income. Now the assessee wrote off this amount due to non-recognition of the project. The same treatment which was given by the Department to the income of the assessee on carbon credits during the last five years had to be given by the Department. Accordingly, the Assessing Officer was to re-examine this issue of disallowance on carbon credits. Held that the prior period expenditure could not be allowed in assessing the income of a particular year. The assessee did not make provision in respect of prior period expenses nor filed revised return. (AY. 2012-13)

[S. 36(1)(v), Form No 3CD]

Held, allowing the appeal, that during all these years, that the assessee had been making payments to the Life Insurance Corporation of India towards group gratuity scheme and claimed it as deduction. Its employees also received payments from the Life Insurance Corporation for their gratuity as and when the occasion arose. Rule 5 of Part C of the Fourth Schedule to the Income-tax Act, 1961 provides for treating gratuity fund to an employee during his lifetime as salary paid to the employee for the purpose of this Act. It was an undisputed fact that the assessee had applied for the approval of the gratuity fund in the year 2002 which remained pending with the Department without any justifiable reasons. The approval had been granted by the Principal Commissioner by order dated October 4, 2023 with effect from January 3, 2023. The assessee could not be put to an adverse situation when it had taken all the required steps for the compliance prescribed under the Act and the Rules. The Life Insurance Corporation had paid gratuity fund to the employees of the assessee in the past. In the preceding assessment year 2011-12, the Commissioner (Appeals) dealt with the same issue and allowed the assessee's claim. Accordingly, on the facts of the case, applying the principles of reasonable construction for giving effect to the purpose and intention of the provisions of the Act, coupled with rule 5 of Part C of the Fourth Schedule wherein gratuity was treated as salary which was an allowable expense under section 37(1) of the Act, it was proper to allow the claim of the assessee. [S. 145] 657

Assessee had created a provision for expenses incurring for treatment of disposal of effluent waste and provision for processing charges. Assessing Officer added provision credit for effluent waste and disposal and for processing of charges. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the amount had been credited back in subsequent assessment year as income. Therefore even if provision was to be disallowed in assessment year 2010-11, then in subsequent year once assessee had credited back and offered as income then same could not be taxed again in impugned assessment year and, accordingly, Assessing Officer is directed to verify said account and if assessee had written back and credited to income then he should give consequential relief in assessment year 2011-12 and not to tax same amount in next year.
Tribunal also held that provision made for loss of sales return, being an expenditure which was not crystallized and was an anticipated loss, could not be allowed as deduction. (AY. 2010-11, 2011-12, 2017-18)

Assessee, a producer company, paid certain gifts to milk producers who were also members of assessee-company in order to retain them in business, said expenditure was in nature of business promotion and, thus, same is to be allowed as deduction.
The assessee debited an expenditure towards limited return on share capital which was calculated at 1% of share capital. CIT(A) allowed the claim of assessee. During year, assessee claimed expenses under head product development expenses. Assessing Officer held that expenses were incurred for product development which would give enduring benefit to assessee and, accordingly, he disallowed same. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that none of expenditure incurred thereon would give any enduring benefit to assessee. All these expenditure were genuine regular revenue expenditure incurred by assessee. Assessee had been using its own employees and material regularly purchased for its manufacturing facilities on proportionate basis for purpose of development of new product and, thus, said expenditure is purely revenue in nature. Held that liquidated damages were paid by assessee only as part of non-fulfillment of contractual obligation as per terms of contract with customers and, hence, same were to be allowed as expenditure. Assessee had incurred an expenditure under its Trip Scheme for its dealers. Assessing Officer disallowed expenditure on basis that entire trip of dealers was not for business purposes. Tribunal held that in assessee's own case for preceding assessment years had deleted similar disallowance holding that entire trip scheme was for purpose of expanding assessee's business by encouraging dealers and distributors to achieve a specific target of purchase and, thus, scheme was closely linked to assessee's business activity. Following decision of Tribunal disallowance is rightly deleted by Commissioner (Appeals). (AY. 2014-15)

S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-Penalty –Prior period expenses-Crystallized in year under consideration-Breach of contract-Can not be equated with offence, or something prohibited by law-Entitle to deduction. [Explanation to section 37, S. 145] 664
Assessee-company was engaged in activities of operating and maintenance of roads. It claimed deduction on account of damages paid to NHAI as business expenditure. Assessing Officer held that said expenditure was representing penalty and held that such a penalty could not be allowed as deduction under Explanation to section 37(1). Assessing Officer also found that such damage charges were pertaining to earlier year and, therefore, same could not be allowed as deduction on this count as well, being prior period expenses. CIT(A) deleted the disallowances. On appeal the Tribunal held that since provision of Explanation 1 to section 37(1) excludes allowing deduction of expenditure incurred for purpose which is an offence or prohibited by law and however penalty had been paid by assessee on account of breach of contract which could not be equated with offence, or something prohibited by law, assessee was entitled to deduction under section 37(1). Further, since amount of damage crystallized in year under consideration, it could not be said that such damages were prior period expenses. (AY. 2018-19)

S. 37(1) : Business expenditure-Capital or revenue-Land development expenditure is allowable as revenue expenditure 665
During year, assessee-company claimed expenditure on account of land development expenditure. Assessing Officer disallowed claim of assessee on ground claim under section 37(1) could not be allowed unless business operation starts. Tribunal held that since Assessing Officer had already accepted in earlier assessment year that business activity of assessee had commenced, then Assessing Officer could not take a different stand in impugned year. Therefore, land development expenditure is allowable under provisions of section 37(1) as revenue expenditure. (AY. 2013-14)

[S. 9(1)(vi), 195, 260A] 670

Assessee, a multinational company, had made reimbursement to non-residents associated enterprises (AEs). Assessing Officer held that said payment would fall within purview of section 9(1)(vii) and were therefore taxable in India as fee for technical services (FTS). Accordingly, he made disallowance under section 40(a)(i) on account of non-deduction of tax under section 195 on reimbursement of expenses. Commissioner (Appeals) and Tribunal deleted disallowance. On appeal the court held that since Revenue was not able to establish that said remitted fee would fall within ambit of any technical, managerial or consultative service that had been rendered, no substantial question of law arose for consideration.

S. 40(a)(i) : Amounts not deductible-Deduction at source-Non-resident –Non-Resident had no Permanent Establishment in India-Non-discrimination clause in Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement applicable-Disallowance is not justified-Provisions of agreement more beneficial to assessee is applicable-DTAA-India-Japan-United States of America. [S. 9O, 195, Art. 24(3), 26(3)] 671

The Assessing Officer disallowed payments made by the assessee concerning purchases from seven group companies as tax at source had not been deducted by the assessee on the payments on the ground that they were chargeable to tax in India. Five of the group companies were residents of Japan and the United States of America, while two were residents of Singapore and Thailand, respectively. The conclusion reached by the Assessing Officer about the taxability of the payments made by the assessee in India was based on the rationale that since MC Japan (one of the group companies) had acquiesced in the jurisdiction of the Revenue as it had a liaison office located in India, which was treated as its permanent establishment, the business model of the remaining group companies being identical, they would stand on the same footing. In other words, the Assessing Officer concluded that all seven group companies had permanent establishments in India. The Assessing Officer passed a draft assessment order on December 31, 2009. By order dated September 30, 2010, the Dispute Resolution Panel sustained the addition, which resulted in the final assessment order dated October 25, 2010 being passed under section 143(3) / 144C of the Act. On appeal to the High Court on the questions whether the Tribunal fell into error in holding that section 40(a)(i) of the Act, 1961 could not be applied in view of the "non-discrimination" provisions in article 24(3) of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement between Indian and Japan1, and article 26(3) of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement between India and the United States of America2, and whether the Tribunal fell in error in reversing the findings of the Dispute Resolution Panel with respect to the existence of the permanent establishments in India, there was a difference of opinion between the judges who comprised the Division Bench. The matter was referred to a third judge. The third judge held that on the facts Non-Resident had no Permanent Establishment in India-Non-discrimination clause in Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement applicable. Disallowance is not justified. Provisions of agreement more beneficial to assessee is applicable. Order of Tribunal is affirmed. (AY. 2006-07)

Assessee availed certain services from its AE and paid management fee to it's AE. Assessing Officer treated said services as technical service and made disallowance under section 40(a)(i) for non-deduction of TDS on said payment. Tribunal deleted said disallowance on ground that Assessing Officer had failed to list out highly technical services that were provided by AE to assessee and Assessing Officer failed to allude to relevant clause of agreement which demonstrated that expertise available with AE was made available to assessee. On writ, assessee had assailed not only notice under section 201 but also consequent proceedings whereby assessee's objections qua impugned notice were rejected. Court held that since Tribunal had deleted addition on merits, necessary consequence would be that both impugned notice and impugned proceedings would have to be set aside

During years under consideration, assessee had paid commission on exports to various non-residents agents in order to promote assessee's sales in their respective country. Assessing Officer held that these payments were subject to TDS under section 195 and since no TDS had been deducted, disallowance was made under section 40(a)(i). Commissioner (Appeals) deleted addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that services were rendered outside India and payment of commission was done directly to agents abroad in foreign currency through banking channels. Nothing had been brought on record by Department that there was any business connection of agents in India, nor have services rendered been shown to be services technical in nature. Assessee is engaged in business of providing software support and development services and ITeS. It had paid sales commission to its US subsidiary towards selling and marketing services and had not deducted TDS on same. Assessing Officer held that said payment was towards FTS since 85 per cent of revenue of assessee was generated from exports and made disallowance of sales commission under section 40(a)(i) for reason that assessee had not deducted tax at source on said amount under section 195. CIT(A) deleted the disallowance. The Tribunal held that in assessee's own case for earlier assessment years, Tribunal held that sales and marketing services would not fall within ambit of FTS as defined under section 9(1)(vii) or under article 12 of DTAA between India and USA. There is no liability to deduct tax towards sales commission paid by assessee to its US subsidiary and, accordingly, no dis-allowance was warranted under section 40(a)(i). The Dispute Resolution Panel had also observed that the agreements with overseas agent did not signify that any quality checks of the products were carried out by foreign commission agents. Thus, in the absence of any services of technical nature, the commission payments to selling agents outside India were outside the ambit of provisions of section 9(1)(vii) read with section 5 of the Act. The property in goods was transferred in overseas jurisdiction. When the overseas agents were paid commission for securing orders, and such services were utilised for the purpose of making or earning income from a source outside India, the assessee is under no obligation to comply with provisions of section 195 of the Act for the reasons that commission paid to overseas agents was not taxable under the Act. Assessee, Indian company, entered in Teaming agreement with non-resident entity for availing software training services outside India. It had paid certain amount of consideration for same. Accordingly, he made an addition under section 40(a)(i) on ground of non-deduction of tax at source under section 195. On appeal the Tribunal held that since work order was issued outside India for making an income from a source outside India, amount paid being by assessee was covered under exception provided in section 9(1)(vii)(b) hence the

S. 40(a)(i) : Amounts not deductible-Deduction at source-Non-resident-Services rendered out side India-Not liable to deduct tax at source-Order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed. [S. 9(1)(vii), 195] 684
Held that the contract between the assessee and AU showed that the payment made by the assessee was directly related to services rendered to customers outside India and income earned therefrom formed part of the assessee's business. Therefore, it fell under the category of services utilised for a business or profession carried on by such person outside India. The services were carried on outside India by a non-resident for offshore customers because the assessee's customers were situated outside India and services were utilised for earning income from sources outside India. Therefore, the second part of the exception under section 9(1)(vii) was also satisfied. The services were not rendered in India, the person to whom the payment was made was a non-resident and finally the amount paid was a business income of the recipient, who did not have any permanent establishment in India. Therefore, payment made to the non-resident towards services rendered in connection with installation and testing services was not chargeable to tax in India as it was covered under the exception to section 9(1)(vii). Section 195 was not attracted and the question of disallowance under section 40(a)(i) did not arise. The Assessing Officer erred in contending that there should be a permanent establishment or branch office outside India to come under the purview of the exception under section 9(1)(vii)(b), which nowhere mentioned to that effect. Therefore, payment made to a non-resident for rendering contract services outside India came under section 9(1)(vii)(b) and, thus, was not chargeable to tax in India. Hence, the assessee need not deduct tax at source under section 195 on such payment. Consequently, the payment could not be disallowed under section 40(a)(i). As a result, the Commissioner (Appeals) had rightly deleted the additions made by the Assessing Officer. (AY. 2010-11, 2012-13, 2013-14, 2016-17, 2017-18)

Held, that, the payments made by the branch office to the head office were reimbursements on a cost-to-cost basis without any mark-up of salary cost of the expatriate employees working in the branch office in India. The entire salary payments made to the expatriate employees in India as well as outside India have been subject to deduction of TDS u/s. 192 of the Act which fact had been corroborated by Form 16 issued to the expatriate employees. The assessee had duly filed its return of income in India in respect of its business income attributable to its branch office in India. No record was brought by the AO to show that the head office had provided any technical services to the branch office and in consequence thereof has paid fees for technical services. The expatriate employees have been working for the branch office under its complete supervision for many years and have become residents of India by virtue of their continuous stay for many years in India. Where the assessee had deducted the tax at source under section 192 of the Act and deposited it in the Government account within the specified time as prescribed under the Act, the provisions of s. 40(a)(i) of the Act were not applicable. The disallowance of salary cost reimbursement by the branch office to the head office by the AO u/s. 40(a)(i) was not justified as tax had been duly deducted at source on the entire salary payments to the expatriate employees and deposited in the Government account within the prescribed time limit. Assessee-company made payment to overseas parties as shipment clearing and forwarding charges. Assessing Officer held that as per terms of contract between them, assessee was provided with information regarding tariff which would have influenced decision making process and, thus, such services fell under category of consultancy services and payments made to parties were liable for deduction of tax at source. AO invoked provisions of section 40(a)(i) and disallowed payment. Commissioner (Appeals) held that payment received by overseas parties neither fell under section 9(1) nor under section 9(1)(vii) and since income could not be described as deemed to accrue or arise in India, taxability of such amount failed and, accordingly, deleted disallowance. Assessee had incurred expenses on account of advertisement, sales promotion and clinical trial Assessing Officer made an disallowance under section 40(a)(i) on ground that assessee had not deducted TDS on same. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal it was found that in some case, limit for TDS was less. Further, in case of advertisement expenses paid to one foreign entity, it was observed that this entity did not have any business connection or PE in India, then ostensibly same could not be subjected to TDS and, therefore, same should have removed from disallowance. Regarding these details of expenses and also whether these parties have offered it for tax, assessee had to comply with conditions provided in proviso 201(1). Therefore, entire matter of disallowance made under section 40(a)(i) was to be remanded back to Assessing Officer to examine applicability of proviso to section 201(1) and whether in few cases TDS was required to be deducted or not. The assessee is in the business of transportation. It made an aggregate payment in excess of Rs. 50,000 in a single assessment year towards freight charges to various truck owners and operators without deducting tax at source on such payments as mandated under the provisions of section 194C of the Income-tax Act, 1961. The assessing authority disallowed certain amounts and the Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the order of the Assessing Officer. The Tribunal however held that the disallowance was not justified. On appeal the High Court held that the disallowance was justified and that the Tribunal had erred in inferring that only where there was a sub-contract in writing the provisions of the Act can be invoked and in holding in favour of the assessee, when no evidence was placed before it. On a petition by the assessee SLP granted. (AY. 2005-06)

[S. 9(1)(vii), 195, 260A] 696

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the Tribunal was right in deleting the disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) because the amendment to section 9 had not been passed at the relevant point of time and the assessee was not liable to deduct the taxes when the assessee had made the payments to non-residents towards the charges for sampling and analysis of cargo at destination port and for professional and consultancy fees. Relied on Engineering Analysis Centre of Excellence (P) Ltd. D. CIT [2021] 432 ITR 471 (SC), (2022) 3 SCC 321, the Supreme Court held that the two Latin maxims are applicable in all cases-lex non cogit ad impossibbilia. i.e. the law does not demand the impossible and impotentia excusat legem, i.e. when there is a disability that makes it impossible to obey the law, the alleged disobedience of the law is excused. 697 S. 40(a)(ia) : Amounts not deductible-Deduction at source-Payments to Non-Resident-No part of income arose or accrued in India-No tax deductible at source-Deletion of disallowance is affirmed. [S. 260A]

The Assessing Officer disallowed foreign commission payments in a sum of Rs. 5.05 lakhs under section 40(a)(ia) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 on the ground that the assessee had not deducted tax at source thereon. The Tribunal recorded that the non-resident agent of the assessee was operating at his own level and no part of the income arose or accrued in India hence the assessee was not liable to deduct tax at source. Order of Tribunal is affirmed.

PCIT v. MGM Exports (2024) 464 ITR 590 (Guj)(HC)

698 S. 40(a)(ia): Amounts not deductible-Deduction at source-Amounts paid for services of employees of parent company-No Evidence that amount was reimbursement of actual expenditure as such services by parent company-Disallowance is affirmed.

The assessees had submitted that the amounts were paid as reimbursement of the exact amount of salary disbursed by the companies, which did not attract the element of income; that incentive payments were made directly to such employees; and hence, no tax was deducted at source. However no evidence was produced by the assessees to prove that payments made to group companies were reimbursement of actual expenditure and there was no profit element involved in the amount representing incentive paid to the employees. The disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) was justified. The amendment restricting the disallowance to 30 per cent. of the expenditure, came into effect only from April 1, 2015 and the assessment year under consideration was 2012-13 and hence, the amendment was not applicable to the case of the assessee. Accordingly, the alternative plea raised by the assessee was rejected by the Tribunal. The view of the Tribunal was just and proper and needed no interference by the court. (AY. 2003-04 to 2014-15)

Held, that admittedly, the assessee had reversed the provision on the first day of the next previous year. As the payer and the payee were identified, the nature of services was also ascertained and the amount of liability determined, there was no reason why the tax should not have been deducted thereon. Only in those circumstances provisions of section 40(a)(ia) of the Act would apply. However, if the assessee paid such tax on or before the due date specified under section 139(1) of the Act, no disallowance could be made. Even if it was accepted that tax should have been deducted, the assessee has subsequently deposited the impugned amount of tax deducted on or before the due date under section 139(1) of the Act for the year in which provision was made. As the assessee had complied with that condition, for different reasons, the addition could not be sustained. (AY. 2014-15)

S. 40(a)(ia): Amounts not deductible-Deduction at source-Only interest and not principal-Form No 26A filed-Delay is condoned-Matter remanded. [S. 194A, 201(1)] 709
Held that the Assessing Officer had made an addition of Rs. 17,20,760 which included the principal amount and interest. The provisions of section 40(a)(ia) of the Act provided for disallowance only of the interest and not the principal. Therefore, the principal amount could not be subjected to disallowance and the Assessing Officer was to allow this sum. As regards the balance amount in terms of section 201(1), if the assessee filed the correct form 26A within 60 days from the receipt of the order the Assessing Officer may allow the claim of the assessee in accordance with law condoning the delay in filing form 26A. S. 40(a)(ia): Amounts not deductible-Deduction at source-Services rendered by parties-Bills were raised in next year-Payees were not identifiable-Voluntarily disallowed of expenses would not automatically enable Assessing Officer to treat it as assessee in default-Cannot be treated as assessee in default. [S. 201(1), 201(IA)] 711
Held that once there is a categorical finding that the assessee had not credited the corresponding liability for expenses to the account of the concerned vendors who had rendered the services, the payees become non-identifiable and hence there was no question of applicability of provisions requiring tax deduction at source thereon. Merely because the assessee had voluntarily disallowed the expenses under section 40(a)(ia) of the Act in the return, they would not automatically enable the Assessing Officer to treat it as assessee in default under section 201(1) of the Act and consequentially levy interest under section 201(1A) of the Act. The provisions of section 40(a)(ia) and section 201(1) and (1A) of the Act are mutually exclusive. In any case, there was no estoppel against the statute. The assessee could not be treated as assessee in default under section 201(1) of the Act and no interest was chargeable under section 201(1A) of the Act. (AY. 2012-13)

Assessee entered into merchant agreement with various hotels for facilitating reservation/ booking of hotel rooms through platform of assessee. Assessee assured minimum benchmarks/occupancy of hotel and in case such benchmark was exceeded then service fee was payable by hotel and in case of shortfall assessee was required to meet same. Assessee filed its return of income declaring loss of Rs. 30 crores. During scrutiny assessment, addition of Rs. 1.09 crores was made under section 40(a)(ia) for non-deduction of tax at source either under section 194-I or 194C on minimum guarantee expense of Rs. 3.62 crores. Commissioner(Appeals) held that such payments were not rent, however, upheld disallowance for non-deduction of tax under section 194C. Tribunal held that provisions of section 194C provide that any person responsible for paying any sum to any resident for carrying out any work in pursuance of a contract between contractor and a specified person shall deduct tax on sum paid or credited to account of contractor, sine qua non for applicability of this provision is carrying out any work. However, since assessee is merely compensating shortfall pursuant to agreement and no work had been carried out, assessee would not be liable for TDS under section 194C on minimum guarantee payments made to hotels. Assessee, a co-operative sugar factory, purchased sugarcane at a price higher than Statutory Minimum Price (SMP) set by Central Government, based on State Advised Price (SAP). Assessing Officer disallowed excess amount and Khodki charges, citing profit diversion under section 40A(2)(a). Tribunal held that section 40A(2)(a) did not apply to co-operative societies, additional payments over SMP were allowable under section 37(1). High Court held that issue raised in this appeal was covered by Judgment of this Court in case of CIT v. Manjara Shetkari Sahakari Sakhar Karkhana Ltd. [2008] 166 Taxman 287/301 ITR 191. Against said order revenue filed instant appeal-Supreme Court in *CIT v. Tasgaon Taluka S. S. K. Ltd. S. 40A(2): Expenses or payments not deductible-Excessive or unreasonable-Service charges paid to group company-Common management services-Disallowance is deleted. 718

Held that BL had not charged any mark-up and was assessed at nil on the principle of mutuality. If the services had been availed of in the relevant assessment year, the charges paid to BL would be allowable. The assessee not only received sundry managerial services from BL but also furnished, by way of additional evidence, sample evidence of receipt of such services. Similar evidence was filed in the earlier assessment year, which was accepted by the first appellate authority, who allowed the deduction. Thus, payment made to BL for rendering service could not be disallowed in terms of section 40A(2). (AY. 2003-04)

722 S. 40A(3) : Expenses or payments not deductible-Cash payments exceeding prescribed limits- SLP of Revenue is dismissed on account of delay in filing the petition. [Art. 136]
Assessing Officer invoked section 40A(3) on ground that assessee purchased stock-in-trade other than by account payee cheque or bank draft. Tribunal held that word 'payment' was to be read in conjunction with expression 'in a sum exceeding 20,000 rupees as contained in section 40A(3) and when an expenditure was incurred for which payment was not made in cash or monetary terms, provisions of section 40A(3) would have no application. High Court held that Tribunal was justified in holding that provision of section 40A(3) could not be invoked.

SLP of Revenue is dismissed on the ground that there was gross delay of 521 days in filing this special leave petition and since explanation offered was not sufficient in law so as to condone delay. (AY. 2007-08)

S. 40A(3) :Expenses or payments not deductible-Cash payments exceeding prescribed limits-Payment to supervisors-Disbursement to workers-Payment made by the supervisors had not exceeded Rs. 20,000 to any individual labour-Disallowance is directed to be deleted. [S. 260A, R. 66DD(i), Indian Contract Act, S. 182, 185, 186, 188, 211] 723

Allowing the appeal of the assessee the Court the Assessing Officer has nowhere disputed the stand of the assessee supported by books of account that the supervisors are employees of the assessee. Tribunal recorded a finding based on surmise and presumption that the supervisors are nothing but sub-contractors of the assessee. Assessee withdrew amount from his bank account through his employees i. e., supervisors for disbursement to individual labourers and the supervisors gave an account of the money so received for payment to labourers. Thus, the assessee is principal and supervisors acted as agent of assessee. Payment made by the supervisors had not exceeded Rs. 20,000 to any individual labour. In view of the circumstances prescribed in the second proviso to S. 40A(3) r/w r. 6DD(l), disallowance was not sustainable. (AY. 2006-07)

S. 40A(3) : Expenses or payments not deductible-Cash payments exceeding prescribed limits-Purchases of amount exceeding Rs. 20, 000, on a single day-Failure to produce bills-Disallowance made by Assessing Officer of 20 per cent of cash payments is affirmed. [R. 6DD, 260A] 724

The assessee is a government contractor, cash book of the assessee showed that during year he made cash payments exceeding Rs. 20,000 on a single day for material purchased. Assessee contended before Assessing Officer that though cash book showed payments exceeding Rs. 20,000 in cash on a single day for material purchased, day book clearly bifurcated same based on truck loads of material received, which indicated payment having been made individually to truck drivers and none of which single payment exceeded Rs. 20,000. Assessing Officer held that no substantiating bills or vouchers had been produced by hence disallowed 20 per cent of cash payments by invoking provisions of section 40A(3). Tribunal affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Court held that since assessee had not shown as to whether supplies were sourced from different persons and had not produced any supporting bills or vouchers, which lead to only a reasonable inference that amounts were paid to supplier in lump sum for material delivered on a single day. Order of Tribunal is affirmed. (AY. 2004-05)

725 S. 40A(3) : Expenses or payments not deductible-Cash payments exceeding prescribed limits-No payments for purchase of shares made in cash-Disallowance is not attracted. [S. 255(4), 260A]

The Commissioner (Appeals) considered the nature of transaction and held that the Assessing Officer was not justified in considering the property in question to be stock-in-trade and held that section 40A(3) was not attracted. On appeal by the Department before the Tribunal, there was a difference of opinion between the Members who heard the appeal. Consequently, the President of the Tribunal in his power under section 255(4) referred the matter to the Third Member who affirmed the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals) holding that when an expenditure was incurred for which payment was not made in cash or monetary terms, the provisions would have no application. On appeal dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the Department did not state that any cash transaction took place. There was no perversity in the order passed by the Third Member of the Tribunal in agreement with the Accountant Member that the provisions of section 40A(3) were not applicable. (AY. 2007-08)

726 S. 40A(3) : Expenses or payments not deductible-Cash payments exceeding prescribed limits-Genuineness of transaction was in doubt-Order of Tribunal is affirmed. [R. 6DD(j)]

Appeal of the assessee dismissed by the Delhi High Court and disallowance u/s. 40A(3) of the Act upheld as the assessee had made purchases in cash and could not substantiate the genuineness of the transaction. Assessee made payment of purchases through bearer cheques to 3 suppliers and filed confirmations from suppliers which were undated and were bearing identical language. As a matter of fact, Tribunal noted that this brought genuineness of the transaction into serious doubt. High Court observed that even though the assessee was a new entrant in the business, as it was mentioned in the confirmations obtained from the suppliers, assessee could have made payment to allay concerns through bank drafts or through other banking channel. Assessee relied on CBDT Circular No. 220 dated 31.05.1977 and submitted that case of the assessee falls under Rule 6DD(j). High Court held that from AY 2009-10, Rule 6DD has been substituted vide Notification No. 97/2008 dated 10.10.2008. Even claim was not allowable as per CBDT Circular 220 dated 31.05.1977, as the assessee could not substantiate the genuineness of the transaction, which is required as per said CBDT Circular. High Court upheld the view of the Tribunal. (AY. 2013-14)

Assessee paid rent of four godowns in cash. Assessing Officer disallowed said payment under section 40A(3). CIT(A) up held the order of the Assessing Officer. Before the Tribunal the assessee submitted that respective payments made towards rent of four godowns were lower than Rs. 10,000 each, therefore, no disallowance of same could have been made in absence of violation of mandate of section 40A(3). Matter is remanded back to Assessing Officer for verification. Assessee paid electricity charges in cash to a State Government undertaking-Assessing Officer disallowed same under section 40A(3) which was affirmed by the CIT(A). The Hon. Court held that Section 40A(9) has no application to the facts of the case. The Tribunal was justified in law in deleting the disallowance made by the Assessing Officer. Further the payments made in the facts of this case were not payments required to be made under the Industrial Disputes Act or payment required by or under any other law, but the same is irrelevant for the matter at hand since Section 40A(9) was not at all attracted. Unless it was attracted, there was no necessity to rely on the exception in that section in relation to payments required to be made or under any law. (AY. 1987-88 and 1988-89)

[S. 28(iv)] 736

Assessee received certain amount as advance from 'M' against project to be carried out during year 2001-02 but said project could not be implemented. However, amount was not returned by assessee due to financial constraints Assessing Officer invoked provisions of section 41(1) on ground that there was cessation of liability as same had ceased to exist and that assessee had reinvested amount received as advance in shares of group companies of 'M' which was later on sold at loss and such capital loss was never claimed as set-off by assessee. He further invoked provisions of section 28(iv) to add aforesaid amount as income of assessee. Tribunal deleted the addition. On appeal the Court held that the assessee never received any benefit or enjoyed money that it had received as an advance and, therefore, no benefit was derived out of said transactions as admitted by Assessing Officer in assessment order. Finding of fact provisions of section 41(1) read with section 28(iv) would not be applicable. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 41(1) : Profits chargeable to tax-Remission or cessation of trading liability-Deletion of addition on facts-No substantial question of law. [S. 37(1), 143(3), 260A] 737

Dismissing the appeal the Court held that from the facts it was clear that the additions under section 41(1) were made for the differences which arose only on account of book entries. Admittedly, the assessee had actually made the payment in a later year and the party had accounted receipt in the same financial year which resulted in the differences in the balance as added by the Assessing Officer. Since the difference had been explained and was only on account of the book entries, the Tribunal was right in deleting the addition to income. No question of law arose from its order. (AY. 2012-13)

Assessing Officer held that trading liability from which benefit arose to assessee was outstanding for more than 3 years and therefore, he added same to total income of assessee under provisions of section 41(1). CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had continued to show liability in books of account as payable and there was no material on record which could suggest that parties had waived off right to recover such outstanding amount from assessee, addition made by Assessing Officer was rightly deleted by Commissioner (Appeals). 742 S. 42 : Business for prospecting-Mineral oil-Production Sharing Contracts with Government of India-Commissioner (Appeals) is justified in directing Assessing Officer to allow entire expenses claimed in C Block and K Block. [S. 37(1)]
Held that for the purposes of section 42, the terms of the agreement shall prevail for allowing deduction of expenses specified in the agreement. The option to claim expenses incurred prior to the date of commercial production in ten instalments was available only in K block, and not in the C block. According to the production sharing contracts in the C block, expenditure incurred prior to the commercial production shall be aggregated and the loss so assessed as well as loss, if any, incurred in the assessment year relevant to the year in which commercial production commences or in any subsequent assessment year shall be carried forward to succeeding assessment years for being set off as provided in the Income-tax Act. Accordingly, in the absence of any clause for allowing expenses in instalments in C block, the Assessing Officer was not justified in restricting the deduction to 10 per cent. of expenses claimed by the assessee. The Commissioner (Appeals) is justified in directing the Assessing Officer to allow entire expenses claimed in the C block. That in respect of the K block, the Commissioner (Appeals) had given a categorical finding that all the expenses claimed by the assessee had been incurred post commercial production. According to the production sharing contracts of the K block, the option to claim expenses in instalments was available to the expenses incurred prior to the date of commercial production. Since, the expenses in question were post commercial production expenses, the clause would not apply. Accordingly, the Commissioner (Appeals) is justified in directing the Assessing Officer to allow the entire expenses claimed in the K block. (AY. 2017-18, 2018-19)

The assessee was engaged in the business of manufacture and trading of dress and other materials. The assessee sold such goods through export also. On such export sales, there was a possibility of the foreign remittances being delayed for a variety of reasons. The assessee would therefore be exposed to foreign exchange fluctuation risks. To protect itself or at least to minimise the risk, the assessee entered into contracts with the bank. The Assessing Officer was of the opinion that such hedging contracts were speculative in nature and the expenditure incurred in the process was not an allowable deduction. The Commissioner (Appeals) as well as the Tribunal reversed this decision. High Court affirmed the order of the Tribunal.

S. 43(5) : Speculative transaction-High sea sales-Buying and selling edible oil-Final and physical delivery of goods had been taken by end user at port of destination after compliance with all customs formalities-Set off against interest income-Transactions cannot be termed as speculative transaction. [S. 73(1)] 745 Assessing Officer held transaction of buying and selling edible oil via high sea sales, assessee did not physically receive oil at port of delivery in India hence treated as speculative. The AO disallowed set-off of loss against interest income, claiming it was not permissible under Section 73(1). CIT(A) allowed the claim of the assessee. On appeal the Revenue contended that in transaction of buying and selling edible oil via high sea sales, assessee did not physically receive oil at port of delivery in India. Instead, ultimate purchaser took delivery and paid customs duty. Consequently, revenue argued that this transaction fell under speculative transaction as per provisions of Section 43(5). Tribunal held that goods were purchased by importer from a foreign seller and loaded onto a ship. Assessee then bought goods while in transit on high seas and sold them by transferring title documents, including sale invoice and High Seas sales agreement, to ultimate buyer and buyer took physical delivery at port in India, complying with all customs formalities. Therefore it could be said that ultimate settlement of transactions entered into by assessee took place by actual delivery of goods to ultimate buyer and thus transactions of sale and purchase in instant case did not fall within provisions of section 43(5) and were not speculative transactions. Order of the CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2015-16)

[S. 37(1), 260A]. 748

In an appeal preferred by the Revenue, the Hon'ble Bombay High Court had to decide on questions relating to the allowability of foreign exchange losses towards loans taken at the touchstone of section 43A of the Act. However, the Hon'ble Court observed that the foreign exchange losses must also be considered at the touchstone of section 37(1) of the Act, upon which there was no deliberation by the Tribunal. The controversy dealt with by the Tribunal was about the scope of section 43A but it was also important for the Tribunal to have examined whether the expenditure would qualify as revenue expenditure for purposes of section 37(1) of the Act and whether it can be stated conclusively that such expenditure cannot be regarded as capital expenditure. In absence of analysis from the Tribunal, the matter was accordingly remanded back to the Tribunal for effective adjudication on this issue. (AY. 2009-10)

Held that the Assessing Officer had made disallowance of the exchange fluctuation under section 37 only for the reason that external commercial borrowing loans were utilised for the purpose of acquiring capital asset, which has enduring benefit. However, the Commissioner (Appeals) had made the disallowance by relying on section 43A. On appeal the Tribunal held that the disallowances under section 37 and under section 43A operate in different spheres. Section 43A is a deeming provision for adding or deducting the fluctuation loss or profit from the cost of the asset whereas disallowance under section 37 is for the reason that capital expenditure was specifically disallowed. There was merely reinstatement of losses per Accounting Standards without actual payment or remittance so as to invoke section 43A. Except for the assessment year in question, the reinstatement of income or loss from fluctuation of currency had been accepted in terms of the accounting done by the assessee. Therefore, the additional grounds were to be admitted. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2014-15)

Held, that there was no dispute that the assessee was entitled to the benefit of section 43B of the Income-tax Act, 1961. In the context of section 43B of the Act, apart from entitlement, the assessee was duty bound to produce the certificate showing proof of payment which the assessee claims by way of adjustment on August 21, 1990. Direction to assessee to produce the certificate before the Assessing Officer within four weeks and Assessing Officer to take certificate on record and decide the matter in accordance with law. 752 S. 43B : Deductions on actual payment-LIC Mutual Fund purchased unsecured debentures of assessee-company-Interest on unsecured debenture payable by assessee to LIC Mutual Fund is not covered by section 43B-Allowable as deduction. [S. 37(1), Companies Act 1956, S. 4A, The Securities and Exchange Board of India (Mutual Funds) Regulations, 1996 (SEBI Mutual Funds Regulations), clause 2(q), Life Insurance Corporation Act, 1956. S. 3, Indian Trust Act, 1882, S. 6]

Assessee extended interest on unsecured debentures payable during year to LIC Mutual Fund for another two years. It claimed deduction of interest payable to LIC Mutual Fund. Assessing Officer disallowed interest on ground that it had not been paid within stipulated period. Tribunal held that LIC Mutual Fund was a public financial institution covered under section 43B and sustained order of Assessing Officer. On appeal the Court held that since in view of language of section 4A of Companies Act, 1956 and section 43B it was evident that LIC Mutual Fund was not public financial institution, interest on unsecured debenture payable by assessee to LIC Mutual Fund is not covered by section 43B and it is allowable as deduction. The Tribunal has committed a manifest error of law to hold that LIC Mutual Fund is a public financial institution under section 43B. The disallowance of interest invoking the provisions of section 43B cannot be sustained. (AY. 2009-10)

753 S. 43B : Deductions on actual payment-Interest paid to financial institutions-Reassessment-Claim for deduction not made earlier-No original assessment-Assessment order pursuant to original and revised return-Claim made during assessment proceedings-Allowable as deduction. [S. 43B, 139(5), 147(b), 260A]

The question before the High Court was when the AO having resorted to Section 147 of the Act whether he is bound to compute business income after allowing statutory deduction including under section. 43B in respect of the interest paid to financial institutions. Allowing the claim the court held that the expression "assess" used in s. 147 refers to a situation where assessment of income of an assessee for a particular year is, for the first time made by resorting to the provisions of S. 147 because the assessment had not been made in a regular manner under the Act. The expression "reassess" refers to a situation where an assessment has already been made but the

ITO has, on the basis of information in his possession, reason to believe that there has been under assessment on account of existence of any of the grounds contemplated by the provisions of S. 147(b). Reference may be had in this regard to the provisions of S. 147 itself. Since there was no original assessment proceeding and no assessment order, therefore, the question of reassessment does not arise. The orders passed by the AO were the assessment orders passed on original and revised return and claims made by the assessee during the assessment proceedings and, as such, the interest paid to financial institutions/banks being an allowable expenditure under S. 43B was bound to be allowed. Interest paid by the assessee during the assessment year in question was an allowable expenditure under S. 43B. The expenditure claimed by the assessee was rejected by the AO and upheld by the Tribunal on a misconceived ground that it could not have been claimed or allowed in reassessment proceedings whereas the fact was that the order passed by the AO was not a reassessment order but an assessment order pursuant to the original and revised return filed by the assessee and claims made during assessment proceedings. S. 43B : Deductions on actual payment-Excise duty-Included in closing stock-No double deduction-Allowable as deduction. [S. 145, 260A] 754

Assessee claimed excise duty of certain amount being differential excise duty attributable to opening and closing stock of finished goods held by them during previous year. Tribunal held that if said amount was again allowed in assessment, it would amount to double deduction. On appeal the Court held that section 43B, provides that excise duty would be deductible only on payment basis in year in which it is actually paid. On the facts the excise duty paid and included in closing stock had to be claimed separately as a deduction otherwise assessee would not be claiming entire excise duty paid in year of its payment. Thus, while computing total income for relevant assessment year, assessee had claimed a deduction of excise duty actually paid in year 1985 and included in closing stock less excise duty paid and included in closing stock of 1984 which had already been claimed and same would not amount to double deduction. Appeal of assessee is allowed. (AY. 1986-87)

Held that neither the State Government nor the World Bank falls under the definition of public financial institution, State financial corporation, State industrial investment corporation, NBFC, scheduled bank or co-operative bank and, therefore, interest payable on loan taken from State Government/world bank is not covered within the provision of S.. 43B. Assessee filed its return under S. 139(4) after the expiry of the extended due date wherein a claim against GST liability was made. CPC disallowed the payment. CIT(A) is affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that CPC is justified in disallowing the claim of deduction. Since the NFAC perfunctorily confirmed the disallowance on the basis of delayed filing of the return without vouching the exact amount of GST discharged by the extended due date i. e., 30th Oct., 2019 and balance amount of GST paid beyond such extended due date for confirming disallowance under S. 43B, the matter is remanded back to NFAC to deal with this limited issue in accordance with law. Held that the Supreme Court in Gujarat Urja Vikas Nigam Ltd v. CIT(2024) 465 ITR 798 (SC) had held that the assessee was entitled to the benefit of section 43B of the Act. The adjustment of electricity duty by the Government against the subsidy sanctioned by the Government amounted to valid payment for the purposes of section 43B of the Act and deduction should be allowed on a payment basis in the year the payment is made. S. 43B : Deductions on actual payment-TCS on sales of scrap-Not claimed as deduction-Journal entries-Addition is deleted. [S. 206C] 760
TCS collected is recorded through journal entries and held by assessee as custodian of Government and same is duly reflected as liability in audited balance sheet as at 31/03/2022. The AO disallowed under S. 43B of the Act. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that since amount of income tax of buyers could not be debited in profit and loss account and claimed as a deduction by assessee, it is not hit by provisions of section 43B and addition made to income is deleted. S. 43B: Deductions on actual payment-Provision for leave encashment-Claimed only of amounts actually paid during previous year-Disallowance is deleted. [S. 145] 761
Held that the assessee, in the computation of income, had added back a sum resulting in a claim of amounts which had been certified by the auditor as being amounts actually paid during the previous year before filing the return for the assessment year. This was also evident from the tax audit report of the assessee. Once, the claim towards leave encashment was made on payment basis alone and there was no excess claim of the amount paid, the same had to be allowed. (AY. 2019-20)

The Auditor reported in clause 26(i)(B) (b) ass duties and taxes not paid on or before the date of the audit report. The AO disallowed the claim. CIT(A) partly allowed the claim. On appeal the Tribunal held that the GST amount is paid before filing return, and it was not treated as an expenditure in profit and loss account, and no deduction was claimed, therefore, disallowance under section 43B is unjustified. S. 43B : Deductions on actual payment-Deductions under the section for interest paid on loans to banks are allowable if the payments are made by the due date for filing income tax returns. [S. 37(1), 139(1)] 763
The appeal filed by the assessee is against the disallowance on account of interest paid on loan to bank under Section 43B of the Act. The assessee claimed that the interest liability was outstanding at the beginning of the financial year and was paid during the year, as evidenced by the tax audit report and the bank statement.
The AO and the CIT(A) rejected the claim on the ground that the entries in the loan account statement were not clear, carried non-descript narrations of the entries in the loan account and held that such payments appeared to be in the nature of rebate or discount received by the assessee. The assessee submitted date-wise details of the repayment of interest on term loan and buyers' credit to the CIT(A), but the CIT(A) ignored them and confirmed the addition. The ITAT set aside the order of the CIT(A) and remanded the matter back to the AO for fresh examination of the issue. (AY. 2018-19)

S. 44AD : Presumptive basis-Unexplained money-Cash deposits Demonetisation-Cash deposits to be treated as part of gross turnover-Assessing Officer is directed to take only 8 Per Cent. of alleged gross turnover-Addition under section 69A is deleted-When the income is determined on estimate basis, bank transactions could not be segregated merely because deposits were made during the demonetisation period. [S. 69A, 147, 148] 768

Held, that the assessee's total cash deposits made during the year was Rs. 81,24,000, out of which only a small portion was deposited during the demonetisation period. If balance of the amount could become part of the gross turnover, a separate treatment could not be given to the normal deposit of money during the demonetisation period. Thus, the sum deposited during demonetisation period could not be assessed under section 69A, but to be construed as part of the gross turnover. The Assessing Officer is directed to take only 8 per cent. of the alleged gross turnover. Separate addition under section 69A is deleted. When income is determined on estimate basis, bank transactions could not be segregated merely because deposits were made during the demonetisation period. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 44AD : Presumptive basis-Sale of milk-Computation of Profits and gains of business on presumptive basis-Return not filed-Below taxable income-Directed to add 8 % of the turnover. [S. 139(1)] 769

Assessee had not been filing returns of income since its income was below taxable limit. In the other A. Y. on the basis of report of an Inspector that the assessee has been carrying on the business of sale of milk and on the basis of report of an Inspector, CIT(A) had restricted the addition to 6% of the total cash deposit. In view of the principle of consistency, Department could not be permitted to raise an issue in isolation for the immediately succeeding year for the same assessee. The CIT(A) held that the source of credit in assessee's bank account stood explained as turnover from sale of milk for the A. Y. under consideration. In view of the provisions of Section 44AD, AO was directed to add sum of 8% of the turnover to the assessee's income. (AY. 2011-12)

Court held that under the laws in force in Singapore, the income is subject to tax by reference to the full amount thereof, whether or not remitted to or received in Singapore, then in that case art. 24(1) would not apply. Certificate issued by Singapore Tax authorities will constitute sufficient evidence for accepting the legal position. [S. 9(1)(vi), 115A, 260A, Art. 12]

Assessee, a tax resident of Malaysia, entered into a contract with an Indian company for supply/lease/hire of rigs to be used for drilling and exploration of mineral oils and received certain amount. Assessee offered income from hiring/leasing of rigs as business profits to be taxed on gross/presumptive basis under section 44BB at 10 per cent-However, Assessing Officer treated it as FTS but DRP held same to be in nature of royalty under section 9(1)(vi) read with section 115A as well as article 12 of India-Malaysia DTAA. Tribunal held that since assessee had given on hire/lease equipments used or to be used in extraction/exploration of mineral oils, amounts received by assessee were fully covered under provisions of section 44BB and taxable on gross basis at rate of 10 per cent. Court held that clause (iv-a) of Explanation to section 9(1)(vi) makes a clear exclusion in respect of amounts which would be referable to section 44BB. Order of Tribunal is affirmed. Held that receipts of the non-resident assessee are not taxable in India under the provisions of s. 44BB for the reason that the assessee did not have a PE in India; impugned receipts partake the character of business income of the assessee hence, same are not taxable in India even under art. 7 of the Indo-Canada DTAA in the absence of a PE of the assessee in India. Held that the assessee, as a non-resident, is given the benefit of the special rate of tax per section 44BB, the legislative intent was only to tax the assessee at 10 per cent. of the amount paid or payable to the assessee, received on account of the business activity of the assessee. The word amount could not be interpreted to mean the Goods and Services Tax/Service Tax, which was collected by the assessee from its customers and paid to the Government. S. 44BB : Mineral oils-Computation-Income deemed to accrue or arise in India-Business connection-Permanent Establishment-DTAA-India-UK [S. 9(1)(i), Art. 5] 777
Assessee is a tax resident of UK and was awarded contract from ONGC along with other consortium members whereby assessee was required to manufacture and supply subsea production system components. Assessing Officer held that consortium member was working on behalf of assessee-company which formed PE of assessee company and further held that since activities undertaken by assessee were in relation to extraction and production of mineral oil, assessee would be covered under provisions of section 44BB. He computed 10 per cent of the receipts as income of the assessee from profit and gains of business. DRP held that issue of existence of PE is academic in nature as applicability of section 44B was not dependent upon existence of PE. On appeal the Tribunal held that not a single piece of evidence had been brought on record by Assessing Officer to establish that assessee had any kind of PE in India in year under consideration. Section 44BB could not be invoked to tax receipts from offshore supply on presumptive basis as revenue had failed to establish existence of PE in India. (AY. 2021-22)

The Assessing Officer and CIT(A) held that Service tax formed part of turnover as referred in section 44BBA(1). On appeal the Tribunal held that service tax collected by assessee-airline operator from its customers did not have any element of income as it was collected by assessee from its customers for and on behalf of Central Government on account of a statutory levy and, therefore, it did not form part of receipts of assessee for purpose of section 44BBA. [S. 9(1)(i), Art. 7]
Assessee, a Russian Federation company, which is engaged in business of setting up power projects which included construction, erection of plant and machinery and testing and commissioning of power projects. Assessee received income from offshore supply contracts and contended that since offshore supply contracts were carried out and concluded outside India, no income would be deemed to accrue or arise in India and, thus, same would not be taxable in India. Assessing Officer held that receipts from offshore supply would be part of income offered to tax under section 44BBB. The DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal following the earlier order of the Tribunal held that since there had been no change neither in terms of agreements nor in nature of work carried out as per said contract, finding in earlier years would hold good for impugned year and, thus, income received by assessee from offshore supply contracts would not be taxable in India. Held, that merely by providing services in the form of reports, that did not lead to the inference that technology had been made available to the assessee and since the Department had not brought anything conclusive to prove that services had made available, knowledge and technology in a manner that the assessee shall not require such services from the head office for the purpose of conducting its business in India in the future, the "make available" clause had not been satisfied and therefore the services did not qualify as fees for "included services" under article 12 of the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement. Further, technical services did not fall within the embargo provided under section 44C of the Act. The assessee is eligible to claim deduction of technical service charges of paid to the head office. S. 45: Capital gains-Transfer-Part performance of contract-Joint development agreement-No accrual-Not registered-Ownership is retained-Possessing is parted for limited purpose of development-Not liable to be assessed as capital gains. [S. 2(47)(v),153A, 153C, Registration Act, 1908, S. 17(IA), 49, Transfer of Property Act, 1882, S 53A] 781

The Assessing Officer issued the notice to assesss the capital gains on the basis of joint development treating the transaction as transfer. The assessee filed a detailed response stating that the assesser had not received any consideration under the joint development agreements and that the two joint development agreements did not constitute any "trans fer under section 2(47) of the Act. Subsequently, the assessee cancelled the two joint development agreements because of non-performance by the developers. The Assessing Officer passed an assessment order under section 153C read with section 143(3) of the Act making an addition to the returned income of the assessee under capital gains. The Assessing Officer held that the two joint development agreements constituted transfer in terms of section 2(47) of the Act and that the minimum guaranteed return amounts reflected in the development agreements had accrued to the assessee even though the assessee might not have actually received them. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) set aside the assessment order. On appeal by the Revenue, the Tribunal restored the assessment order. On appeal by the assessee allowing the appeal, the Court held that the joint development agreements dated December 31, 2008, were not registered, though they were required to be compulsorily registered under section 17(1A) of the Registration Act, 1908, post the introduction of this provision by the Registration and Other Related Laws (Amendment) Act, 2001. In the joint development agreements the ownership of the capital asset was retained by the assessee through-out. The clauses relating to parting of possession, besides being unclear, suggested that at the highest, possession was to be parted with for the limited purpose of development. The unregistered agreement dated December 31, 2008, could not be construed as a document effecting transfer of the subject properties in terms of section 2(47) of the Act. Accordingly not liable to be assessed as capital gains. Order of the Tribunal is set aside. Followed, CIT v. Balbir Singh Maini (2017) 398 ITR 531 (SC) (AY. 2005-06 to 2011-12)

S. 45 : Capital gains-Transfer-Date of transfer-Transfer of securities-Securities sold in physical form-The date of broker's note that should be treated as the date of transfer in cases of sale transactions of securities provided such transactions are followed up by delivery of shares and the transfer deed-Dematerialised share scrips and the date of acquisition of shares would be date only when dematerialised shares are entered in the demat account with depository is incorrect-Order of Tribunal is set aside-Entitle to exemption. [S. 10(38), 45(2A), 260A] 782

Tribunal held that dematerialised share scrips and the date of acquisition of shares would be date only when dematerialised shares are entered in the demat account with depository. On appeal the Court held that Court held, that in view of Circular No. 704 dated April 28, 1995 ([1995] 213 ITR (St.) 7) issued by the Central Board of Direct Taxes, the capital gains from the sale on February 22, 23 and 28, 2005 of shares purchased by the assessee on February 10, 2004 were long-term capital gains exempt under section 10(38) of the Act. Court also observed that section 45(2A) of the Incometax Act, 1961 deals with the determination of the date of transfer of securities. In terms of Circular No. 704, dated April 28, 1995 ([1995] 213 ITR (St.) 7) it is the date of broker's note that should be treated as the date of transfer in cases of sale transactions of securities provided such transactions are followed up by delivery of shares and the transfer deed. Similarly, in respect of purchase of securities the holding period shall be reckoned from the date of the broker's note for purchase on behalf of the investors. In case the transactions take place directly between the parties and not through stock exchanges the date of contract of sale as declared by the parties shall be treated as the date of transfer provided it is followed up by actual delivery of shares and transfer deeds. The Central Board of Direct Taxes by Circular No. 768 dated June 24, 1998 ([1998] 232 ITR (St.) 5) issued another circular for determination of date of transfer and the period of holding of securities held in dematerialised form under section 45(2A). On a reading of this circular it is seen that there is nothing to indicate that the circular excludes cases of securities sold in physical form. In fact the circular deals with securities held in physical form as well as those in dematerialised form. Furthermore, the circular has also clarified the position as to the applicability of the earlier Circular No. 704 dated April 28, 1995 ([1995] 213 ITR (St.) 7). (AY. 2005-06)

783 S. 45 : Capital gains-Transfer of agricultural land-Land shown as agricultural in Government records-Burden is on Revenue to prove that land was not actually agricultural-Matter is remanded to the Assessing Officer. [S. 2(14)(iii), 50C, 254(1), Art. 226]

Allowing the petition the Court held, that the Assessing Officer should have restricted his scope to determining whether the land was situated in an area which was comprised within the jurisdiction of a municipality or cantonment board and whether it had a population in excess of ten thousand. If the additional evidence submitted by the assessee mentioning that the land sold as agricultural land did not inspire confidence or required further verification, the Assessing Officer should have conducted proper enquiry to ascertain the authenticity of certificates issued by Talati and Gram Sevak. Without disproving the correctness of the confirmation and certificates issued by the Talati and Gram Sevak, the Assessing Officer was not justified in rejecting the assessee's claim of agricultural land particularly when the evidence showed that the lands were recorded as agricultural lands in the Government records. The assessment of capital gains was not valid. Where the assessee brings evidence that the land in question was recognised as agricultural in Government records, the Revenue authorities are duty bound to verify the authenticity of such evidence and if they want to reject the claim, they must bring contrary material on record to disprove the claim. Matter remanded to the Assessing Officer. (AY. 2013-14)

S. 45 : Capital gains-Consideration received for subsequent granting of development as per the commitment letter for granting permission to right for uploading TDR is assessable as long term capital gains and not as income from other sources-Substantial question of law raised first time before the Honourable High Court in an appeal filed by the assessee is admitted by the Honourable High Court. [S. 56, 260A] 784

The Asessessee had purchased a land at Khar Mumbai, vide Deed of Conveyance dated August 28, 1956. He constructed a bungalow consisting of ground floor and first floor. Vide agreement dated September 29, 1992 the assessee executed an agreement for redevelopment with Gokul Construction Co. As per the agreement the assessee received an amount of Rs. 1.55 Crores in FY. 1993-94 and offered the same as long term capital gains for tax in AY. 1994-95. By exchange of Letter dated September 29, 1992 the Developers had agreed to pay additional amount to the assessee Rs. 1,000 per square foot of TDRs that would be utilized. In the year 2016 & 2017 the Developer had paid 1,00,92,750 for loading TDR in the building. The assessee had offered the said amount as long term capital gains. The Assessing Officer assessed the said receipt as income from other sources. The order of the Assessing Officer was affirmed by the CIT(A) and Tribunal. On appeal to the High Court,allowing the appeal the Honourable Court held that development agreement and the commitment letter should be read as one agreement and should be considered as payment under the development agreement itself. The stand of the assessee offering the said receipt as long term capital gains was affirmed. The petitioner had also raised additional substantial question law before the Honourable High Court relying on the judgement of CIT v. Sambhaji Nagar Co-operative Society Ltd (2015) 370 ITR 325 (Bom)(HC) and CIT v. Maheswari Prakash-2 Co-Operative Housing Society Ltd (ITA No 2346 of 2009 dt. 24-4-2015)(Order of Tribunal Maheswari Prakash-2 Co-Operative Housing Society Ltd v. ITO (2009) 118 ITD 223 (Mum)(Trib), which reads as under " Whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, as the assessee had not incurred any cost to acquire the additional FSI,the amount of Rs, 1,00,17,750 / received from the developer is not taxable ?".

Revenue contended that the issue raised in the additional substantial question of law was not argued before the Income tax Appellate Tribunal hence the Court should not frame the substantial question of law proposed. Honourable High Court admitted the substantial question of law. At the time of hearing the appellant had not pressed the question no 2 which was originally framed and question no 3 which was later framed. (AY. 1997-98)

S. 45:Capital gains-Business income-Total income-Redemption of mutual fund units-Income taxable as capital gains and not as business income. [2(45), 28(i), 260A] 785

Assessee-partnership firm was engaged in the business of investing in mutual funds. During the year, it earned profit on redemption of mutual funds which were offered to tax under the head 'Capital Gains'. However, the assessing officer assessed the income under the head 'Profits and Gains from Business or profession'. The Commissioner of Income-Tax (Appeals) and Hon'ble Delhi Tribunal upheld taxability under the head 'Capital Gains'. On appeal by the Department, the Hon'ble Delhi High Court upheld the order of the lower Appellate Authorities holding that owing to the quantum of trade, value, purpose, period for which mutual funds were held, and how disclosure had been made in books of account, the transaction was in the nature of investment and not motivated by trade. Therefore, the gains were to be assessed under the head 'Capital Gains'. (Circular No. 19/2017, dated 12-6-20017). (AY. 2006-07), 2010-11)

[S. 2(47)(vi), 48, 50C, Transfer of Property Act, 1882, S 53A]
Tribunal held that the assessee transferred 62 percent of land to a developer in exchange of 38 percent of the developed area to be constructed under an unregistered joint development agreement. Transaction was liable to capital gains under section 2(47)(vi) in the year of agreement. The Tribunal also held registration of a contract is not relevant for deciding the applicability of section 2(47)(v). Tribunal held that transaction between the assessee and developer under JDA /GPA constituted a transfer under section 2(47)(v) and was liable to capital gain in the year of entering in to the agreements. As regards quantification of capital gain, the matter was set aside to the file of the Assessing Officer with the observation that since land in question was acquired prior to 1st April 2001, fair market value on that date would be considered cost of acquisition (and further indexed under section 48) and sale consideration would be compared to stamp duty value on transfer date under section 50C. Tribunal held that the assessee having held the land for well over five years before selling the same, the obvious intention of the assessee was to make investment for capital appreciation and, therefore, the profits earned has to be considered as capital gains; simply because the piece of land has been bifurcated into five different parts to make it saleable after a long period of five years from the date of investment, per se cannot grant the character of stock-in-trade so as to give it a colour of business activity. Assessee entered into a family settlement agreement by way of which assessee and four other family members had been granted right of possession/right of tilling over a property and claimed that right of possession in respect of such land was a capital asset. Assessing Officer held that since assessee failed to prove ownership on land, income received by assessee for signing possession agreement was assessee's unexplained income from undisclosed sources. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that family agreement/arrangements by which possession of such property was given to assessee, was never brought to notice of Assessing Officer for his consideration and even before Tribunal. The assessee had taken cost of acquisition of right of possession by taking value of land as per value computed by registered Valuer Report as on 1-4-1981, when as per his own submission, assessee got possession right over such property by way of a family arrangement without incurring any cost. S. 45 : Capital gains-Agricultural land-General power of attorney-Not owner of land-Land belong to third party-No addition can be made as sale of capital asset. [S. 2(14)] 801

A search and seizure operation was conducted in case of assessee. During search, certain sale deeds with respect to sale of agricultural land were found and seized and assessee was asked as to why capital gains were not attracted in said transaction. Assessee submitted that he entered into a sale-cum-GPA agreement. Assessing Officer, without referring to registered agreement of sale-cum-GPA, made addition in hands of assessee for entire land admeasuring Ac. 32. 27 gts. However, registered document showed that only agricultural land admeasuring Ac. 22. 27 gts was purchased by assessee and there was no purchase document available with Assessing Officer for remaining Acs. 10. 00 gts of agricultural land. Since land admeasuring Ac. 10.00 gts was owned, registered and held by a third party who was not connected with assessee in any manner, land owned by third party is not a capital asset in hands of assessee and, therefore, no addition could be made in respect of such land for capital gains arising out of sale of capital asset. S. 45 : Capital gains-Share transactions-Income shown as business income in preceding year-Assessable as capital gains. [S. 28(i)] 802
Assessee was in share trading activity and had returned short-term capital gain. Assessing Officer treated income from trading activity of shares as business income of assessee on the ground that in preceding year, assessee had declared profit from share trading activity as business and only a small portion was returned as short-term capital gain. Commissioner (Appeals) deleted addition holding that assessee had been investing in share market for more than 10 years, and declaring income therefrom under head capital gains. He held that assessee had held shares as investment and not as stock-in-trade which was accepted by Assessing Officer. He held that Assessing Officer had merely gone on the basis of nomenclature given in accounts to determine nature of income. Tribunal held that income earned therefrom had been rightly returned by assessee under the head capital gains, and there was no case with Assessing Officer for treating same as income from business and profession. 803 S. 45 : Capital gains-Crypto currency-Bitcoin-Virtual Digital Asset-Held for more than 3 years (Thirty six months)-Property of any kind-Taxable as capital gains-Not as income from other sources-Entitled to claim exemption under Section 54F of the Act-Finance Act, 2022 w. e. f. 01.04.2022, Section 2(47A) had been inserted thereby Virtual Digital Asset meaning was assigned and that included underlying assets Bitcoins-When there are two views possible, the view which is favorable to the assessee be considered. [S. 2(14), 2(47), 2(47A), 54F, 56(2)(x), 115BBH, 194S, Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999. 2(h), 2(m), 2(q)].

The assessee who was a salaried employee had purchased Bitcoin (crypto currency) during financial year 2015-16 and sold it during financial year 2020-21. He invested sale consideration in the purchase of property. The assessee filed return declaring long-term capital gain on sale of Bitcoin and also claimed exemption under section 54F. The Assessing Officer held that crypto currency is not a capital asset under section 2(14) and made it taxable under section 56 as income from other sources. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) held that Crypto Currency (Bitcoins) was not an asset as per section 2(14), hence, the transfer as per section 2(47) as Long-Term Capital Gain is not applicable. Accordingly affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assesseeewas not regularly dealing in purchase/sale of shares/ crypto currency. His intention was to hold for long term capital gain which was more evident from fact that assessee held crypto currency for more than 3 years. Finance Act, 2022 w. e. f. 01. 04. 2022, section 2(47A) had been inserted thereby Virtual Digital Asset meaning is assigned and that included underlying assets Bitcoins. Since crypto currency is specifically incorporated in statute as an asset, it means that even before 1-4-2022, crypto currency was an asset and gain on sale of crypto currency had to be taxed under the head capital gain and not under the head income from other sources. Accordingly, claim of deduction under section 54F was allowable to the assessee. Tribunal also held that when there are two views possible, the view which is favorable to the assessee be considered. Held that the Departmental authorities had failed to bring on record any cogent material to substantiate their allegations that the assessee was merely a paper company, and could not be treated as a genuine tax resident of Mauritius. There was nothing on record to suggest that the Departmental authorities disputed that the assessee had made investment in the shares which gave rise to the capital gains prior to April 1, 2017. That being the established factual position, the assessee was entitled to the benefit provided under article 13(4) of the tax treaty. The amount in dispute was not taxable in India. (AY. 2016-17)

S. 45: Capital gains-Share purchase agreement-Long term or short term-Conditional sale and only upon fulfilment of conditions, date of contract of sale was to be crystallized-Effective date of transfer would be date of receipt of sale consideration-Held shares for more than 12 months, shares were to be treated as long-term capital assets liable to long-term capital gains-Addition on account of capital gain is deleted-Corresponding penalty levied under section 271(1)(c) is also quashed. [S. 2(29A) 2(42A), 10(38), 271(1)(c)] 806

Assessee, a US tax resident, entered into a share purchase agreement on 20-4-2006 for sale of shares of a company to Infosys Technologies Ltd for a consideration. Sale was subject to terms and conditions of that agreement which included conditions precedent to sale and non-fulfilment of which conferred, upon parties, right to rescind contract-Assessee received portion of sale consideration on 30-6-2006. Assessee treated capital gain on sale of shares as long-term capital gain as date of acquisition of shares was 30-6-2005 and date of sale was 30-6-2006, being such shares held for more than 12 months. Assessing Officer treated date of execution of share purchase agreement i. e. 20-4-2006 as date of transfer of shares and since shares were held for period less than one year, he treated gain on transfer of shares as short-term capital gain. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that where share purchase agreement stipulated conditions precedent to sale, non-fulfilment of which gave right to parties to rescind contract, effective date of transfer would be date of receipt of sale consideration and delivery of shares and not date of execution of share purchase agreement. Thus, assessee having held shares for more than 12 months i. e., from 30-6-2005 up to 30-6-2006, shares were to be treated as long-term capital assets and gain on transfer of shares was long-term capital gain. Appeal of aassesseewas allowed. As the addition on account of capital gain was deleted, corresponding penalty levied under section 271(1)(c) was also quashed. (AY. 2007-08)

Assessee was 50 per cent owner of an immovable property, had received Rs. 50 lakhs as its share of sale consideration on sale of said property. For the purpose of calculating cost of acquisition, since property was acquired prior to 1-4-1981, assessee obtained report from Registered Valuer who had estimated fair market value of property at Rs. 54.09 lakhs and, thereafter, applying reverse method of indexation, calculated cost of property as on 1-4-1981 at Rs. 10 lakhs. Assessing Officer estimated indexed cost of acquisition at Rs. 5 lakhs (50 per cent of cost at Rs. 10 lakhs) and made an addition for long-term capital gain (LTCG). CIT(A) affirmed the view of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held while calculating LTCG, no benefit of indexation had been given. Assessing Officer had himself considered cost of acquisition at Rs. 5 lakhs based on valuation report by Registered Valuer, which was fair market value of property (assessee's share) as on 1-4-1981. Assessing Officer had not made any efforts to get information about Circle rate of immovable property as on 1-4-1981. Since, fair market value of property as on 1-4-1981 as calculated by Registered Valuer had been accepted by Assessing Officer and there being no other evidence of fair market value of property as on 1-4-1981, cost of acquisition as on 1-4-1981 would be Rs. 5 lakhs (adopted by Assessing Officer) and indexed cost of acquisition would be Rs. 54 lakhs. Since indexed cost of acquisition was higher than sale consideration, it would result into a long-term capital loss. Additionwas deleted. (AY. 2016-17)

Assessee was engaged in business of trading in securities. On beginning of financial year, assessee converted its stock-in-trade of shares into investment in shares by passing resolution of board of directors. Accordingly, it claimed that profits resulting out of sale of such shares was to be treated as capital gains. The Assessing Officer held that profits from sale of shares was to be taxed as business income of assessee. On appeal the CIT(A) accepted the contention of the assessee to the extent of LTCGs, however, in respect of STCGs, he treated the same as business income. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee in beginning of year converted its stock-in-trade into investment being shares with an intention to hold them for several years as investment, profits arising from sale of such investment was to be taxed as capital gains, long-term or short-term and not as business income. S. 45: Capital gains-Short term capital loss-Sale of shares-Alleged bogus sales-Shares traded on BSE-No independent enquiry conducted by AO regarding rigging up of the price of shares by the Assessee or his broker-Loss is allowed to be set off against capital gains. 810

The Assessee had claimed Short Term Capital Loss (STCL) on sale of shares of M/s Looks Health Services Ltd, which as per the AO was bogus in nature. According to the AO the transaction was sham as the Company was not financially viable, the price of the scrip had unusually skyrocketed without any financial or economic basis and unusually decreased, the script in that period were traded in bulk and most people who indulged in bulk trading were from Ahmedabad city only. However, the ITAT observed that the Assessee had carried out purchase and sale of shares on the Bombay Stock Exchange, as per the Assessment Order, no enquiry or investigation was carried out with any concerned authority regarding rigging up the price of Looks Health Services Ltd or by Assessee's broker. Therefore, there was no information or finding based on corroborative material available with AO that the price of shares were rigged. The principle of surrounding circumstantial evidence was also not strong enough to draw an adverse inference. Therefore, the order of CIT(A) was set aside. *PCIT v. Held that the Assessee-company engaged in the business of exhibiting films in a cinema hall handed over the land owned by it to the developer for the purpose of construction of a commercial complex in place of the cinema hall which did not tantamount to conversion of capital asset into stock-in-trade, more so as the constructed shops received by the assessee in the new commercial complex have been consistently shown under the head 'Investment' and, therefore, provisions of s. 45(2) are not applicable. Assessee was a partnership firm. During course of assessment proceedings, Assessing Officer called upon assessee to furnish necessary capital account of partners and explain substantial increase in partners capital account. Assessee could not substantiate increase in capital account of partners with necessary evidences, entire capital account was treated as unexplained credit and brought to tax under section 68. On appeal, CIT(A)deleted the addition under section 68 and invoked section. 45(4) of the Act and held that revaluation of asset held by partnership firm and crediting amount of said revaluation to partners' capital account was a transfer which fell under section 45(4) and any profit or gain arising from transfer needed to be taxed in hands of assessee firm. 813 S. 47(iii): Capital gains-Transaction not regarded as transfer-Gift-Company-Living Person capable of making gift-No attributes like love and affection is prescribed-Transfer of plots by Assessee by way of gift deed in favour of another company is valid gift-Not liable for capital gains tax-Person-Living Person. [S. 45,50C, Transfer of Property Act, 1882, S. 5, 122]

Held that the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 considers a company not only as a person but literally speaking as a living person a person with life. The same expression person in section 5 is transplanted in section 122 of the 1882 Act, which defines a "gift". A cogent reading of sections 5 and 122 of the 1882 Act makes it clear that a company being a "living person" can transfer property by way of gift to another company. Further section 122 of that Act does not prescribe any attributes like "love and affection". There is no restriction in law against a company making a gift of its property to another company. A transfer without consideration when claimed as a gift is always a gift. Further section 47(iii) of the Act, specifically provides that any transfer of a capital asset under a gift is not regarded as a transfer. Therefore the transfer of plots by the assessee-company by way of executing gift deed in favour of R Ltd., was a valid gift and not liable for capital gains tax. Consequently the question of invoking the provisions of section 50C of the Act did not arise. There was no infirmity in the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals). Relied on *DP World P. Ltd. v. [S. 4, 45]
Assessee transferred assets to its 100 percent subsidiary and surplus generated from the same was offered to tax in the return of income with a note providing details of transactions offered to tax. On appeal to the CIT(A), it was held that surplus generated by the assessee on transfer would be chargeable to tax as the asset was employed in the business. However, the Tribunal held that surplus generated on account of transfer of asset could not be treated as income in view of the provisions of section 47(iv) of the Act. The Hon'ble High Court dismissed the revenue's appeal and held that the surplus generated on transfer could not be treated as income under section 47(iv). Further, merely because the assessee inadvertently offers a receipt for levy of tax, tax cannot be levied by the revenue if it is not otherwise constituting income of the assessee. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 48 : Capital gains-Mode of Computation-Sale of shares gifted by promoters-BIFR cannot sanction any modification to scheme directing the Income tax department to give further tax concession without department being consenting to grant additional concession-SLP is granted against the order of High Court. [S. 45, Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985, 3(1)(o), 17, 18, 22A, Art. 136] 815

BIFR declared respondent-company as a sick industrial company within meaning of section 3(1)(o) and appointed Central Bank of India as operating agency to prepare a rehabilitation package for company. Draft rehabilitation scheme was approved by BIFR. Said scheme had set out reliefs and concessions to be provided by income-tax department (ITD). Respondent sought an additional relief from ITD in respect of sale of shares, which were gifted by promoters of company as a part of their promoters' contribution, which had resulted in capital gains, chargeable to income tax. Said request was opposed by ITD on ground that it had granted all reliefs and concession as envisaged in scheme. BIFR by order modified said scheme, requiring ITD to consider grant further additional concession. On Writ by the ITD It was contended that obligation to extend further concessions could not be imposed on Central Government (ITD) without its consent. Court held that in instant case, ITD had not consented for extending any further concession and, therefore, order requiring ITD to consider grant of further concessions, could not be interpreted as making it obligatory on ITD to grant such concessions. Further, BIFR's order did not indicate that it had examined transactions, which had led to capital gains arising in hands of company or context in which additional concessions were sought. The order was set aside. ITD was not required to grant any further concession contrary to IT Act, to company. SLP is granted against the order of High Court.

819 S. 48 : Capital gains –Mode of Computation-Brokerage or commission in connection with transfer-Disallowance cannot be made only because agreements with respect to commission services not submitted-Disallowance is not justified-Cost of improvement-New pleas could not be raised before Tribunal [S. 45]
Held that during the assessment proceedings the assessee submitted details of payment regarding transfer expenses of Rs. 45 lakhs towards sales commission in connection with transfer of property containing therein the names of the parties and addresses, permanent account numbers, cheque numbers and dates and amounts. Copies of three invoices from the parties to whom commission was paid for the commission amount of Rs. 15 lakhs each were also produced and the bank statement of the assessee showed total payment of Rs. 45 lakhs in three entries of Rs. 15 lakhs each. The Assessing Officer had accepted that the assessee had submitted vouchers in support of transfer expenses and that payments were made through the assessee's bank account. Therefore the genuineness of the payment of Rs. 45 lakhs as transfer expenses in connection with transfer of property was established. The disallowance was made only because agreements with respect to commission services were not submitted. The commission recipients acted on oral instructions of the seller of the property. Undoubtedly, the commission had been paid through the bank account of the assessee. Therefore the disallowance was not justified. Tribunal also held that no plea to get the cost of construction valued through a Departmental Valuation Officer was ever taken before the Assessing Officer or the Dispute Resolution Panel. In the absence of any reasonable cause for not raising these pleas before the Assessing Officer or the Dispute Resolution Panel they could not be raised before the Tribunal. Consequently, the disallowance of cost of improvement of Rs. 31,86,363 (indexed cost Rs. 57,43,085) was justified and therefore sustained. (AY. 2021-22)

Assessee sold his shop. He computed LTCG by claiming benefit of cost of improvement with respect to a concrete bridge constructed on culvert in front of shop. Assessing Officer denied said benefit of improvement cost on ground that assessee had been conducting business in shop, and construction got completed in financial year 2005-06. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that concrete bridge on culvert in front of shop was constructed so that customers could have direct access to shop in order to increase business turnover. Also source of construction, was duly explained that construction expense was incurred out of borrowed money. Since cost of construction had been disallowed by Assessing Officer merely on basis of presumption and nothing was brought on record to prove that cost of improvement had not been incurred, such disallowance would not be tenable. Assessee sold a property and claimed a deduction u/s 48 of the Act. The Assessee claimed renovation expenses of Rs. 9,50,000/-which was not allowed by the AO on account of insufficient documentation. The Assessee argued that being an NRI, payments were made through his mother's accounts, and the renovation was done by Mr. AlokLal through his firm M/s Fourth Dimension. The DRP, after a remand report, upheld the AO's decision, citing lack of evidence establishing the relationship between Fourth Dimension and AlokLal. The Assessee argued that the flat required significant renovation before being inhabitable, which justified the expenses claimed. The Assessee also emphasized the use of cheques for payments and cash withdrawals as evidence of genuine expenses. The ITAT after considering the submissions made by the Assessee, found merit therein. It was held that since all improvements made necessarily lead to improvement in value of sale, assessee was entitled to deduction towards cost of improvement, thus allowing expenses incurred for installation of lift and other sundry expenses to make house habitable as cost of improvement. S. 49 : Capital gains-Previous owner-Cost of acquisition-Family settlement-Father acquired a property prior to 1-4-1981 and after his death said property was given to assessee by way of family settlement in 2003-Sale of property in 2007-Computing capital gain, indexed cost of acquisition was to be worked out with reference to 1-4-1981 and not with reference to date on which assessee acquired property by family arrangement, i.e., in 2003. [S. 45, 48] 827

Assessee's father purchased a property in 1963. After death of assessee's father, a settlement was arrived between assessee and his family members in 2003 wherein assessee became sole owner of property. Assessee sold property in 2007 and claimed long term capital gain after working out indexed cost of acquisition. Assessing Officer made additions treating acquisition of house w. e. f 2003 i. e date of memorandum of family settlement, working out indexed cost of acquisition from that date instead of cost earlier as on 1-4-1981. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) partly allowed the appeal of the assessee. The Tribunal however allowed the appeal of the revenue. On appeal the Court held that there is no 'transfer' involved in a family arrangement. In instant case, there was a settlement arrived at between members of Hindu undivided family (HUF), accordingly, cost with reference to acquisition of property would have to be assessed as per section 49(1)(i). Accordingly cost inflation index was to be calculated with reference to year 1-4-1981 by treating acquisition of property as purchased by father of assessee on 1-4-1963 through registered deed dated 6-6-1963 and merely because family settlement was arrived in year 2003 would not make any difference. S. 50: Capital gains-Depreciable assets-Block of assets-Multiplex theatre-Sale of shop-Assessable as capital gain and not as business income-Owning-Operating. [S. 2(11), 28(i), 80IB(7A)] 828

Held, that the assessee lost both ownership and operating power over the shop which was an integral part of the multiplex theatre, on sale or transfer of the shop, and that the shop, though built by the assessee, was neither owned nor operated as an integral part of multiplex theatre at the time of accrual or receipt of income on sale or transfer of the shop. The rental income derived from the shop was assessed as business income and not income from house property. Since the shop, a depreciable asset, was sold, the gains derived therefrom had to be assessed as short-term capital gains in accordance with section 50.. The income derived from sale or transfer of the multiplex theatre (on lock, stock and barrel basis)is rightly assessed under the head Capital gains and not business income. 829 S. 50 : Capital gains-Depreciable assets-Block of assets-Sale of depreciable asset-Long-term capital asset-Short term capital gains-Tax is leviable at 20% as long term under seecti0n 112 of the Act and not at 30% which is applicable to short term capital gains. [S. 2(11), 2(29AA), 2(29B), 2(42A), 2(42B), 2(45), 43(6), 48, 49, 50(1), 50(2), 50A, 54, 54EC, 74, 112 (1)]

Assessee held a depreciable asset. It sold the asset and had gains. It declared the gains as short term capital gains u/s 50, but paid tax at the rate of 20% as long term u/s 112. Assessing Officer disagreed with the view and levied tax at 30% which should be applied in short term gain and did not follow Bombay high court decision but followed ITAT order in own case in earlier year where gain on depreciable asset was assessed and taxed at 30% Since conflicting decision the appeal was referred to special bench. The question before the Special Bench was "Whether, on the given facts and circumstances of the case and in law, the capital gains under section 50 of the Act arising out of sale of long term capital asset is chargeable at the rate applicable to short term capital gains or rates applicable to long term capital gains under section 112 of the Act?" By a 2:1 majority, the Mumbai ITAT Special Bench held as under :

1. Fiction created by the legislature in sec 50 has to be confined to the purpose for which it is created
2. Section 50 was enacted with the object of denying multiple benefits to the owners of a depreciable asses, however that restriction is limited to the computation of capital gains and not to the exemption provision
3. if depreciation has been availed on long term capital asset, then the capital gains has to be computed in the manner u/s 50
4. For the purpose of granting exemption u/s 54, which is applicable to long term capital gains, the high court has held that for the purpose of exemption it is to be treated as long term capital gains
5. Once the high court has held that S. 50 does not convert a long term capital asset to a short term capital asset, then the rate of tax is applicable for the transfer of long term capital asset which has to be in accordance with S. 112. Deeming fiction of S. 50 cannot be imported in S. 112
6. Even in the context of set off against brought forward long term capital loss, high court in another case has held that deeming fiction is restricted only to the mode of computation of capital gains and does not change character of capital asset
7. S. 112 uses the word long term capital asset, and S. 50 only deems the capital gain as short term capital gain and does not deem the asset as short term
8. Thus tax on S. 50 assets, if held for more than 36 months would be taxed at 20% and applicable surcharge

Contra view. Dissenting view

1. If interpretation as above is accepted, then the entire provision of S. 50 will be rendered otiose. Then there is no purpose of keeping of S. 50 in the statute
2. The entire purpose of introducing the deeming fiction is not to grant concessional rate of tax to a depreciable asset as depreciation has been treated as a revenue expenditure
3. Section 50 was introduced with the objective of level playing field for both
4. Intention was not to allow Multiple benefits of deduction

5. The incentive was to sell a depreciable asset and buy another depreciable capital asset and this was the purpose of Bombay High Court in granting 54 E benefit
6. Section 112 cannot decide character of capital gain whether it would be short term or long term
7. If the view is to be followed,then an anomalous situation may arise, where the income under the head capital gains determine u/s 50 would be only as an ornamental item, undermining the purpose of exercise for computing short term capital gain Such an interpretation would contradict the legislative intent.

Contra view was not accepted by the majority who held that concessional rate of tax would be applicable on Section 50 capital gains too. (AY. 2000-01) (ITA No. 7544 of 2011 dt. 3-10-2024)

Deeming fiction under s. 50 is restricted to the chargeability of gain as short-term capital gain but the asset remains a long-term capital asset and does not become a short-term capital asset by virtue of S. 50. Though the assessee is precluded from making the claim without making any claim in the return of income or revised return before the AO, the CIT(A) should have granted the claim of the assessee under S. 54. The assessee-firm stopped production in its undertaking and entered into a contract packing agreement in terms of which the assessee agreed to sell its business assets relating to the bottling business at Ganga Nagar. Tribunal held that the sale of business assets was not an itemised sale and therefore, was not exigible to tax, that the transaction was a slump sale and not an itemised sale and that the assets of goodwill and know-how were transferred and the cost of acquisition of these could not be ascertained. Dismissing the appeal the Court held that t when the agreement was entered into between the parties, the parties had recorded the total assets and no individual asset was required to be given in the memorandum of understanding by the independent party that the party was running the unit along with only the property and not any other liability. Therefore, the individual valuation which had been put forth in pursuance to the letter of the Assessing Officer on the basis of book value in the list of individual items was not established but taking into consideration the agreement between the parties the second value which had been rightly pointed out was for the purchaser for the purpose of arriving at a price of assets. The Tribunal had not committed any error in holding that the sale of business assets was a slump sale and not an itemised sale and that the assets of goodwill and know-how were transferred and the cost of acquisition of these could not be ascertained.

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue,the Tribunal held that land or building or both referred to in S. 50C(1) do not include leasehold rights in land or building or both. Hence provision of S. 50C is not applicable. On the facts an industrial plot of land was allotted by MIDC under a lease agreement to the assessee and subsequently assessee transferred the said leasehold land to SM Industries for the remaining period of the lease in the year 2011 for a consideration of Rs. 2 crores. Therefor no addition could be made,assuming for a moment that transfer of a leasehold right in land is covered by S. 50C(1), the assessee is adequately safeguarded by first and second provisos to S. 50C as the stamp duty value of the said land at the relevant time was less than the actual consideration of Rs. 2 crores. Assessee purchased a plot of land jointly at a purchase price of Rs. 8,15,000/-and later sold said plot for a consideration of Rs. 2,15,00,000/. Assessing Officer initiated re-assessment proceedings on basis of findings by Assessing Officer in case of co-owner wherein sale value of property was taken at Rs. 4,98,83,550/-as determined by Stamp Duty Authorities. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) allowed appeal of assessee holding that when assessee had objected to taking Jantri value as adopted by Stamp valuation officer, correct course of action by assessing officer should have been to refer matter to DVO for his expert opinion on matter, as per specific provisions of sub Section 2 of Section 50C. On appeal the Tribunal held that once assessee objects to value of property proposed to be adopted by Assessing Officer, then assessing officer was duty bound to refer matter to DVO in terms of Section 50C(2). The Tribunal allowed the appeal, holding that Section 50C, which applies to the valuation of capital assets based on stamp duty for computing capital gains, does not apply when the asset has been converted to stock-in-trade. In this case, the assessee had converted a capital asset into stock-in-trade in 2008 and sold it in 2009. The Assessing Officer reopened the assessment under Section 147, applying Section 50C based on an internal audit objection, and taxed the difference between the sale price and stamp duty value. The Tribunal held that the reopening was invalid as it was based solely on an audit objection, which cannot be considered "information" under Section 147. Moreover, on merits, Section 50C could not be applied since the property sold was stock-in-trade, not a capital asset. (AY. 2009-10)

The assessee sold a piece of land pursuant to an agreement dated 29.09.2006. The sale deed was registered on 06.09.2010 for a sum, lesser than the stamp valuation of the land. Further the assessee invested the sale proceeds in purchasing new agricultural land in the name of his son on 20.06.2007 and claimed exemption under section 54B of the Income-Tax Act, 1961. The Assessee contended that the sale consideration should be based on the stamp valuation as of the agreement date (29.09.2006) rather than the registration date (06.09.2010). That the cheque for a part sum received on 29.09.2006, although post-dated to 09.10.2006, should be considered as part of the consideration received on the agreement date. The AO held that the sale consideration should be based on the stamp valuation as of the registration date (06.09.2010) because no part of the consideration was received through an account payee cheque or bank draft on or before the agreement date (29.09.2006). CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the sale consideration should be based on the stamp valuation as of the registration date (06.09.2010) because no part of the consideration was received through an account payee cheque or bank draft on or before the agreement date (29. 09. 2006). The cheque received was post-dated and cleared only after the agreement date. As regards reinvesting proceeds from sale of agricultural land in new agricultural land registered in the name of son, denial of exemption is not valid. (AY. 2011-12)

Held that the first proviso to section 50C specified that in a case where the date of agreement fixing the amount of consideration and the date of registration of the transfer of capital asset are not the same, the value adopted or assessed by the Stamp Valuation Authority or the date of agreement may be taken for the purpose of computing the full value of consideration for such transfer. The second proviso to section 50C specified that the benefit of the first proviso shall apply only in a case where the amount of consideration, or part thereof has been received by way of account payee cheque or by banking channels. Part payment of the consideration was received by the assessee prior to execution of the agreement to sell in the month of June 2011, which the bank statement of the assessee established. According to the jantri rate applicable as on August 1, 2011 (sale agreement date) was Rs. 64,82,526, whereas the assessee had received Rs. 1.94 crores, which was much more than the agreed price. The assessee was entitled to the benefit of first and second provisos to section 50C. Hence, the addition made by the Assessing Officer by invoking the provisions of section 50C is deleted. The Assessing Officer based on AIR information that the assessee had sold a lease hold property and reopened the assessment as the assessee did not offer the capital gain. The AO assessed the entire sale consideration as per stamp valuation. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that section 50C being a deeming provision is applicable only in respect of land or building or both and if capital asset under transfer cannot be described as land or building or both then section 50C will not apply. Therefore section 50C cannot be made applicable to leasehold rights in a land. (AY. 2011-12)

Assessee sold an immovable property for Rs. 5.50 crores. Registered valuer valued the property at Rs. 5,36,60,000. In course of assessment proceedings, Assessing Officer referred case to DVO for determining fair market value (FMV) of property. DVO determined FMV of property at Rs. 6.38 crores. Assessing Officer, however, adopted value determined by Stamp Valuation Authority (SVA) at Rs. 8.38 crores as deemed sale consideration under section 50C of the Act and added an amount of Rs. 2.98 crores as notional income. Commissioner (Appeals) upheld order of Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that since difference in FMV as per actual sale consideration received by assessee and DVO was much lesser in comparison to difference in value as per Stamp Valuation Authority (SVA) and DVO, deeming provisions of section 50C cannot be applied. [S. 45]

Assessee, an individual, sold two properties and received sale consideration of Rs. 3.95 crores. He offered Rs. 50,000 towards short-term capital gain (STCG) after adjusting cost of acquisition. Assessing Officer had adopted sale consideration as against market value adopted by SRO of Rs. 5.88 crores. He taxed difference of Rs. 1.93 crores as STCG after excluding adjustment of Rs. 50,000 which was already declared by assessee while filing return of income. Commissioner (Appeals) invoked provisions of section 50C(2) read with section 50C(3) and referred matter to DVO. DVO determined value of property at Rs. 8.23 crores as on 30-12-2015. Adopting value arrived at by DVO, Assessing Officer computed capital gains. On appeal the Tribunal held that since though agreement to sell properties was entered into by assessee on 30-12-2015, however, part consideration was received on 14-8-2014, provisions of section 50C adopting value for stamp duty purposes as on date of sale deed i. e. 30-12-2015 could not be applied but value as on date of agreement/date of receipt of advance i. e. 14-8-2014 was to be applied. Therefore, Assessing Officer was to be directed to adopt actual sale consideration declared and accepted on date of agreement entered into by assessee to compute capital gains. (AY. 2016-17)

Held that the question whether a residential house was constructed or not within the stipulated period is a question of fact. The assessee has not challenged the finding of the fact of the Tribunal on the ground that it is perverse, and rightly so. It is apparent from a plain reading of s. 54 that the allowance is available if the capital gains arising from a sale of residential property is utilised by the assessee for purchasing a residential property or constructing a residential house. It is obvious that the construction of a residential house would entail raising a construction for inhabitation as a residential dwelling unit. The Inspector's report, which the Tribunal had accepted is a makeshift guardroom made of plywood of 7 feet x 6 feet was found on the site and a similar room of plywood of 16 feet x 12 feet with a toilet attached was found at the said site. Putting together a structure of plywood sheets cannot be construed as constructing a residential house. The Inspector had also reported that there was no electricity or water connection on the land and electricity was used by genset. The first inspection report indicated that the exact location itself of the land was difficult to find as the area was vast and inhabited and comprised of hilly terrain. It is material to note that the structures made of plywood sheets were found to exist on the subject property during the second visit of the Inspector conducted on 7th Dec., 2017. No question of law arises for consideration of this Court given the description of the subject property in question, as noted by the Tribunal in its order. The findings of the Tribunal cannot be assailed as perverse or manifestly erroneous. (AY. 2015-16)

The Assessing Officer disallowed the deduction claimed by assessee under section 54 of the act. Tribunal held that an apartment buyer agreement was entered into by assessee in respect of an under construction flat, since sale as well as possession of property in question were completed within a period of three years from date of sale of residential house, the assessee would be entitled to claim exemption under section 54. While dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court observed that view taken by Tribunal was in consonance with judgment of High Court in Pr. CIT v. Akshay Sobti [2020] 423 ITR 321 (Delhi) (HC). Accordingly, no substantial question of law arose for consideration.

Held that the claim for exemption under Section 54 was allowed in the name of the co-owner. The order of the CIT(A) was affirmed. (AY. 2017-18)
ITO v. Prakash Ramkrishna Pophale (2024) 231 TTJ 49 (UO) (Pune) (Trib)

S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-declared income under head "business or profession"-No declaration of capital gains-Denial of exemption by the AO, and the CIT(A) affirmed. [S. 28(i), 54F, 143(1)] 847
Assessee filed his return of income which was processed under section 143(1). Subsequently, the assessee raised a plea that due to mistake by his previous authorized representative, deduction under section 54F could not be claimed in return of income. Additional ground was raised before the CIT(A) claiming the exemption u/s 54 /54F. CIT(A) dismissed the additional grounds of appeal. On further appeal, the Tribunal held that no capital gain was disclosed in return of income. Income was declared under head "Profit and Gains from business or profession. Since there was no declaration of capital gain in return of income, the direction to The Assessing Officer to consider claim under section 54/54F would not arise. (AY. 2019-20)

S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Cost of improvement-Expenditure incurred to make property habitable-Proper electrification, water facilities, wood work, glass work, etc-Allowable as deduction. [S. 45, 48] 848
The Assessee incurred certain expenditure to bring new house in habitable condition, it also claimed deduction for the same. The Assessing Officer denied assessee's claim on ground that capital expenditure incurred by assessee could not be included in the cost of new property. The CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO on the ground that the expenditure constituted renovation expenditure, hence not allowable as deduction. On appeal, the Tribunal held that the expenditure incurred for proper electrification, water facilities, wood work, glass work, etc. to make new house habitable, since the new house was purchased by assessee in inhabitable condition was allowable as deduction. 849 S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Sale deed refers that the possession of property was taken on 31-3-2015-With within period of one year before date of sale of original asset-Covenants in sale deed executed and registered were conclusive in absence of any evidence to contrary-Entitled for deduction. [S. 54F]

The Assessee has sold two properties and claimed deduction under section 54/54F in respect of capital gains arising on sale of assets, citing purchase of new residential bungalow. The claim was denied by The Assessing Officer holding that deduction under section 54/54F cannot be claimed simultaneously in respect of same asset; and that the payment for purchase of new house was made prior to one year before sale of original asset. The CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal, the Tribunal held that the term 'purchase' employed in sub-section (2) of section 54, is not used in sense of legal transfer. Therefore, holding of a legal title within a period of one year was not a condition precedent for availing deduction under section 54. The recital of sale deed clearly stated that possession of property was taken on 31-3-2015 which was within the period of one year before date of sale of original asset. The covenants in sale deed which was duly executed and registered, were considered conclusive in the absence of any evidence to the contrary. Therefore, finding of The Commissioner (Appeals) that the document was fabricated was regarded as bald allegation and not sustained in eyes of law. The assessee is entitled for deduction under section 54/54F of the Act. (AY. 2016-17)

Held that, for the purpose of claiming the benefit under section 54 of the Act, the assesse must purchase another residential house within a period of one year before or two years after the date of transfer of the old house, or construct a new residential house within a specified period of three years from the date of transfer of old house. 851 S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Capital gains exemption-Date of possession vs. Date of agreement-Date of possession considered as date of purchase-Beneficial provisions to be liberally interpreted. [S. 45, 144C, 147]
The Tribunal allowed the appeals filed by Sunil Amritlal Shah and Rita Sunil Shah, holding that the date of possession of new residential house, rather than the agreement date, should be considered for determining eligibility for deduction under Section 54.

In this case, the assessee sold a jointly owned flat on 10/2/2011 and claimed exemption under Section 54 for the purchase of a new residential property. While the purchase agreement for the new residential property was executed on 25/7/2009, the possession was granted on 2/2/2011. The Assessing Officer rejected the claim for exemption, taking the agreement date as the purchase date, which fell outside the prescribed one-year window before the sale. However, the Tribunal held that for under-construction properties, the date of possession is the relevant date for determining the purchase. As the possession was granted within the required period, the assessee was entitled to the exemption. Followed, *PCIT v. AkshaySobti (2020) 423 ITR 321 (Delhi)(HC) CIT v. Beena K. S. 54: Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Utilization of other funds (apart from sale consideration) for constructing new residential house-Deduction under section 54 could not be denied. [S. 139(4) 852
The assessee is eligible to claim deduction under this section, even if a new residential house is purchased within one year before the date of transfer of original asset. This implies that assessee may utilize funds other than the sale consideration of original asset for investing in a new residential house. I t is not mandatory that only the sale consideration of original asset to be utilised for purchasing or constructing a new residential house. In the present case, since the assessee, has utilized other funds (apart from sale consideration) for constructing new residential house, the deduction u/s 54 cannot be denied. (AY. 2013-14)

S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Incomplete investment-Matter remanded back to Assessing Officer for de novo adjudication. 853
The Assessing Officer denied exemption claimed by the assessee. During appellate proceedings, assessee provided evidence to support her claim. However, despite the request from Commissioner (Appeals) for the remand report from Assessing Officer, no such report was received. The Commissioner (Appeals) concluded that entire long-term capital gains from sale had not been entirely reinvested in new residential property within prescribed period or deposited into Capital Gains Account Scheme. Consequently, he granted exemption under section 54 only to extent of actual investment made in new property, limited to assessee's share as a co-owner. The Tribunal held that there was no material available on record to show that assessee had been put to notice or granted an opportunity of hearing by Commissioner (Appeals) before arriving at aforesaid conclusion. Accordingly the matter was remanded to the file of the Assessing Officer for denovo adjudication. (AY. 2013-14)

854 S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Investment in under construction residential house-Expiry of three years from date of sale of original asset-Investment in under construction flat-Utilised only half amount of long term capital gains-Balance amount of long-term capital gain should be charged to tax under section 45 in year under consideration, being year in which period of three years from date of transfer of original asset expired. [S. 45, 54(2)]

The Assessee sold a residential flat and earned long-term capital gain. The entire amount of Capital Gain was deposited under Capital Gain Account Scheme and the assessee claimed deduction under section 54. The Assessee booked an under-construction residential flat. Assessing Officer denied claim under section 54 on ground that, upon expiry of three years from date of sale of original asset, said residential flat was not constructed by builder and money invested was lying idle. On appeal, the CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On further appeal, the Tribunal held that purchase of an under-construction flat by assessee would tantamount to investment in construction of a residential house for purpose of section 54. However, on the facts of the case, since assessee had only utilised half amount out of LTCG in new residential house, the balance amount of long-term capital gain should be charged to tax under section 45 in year under consideration, being year in which period of three years from date of transfer of original asset expired. 855 S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Exemption allowable on full purchase cost of new residential property, including stamp duty, restricted to sale proceeds of original property. [S. 45]

The Assessee sold property for Rs. 3,86,00,000 and bought new property for Rs. 18,50,00,000 plus Rs. 1,03,60,000 of stamp duty. The AO denied the exemption, which was affirmed by the CIT(A). On appeal, the Tribunal held that Commissioner (Appeals) mistakenly considered only stamp duty as new cost of the property and disallowed Rs. 2,82,40,000 as taxable long-term capital gain. Tribunal held that the full cost of new residential property, including stamp duty, is eligible for deduction under section 54, subject to limit of sale proceeds of original property. (AY. 2021-22)

The Assessee, a non-resident, sold an immovable property and claimed deduction under section 54. The Assessing Officer reopened assessment under section 147 and passed an ex parte assessment order treating entire receipt as unexplained short-term capital gain. The Assessee filed an appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) and furnished all details and documentary evidences in respect of sale of immovable property by her as well as in respect of new residential flat purchased by her, for claiming deduction under section 54. The Commissioner (Appeals) rejected the claim solely on the ground that the assessee had not filed a return of income, and therefore, the deduction under Section 54 was not allowable. On appeal, the Tribunal held that when substantive law confers a benefit on assessee under a statute, it cannot be taken away by authority on mere technicalities. Therefore, benefit under section 54 could not be denied to assessee merely on ground that she did not furnish return of income claiming such deduction. (AY. 2010-11)

S. 54 : Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Sale of immoveable property-Purchase of residential unit/ flat from a builder-Payment by instalments-Possession of flat was received within 3 years from sale of property-Agreement for sale of flat by builder is construed as agreement of construction-Possession is construed as completion of construction-Entitle to exemption. [S. 45] 857
The Assessee sold his immovable property on 11-11-2011 and earned long-term capital gain. The Assessee had also entered into an agreement to purchase new residential unit/ flat vide agreement to sell dated 11-10-2010 and made periodic payment of instalments. Possession of flat was received on 23-4-2012 which was within period of 3 years after date of sale on which capital gain had accrued. However, the Assessing Officer denied the claim, holding that the new residential property was "purchased" more than one year before the sale of the original asset, thereby not meeting the conditions of Section 54. CIT(A) also affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal, the Assessee contended that Assessing Officer had misinterpreted facts. The exemption under Section 54 was claimed not on the basis of a "purchase" but on the construction of a new residential house. On appeal the Tribunal held that agreement for sale by builder to assessee could be construed as agreement of construction and date of grant of possession could be construed as completion of construction. The assessee had a window upto 11-11-2014 to construct house property, and possession was received on 23-04-2012, the Tribunal held that the conditions for exemption under Section 54 were fulfilled. Accordingly, the exemption was allowed. Relied on PCIT v. Akshay Sobti [2020] 423 ITR 321 (Delhi) (HC). Circular No. 672 dated 16-12-1993, Circular No. 471 dated 15-10-1986) (AY. 2012-13)

S. 54: Capital gains-Profit on sale of property used for residence-Purchase of new house in name of spouse-Eligible for deduction. [S. 45, 54F] 858
Assessee sold his property in India. Out of the sale proceeds, an amount of Rs. 1cr was invested into a new residential house in India. The residential house in which the investment was made by the assessee was registered in the name of his spouse. The assessee claimed deduction u/s 54 of the Act. The Assessing Officer disallowed the claim, which was affirmed by the CIT (A). On appeal, the Tribunal held that since the sale proceeds were duly invested in acquisition of new property within the due time, the assessee was eligible to claim deduction under Section 54 of the Act, even though the property was registered in the name of his spouse. The Assessee sold her immovable property and earned long term capital gain. The assessee has also entered into a new agreement to purchase the new residential flat vide agreement to sell and made periodic payment in instalments. Possession of flat was received within period of 3years after date of sale on which capital gain had accrued. The Assessee claimed exemption under section 54. The AO denied the exemption u/s 54 on the ground that the assessee did not purchase within one year before the date of sale—i. e., between 11.11.2011 and 11.11.2014.. On appeal, the Tribunal held that the assessee had a window up to 11.11.2014 to construct house property. The assessee received the possession of the flat on 23-4-2012 which is falls within three year from the date of of the sale, hence she was eligible for exemption (AY. 2012-13)

860 S. 54B : Capital gains-Land used for agricultural purposes-Sufficient if in the two years, the land is used for agricultural purposes-Invested in capital gains scheme-Entitle to exemption. [S. 45]

Held that whole parcel of the land was an integrated asset. Even the independent report called for by the AO from Halka Patwari also supports that the assessee had carried out the activities of agricultural land by growing Gwar crop. This independent enquiry made by the AO clinches the issue in favour of the assessee. In view of this, the capital gain earned by the assessee is chargeable to tax on sale of agricultural land and consequent exemption under s. 54B cannot be denied. The assessee purchased agricultural land out of the capital gain and deposited Rs. 60 lacs in capital gains scheme, which on withdrawal had been offered for taxation. The AO was directed to grant deduction under s. 54B to the assessee. (AY. 2013-14)

The Assessee sold an agricultural land and claimed exemption under section 54B on the ground that he purchased another piece of agricultural land. AO denied the exemption as he noted that said land was purchased by the assessee in his wife's name.

However, relying on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Ashok Kumar S/o Tej Pal Singh v. ITO, [ITA No. 7460/Del/2018, dt. 28-12-2022], it was held that deduction under section 54B/54F is available in cases, where investments are made in property purchased in name of wife. Accordingly, AO was directed to allow deduction under section 54B to assessee. [ITA No. 2265/Del/2023, Dt. 08/11/2023] [AY 2011-12]

Ravinder Kumar v. ITO (Delhi)(Trib.) (UR)

S. 54B : Capital gains-Land used for agricultural purposes-Entitled to exemptions even if the new land is registered in the name of his son-Investment by assessee in new land from sale proceeds of old land, even if made before registration of sale-deed, was eligible for exemption. [S. 45] 862

The Assessee contended that the investment in new agricultural land, even though made in his son's name and before the registration of the sale deed, should qualify for exemption under section 54B. While the revenue contended that the exemption under section 54B should not be allowed because the new land was purchased in the name of the assessee's son and not in his own name. And that the investment in new land was made before the registration of the sale deed, which does not comply with section 54B requirements.

The Hon'ble Tribunal ruled in favor of the assessee holding that the investment in new agricultural land qualifies for exemption under section 54B even if it is registered in the name of his son, provided that invstment was made from the sale proceeds of the old land. The Hon'ble Tribunal further held that exemption under section 54B is allowable even if the investment made by assessee in new land from sale proceeds of old land, was made before registration of sale-deed, (AY 2011-12)

The Assessee sold agricultural land during year and utilized total sale consideration for purchasing new agricultural land during year. Assessing Officer initially allowed the claim. Thereafter the Assessing Officer passed a rectification order under section 154 disallowing the claim. CIT (A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal, the Tribunal held that, after examining Notification No. S O 9447 (File No. 164/3/97-ITA. I), dated 6-1-1994 and details of sale deeds as well as certificate issued by Gram Panchayat it was clear that agricultural land sold during year did not fall within definition of capital asset as provided under section 2(14)(iii), capital gain arising from sale thereof was exempt from tax. Even if agricultural land was considered as capital asset, the assessee would still be entitled for exemption under section 54B for total purchase price of new agricultural land or long-term capital gain arising from sale of agricultural land, whichever was lower. Assessee purchased lands at Dhanelli and claimed deduction u/s 54B. Assessing Officer disallowed the claim on the ground that the land at Dhanelli had been purchased either on or before the date of transfer of the agricultural land at Sejbahar, and therefore, the conditions of section 54B were not satisfied. The Assessee explained that the possession of the original land was handed over to the buyer and the consideration received was utilized for purchasing new land. CIT(A) allowed the exemption u/s 54B. On appeal, The Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A). As regards the loan transactions the matter is remanded to the Assessing Officer. (AY. 2015-16)

The Assessing Officer held that the assessee was eligible for deduction only in respect of first investment which was made on 31-3-2014. The Assessing Officer held that amendment with effect form 1-4-2015 is clarificatory in nature. On appeal, the CIT(A) enhance the income by holding that, the assessee has sold the depreciable asset resulting in short term capital gain hence not eligible for deduction under section 54EC of the Act. The assessee and his brother were tenants since April 1, 2013, of a flat and garage in certain building. They paid rent of Rs. 5,000/-per month. A tenancy agreement was executed on August 5, 2014. They received possession of a flat on the 15th floor of the new building on February 19, 2020. The stamp duty value of the new flat was Rs. 11,68,99,000/-. The assessee claimed that this amount was received on surrendering their tenancy rights and invested in the new flat, entitling them to deduction under Section 54F. The Assessing Officer passed the assessment order on September 29, 2022, proposing to treat the entire stamp duty value of the new flat as unexplained investment under Section 69 and charged it to tax under Section 115BBE. In a writ petition, the High Court held that issuance of show cause notice is not an empty formality and its purpose is to give reasonable opportunity to affected persons to effectively deal with allegations in show cause notice and A. O. is required to execute this power properly. Since, Assessing Officer did not issue a show cause notice to taxpayer regarding treatment of stamp duty value under section 69. Furthermore, show cause notice issued earlier was also defective inasmuch as even though it had reference to section 56(2)(x), it did not mention whether Assessing Officer proposed to treat stamp duty value as deemed income of assessee under clause (a) or clause (b) of section 56(2)(x) of the Act. Assessment order was quashed for violation of principles of natural justice. (AY. 2020-21)

The AO assessed the sale consideration as income from other sources on the ground that the assessee has failed to furnish the evidence as regards acquisition of jewellery by will. On appeal, the CIT(A) partly allowed the claim. On further appeal, the Tribunal held that Assessee having produced the notarised Will of her deceased mother-in-law whereby she has inherited a portion of jewellery of her mother-in-law, and the assessee having shown the said inherited jewellery in her Wealth Tax return filed after the first year of inheritance, it has to be accepted that there existed a long-term capital asset and the subsequent sale resulted into long-term capital gains. The Tribunal also held that, the Assessing Officer was not justified in demanding evidence beyond time specified in R. 6F(5)(i. e six years). Since the valuation report obtained from Nayarathan Jewellers (P) Ltd valuing the jewellery as on 31st March, 2015 does not tally with the quantity and weights of jewels inherited through the Will, The Tribunal directed the assessee to reconcile the quantum of jewellery with the valuation report issued by Nayarathan Jewellers (P) Ltd, issue is remitted to the CIT(A) to decide the same afresh. 873 S. 54F : Capital gains-Investment in a residential house-Jointly owning 16-67% rights in six flats-Own does not include partly owned-Exemption cannot be denied. [S. 32, 45]

The AO denied benefit of section 54F on the ground that the assessee is owning 16. 67 per cent rights of six flats and hence was already an owner of a residential house. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that, exemption cannot denied on the ground that the assessee jointly owned 16. 67 per cent rights in six flats. The Tribunal held that, joint ownership/part ownership cannot be treated as absolute ownership in the absence of any specific words in the section 54F of the Act. Followed *ITO v. Rasiklal N. The Assessee constructed ground plus three floors building. The nature of construction is mentioned as Mosque, Orphanage School and Staff quarters. The AO denied the exemption stating that the investment was not made in a residential house. On appeal the CIT(A) allowed proportionate disallowance. On appeal by the Revenue the Tribunal held that, the third floor of the property is being used for the residence of the assessee is contrary to the statement of the assessee filed before GHMC seeking regularization of the property. Said statement clearly shows that the assessee has not used the property for residential purpose within the time granted by the statute and further there is no evidence to show that the assessee has invested money in raising of construction of a residential house. Accordingly, the assessee is not entitled to any relief. The Tribunal also held that there cannot be any exemption on pro rata basis. Order of CIT(A) is set aside. (AY. 2013-14)

S. 54F : Capital gains-Investment in a residential house-Allotment letter-Flat under construction-Date of issue of allotment letter more than 36 months-Long term capital gains –No bar on appellate authorities to entertain claim-Directed to allow deduction after verification. [S. 2(29A), 45, 139] 875

In this case, the letter of allotment was issued by the builder to the assessee on February 15, 2010, granting the right to own a specific flat in a project to be undertaken.. This created a booking right, i. e., the right to purchase the flat and obtain title. The terms and conditions from the letter of allotment dated February 15, 2010 were subsequently recorded elaborately in the agreement to sell registered on May 13, 2014. The assessee had not defaulted on the terms and conditions of the letter of allotment. The assessee had made all the payments as required under the letter of allotment which had been duly acknowledged in the subsequent registration of the agreement to sell. On transfer of the booking rights, the assessee claimed that the capital asset was held for more than 36 months, and hence the gain should be treated as long-term capital gain. The Tribunal held that the holding period should be computed from the date of the allotment letter (February 15, 2010), not from the date of registration. As the allotment conferred a right to acquire the property, such a right constitutes a capital asset, and its transfer would result in long-term capital gains, since the period of holding exceeded 36 months. Further, the Tribunal observed that there is no bar on appellate authorities from entertaining a fresh claim under section 54F if the necessary conditions are met. The assessee had made an investment in another residential flat and claimed deduction under section 54F. The Tribunal remanded the matter to the Assessing Officer for the limited purpose of verifying whether the conditions of section 54F were met, and directed the AO to allow the exemption accordingly after due verification. S. 54F : Capital gains-Investment in a residential house-Sale of vacant land-Purchase of house property –Time limit-Delay in registration-Beyond prescribed time limit of 24 months-Denial of exemption is not valid. [S. 45] 876

Assessee sold vacant land in October/November, 2016 and invested the sale consideration in the purchase of house property. The entire sale consideration was paid on 14-11-2016 and possession of property was also given to assessee on same day itself. The assessee subsequently let out said house property and offered rental income earned in her return of income. The AO denied the exemption on the ground that, the property was purchased beyond the stipulated period of 24 months from the date of sale of the land. The CIT(A) allowed the exemption. On appeal the Tribunal held that, merely because registration of house property (new) was delayed or done beyond prescribed time limit of 24 months from date of disposal of capital asset, it could not be a ground to deny exemption. (AY. 2017-18)

877 S. 54F : Capital gains-Investment in a residential house-Purchase of two adjacent flats –Revised plan-Used as a single unit-Entitle to exemption. [S. 45]
Assessee purchased two adjacent flats and claimed exemption under section 54F. The CIT(A) allowed the claim in respect of one house on pro rata basis and directed the AO to re-compute the deduction accordingly. On further appeal, the Assessee contended that after purchase of two flats, revised plan was approved by MHADA wherein two flats were considered as one single unit, with one kitchen functioning as one household. Therefore, necessary criteria under section 54F stood fulfilled. The Tribunal held that revised plan clearly established the intent to use the two flats as a single residential unit. There was nothing on record brought by revenue other than arguing that assessee originally entered into two independent agreements for purchase of flat. The Tribunal emphasized that- so long as house was used by assessee as one single unit, conditions relevant for claiming deduction under section 54F were fully satisfied. Hence, the exemption wasallowed. (AY. 2017-18)

Assessee earned capital gain on sale of ancestral property and invested same for construction of a residential house. Assessee claimed deduction under section 54F. Assessing Officer disallowed the claim on ground that, the plot of land was not registered in the name of the assessee, rather it was in exclusively registered in the name of her husband. The CIT(A) upheld the order of the AO. On further appeal the Tribunal held that, there was no impediment in claiming deduction under section 54F on investment of capital gain in residential house, which was in name of assessee's husband. Hence,the assessee was eligible for exemption and the deduction under section 54F was to be allowed. (AY. 2020-21)

[S. 45, 56(2)(viib)]
Assessee transferred her long-term investment in shares and in lieu thereof received land of equal value and claimed exemption u/s 54F of the Act. The Assessing Officer disallowed exemption on ground that land upon which house was constructed could not have been transferred without permission of ADDA and no such permission was granted till date and therefore, there was no transfer of land in favour of assessee. The CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that, although deal was finalized on 3-8-2012, due to certain legal/technical constraints imposed by ADDA the permission of transfer of land in favour of assessee could only be granted on completion of construction of property. Therefore, due to technical compulsions, house was constructed first and then land was transferred in name of assessee. The Tribunal concluded that, the investment in purchase of land and construction of house on it was made within stipulated period, denial of exemption under section 54F of the Act is not justified. As regards to addition under S. 56(2)(vii)(b) the difference in value of land given by DVO and value of land mentioned by assessee in transfer deed was less than 5 per cent, no addition was warranted on account of differential amount between value of land given by DVO and value of land. S. 54F : Capital gains-Investment in a residential house-One house-Position prior to 1-4-2015-Joint Development Agreement (JDA)-14 apartment units-Amendment to section 54F by the Finance No. 2 Act, 2014 makes it clear that with effect from 1-4-2015, deduction would be admissible for one residential unit only by replacing word "a" with "one" and prior to amendment to section 54F, assessee is entitled to benefit of section 54F in respect of all units received by assesse. [S. 45] 880

Assessee, along with his four brothers, had entered into a Joint Development Agreement (JDA) with NCC and assessee received 15 constructed apartment units. Assessee claimed exemption under section 54F in respect of capital gain arising from sale of a residential property and invested same in 15 apartment units. The Assessing Officer disallowed claim of deduction under section 54F in respect of 14 apartment units and allowed benefit of investment only on 1 apartment unit. The AO interpretated the phrase "a residential house" under section 54F as existing during relevant assessment year to mean only one residential unit. CIT(A) allowed the assessee's claim. On appeal, the Tribunal held that amendment to section 54F being prospective in nature, would apply w. e. f. 1-4-2015, and consequently, assessee would be entitled to benefit of section 54F in respect of all units received by assessee pursuant to JDA. S. 54F : Capital gains-Investment in a residential house-Joint Development agreement-Disputes-Delay of seven years-Denial of exemption is affirmed. [S. 45] 881

Joint Development agreement (JDA) was entered into by assessee along with other owners on 31.5.2016 for development of a land wherein assessee was eligible to get one residential villa within 36 months of JDA. The plans were approved on 17. 04. 2017 and Construction was to be completed within 36 months i. e. by 31.05.2019. However, litigation was filed by partners of developers against each other on 21.10. 2021 and construction was eventually completed in November 2023. The Assessee claimed exemption under section 54F. The Assessing Officer held that the assessee had not acquired legal title/registered residential house/villa in her name within prescribed time. Section 54F stipulates that assessee should purchase house within two years or construct new house within three years hence denied exemption under section 54F. On appeal the Tribunal held that dispute among partners of developers arose only after

25. 10. 2021 which was beyond period of 3 years from date of transfer of capital assets which happened pursuant to JDA on 31.5.2016. There was a delay of more than 7 years in completing construction as against period of years under section 54F. Explanation given by assessee that there was dispute among partners was not substantiated. No evidence had been filed to demonstrate that any serious efforts were made by assessee to ensure due completion of construction within time granted by statute. Accordingly, the Tribunal held that the Assessing Officer is justified in denying exemption under section 54F of the Act. (AY. 2017-18)

883 S. 54F : Capital gains-Investment in a residential house-Registered sale deed-Failure to get documents registered for purchase of residential house-Denial of exemption is justified. [S. 45]
Assessee sold a long-term capital asset, being land, and made investment in purchase of two adjoining residential flats vide an agreement to sale and paid certain amount as full and final payment. Assessee claimed exemption under section 54F. The Assessing Officer observed that documents related to agreement for sale were signed by assessee himself as a Director of company on 9-04-2015 which was not registered with Stamp Duty Authority. As per provision of section 54F, exemption is allowable if assessee purchases a residential house within a period of two years after date on which transfer took place. The Assessing Officer held that even after a lapse of three and half years from date of sale of property, the assessee had not registered documents for purchase of residential house being flat. Thus, the Assessing Officer disallowed claim of exemption under section 54F. CIT(A) dismissed the appeal. On further appeal the Tribunal held that, exemption under section 54F will be granted only if all conditions given under said provisions are followed/fulfilled by assessee who claims exemptions. Since assessee failed to get documents registered for purchase of residential house being flat, condition laid down in section 54F had not been fulfilled and thus, exemption under section 54F would not be allowed. The assessee earned capital gains on the sale of two plots and claimed exemption under section 54F by investing the sale consideration in a residential - The Assessing Officer denied the claim of the Assessee observing that certain amount which was not invested before due date of filing of return under section 139(1) by assessee, was not invested in CGAS in the prescribed time. The CIT(A) allowed the exemption noting that the entire investment was made within the extended time limit under section 139(4). On appeal, the Tribunal held that, the assessee had fulfilled basic condition for claiming exemption under section 54F of investing net consideration received on sale of original asset, in a new asset/residential house within prescribed period of two years of sale of original asset. Since basic condition for claiming exemption was fulfilled, exemption could not be denied merely for reason that majority of investment was made subsequent to due date of filing of return of income under section 139(1), and for not depositing unutilized amount in Capital Gains Accounts Scheme. Assessee had sold certain shares and out of sale proceeds he purchased one triplex flat which consisted of a common living area, common kitchen and interconnected rooms and claimed deduction under section 54F. The AO held that, purchase of multiple flats under one agreement would be ineligible for exemption under section 54F. The CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On further appeal, the Tribunal held that, the three flats were interconnected with a common living room, kitchen, and three rooms; and builder modified flats to meet assessee's needs; and triplex nature of unit was approved and accepted by builder. Based on these facts, the tribunal held that, triplex flats purchased by assessee with interconnectivity would be considered as single residential unit and would qualify for exemption. (AY. 2020-21)

[S. 45, 48] 886

The assessee sold a residential house and in the computation of long-term capital gains from the sale claimed indexed cost of acquisition. The Assessing Officer held that the claim was based on valuation report of a registered valuer and disallowed part of indexed cost of improvement, on the ground of insufficient evidence from vague photographs regarding the year of incurrence of expenditure. On appeal, the Tribunal held that, the Assessing Officer acknowledged that certain elements like air conditioning, modular kitchen, and submersible pump, etc., were not considered part of the building. However, the Assessing Officer disputed the allowance of expenses related to these improvements. Despite agreeing that the valuation report adhered to CPWD guidelines, the Assessing Officer objected to vague photographs presented by the assessee as evidence. The assessee argued that these improvements enhance the property value, and the authorities inconsistently disallowed expenses. The Assessing Officer failed to prove the inaccuracies in the valuer's statement, and selective reading of the sale agreement is not sufficient for disallowance. That the Assessing Officer could not decide the need for a lift. Considering the 90 year old father was living with the assessee, the amount incurred for installation of lift was an allowable item of cost of improvement. The amount paid with regard to installation of the lift and the other sundry expenses to make the house habitable and hence the amounts are also allowed. That the investments had been made by the assessee from his bank account for payment to the seller of the property and the parents had gone to registration owing to the absence of the assessee in India. Further, the registered property had also been gifted to the assessee by the parents Hence, there was no ground to interfere with the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) in view of the rule of purposive construction and object of section 54F of the Income-tax Act, 1961 and the deduction under section 54F was to be allowed on the house registered in the name of the parents of the assessee. Assessee shifted his business undertaking from urban area to rural area and made further investment of certain amount in new business. He claimed exemption under section 54G. The Assessing Officer disallowed the claim on ground that new investment was made by partnership firm and not by assessee. The CIT(A) also upheld the order of the AO. On appeal, the Tribunal held that interest of a partner in a partnership firm belonged to him and would be includible in his 'assets' and will have to be taken into account while computing his net wealth. Assessee transferred 7,150 shares of a private limited company and claimed indexed cost. The Assessing Officer held that while calculating cost of acquisition, value of land was to be excluded as land was not a part of sale consideration of shares. The CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal, the Tribunal held that the lease-hold interest in land of the company is capable of valuation and to be included in the valuation. On appeal, the Court observed that,on date of sale of shares, lease period of beyond 20 years was still left with company, value of leasehold land could not be excluded for calculating fair market value of shares of company. Further, fair market value, and not book value, of an asset was relevant for determining cost of acquisition as envisaged under section 55(2)(b)(ii) for determining capital gain under section 45. Therefore, for purpose of computation of capital gain, fair market value was to be determined and not value of shares, valuation of shares was to be made under rule 1D of Wealth Tax Rules. The AO reduced amount of interest from cost of acquisition of property and determined the long-term capital gains without including indexed cost of payment of interest. The CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal, the Tribunal held that, as per section 55(2) cost of acquisition would include only amount which had direct nexus with purchases of property and loan taken had no direct nexus with property purchases. [S. 45, 55A(a)]

The assessee had declared the fair market value as on April 1, 1981 at Rs. 21,58,689 which was higher than the estimate made by the Departmental Valuation Officer (Rs. 27,000) and the Assessing Officer (Rs. 70,664). The amendment in section 55A(a) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 by the Finance Act, 2012 with effect from July 1, 2012 substituted the words "is at variance with its fair market value" in place of "is less than its fair market value". However, reference can be made to the Departmental Valuation Officer only where the value of capital assets shown by the assessee is less than its fair market value but if the value of capital asset shown is more than the fair market value, reference cannot be made. The assessee having declared the value as on April 1, 1981 at Rs. 21,58,689 and the value determined by the Departmental Valuation Officer being less than that at Rs. 27,000, the value adopted by the Departmental Valuation Officer could not be taken for computing fair market value. The Assessee-company is engaged in business of generation and distribution of hydro electricity. It had issued 2. 25 crore equity shares with face value of Rs. 10 each for a premium of Rs. 90 per share. The Assessing Officer made addition under head

"income from other sources" under section 56(viib), on account of excess amount per share paid as premium. On appeal, Tribunal deleted the addition on the ground that since assessee did not receive any consideration for allotment of shares in previous year relevant to current assessment year; hence section 56(2)(viib) would not apply. The Court also upheld the order of the Tribunal which held that the Assessing Officer had no jurisdiction to substitute the NAV method of the valuation of shares, once the assessee had exercised option of a DCF valuation method as per rule 11UA(2) of the Income-tax Rules. (AY. 2018-19)

S. 56 : Income from other sources-DCF method-Valuation report by a merchant banker-Assessing Officer is not empowered to value the shares on net valuation method-Directed to exercise of valuation afresh in accordance with DCF method. [S. 56(2)(viib), 56(2)(viic), 260A, R. 11UA(2)] 895

Assessee-company issued equity shares at premium. For purpose of valuation of shares, assessee placed reliance on valuation report drawn by a merchant banker wherein Discounted Cash Flow (DCF) method was adopted and value of each share was pegged at Rs. 9.60. However, Assessing Officer rejected said valuation report on ground that valuation of shares was not realistic keeping in view growth and stature of company. Assessing Officer independently determined value of each share by adopting NAV method. Consequently, the AO made addition to income of assessee under section 56(2)(viib). The CIT(A) and Tribunal up held the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal, the High Court held that language of rule 11UA(2) places a choice upon assessee to either follow route as prescribed in clause (a) or in alternative to place for consideration of Assessing Officer a valuation report drawn by a merchant banker as per DCF method. Therefore, it would be open for Assessing Officer, for reasons so recorded, to doubt or reject a valuation that may be submitted for its consideration, statute clearly did not appear to empower the AO to independently evaluate face value of unquoted equity shares by adopting a valuation method other than one chosen by assessee. The matter was therefore remanded to Assessing Officer to undertake an exercise of valuation afresh in accordance with DCF method. (AY. 2014-15)

S. 56 : Income from other sources-Interest free deposit-Development agreement-Proposal to tax as revenue receipt-On writ court directed the Revenue to drop the proceeding. [S. 143(3), Art. 226] 896

The Assessee entered into a development agreement with a developer for construction of commercial complex. As per said agreement, developer paid an interest-free refundable security deposit of Rs. 50 lakhs to the assessee. The Assessing Officer took a view that since said amount was not shown by assessee in its accounts as a liability, it was to be treated as assessee's income under head "income from other sources". On writ before the High Court, it was observed that genuinety of said development agreement was not challenged by revenue, Therefore it was not appropriate on part of revenue to treat aforesaid amount as revenue receipt for relevant year to impose tax. Accordingly, the court directed the revenue to drop proceedings against assessee to collect tax in respect of said amount. (AY. 2019-20)

[S. 56(2)(vii)(c), R. 11UA(1)(c)]
The Andhra Pradesh High Court dismissed the appeal, holding that:
Rights shares come into existence only when allotted by the company and cannot be regarded as 'received from any person' for the purpose of section 56(2)(vii)(c). The provision applies only where pre-existing property is transferred. The shares allotted to the assessee were not "received from any person," a fundamental requirement for invoking section 56(2)(vii)(c). The property must pre-exist for the application of this provision, consistent with the legislative intent.
Shares allotted to the wife and father of the assessee are covered under the definition of 'relative' and thus excluded from the operation of section 56(2)(vii)(c).
Regarding shares allotted due to renunciation of rights by a third-party shareholder (non-relative), the Tribunal's decision against the assessee was upheld. Such renunciation leading to disproportionate allotment is subject to valuation under section 56(2)(vii)(c). The fair market value (FMV) of shares was computed at Rs. 205. 55 based on the previous year's audited balance sheet approved at the Annual General Meeting (AGM). The balance sheet is considered the relevant document for FMV determination under section 56(2)(vii)(c)(ii), since the balance sheet on the date of allotment is not drawn up. These findings of fact regarding valuation were concurrent and did not warrant interference.

[S. 56(2)(vii)(c), 260A]
The case of assessee was re-opened and notice was issued under section 148 on the allegation that the aggregate FMV of shares allotted to the assessee far exceeded consideration amount paid for receipt of shares. The Assessing Officer held that the differential amount had escaped assessment and should be taxed under provisions of section 56(2). Further, the assessing officer taxed differential amount on shares alloted on account of renouncement of rights by wife & father of the assessee.

On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal provided partial relief. Aggrieved by the order, the department filed appeal before the High Court.

On the first issue the Hon'ble High Court held that the provisions of section 56(2) would not be applicable to the issue of new shares considering that

(i) Explanatory note to the Finance Bill, 2010, clarifies that section 56(2)(vii)(c) ought to be applied only in the case of transfer of shares.
(ii) Allotment of new shares cannot be regarded as transfer of shares
(iii) There must be an existence of property before receiving to apply the provisions of section 56(2)(vii)(c)
(iv) Issue of new shares by company as a right shares is creation of property and merely receiving such shares cannot be considered as a transfer.

On the second issue the Hon'ble High Court held that issue of shares in the name of wife and father of the assessee would not be hit by section 56(2)(vii)(c) as both would be covered by definition of "relative" and the exempt from ambit of the said provision. (AY. 2013-14)

[S. 56(2)(viib)] 899

In this case, part of the consideration was paid by a co-owner on or before the date of the agreement. The Gujrat High Court held that, the proviso to section 56(2)(vii)(b) providing stamp duty values on the date of agreement applies even in case where part of the consideration was paid by the Co-owner, and not by the assessee or on before the date of the agreement. Accordingly, the addition made by invoking section 56(2)(vii)(b) was rightly deleted by the Tribunal. (AY. 2015-16)(ITA No. 2406 /Mum/ 2023 dt. 30-10-2023)

The assessee had jointly purchased a property along with eight other persons for a consideration less than the stamp duty value. The Assessing Officer made an addition under section 69 based on the difference between the purchase price and the stamp duty (Jantri) value. The Tribunal held that, prior to the amendment made by the Finance Act, 2013, w. e. f. 1st April, 2014, addition under s. 56(2)(vii)(b) could be made only if any immovable property, with stamp duty value exceeding Rs. 50,000, was acquired without consideration. The amendment that brought transactions for inadequate consideration within its scope was not clarificatory and was expressly stated to be applicable from A. The addition made by the Assessing Officer under section 56(2)(viib) was affirmed by the CIT(A). On appeal, the Tribunal held that the assessee has followed the Discounted Cash Flow (DCF) method for determining the fair market value (FMV) of shares, as permitted under Rule 11UA. The Assessing Officer is not entitled to disregard the method chosen by the assessee and substitute it with a method of his own choice. In the present case, the assessee-company had allotted shares @ Rs. 100 (face value Rs. 10 plus premium Rs. 90) per share which was much less than the fair market value of Rs. 158 per share as determined by applying DCF method. [S. 10(10D), 80CC(1), 80CC(2), 143(1), 147, 148] 907

Assessee had purchased pension policies which were prematurely surrendered during relevant assessment year. The Assessing Officer made addition of accretion on account of premature surrender of pension policies to assessee's income under section 56 of the Act. The CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. The Tribunal held that, section 80CCC(2) is applicable only when assessee is covered under sub-section (1) i. e. where a deduction had been claimed and allowed under sub-section (1). On facts there had been no claim of deduction under section 80CCC(1) by assessee, hence section 80CCC(2) was not applicable. However, in respect of accretion, reference was required to be made to provisions of section 10(10D) to determine whether this amount was exempt under section 10(10D). Accordingly, the matter was restored to file of Assessing Officer to examine eligibility of proceeds from surrender of policy for exemption under section 10(10D). (AY. 2015-16)

908 S. 56 : Income from other sources-Share premium-Valuation of shares of company on NAV method and its subsidiary on DCF method-Method adopted by Assessee to be accepted. [S. 56(2)(viib), R. 11UA]

Assessee received share premium. AO made addition by stating that assessee valued own shares on NAV method whereas adopted Discounted cash flow method for valuing shares of its wholly owned subsidiary. Thus, the AO held excessive premium to be chargeable to tax u/s. 56(2)(viib). ITAT held that to value the business of the holding company, the valuation of the subsidiary company is relevant and important for determination of the valuation of the holding company. The whole basis of existence of the holding company depends upon the performance of the subsidiary company. Holding company does not have any activities of its own and all the education and training activities are carried in the subsidiary company. The Tax Authorities have to appreciate the purpose for which the valuation of shares was carried out and it should also appreciate the evolution of various valuation methods to suit the purpose. The assessee has brought in new investors and when the new investors are introduced the existing shareholders cannot be at par with the new shareholders by issuing shares at existing Net Asset Value valuation. The new shareholders have to bring in premium to match the goodwill carried on by the existing shareholders. Thus, valuation of shares of subsidiary as per DCF while determining valuation of assessee company as per NAV, was to be accepted and there was no reason to interfere with the method adopted by the assessee (AY. 2017-18)

[S. 56(2)(x)] 910

Assessee had booked flat with builder and got an allotment letter by making an initial payment of Rs. 10 lakhs on 10-9-2012 by an account payee cheque. Assessee made subsequent payments as per the schedule starting from 10-9-2012 till 21-9-2020. Said flat was registered in FY 2019-20. Assessing Officer proposed to add Rs. 1.88 crore [being difference between value of property as determined by Stamp Duty Valuation Authority (Rs. 3. 63 crore) and consideration paid by assessee for said property (Rs. 1. 75 crore)] pursuant to the provisions of section 56(2)(x). In response, assessee submitted that he had registered agreement in FY 2019-20 but the terms of transaction and price were fixed/agreed in FY. 2012-13 and not in FY. 2019-20. Assessing Officer rejected assessee's contention and made addition under section 56(2)(x). CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that when builder gave an allotment letter with terms and conditions and all rights; and value of purchase was agreed upon and assessee acted upon by accepting terms and conditions and started making agreed payment, then it was clearly covered under the proviso to section 56(2)(x). Since assessee had agreed to purchase in year 2012 in terms of allotment letter and also made payments through banking channels before sale was registered, value as on date of allotment had to be treated as stamp duty value for purpose of provision of section 56(2)(x) and since at that time payment made was more than stamp duty value, no addition could be made. Assessee is a holding company of a fully owned foreign company (through SPV), wherein an immovable property in form of Hotel Apartment Building was situated abroad. It had issued equity shares at premium. For computing fair market value (FMV) of the shares issued by it, assessee had taken value of property held in name of overseas subsidiary company at a fair value using DCF method pursuant to rule 11UA(1)(c)(b) read with section 56(2)(viib). However, the Assessing Officer adopted book value of the investment in subsidiary company which resulted in lower valuation;Thus addition was made on account of excess premium treating it as deemed income. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal, the Tribunal held that method adopted for reworking of share valuation of the subsidiary company by applying DCF method or any known method was permissible as long as assessee was able to establish correctness of valuation in light of valuation report furnished. Since assessee had produced valuation report as well as market valuation of subsidiary company in foreign currency, valuation of shares of subsidiary company to determine FMV of holding company, i. e., assessee-company for purposes of issuance of shares at premium was is in accord with deeming provision of section 56(2), therefore, the additions affirmed by the CIT(A) was deleted. [S. 56(2((vii(b), 69]
Assessee had vide a registered purchase deed acquired title of a plot for a consideration of Rs. 1.05 lakhs on 2-3-2017. Assessing Officer contended that value of the property as per value adopted for stamp duty valuation was Rs. 1.11 crores and, accordingly, he made an addition of Rs. 1.10 crores being the difference between actual consideration and stamp duty value of said property. Commissioner (Appeals) deleted additions. On appeal the Tribunal held that initially an agreement to purchase awas executed between assessee's late father and D in year 1991 for consideration of Rs. 92,000 (including development charges). Assessee's father in lieu of aforesaid purchase transaction had deposited purchase consideration in instalments through cheques/drafts over period 27-6-1991 to 12-9-1992. After the demise of assessee's father said property was registered in the name of the nominee i. e. assessee and had paid balance development charges of Rs. 19,962. On the facts, the case of assessee would fall within the exception carved out on applicability of section 56(2)(vii)(b) and, therefore, stamp duty value as on date of agreement should only be compared with actual consideration. Order of CIT(A) was affirmed. Tribunal also held that since the difference between stamp value of property purchased by assessee and actual purchase consideration was only deemed/notional income, same could not be brought with the meaning of unexplained investment under section 69. [S. 56(2) (viib), R. 11UA] 915

Assessee allotted 5 % non-cumulative redeemable preference shares to a company at rate of Rs. 20 per share, including share premium of Rs. 10 per share. Assessing Officer held that assessee had not furnished report from merchant banker with respect to computation and rational behind price of each share for purpose of rule 11UA and made addition. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that by going through remand report, whereby Assessing Officer had tried to rebut valuation report, which had come on record in form of additional evidence, it came up that Assessing Officer had questioned dividend discount valuation model (DDVM) which had used discount factor of 7. 67 percent to arrive at valuation. The Assessing Officer submitted that the assessee had failed to substantiate the discount figure and supporting documents for DDVM. The Tribunal held that valuation of shares was a technical and complex issue for which Assessing Officer had limited authority to tinker valuation of methodology applied. Further, valuation report deserved to be given status of statutory evidence with burden upon Assessing Officer to rebut same with evidences establishing either report was based on incorrect facts and figures, or otherwise, valuation method lacked sanctity to be considered as statutory evidence. In instant case, valuation report as submitted was good enough to explain valuation and, therefore, impugned addition made to income of assessee was to be set aside. (AY. 2017-18)

Assessee, engaged in energy and infrastructure development, issued 1,00,000 OCPS to its holding company. Assessing Officer recalculated Fair Market Value (FMV) of OCPS and deemed excess premium taxable under Section 56(2)(viib). On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) accepted assessee's valuation and deleted addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that section 56(2)(viib) does not apply to subscriptions by holding companies. Convertible shares had been allotted to wholly owned 100% holding company, benefit if any arising to assessee-company on account of alleged excess premium, in turn, effectively benefits subscribers themselves having pre-existing rights in company. On a common sense approach, no purpose would be achieved by obtaining benefit by way of excess premium by the assessee from its own shareholder. Therefore, addition on account of premium amount in excess of FMV made by Assessing Officer under section 56(2)(viib) could not be sustained. Order of CIT(A) was affirmed. (AY. 2016-17)

917 S. 56 : Income from other sources-Agricultural lands-Within statutory tolerance margin of 10 per cent-Addition deleted. [S. 56(2)(vii)]

Assessee purchased two agricultural land. Assessing Officer held that there was difference in value of said lands as per sale deeds and their valuation as per stamp valuation authority and he treated said differential amount as income of assessee under section 56(2)(vii). CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that differential amounts so arrived at was within statutory tolerance margin of 10 per cent as provided in section 56(2)(vii)(b) of the Act, addition was thus deleted. 918 S. 56 : Income from other sources-Share premium-Real estate-Assessing Officer had not rejected valuation report duly prepared under rule 11UA-Addition deleted. [S. 56(2)(viib), R. 11UA]

Assessee-company was engaged in the business of real estate. During the year, assessee allotted equity shares to certain companies at issue price of Rs. 75 per share comprising face value of Rs. 10 per share and premium of Rs. 65 per share. In relation to allotment of share, assessee submitted that it had obtained valuation report from a valuer which was submitted before Assessing Officer during course of assessment proceedings. Assessing Officer rejected said valuation report and calculated fair market value of equity shares as per net asset value method and made addition of balance amount. CIT(A) upheld the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that change of method of valuation could not be done by Assessing Officer. No addition could be made under section 56(2)(viib) in case of genuine commercial transaction in absence of any amount of unaccounted money of assessee. Both revenue authorities had not rejected the valuation report duly prepared under rule 11UA. Therefore, addition made by the Assessing Officer was deleted. (AY. 2016-17)

Assessee-company raised funds by issuing certain share at premium Lower authorities enhanced income of assessee under head income from other sources by applying section 56(2)(viib) on protective basis by rejecting valuation report furnished under rule 11UA(2)(b) i. e. Discounted Cash Flow Method (DCF Method). On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had provided valuation report of Chartered Accountant as per rule 11UA(2)(b) of IT Rules and arrived value of each share calculating same as per Discount Cash Flow Method. When law provides assessee to get valuation done from a prescribed expert as per prescribed method, then the same cannot be rejected because neither Assessing Officer nor assessee have been recognized as an expert under law. Therefore, Commissioner (Appeals) committed an error in rejecting valuation done by assessee from prescribed expert as per prescribed method, which ultimately resulted in enhancement of income and accordingly the same was deleted. During the year, the assessee shareholder had received bonus shares. Assessing Officer held that bonus shares were received by assessee without any consideration and invoked provisions of section 56(2)(vii)(c) and made addition to income of assessee for bonus shares received. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that on an identical set of facts in case of wife of assessee, (Dy. CIT v. Aruna Chandhok (ITA No. 387 / Delhi) of 2021 dt. 5-9-2023) the Tribunal held that bonus shares were issued only out of capitalization of existing reserves in company and since overall wealth of a shareholder post-bonus or pre-bonus remained same, provision of section 56(2)(vii)(c) were not attracted for taxing bonus shares as income from other sources. Order of CIT(A) was affirmed. (AY. 2015-16)

Held that in terms of section 56(2)(viib), read with rule 11UA, fair market value of unquoted equity shares would be its value as on date on which assessee company receives property or consideration. Matter was restored to Assessing Officer to determine same as per rule 11UA, read with rule 11U. (AY. 2013-14)

S. 56 : Income from other sources-Valuation of shares-DCF method-NAV Method-Once the assessee has exercised an option, Assessing Officer was bound to follow the same. [S. 56(2)(viib), R. 11UA] 922

Assessee issued equity shares at a premium and submitted valuation report as per Discounted Cash Flow (DCF) method. The Assessing Officer, however, adopting Book Value Method made an addition under section 56(2)(viib). CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that since valuation of assessee was supported by valuation report from a technical expert who had adopted DCF method, one of recognized methods under rule 11UA. Order of CIT(A) was affirmed. (AY. 2015-16)

DCIT v. Hometrail Buildtech (P.) Ltd. (2024) 204 ITD 154 (Delhi) (Trib.)

S. 56 : Income from other sources-Issue of shares at premium-DCF method-Share premium charged was lower than fair market value of shares determined by auditor-Section 56(2)(viib) could not be applied. [S. 56(2)(viib)] 923

Assessee-company issued certain equity shares to a company at a premium of Rs. 590 per share. The Assessee had opted for valuation as per DCF method. The Assessing Officer held that the assessee had not given any justification for charging such a huge premium. He further held that assessee was incurring losses during subsequent assessment year 2018-19. Accordingly, he treated the value of premium on shares at

Rs. Nil. He invoked provisions of section 56(2)(viib) and disallowed the entire share premium. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On an appeal before the Tribunal it was held that CA had arrived at fair market value (FMV) of shares at premium at Rs. 735 per share. Share premium charged by the assessee was lower than FMV determined by auditor. Further, the Assessing Officer treated the value of premium on shares at Rs. Nil without following any of methods prescribed under relevant Rules. It was also evident from record that Assessing Officer compared financials of assessee and "projected summarised financials" in valuation report which were not exact and could undergo change so as to hold that assessee had in fact incurred loss during assessment year 2018-19. On facts, section 56(2)(viib) was not applicable to case of assessee and, addition made under section 56(2)(viib) is deleted. (AY. 2016-17)

[S. 56(2)(vii)(b)]

The Tribunal held that the proviso to section 56(2)(vii)(b) of the Act was mandatory and not directory and that the assessee was entitled to the benefit of the said proviso as he had fulfilled the conditions laid down therein. The Tribunal observed that the assessee had entered into an agreement to sell the property on 21.06.2010 and had paid Rs. 1,00,00,000 by cheque on 23.06.2010 as a part of the consideration. The Tribunal also noted that the assessee had submitted the valuation report of the property as on the date of the agreement, which reflected the market value of the property as Rs. 1,82,00,000, which was same as the consideration paid by the assessee. The Tribunal further noted that the bank had verified the payment of Rs. 1,00,00,000 by cheque and had furnished the relevant details to the AO. The Tribunal, therefore, held that the AO and the DRP had erred in adopting the stamp duty value of the property on the date of registration and disregarded the proviso to section 56(2)(vii)(b) of the Act. Assessee, National Highways Infrastructure Development Corporation (NHIDCL),is a fully owned company of Ministry of Road Transport & Highways (MoRTH), Government of India engaged in business of developing National Highways. Assessee earned interest income on funds received from Government of India (GoI) - Assessing Officer treated said interest as income from other sources under section 56 and made additions in hands of assessee. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that since entire interest earned had already been deposited into consolidated fund of India by way of challans, no addition was called for in hands of assessee. S. 57 : Income from other sources-Deductions Secured debentures-Interest income during pre-commencement period-Entire investment was out of borrowed funds - It is only real income, unless constrained by law, that is liable to tax- Interest expenditure is allowable as deduction- Only net income can be taxed. [S. 5, 36(1)(iii), 56, 57(iii)] 927

Assessee is engaged in hospitality and agriculture, reported a loss due to pre-operative expenses before business commencement. It raised funds through secured debentures, part of which were invested in a perpetual debt instrument (PDI) generating interest income. Assessing Officer held that in case of assessee, payment of interest was on funds raised through secured debentures, and those funds were not intended specifically for investing in PDIs but rather for fulfilling company's overall objectives and therefore, this expenditure could not be considered as laid out wholly and exclusively for earning such income and hence could not be deducted under Section 57 and accordingly, taxed gross receipt under section 56 of the Act. CIT(A) up held the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that only net interest income, after deducting interest expenditure (11% per annum), should be assessed under Section 56, as investment in PDI was financed by borrowed funds. [S. 56, 57(iii)] 928

Assessee invested in a project which was cancelled due to non-receipt of necessary permissions from Government, the developer refused to return money due to which assessee had to take services of group of brokers. Assessee paid brokerage of certain amount for securing refund of entire money invested by him in project. Refund of money included principal and interest component. Assessee claimed deduction of brokerage under section 57(iii). Assessing Officer disallowed a portion of brokerage paid by assessee towards principal amount. CIT(A) sustained the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that payment of brokerage was a lumpsum payment made by assessee in terms of memorandum of understanding where there was no bifurcation or split of this expenditure relating to recovery of principal and recovery of interest, both of which were due to be received from builder by assessee, nor it was linked on a percentage basis depending upon quantum of recovery out of total due. Expenditure incurred by assessee was for sole purpose of recovering amount due to him from builder and assessee had no option except to incur expenditure in order to make possible recovery of amount including earning of income in form of interest on principal amount. Expense incurred is neither in nature of capital expenditure nor in nature of personal expenses of assessee. Accordingly the proportionate disallowance of brokerage expenses was not justified. Assessee-individual declared loss of certain sum under head Income from other sources. Assessing Officer completed assessment by making disallowance of deductions claimed under section 57. CIT(A) up held the order off the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that in terms of legal provision of section 57(iii), deductions claimed by assessee were allowable only if relevant expenses have been laid out or expended wholly and exclusively for purpose of making or earning interest income. Since deduction claimed by assessee under section 57(iii) was about 2. 68 times of interest income and, thus, there was a wide gap, it was assessee's burden to provide sufficient details to show that expenses were incurred wholly and exclusively for purpose of making or earning interest income. Since Assessing Officer disallowed interest deduction claimed by assessee fully as if assessee had not utilized a single pie of borrowed funds for giving loans, approach of Assessing Officer was also not correct. [S. 63, Indian Trusts Act, 1882, S. 7, 9, Securitisation And Reconstruction Of Financial Assets And Enforcement Of Security Interest Act, 2002] 932

Assessee deriving income from assets reconstruction activity and handling of non-performing assets of banks and financial institutions. Assessing Officer holding that assessee-trust was not a valid trust. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that while deciding the case of a similar trust set up by the ARCIL, the Tribunal had held that there was no prohibition on the settlor becoming a beneficiary of the trust in terms of sections 7 and 9 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, that the Assessing Officer was wrong in holding that the assessee-trust was not a valid trust, for the reason that its contributors and beneficiaries were the same, that the assessee-trust was a revocable trust, and therefore, the provisions of sections 61 to 63 of the Act would be applicable to it, that there was nothing on record to suggest that the beneficiary had agreed to associate for any common objective and the beneficiaries who did not have any control over the activities carried on by the trustee in managing the trust, had made their respective investments based on the offer documents, and on the basis of their investments made in the trust were allotted the security receipt which represented their undivided and proportionate interest in the corpus of the trust, that the Assessing Officer had failed to place on record any material to suggest that there was a concerted effort by the beneficiaries to earn income jointly, and that therefore, the assessee could not be treated as an association of persons. The Tribunal held that the assessee-trust was a determinate trust and no discretion had been given to the trustee to decide the allocation of the income every year, nor was any right given to the beneficiary to exercise an option to receive the income or not each year. Therefore, similarly in the case of the assessee also, the trust was a revocable trust and was not an association of persons. The income is liable to be assessed in the hands of the beneficiaries in terms of the provisions of sections 61 to 63 of the Act. Further, since the respective shares were known since inception, the assessee could not be considered as an indeterminate trust. (AY. 2016-17)

During year the year under consideration, assessee, a revocable private trust, purchased units of mutual funds. A notice under section 148 was issued upon assessee for reopening proceedings which was returned unserved. Thereafter, a show cause notice was issued by Assessing Officer which was also not served/responded by assessee. Accordingly, he made an addition on account of purchase of mutual funds. Commissioner (Appeals) upheld additions. On appeal the Tribunal held that assessee was a revocable trust settled by Mr. Burjor Hormosijiand Mrs Aloo Burjor. It had purchased units of mutual funds and capital gain on mutual funds had already been offered to tax in income tax return of settler. Therefore income or any source of investment in mutual funds was taxable in hands of settler and not in hands of assessee trust. Addition was to be deleted. (AY. 2010-11)

Reassessment notices were issued on the grounds that the assessee deposited a huge amount of money in foreign bank accounts in Geneva but had not filed his return of income or explained the source of the deposits. The assessee explained that his nephew made the deposits. The Court noted that the provisions of sections 68 and 69 can only apply if there is an absence of explanation regarding the nature and source of income. The explanation offered by the assessee, in the opinion of the AO, was considered unsatisfactory. The Court held that the assessee had explained the nature and source of the investments. Also, the Tribunal noted that the assessee's name was withdrawn from the account even before the notice was served. Further, the assessee was an agriculturist with only small land holdings and, therefore, could not have been in a position to make such huge deposits, especially in foreign currencies. The Hon'ble Supreme Court dismissed the Special Leave Petition. (AY. 2006-07, 2007-08)

The assessee filed its return of income which was processed under section 143(1). Subsequently, the Assessing Officer issued a reopening notice on ground that the assessee had issued shares to its director at Rs. 10 whereas shares were allotted to company WPIPL at a premium of Rs. 990. It further passed reassessment order under section 68 on account of said share premium amount. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) as well as the Tribunal also upheld the addition made by the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Court held that the assessee had produced various documents including copies of bank statements of Walden Properties Investment Pvt Ltd. (WPIPL), copies of share certificates, copy of its annual return filed before Registrar, copy of assessment order under section 143 read with section 153C in case of WPIPL. Assessee had also annexed balance sheet of WPIPL which showed that it had taken term loan of huge amount. WPIPL also had reserves and surpluses of huge amount and its investments in various mutual funds, national savings scheme and equity shares including investment with assessee was also of huge amount. Transfer of funds was made through bank transactions. Accordingly, the High Court held that the addition under section 68 made on account of share premium received is set aside. Assessee claimed exemption under section 10(38) on long-term capital gain on sale of shares. Assessing Officer rejected claim and taxed same under section 68. Commissioner (Appeals) allowed claim on ground that it was satisfied that purchase of liquid shares had been made through Account Payee Cheques and shares themselves were held in Demat Account for more than 12 months and then sold through recognized stock exchange after payment of security transaction tax. Tribunal held that additions were made by Assessing Officer on basis of statement of entry operators recorded on various dates in some other proceedings not connected with assessee and no opportunity to cross-examine so-called entry providers was given to assessee. Assessee filed its return for relevant year. Assessing Officer rejected assessee's plea and made additions under sections 68 and 69 by relying on statements from entry operators. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) accepted assessee's claim, noting that shares were purchased via Account Payee Cheques, held in a Demat Account for over 12 months, and sold through a recognized stock exchange after payment of security transaction tax. Tribunal upheld Commissioner (Appeal)'s decision, emphasizing assessee's right to correct mistakes and criticized Assessing Officer's reliance on statements from entry operators to support additions under sections 68 and 69 as those statements were recorded in unrelated proceedings before survey on assessee, and assessee was not afforded an opportunity to challenge or cross-examine providers of those statements. S. 68 : Cash credits-Capital gains-Long term capital gains on sale of shares-Demat account for more than 12 months -Entry operator-Report from Investigation wing -Accommodation entries -Sold through stock exchange after payment of security transactions tax-Denial of opportunity of cross examination -Entitle to exemption-Tribunal is justified in deleting the addition-Delay of 449 days -Delay in filing SLP is not condoned-SLP of revenue dismissed. [S. 10(38), 45, 69, 133A, Art. 136] 941

During survey conducted at business premises of assessee's group companies, it was noted from report of Investigation Wing that assessee was in list of beneficiaries who had allegedly taken accommodation entries from Kolkata based companies. Assessee filed revised return wherein exemption claimed under section 10(38) was withdrawn and entire income was offered for tax as income from other sources. During scrutiny, assessee claimed that revised return was filed under duress during survey and claim made under section 10(38) in original return was valid. Assessing Officer denied said claim and treated same as bogus on ground that receipts constituted accommodation entries taken by assessee. Tribunal held that all details of purchase and sales were placed before Assessing Officer along with contract notes for purchase and sale, demat account and bank statement. Tribunal allowed claim of assessee by holding that no incriminating materials were found during survey and statements relied upon were recorded much before date of survey conducted at premises of assessee. High Court affirmed the order of the Tribunal. Delay on filing the SLP is dismissed. Order of High Court is affirmed. (AY. 2014-15, 2015-16)

SLP dismissed in a case where the assessee was not given an opportunity to cross-examine the persons whose statements were recorded during the investigation based on which additions were made in the hands of the assessee under S. 68 of the Act. Revenue had recorded statement of director of a lender who confirmed transaction of loan and even assessee produced affidavits and notices issued by revenue under sections 131 and 133(6) which were duly complied with by its creditors. It was further noted that there was no link found in documents and financial statements of companies concerned. Tribunal held that since assessee was not granted an opportunity to cross-examine person whose statements were recorded during investigation, additions made by Assessing Officer on basis of such investigation which was not privy to assessee were to be deleted. High Court upheld order passed by Tribunal.

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the assessee had explained the nature and source of the investments, that the Tribunal had rightly come to the conclusion that the name of the assessee was withdrawn even prior to the notice being served upon him, that a justifiable explanation was given that the nephew had got his signatures, that the assessee being an agriculturist and only having a small holding of land apparently could not be in possession of huge amounts, which were also in foreign currency. Nothing as such was produced on record that it was transferred from India where he was doing some business. It was not the case of the Revenue that the amounts were credited from his income while doing business abroad. The assessee was not based in abroad for such long periods to generate that kind of income. The deletion of additions is affirmed. (AY. 2006-07, 2007-08)

S. 68: Cash credits-Burden of proof-Onus of proving identity, genuineness of transaction and creditworthiness of investors on assessee -Failure to satisfy required conditions-Order of Tribunal is affirmed. [S. 260A] 948
Court held that the Tribunal had examined the financials of the two share subscribing companies and found that the source of investments by those two companies were also from the share capital and share premium raised by them while issuing their own shares to other closely held companies and those companies had no noticeable business activities. On consideration of the documents, it was not satisfied with the genuineness of the transactions and also found that the assessee itself had claimed that there was no noticeable business activity during the year and had correctly concluded that the assessee had failed to establish the basic ingredients of identity, genuineness and credit worthiness of the investors as required to be established under section 68. The amount of share application money received along with the premium which remained unexplained had been rightly added back to the income of the assessee under section 68. Court also observed that the burden of proof on the assessee would include the proof of identity of the investor, the capacity of the investors to advance the money and the genuineness of the transaction. The assessee has to prove these three factors by producing acceptable evidence and only then the onus shifts on the Department. (AY. 2012-13)

The assessee filed its return of income which was processed under section 143(1). Subsequently, the Assessing Officer issued a reopening notice on ground that the assessee had issued shares to its director at Rs. 10 whereas, shares were alloted to company WPIPL at a premium of Rs. 990. It further passed reassessment order under section 68 on account of said share premium amount. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) as well as the Tribunal also upheld the addition made by the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Court held that the assessee had produced various documents including copies of bank statements of Walden Properties Investment Pvt Ltd. (WPIPL) copies of share certificates, copy of its annual return filed before Registrar, copy of assessment order under section 143 read with section 153C in case of WPIPL. Assessee had also annexed balance sheet of WPIPL which showed that it had taken term loan of huge amount. WPIPL also had reserves and surpluses of huge amount and its investments in various mutual funds, national savings scheme and equity shares including investment with assessee was also of huge amount. Transfer of funds was made through bank transactions. Accordingly, on facts, assessee had proved identity and creditworthiness of investor and genuineness of transactions and, thus, impugned addition under section 68 made on account of share premium received by assessee is set aside. Assessing Officer treated unsecured loans taken by assessee from fifteen parties as unexplained cash credits under section 68. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. Tribunal deleted addition holding that assessee had discharged initial burden placed upon him under section 68. On appeal the Revenue submitted that Tribunal without proper analysis of facts of case had passed a perverse order and same amounted to substantial question of law. Court held that since Tribunal had dealt with all grounds raised by revenue in order and had passed a well-reasoned and speaking order taking into consideration all material available on record, Court refrained from entertaining appeal as there was no perversity in order passed by Tribunal.

951 S. 68: Cash credits-Share application money-Failure to prove identity, genuineness and creditworthiness of investor entities-Tribunal without examining facts in depth deleting addition-Order is perverse-Order of Commissioner (Appeals) upholding addition is restored. [S. 260A]

Allowing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the order passed by the Tribunal was set aside and the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) was restored. The Commissioner (Appeals) had analysed the three principles which were required to be fulfilled, namely identity, creditworthiness and genuineness of the transactions. It was not in dispute that the investors were all either group companies or had common set of directors. The Commissioner (Appeals) had proceeded to analyse the data which was made available in the form of return of income, bank statements, etc., and found that the investors had purchased the shares at a premium. The fixing of rate for premium was arbitrary and devoid of any financial or accounting rationale. On analysing the data which was available it was seen that each of the companies had invested in each other and the investments had been made by rotating funds from one account to another. The assessee had not been able to explain as to why the investor companies had applied for shares in the assessee's company at a high premium even though the face value of the share was Rs. 10 per share. The pattern of transactions clearly showed that these investor companies had raised capital by issue of shares at a very high premium and the transaction was repetitive. Therefore, the mere fact that the transactions were through banking channels or that the companies were Income-tax assessees or registered with Registrar of Companies could in no manner be sufficient to discharge the onus under section 68. The Tribunal did not examine the factual matrix in depth and in the manner it ought to have been done. Therefore, the findings rendered by the Tribunal that the assets in the form of investments had been created through rotating of money in between the group companies and the assets mainly consisted of cash and, cash equivalents were not enough to prove that any unaccounted money of the assessee had been introduced in the assessee warranting addition under section 68 were perverse. The addition made under section 68 for the assessment year 2012-13 is justified. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 68 : Cash credits-Long-term capital gains-Penny stock-Sunrise Asian Ltd-Exemption-Information from Investigation Wing-Presumptions is not corroborated by evidence-Order of Tribunal deleting the addition is affirmed. [S. 10(38), 45, 115BBE, 133(6), 260A] 952

The assessee claimed long-term capital gains under section 10(38) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 which included the sale transactions effected during the year on the scrip named Sunrise Asian Ltd. During the assessment proceedings the Assessing Officer called for information under section 133(6) from the Bombay Stock Exchange. The Assessing Officer found that the assessee had purchased shares of one CT directly from the company on August 21, 2011 and sold the shares of Sunrise Asian Ltd. The assessee explained that Conart Traders Ltd. was later amalgamated with Sunrise Asian Ltd. by a court order dated January 24, 2013. The Assessing Officer based on the information received from the Investigation Wing and considering the assessee's submissions made an addition towards unexplained unaccounted income and brought it to tax under section 115BBF. The Commissioner (Appeals) confirmed his order. The Tribunal, on the facts, deleted the addition holding that charging of tax at the rate of 30 per cent under section 115BBE was not applicable. On appeal dismissing the appeal, that the Tribunal had arrived at a finding that shares of Sunrise Asian Ltd. sold by the assessee could not be doubted as bogus and exemption under section 10(38) was rightly availed of by the assessee and that the presumption drawn by the Assessing Officer was not corroborated by any evidence to establish the alleged non-genuine transaction by the assessee. The Tribunal had considered the fact that the assessee had held the shares for a long period of two and half years and sold them, which was not even found to be rigged by the Securities and Exchange Board of India and had rightly held that the claim of the assessee for exemption of long-term capital gains under section 10(38) was not bogus. The Tribunal had also considered the decision in PCIT v. Jagat Pravinbhai Sarabhai (2023) 21 ITR-OL 366 (Guj)(HC)) 2022 SCC OnLine Guj 2619. The Tribunal was justified

Assessee filed its return for relevant year. Subsequently, pursuant to a survey assessee filed revised return and claimed exemption in respect of long-term capital gains on shares under section 10(38). Assessing Officer rejected assessee's plea and made additions under sections 68 and 69 by relying on statements from entry operators. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) accepted assessee's claim, noting that shares were purchased via Account Payee Cheques, held in a Demat Account for over 12 months, and sold through a recognized stock exchange after payment of security transaction tax. Tribunal upheld Commissioner (Appeal)'s decision, emphasizing assessee's right to correct mistakes and criticized Assessing Officer's reliance on statements from entry operators to support additions under sections 68 and 69 as those statements were recorded in unrelated proceedings before survey on assessee, and assessee was not afforded an opportunity to challenge or cross-examine providers of those statements. The Assessing Officer has made addition on the ground that the assessee had deposited huge amount in his foreign bank account in Geneva during year, however, he had not filed his return of income and also not explained source of said amount deposited. Assessee contended that said bank account in Geneva was not his and that amount in said account belonged to his nephew who was residing in U. K and he had got his signatures on some papers when he was in India and that assessee was having 10 acres of land and had no other source of income. On appeal the Tribunal held that there was no material on record to show that amounts were deposited by assessee as bank account was opened on 25-3-2003 and assessee had not visited Geneva in said year and further his name was struck off from said account in 2004 much prior to his visit in 2006. Further, justifiable explanation was given by assessee that his nephew had got his signatures. On appeal by the Revenue the Court held that assessee being an agriculturist and only having a small holding of land apparently could not be in possession of such huge amounts which were also in foreign currency. Also, nothing as such was produced on record that money was transferred in said account from India where assessee was doing his business. On the facts of the case, addition made on account of amount deposited in foreign bank account in hands of assessee was unjustified. (AY. 2006-07, 2007-08]

S. 68: Cash credits-long term capital gains-Penny stock-Bogus claim-Sulabh Engineers & Services Ltd-Order of Tribunal is affirmed-High Court cannot be converted into an Appellate Tribunal to examine the factual issue which was not placed before the Tribunal or lower Authorities-No substantial question of law. [S. 45, 260A] 958

Assessee, involved in trading shares of certain company made a long-term capital gain claim, which was found bogus by Commissioner (Appeals) after examining factual aspects and modus operandi. Tribunal upheld Commissioner (Appeals)'s findings. In appeal the assessee contended that new documents obtained under Right to Information Act should be considered for re-examination by Tribunal or Commissioner (Appeals).

Assessee also relied on an adjudicating order passed by SEBI. Dismissing the appeal the Court held that High Court, while exercising jurisdiction under Section 260A, could not re-examine factual issues not presented before lower authorities. Further reliance placed on order passed by adjudicating authority of Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) was thoroughly misplaced since said order did not examine specific transaction done by assessee with respect to shares of company in question. Therefore, there was no grounds to interfere with order passed by Tribunal and no substantial question of law arose for consideration. High Court exercising jurisdiction under Section 260A is required to consider as to whether any substantial question of law has arisen for consideration and High Court cannot be converted into an appellate Tribunal to examine factual issue which was never placed by assessee before Assessing Officer or before Commissioner (Appeals) or before Tribunal. Allowing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held in three companies, transaction failed to meet test of creditworthiness and genuineness. Assessing Officer held that transaction in question had not met triple test, namely, establishment of identity, creditworthiness of creditor, and genuineness of transaction. The High Court held that the Tribunal somehow did not deem it fit to inquire as to why more than 50 per cent of the amount raised by the assessee was invested by it in the three companies & the Tribunal, as a matter of fact, did not inquire into the financials of investor companies and, therefore, the test of creditworthiness was also not met in the instant case. [S. 56,260A, Companies Act, 1956, S 78(2)]
Assessee issued shares to its promoters at premium, one of which was an Indian entity and other was a foreign promoter. Assessing Officer treated entire share premium received as unexplained cash credit under section 68 on ground that there was violation of provisions of section 78(2) of Companies Act, 1956. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal, the Tribunal directed the Assessing Officer to examine whether there was violation of provisions of section 78(2) of the Companies Act, 1956. On appeal, High Court held that there was nothing on record in balance sheet of assessee which showed that share premium was utilized for purposes other than what was prescribed in section 78(2) of Companies Act, 1956. Also closing balance and opening balance of share premium money only indicated that there was increase in share premium account by way of infusion of funds. Court held that Income-tax Act does not stipulate that non-compliance of any provision of other Act would result in turning a capital receipt into a revenue receipt. Even if assessee had breached provisions of section 78(2) of Companies Act, 1956, it would be penalised by provisions of Companies Act and breach would never turn share premium amount received into a revenue receipt. Assessing Officer also treated entire share premium received as unexplained cash credit under section 68 on ground that there was no justification for charging share premium. Court held that money received on issue of shares at premium is on capital account and would not give rise to any income and there was no provision under Act to tax receipt of share premium for assessment year under consideration. 966 S. 68 : Cash credits-Share capital -Ready to submit relevant documents-Matter remanded to Assessing Officer for fresh consideration. [S. 260A]

On appeal the Court held, that the main reason given by the Tribunal in the orders dismissing the appeals was that nothing was produced by the assessees to prove that the investments in the shares of group companies by them were out of the explained investments. In view of the submission made by the assessees that they were ready to submit the relevant documents, the matter was remanded to the Assessing Officer for fresh consideration. There was no objection by the respondent. Therefore, the questions of law raised in all the appeals were left open. (AY. 2012-13 to 2014-15)

S. 68: Cash credits-Sale of shares-Bogus loss-Penny stocks-Payments made through banking channel -No evidence of agreement to convert unaccounted money by taking fictitious loss-Order of Tribunal deleting the addition is affirmed-No substantial question of law. [S. 260A] 968
The Hon'ble High Court dismissed the appeal filed by the revenue and concurred with the findings of the Hon'ble Tribunal, thereby, holding that the shares were purchased online in demat account, payments were made through banking channel and consideration was also received through bank channels. Further, it was also noted that the Assessing Officer does not have any independent source or evidence to show that there was an agreement between the assessee and any other party. Thus, in absence of any specific finding, the assessee cannot be held to be linked to the wrong acts merely based on surmises and assumptions. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 68: Cash credits-Creditworthiness established-Some of the lenders replied in notice issued by the Assessing Officer-Order of Tribunal deleting the addition is affirmed. [S. 133(6), 260A] 969
The AO had made an addition u/s. 68 of the Act and disallowed interest by relying on answers given to certain questions and ignoring details submitted by the assessee. The CIT(A) deleted the addition by relying on the decision in the case of CIT v. Dataware (P.) Ltd. [ITAT No. 263 of 2011, dated 21-9-2011] and allowed the appeal filed by the assessee. The Tribunal upheld the deletion by giving elaborate reasons as to how the creditworthiness of the lenders had been established. Therefore, the High Court dismissed the appeal filed by the Revenue challenging the order passed by the Tribunal on the ground that the AO had brought on record about the non-existence of the lenders. S. 68: Cash credits-Long term capital gains-Penny stock-Not subjected to any enquiry by SEBI-Sold through DMAT account-STT paid-Purchased at a rate as low as Rs. 2. 5/-to Rs. 3/-per share and they were sold at a rate extremely as high as Rs. 125/-to Rs. 185/-per share-Order of Tribunal deleting the addition is affirmed. [S. 10(38), 45, 260A] 970
The assessee purchased shares Ramkrishna Fincap Ltd. (RFL) at par in February 2004 and dematerialised the same immediately in March 2004. Purchase of these shares happened in the off market and not through exchange. Payments were not done through banking channels. The shares were purchased at a rate as low as Rs. 2. 5/-to Rs. 3/-per share in February 2004 and they were sold at a rate extremely as high as Rs. 125/-to Rs. 185/-per share in the Kolkata Stock Exchange. The AO made addition of Rs. 1,03,33,925/- u/s. 68 of the Act. The AO held the financials of RFL are too weak to command such a high price and, therefore, he came to the conclusion that the transactions related to the shares were sham and not genuine. It is a case of colourable device. On appeal the CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal by the Revenue on behalf of the assessee, it was contended that there is no iota of deficiencies of any kind found by the AO with regard to the documentation i. e. purchase and sale bills, contract notes, cheque payments, SEBI transactions etc. It is a straight case of buying shares of RFL though bona fide transactions involving the stock exchange and selling of the same for earning long term capital gains. The gains are exempt from tax. The AO has not brought out any incriminating evidence or material to demonstrate that the transactions are sham or bogus or entered with any mala fide intentions of converting unaccounted money into accounted gains. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Tribunal held that the decision of the AO is not valid and appropriate as there is no adverse criticism on the relevant documentation involving these share transactions. There is no allegation against the assessee individually as involved in price rigging. Accordingly, the Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A). On appeal High Court affirmed the order of the Tribunal and dismissed the appeal of the Revenue. 971 S. 68: Cash credits-Share premium-Identity and credit worthiness established – Purchases from unregistered dealers-Gross profit declared-Order of Tribunal is affirmed. [S. 260A]

Held that the Tribunal has rightly held that the provisions of sec. 68 of the Act cannot be invoked, more particularly when the addition is made on account of the share premium and the share application money by the investors whose identity, creditworthiness and genuineness is proved by the assessee before the authority. In respect of the purchases, the Bench held that the assessee has already declared gross profit as a whole including the purchases from registered parties @ 5. 76%, and therefore, if any addition is to be made, it should be the difference between the profit determined by the Assessing Officer on the URD purchases vis-a-vis the gross profit already declared by the assessee. The Assessing Officer issued summons under section 131 to 50 persons out of which 46 summons issued were returned by postal authorities citing addressee cannot be located or no such person or no such address at the above address. Out of three persons two of them denied having any transactions with the assessee and one person confirmed that he has paid the advance. As the substantial number of summons were returned back by the postal authorities by citing 'no such person' or 'insufficient address the Assessing Officer treated total cash sales as unexplained cash credit and brought to tax under section 68 of the Act read with section 115BBE of the Act. On appeal CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal by the Revenue the Tribunal held that the assessee furnished the names and address of the customers from whom it has received cash for sale of jewellery. Assessee need not obtain confirmation because the law does not mandate collecting PAN details of the persons if the sale value of jewellery does not exceed Rs. 2 lakhs as per R. 114B-Thus, the observation of the AO that the assessee has not satisfactorily explained cash receipts is unwarranted and devoid of merits. The assessee was having sufficient cash balance as per cash book maintained for the relevant period. Cash receipts from various persons have been substantiated with sales made to them before the date of demonetization. AO never disputed the sales declared by the assessee nor pointed out any discrepancy in purchases or stock-in-trade held in the business of the assessee before the date of demonetization. There is no abnormal deviation in the sales declared for the month of November, 2016 when compared to the earlier periods. Accordingly, the explanation of the assessee that it received advances from various customers towards sale of jewellery and subsequently the advances have been converted into sales, appears to be bona fide and reasonable. The Tribunal also held that as per the details furnished by the assessee like bank statements and cash book, assessee made sufficient withdrawals from the very same bank accounts before the date of demonetization which was recorded in its books of accounts. Cash balance maintained by the assessee as per books of accounts as on 8th Nov., 2016 was much higher than the amount of cash deposited in the bank accounts during the demonetization period. AO erred in treating the said deposits as unexplained cash credits under S. 68 of the Act. Oder of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed. Followed, *Lalchand Bhagat Ambica Ram v. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue, the Tribunal held, that the assesseee had paid Securities transaction tax, the payments were made through banking channels and the shares are shown in DEMAT account. The assessee had discharged the burden. Denial of exemption is not justified. (AY. 2014-15)

Dy. CIT v. Pavankumar Bachhraj Chandan (2024)114 ITR 364 (Mum)(Trib)

S. 68: Cash credits-Share capital-Share premium-Loss making company -Genuineness of transaction is not proved -Addition is affirmed-Reassessment is affirmed. [S. 143(3) 147, 148] 1018

Held that the reassessment is held to be valid. Tribunal also held that the production of incorporation details, permanent account numbers, receipt of money through banking channel merely prove the identity and creditworthiness of the investors but not the genuineness of the transaction. The assessee has to discharge the onus cast upon it by demonstrating as to how the two parties were known to each other, the manner and mode by which the parties approached each other, whether the transaction was entered through written agreement as well as the creditworthiness, objects and purpose for which the investment was made. The fact that the assessee received a huge share capital or share premium from a loss-making company, triggered doubts about the genuineness of the very transaction. Further, the Assessing Officer's allegation that it was the assessee's unaccounted money had not been proved wrong. Addition is affirmed. (AY. 2011-12)

Held that the books of account are not rejected. Payments for purchases were made through banking channel with customs duty. Cash sales are backed by corresponding purchases, reduction in stock and declaration of profits on sales. Addition is deleted. Additional ground is admitted. The Tribunal also held that suspicion, howsoever strong, cannot take the place of proof. The powers given to the Revenue authority, howsoever wide, do not entitle him to make the assessment on pure guess without reference to any evidence or material. The assessment cannot be framed only on bare suspicion. The assessment should rest on principles of law avoiding any presumption of evasion. Followed, *Umacharan Shaw and Bros. v. The AO has not established that the assessee was involved in price rigging and further the AO did not find fault with any of the documents furnished by the assessee. The sale consideration cannot be considered to be unexplained cash credit in terms of S. 68 of the Act. (ITA No. 1922/M/2023, Dt. 21/03/2024) (AY 2014-15)

1023 S. 68: Cash credits-Receipt of share capital/premium-Summons issued to investors returned unserved-Addition cannot be made under section 68 for the mere reason that summons issued to investors were returned unserved. [S. 131, 133(6)]
Assessee raised share capital by issuing equity shares of face value of Rs. 10 at a premium of Rs. 90 per share. AO treated amount received by assessee as unexplained credit under section 68 on the ground that summons issued to investors under section 131 were returned unserved.
ITAT held that the assessee has filed names, address and PAN of the investors, copies of share allotment advice, share application forms, bank statements, statement giving complete details of share application money received during the year, Form No. 2 evidencing return of allotment and Form 5 for increase in authorized capital. Also, AO issued notices under section 133(6) to all the investors for carrying out independent verification of these transactions which were duly responded by these investors by filing all the requisite details comprising shares subscribed, ledger accounts, bank statements, explanation for source of funds, ITRs, audited financial statements and also assessment order framed under section 143(3) in all the cases. AO had not pointed out any defect or deficiency in the evidences filed by assessee as well as by investors. Accordingly, no addition could be made under section 68 for the mere reason that summons issued to investors were returned unserved. [ITA No. 588/Kol/2020, dated 16/01/2023] [AY. 2012-13].

Aadinath Securities P. Ltd. v. ITO (2024)113 ITR 423 (Mum)(Trib)

S. 68 : Cash credits-Cash deposit-Demonetisation-Cash sales-Trading in jewellery -No discrepancy in books of account -Recording of customers' Permanent Account Number is not legally mandated for sales not exceeding Rs. 2 Lakhs -Source for cash deposits out of traceable source -Order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed. [S. 115BBE, R. 114B] 1025

Held that the Assessing Officer had not pointed out any discrepancy in the books of account including the cashbook, sales and purchases, nor regarding any stock deficit. The Assessing Officer made additions towards cash deposits purely on suspicion. Lack of response from customers could not be a reason to take an adverse view against the assessee when the assessee was able to furnish sufficient evidence to prove the source of the cash deposits. The Assessing Officer had committed a fundamental mistake in examining cash receipts claimed to have been received by the assessee towards the gold scheme in light of section 68. Moreover, the assessee need not submit confirmation from customers to the Assessing Officer because the law did not mandate collecting the permanent account number of the buyers if sale value of jewellery did not exceed Rs. 2 lakhs in terms of rule 114B of the Income-tax Rules, 1962. Compliance with the know your customer norms was mandatory under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 only with effect from May 4, 2023 and not earlier. Furnishing of the names and addresses of persons from whom it had received trade advances was satisfactory discharge of the onus cast upon the assessee. Tribunal also held that the assessee had sufficient cash balance according to its cash book, which was backed by cash receipts recorded in the books of account before the date of demonetisation. Further, cash receipts were substantiated with sales made to various buyers before the date of demonetisation as supported by sales bills. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2017-18)

[S. 10(38), 45]

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Tribunal held that the assessee had filed primary and relevant documents to show the purchase and holding of shares for the statutory period, the dematerialisation and sale of shares through the Bombay Stock Exchange in the electronic platform through a recognised broker, and the passage of consideration therefore through banking channels with remittance of securities transaction tax. The assessee had fulfilled the conditions for exemption of long-term capital gains under section 10(38) and discharged her burden thereof. It was not the case of the Assessing Officer that there was any infirmity or deficiency in the documents filed by the assessee. There was no evidence to show the involvement of the assessee or her broker in the conversion of her unaccounted money to bogus long-term capital gains, or anything to suggest that the assessee or her broker had any connection with unscrupulous entry providers. That an enquiry conducted by the Securities and Exchange Board of India into Greencrest Financial Services Ltd. its directors and some allottees, did not lead to imposition of any penalty against any of them nor bring about any allegation or penalty on the assessee or her broker. 1027 S. 68 : Cash credits-Long-term capital gains-Penny stock -Accommodation entry -International Conveyors Ltd.-Addition is deleted. [S. 10(38), 45, 115BBE]

Held, that the assessee had acquired the shares and had been holding them for almost ten years from the date of acquisition and during the year under consideration they were purchased by Team India Managers Ltd. The contention of the Assessing Officer that the movement of the price of shares was abrupt and unrealistic, was not acceptable for the reason that the price per share was Rs. 11. 90 at the time of acquisition and had increased to Rs. 29. 66 over a period of ten years, which was a reasonable increase unlike in most of the penny stock cases where the price of the shares skyrockets manifolds within a short span of time. The assessee had substantiated the financials of ICL which showed that the company was not a bogus entity having dummy directors. Pertinently, the Assessing Officer had merely relied on the fact that in spite of increase in the debt, the sales of the company had not increased proportionately. The assessee, a Securities and Exchange Board of India registered foreign portfolio investor, was engaged in investment in various companies out of which the assessee earned income and this was the only source of income for the assessee. The Assessing Officer had failed to substantiate how the assessee was involved with N, alleged to be an accommodation entry provider who had even otherwise not specifically mentioned the assessee to be the beneficiary of accommodation entry and the scrips of ICL to be a penny stock. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2020-21)

S. 68: Cash credits-Cash deposits-Demonetisation period -Retail sale of ladies garments -Application of net profit of 8 Per Cent on cash deposit is to be treated as income from business and not to be taxed as unexplained money. [S. 44AB, 44AD, 69A, 115BBE] 1028

The assessee was showing income from business of retail sale of ladies garments, and the cash deposits could be from unaccounted sales from the business which the assessee had not disclosed in the return of income. Accordingly, the source of cash deposit of Rs. 32 lakhs were to be treated out of unaccounted sales made by the assessee. Admittedly, the assessee had been making sales in cash from his small retail outlet for ladies' lower garments that the price of such garments was less than Rs. 2,000 per piece. Therefore, the net profit rate of 8 per cent. on these unaccounted sales of Rs. 32 lakhs which worked out to Rs. 2,56,000 could be applied. Accordingly, the addition was sustained on the basis of application of net profit of 8 per cent. on cash deposits as income from business and profession and not to be taxed under section 69A read with section 115BBE. Held that the assessee had filed all the details regarding the identity of the share allottees, namely, their permanent account number cards, passports, acknowledgment of Income-tax returns, bank statements from which the share allotment premium had been given. The share allottees were not unknown third parties but had been appointed as directors on the board of the assessee -company. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2011-12)

Held that the Commissioner (Appeals) had not considered the opening cash balance as on January 1, 2016. Considering the withdrawal for living expenses, addition to the extent of balance sustained. Tribunal also held that Provision for taxing cash credits at 60 Per Cent introduced from 15-12-2016 is not applicable for earlier period. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 68: Cash credits-Sales from branch-Books of account accepted-Cash sales cannot be assessed as cash credits. [S. 145] 1031

Held that the assessee maintained the complete set of books of account including cash book, ledger, stock register, purchase and sales vouchers. The books of account of the assessee were audited by a chartered accountant. Sales had been made from Himachal Pradesh and complete details of sales with names and addresses, value added tax details with amount and other details of bills were uploaded on the website of that State Government Department and were accompanied by the trade invoice and were verified at the toll barrier. Keeping in view all this, the sale of goods and their movement from Himachal Pradesh to village Asgarpur, Yamuna Nagar could not be denied. Further, the assessee's books of account had been accepted by the Assessing Officer. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2015-16)

Held that the Assessing Officer ought to have analysed the purchases also and whether such a profit had resulted to the assessee, which could give rise to unexplained cash to the assessee. In such a situation, why the books of account should have not been rejected. The profit ratio from sales and purchases which could not be of that magnitude, had not been examined. 1033 S. 68: Cash credits-Shares-Long term capital gains-Offline purchase-Penny stock-Accommodation entries-Opportunity of cross examination is not given -Addition is deleted. [S. 10(38), 45]
Assessing Officer disallowed assessee's LTCG claim on sale of shares, alleging bogus transactions due to offline share purchase, sharp price rise, and third-party admissions about accommodation entries. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that no concrete evidence was presented to link assessee to price rigging or bogus transactions and moreover, share purchase was legitimately, done through banking channels, and duly dematerialized and AO's acceptance of genuineness of purchase contradicted claim of a bogus sale. Addition was made by Assessing Officer based on statements/information received from 3rd party, but no opportunity was afforded by revenue for cross-examination which was against principles of natural justice. Offline purchase of share is not prohibited under statute and sharp rise in price of scrip cannot be a sole criterion for reaching to conclusion that price was rigged up to generate long-term capital gain which was exempted under section 10(38). Therefore, capital gain earned by assessee could not be held bogus merely based on some report finding unearthed in case of third party/parties unless cogent material was brought against particular assessee on record. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2011-12)

Held that all requisite documents produced to prove cash deposits in bank account. No abnormality in trend of total cash deposits in immediately preceding year, during year and in succeeding years. Furnished complete books of account including cash book, ledger, stock registers. Sales are subjected to value added tax and suffered sales tax. Goods purchased and sold are reflected as goods inward and goods outward in stock register with quantity and value. No allegation that assessee had received cash in Demonetised currency during demonetisation period. Entire cash deposits explained. Addition is deleted on the ground that no reason to restrict cash sales to figure reported for corresponding period in earlier year. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 68: Cash credits-Cash deposited in the Bank-Demonetization-Merely because assessee had deposited said sourced income in form of SBNs during demonetization, same could not be considered as unexplained cash credits. 1035
Assessee is a medical practitioner. The assessee had deposited substantial amount of cash in bank which was in form of specified bank notes (SBN) during demonetization. The Assessing Officer considered deposits as unexplained income of assessee and made additions under section 68. CIT(A) affirmed the addition. On appeal, the Tribunal held that once source from regular books was considered as explained and assessee had merely deposited that sourced income in SBN, that income could not be considered as unexplained. S. 68: Cash credits-long-term capital gain-Sale of shares -Penny stock -Accommodation entries -Information from investigation Wing-Purchase in physical form -Decartelized -Purchase was made through Banking channels -Deletion of addition by CIT(A) is affirmed. [S. 10(38), 45] 1036
Assessing Officer reopened assessment on ground that long-term capital gain declared by assessee was bogus in nature on basis of report of Investigation Wing that person named Giriraj Kishore Agarwal has provided bogus entries in respect of sale of shares of Moryo Industries Ltd which was purchased in physical form, got it transferred in his name and later dematerialised. The AO made addition under S. 68 of the Act. On appeal the CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that payment for purchase of shares was made through banking channels and assessee had furnished copy of demat statement, which showed entry and exit of shares. Assessing Officer had not found fault with any of documents furnished by assessee evidencing purchase and sale of shares and had also not carried out any independent enquiry with regard to transactions carried on by assessee. On facts, order of the CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2014-15)
ITO v. Prakashmal Malraj Jain. (2024) 208 ITD 403 (Mum.) (Trib.)

S. 68: Cash credits-Long-term capital gains-Accommodation entries-Penny stock -Purchase of shares of LDPL and MARL in off-market transactions-Inordinate delay in dematerialization of those shares-Transaction is not genuine-Addition is justified. [S. 10(38), 45] 1037
Assessee had claimed long-term capital gain derived on sale of shares of LDPL and MARL as exempt under section 10(38). Assessing Officer held that both these companies were penny stock companies which were utilized to arrange accommodation entries to interested beneficiaries and price of share of LDPL and MARL were put on artificial rise and fall in a pre-arranged manner. Shares were purchased in cash in off-market transactions and were kept in pool account of broker though assessee was maintaining its own demat account. Considering these factors and circumstantial evidences,

Assessing Officer concluded that intention of assessee was to obtain accommodation entries and treating amount claimed as LTCG as unexplained made an addition under section 68. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that neither assessee nor broker explained reason for carrying out transactions in off-market manner which was ordinarily not permissible and subject to certain legal constraints under Security Contract (Regulation) Act, 1956. Further, reason for payment for purchase of these shares in cash had also not been explained. It was also found that shares purchased in off-market were not dematerialised immediately after purchase but were dematerialized only a few days prior to sale which was strong evidence of orchestration of entire event of purchase of shares. SEBI had also suspended trading of shares of LDPL and MARL pursuant to manipulation in price movement in price of these securities as noticed by BSE. Surrounding circumstances of transactions established that transactions entered into by assessee were not genuine and, therefore, addition made by Assessing Officer is affirmed. (AY. 2015-16)

1038 S. 68: Cash credits-Bogus donations-Cash deposited in banks-Addition is justified. [S. 35AC, 35AC (ii)]

Assessee has deposited cash in bank account. The Assessee explained that said cash was generated on account of bogus donations made by it to various trusts under section 35AC and 35AC (ii) and same was received back from said trusts against cheques issued for donation. Assessing Officer made addition under section 68 on account of said cash deposits holding same as unexplained cash credit. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee failed to provide sufficient evidence to substantiate its claim that said cash was received back from various trusts in lieu of bogus donations. Order of AO is affirmed. (AY. 2017-18)

1039 S. 68: Cash credits-Penny stock-Long term capital gains-Accommodation entries -DEMAT-Sale of shares of PS Infrastructure and Services Limited-Addition is deleted -Exemption is allowed. [S. 10(38), 45]

The assessee earned long-term capital gain from sale of shares of PS IT and claimed same as exempt under section 10(38). Assessing Officer held that there was unusual rise in price of shares sold by assessee which had been investigated by Investigation Wing to establish that cash had been routed from various accounts to provide accommodation to assessee and that assessee had failed to discharge his burden to prove unusual rise and fall of share prices. Assessing Officer made addition under section 68 towards entire sale consideration received by assessee on transaction of sale of shares in said scrip. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had discharged his burden by submitting relevant documents and established nature and source of credit representing sale proceeds of shares of PS Infrastructure and Services Limited (PS IT). There was nothing on record from market regulator SEBI for relevant period which established 'tainted' status of scrip involved in sale of shares by assessee so as to hold share sale transactions as bogus/accommodation entry as alleged by

S. 68: Cash credits-Accommodation entries-Share capital, share premium and unsecured loan-Earning commission income a 20 Paise Per Rs. 100-Credit and debit entries in the bank account -Addition is deleted. 1040

Held that the money received by the assessee was immediately passed on to other intermediaries or final beneficiaries so that the assessee could only be taxed in respect of the commission received by it for providing the accommodation entries. Accordingly, the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) was incorrect and, therefore, to be set aside with the direction to the Assessing Officer to delete the addition and assess the commission income at 20 paise per Rs. 100. [S. 10(38) 45, 69C] 1041

Allowing the appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee was not a regular investor and had specifically made the investment in Kappac Pharma. It was on record that the financials of Kappac Pharma were not commensurate with its purchase and sale price in the market. The assessee had purchased the shares from the open market, dematerialised the scrips and sold them in the stock exchange. There was no discrepancy in the documents filed by the assessee claiming the deduction under section 10(38). Even though all the characteristics of a penny stock existed, the Revenue had not brought on record any material to link the assessee with any dubious transactions relating to entry, price rigging or exit providers. Even in the report of the Securities and Exchange Board of India, there was no mention or reference to the involvement of the assessee. The assessee was a beneficiary in the transactions merely as an unsuspecting investor, who had sought quick profit. The Assessing Officer applied presumptions and human probabilities to make the addition without having any material against the assessee. Addition affirmed by the CIT(A) is deleted. (AY. 2014-15)

Held that where the assessee had filed all the evidence to establish the identity and creditworthiness of the lenders and to prove the genuineness of the transactions, and the Assessing Officer had not carried out any further verification, the addition could not be made in the hands of the assessee. The Assessing Officer must examine the issue in the cases of creditors and make the addition in their hands and not in the hands of the assessee. The assessee had duly discharged its onus by filing evidence before the Assessing Officer. The burden shifted on the Assessing Officer to enquire further into the matter by filing evidence, which he failed to do. The Assessing Officer had acted on the basis of statements of three persons, which lacked evidentiary value in the absence of any substantive and corroborative evidence being brought on record. Held that when any amount was paid and later on withdrawn from the bank, such cash would be available for recycling and rotation unless established as invested elsewhere by the Revenue. Hence, the onus was upon the Assessing Officer to prove. Unless the cash withdrawals had been spent or utilised by the assessee elsewhere and the cash availability was not disproved or rebutted in any manner, the Assessing Officer was bound to accept the availability of such cash for onward use towards cash deposits in the bank account or investment as claimed. Pertinently, the Commissioner (Appeals) observed that no specific finding was recorded by the Assessing Officer regarding the utilisation of cash withdrawals by the assessee in some other investment or expenditure. Allowing the appeal the Tribunal held that the Assessing Officer did not offer any examination of these documents and did not mention even a single adverse point in the financials of these companies. His whole exercise was based upon his claim that section 133(6) notice was returned unserved. It was not at all the case that these companies did not have permanent account numbers or that they did not file Income-tax returns. The Commissioner (Appeals) had mentioned that the Assessing Officer had issued summons under section 131 of the Act to the directors of the company but no such mention was there in the order of the Assessing Officer. From the examination of the financials, balance-sheet and bank statement, it was seen that the transactions were through banking channels and these companies had sufficient financial reserves to provide the credits/loans to the assessee. In these circumstances, when all the details were provided and no adverse feature was noted therein, the assessee had discharged the onus cast upon it. The authorities had based the adverse orders only by making general observation and repeating that the assessee did not produce the directors of these companies. The orders of authorities were to be set aside. Since the addition under section 68 of the Act was to be deleted, the addition for commission did not survive. (AY. 2008-09)

S. 68: Cash credits-Share application money-Substantial turnover-Established genuineness of transaction-Addition is deleted. [S. 56(2)(viib), 131] 1045
Assessing Officer held that one investor, Axis Propbuild Pvt Ltd. made investments from funds received from Toplink Projects Pvt. Ltd. and return income of said shareholder company was not sufficient. He treated share application receipts from Axis Propbuild Pvt. Ltd. as unexplained credit under section 68 and made additional commissioner (Appeals) deleted the addition. On appeal, the Tribunal held that as per financial statements of Toplink Projects Pvt Ltd, who had made entire investment in Axis Propbuild Pvt. Ltd. it was evident that there was a substantial amount of gross total income. In view of substantial turnover and net worth of Toplink Projects Pvt Ltd which was also an associated company of Axis Propbuild Pvt Ltd only finding of Assessing Officer that investor's share capital and reserves were not changed from preceding year and there was insufficient income, could not be sole reason to characterize said transaction as bogus. Since, the assessee had duly established creditworthiness of investor and genuineness of transaction, addition made by Assessing Officer is merely on basis of a preconceived notion and was, arbitrary and unsustainable. Assessee is a foreign portfolio investor which had been investing in India since 2006 onwards. Assessee had sold certain shares of an Indian company and claimed same to be exempt under India-Mauritius DTAA. Assessing Officer held that share price of said scrip had been manipulated for purpose of availing bogus profits and losses. He thus, held that sale of shares was an accommodation entry for purpose of availing bogus long term gain and, accordingly, made addition of sale consideration to be an unexplained source of investment under section 68. Since, assessee had been holding said shares for almost 10 years and price of said shares had increased over a period of 10 years, it could be said that transaction made by assessee in shares was a genuine transaction and, therefore, addition made under section 68 is deleted. (AY. 2020-21)

The shares were sold through recognized stock exchange through Demat and STT was also paid. Held that the Assessee had shown cash receipts from the sale of gold and gold ornaments which are duly recorded in the audited books of account and supported by sales bills and stock details. The Assessing Officer has not pointed out any defect in the books of account. Accordingly, the addition is deleted. As regards the unsecured loan the Tribunal held that the assessee had discharged the onus cast upon him by furnishing ledger confirmation from the creditors, their permanent account numbers, their returns, and their bank statements. The identity of the creditors was duly established. Likewise, the genuineness of the transactions also got established by the fact that the transactions were carried out through banking channels which were duly reflected in their respective bank statements and duly recorded in the books of account as loan which was also confirmed by the creditors. The authorities did not bring any material on record suggesting otherwise. The Assessing Officer did not point out any infirmity in the primary documents nor conducted direct investigation from the creditors by issuing notice under section 133(6) / 131(1) of the Act. In addition to that the assessee had provided permanent account number details as well as copy of returns of the creditors based on which the Revenue authorities should have access to financial details of the creditors. The assessee also furnished copy of bank statements of the creditors showing the availability of funds before lending money to the assessee. Assessing Officer made addition to income of assessee under section 68 on account of unexplained share premium and share capital. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) confirmed said order. On appeal, the Tribunal held that the assessee has furnished copy of certificate of incorporation along with MOA and AOA, auditor's report, balance sheet, trading and profit and loss account as on 31-3-2016 along with notes of financial statement, copy of ITR, share application form, confirmation of account, bank account statement and valuation report as per rule 11UA (2). Accordingly, the addition confirmed by the CIT(A) is deleted. (AY. 2016-17)

Assessee-company had issued certain shares at premium. It was asked to explain source of alleged sum. Complete details were filed by assessee. Thereafter, Assessing Officer also issued summons under section 131 to which he noted that directors of assessee-company did not appear personally in compliance to summons issued. Accordingly, he made an addition as unexplained cash credit. CIT(A) deleted the addition. On appeal, the Tribunal held that since assessee had filed all evidences proving identity and creditworthiness of share subscribers, mere non-compliance to summons issued under section 131 could not be a ground for making addition under section 68. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2012-13)

1056 S. 68: Cash credits-Cash deposited-Demonetisation -Explained the source -Explanation cannot be rejected on the ground of afterthought -Addition is deleted.

Assessee deposited high demonetisation notes. Gave explanation that source being cash in hand and repayment by sundry debtors in cash. AO refused explanation on ground that debtors were unverifiable. On appeal the CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal the Tribunal held that, the assessee is doing moneylending in cash since several years and financial statements support this fact. Interest received in cash from debtors has been consistently shown and accepted in earlier years as well as this year. The financial statements of earlier two years clearly demonstrate availability of cash balances arising from interest and sundry debtors. Thus, this explanation cannot be treated as an afterthought. Tribunal also held that when the assessee has filed overwhelming evidence demonstrating availability of cash in hand and its source, the same cannot be rejected on grounds of afterthought. Addition is deleted. (ITA No 733 / Chny /2024 dt. 12-8-2024) (AY. 2017-18)

S. 68: Cash credits-Assessing Officer has not made any inquiry of his own either issuing notice under section 133(6) or 131 of the Act-Tax deducted at source -Filed confirmation-Burden is discharged -Addition is deleted. [S. 131, 133(6)] 1057

When the assessee has furnished all details in the comprehensive sheet mentioned; the name of the lender, PAN, amount of loan, repayment of loans, interest paid and Tax Deducted at Source, the closing balance, duly signed confirmation of ITR, relevant bank statement of the depositors was furnished, the assessee has already repaid the entire loan amount of a few lenders. The Assessing Officer has not made any inquiry of his own either issuing notice under section 133(6) or 131 of the Act. The assessee has discharged its onus and thus addition as an unsecured loan under section 68 of the Act is held to be bad in law, especially in the light of the facts that the Assessing Officer failed to give any reason for justification of addition except the presumption and without bringing any adverse evidence on record. AO issued notice under section 148. Assessee did not respond to various notices issued ITBA. The notice issued through speed post remained unserved. Before CIT(A) also the assessee had not attended. CIT(A) partly confirmed the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee should be given one final opportunity to present the case on merits. Accordingly, directed the assessee to furnish the required information as may be called for without seeking any adjournment and cooperate with the proceedings. The matter is remanded to the Assessing Officer for de novo assessment. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 68: Cash credits-Discharged the burden by filing confirmation and other details -The AO cannot deem creditors as bogus solely due to lack of response, & without presenting evidence to demonstrate that the payables were unnecessary to settle -Order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is confirmed. [S. 133(6)] 1059

The assessee was engaged in the business of trading of imported goods. The Assessing Officer (AO) made an addition to the assessee's income under section 68 of the Income Tax Act, 1961, on account of unexplained sundry creditors. The AO based his addition on the grounds that the assessee had not furnished the confirmation letters from the creditors, that some of the creditors had not responded to the notices issued under section 133(6) of the Act, and that one of the creditors had not supplied any goods to the assessee and the payment to it was made in subsequent years.

The Tribunal held that the CIT(A) had correctly appreciated the facts and the evidence regarding the payment and that the AO had not brought any material on record to prove that the creditor in question was not genuine. The Tribunal further held that the absence of reply from the Creditors did not entitle the AO to treat the Creditors as bogus without bringing any evidence on record to prove that the payables were not indeed required to be paid. The Tribunal also held that the CIT(A) had made a reasonable and fair enquiry into the genuineness of the additional information submitted by the assessee, and that the AO had not rebutted the same. The Tribunal finally held, that no addition could be made on the outstanding balance pertaining to a creditor, as the assessee had discharged its onus of proving the identity, creditworthiness and genuineness of the transaction, and that the balance Creditors were also genuine and verifiable. 1060 S. 68: Cash credits-Proved identity creditworthiness and genuineness -Addition is deleted. [S. 148]

Tribunal held that the assessee had discharged its burden of proving the identity of loan creditor having permanent account number and filed the return of income as well. Further the creditworthiness of the transaction was proved since they had been through banking channel and sufficient funds were available with the loan creditors to prove genuineness of the transaction. Assessee Company was carrying out regular business activity and loan was obtained at commercial rate of interest which was repaid at a later date in the subsequent year. Tax was deducted at source on interest paid on loans. Hence, addition of Rs. 25,00,000/-made under Section 68 of the Act was deleted. Relied:

On the basis of the report of the Investigation Wing of the Kolkata, the Assessing officer treated the sale consideration as cash credits and also made estimated disallowance of alleged commission under section 69C of the Act. On appeal the CIT(A) affirmed the addition. On appeal the Tribunal deleted the addition on the ground that the assessee was not subjected to any enquiry by SEBI, the shares were sold through DEMAT account, payments were received by account payee cheques, in response to summons under section 131, the assessee appeared before the Assessing Officer and produced the all relevant documents. The assessee purchased 2 lakh shares of M/s Paridhi Properties Ltd. (PPL) at cost of Rs. 10 per share amounting to Rs. 20 lakhs, in March 2014. Later on, M/s Paridhi Properties Ltd merged with Luminaire Technologies Ltd which allotted 20 lakhs equity shares at face value of Rs. 1/-. Out of the 20,00,000 shares, 47,2000 shares were sold during March 2013, within a gap of 10-12 days amounting to Rs. 2,50,24,074/-. Considering holding period, the assessee claimed long term capital gain exemption U/s 10(38) of the Act. S. 68: Cash credits-Unexplained cash deposits-Demonetisation-No defects in the books of account-Stock register-Cash sales duly offered to tax have been accepted -Bringing the realization of sale proceeds in cash to tax will amount to double taxation and the same is clearly unsustainable in law. [S. 145] 1063

The ITAT held that the source of cash deposits had been explained by the assessee as out of its cash sales so undertaken and it was also been explained that such cash sales are subject to VAT where VAT has been collected and deposited with the government treasury. Further no defect was pointed out by the AO in terms of availability of stock or in any of the documentation so submitted by the assessee or in the books of accounts. The ITAT therefore, accepted the contention of the AR that where the cash sales duly offered to tax have been accepted, bringing the realization of sale proceeds in cash to tax will amount to double taxation and the same is clearly unsustainable in law and cannot be upheld. Accordingly, the addition made u/s 68 was deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

The assessee claimed that the advances were received from customers for booking vehicles and were genuine trade transactions. The Assessee provided ledger accounts and sale bills to support its claim. That the assessee argued that the advances were adjusted against sales in subsequent years and that the Revenue's approach was inconsistent with previous and subsequent assessments. The Revenue argued that the assessee failed to provide sufficient evidence to prove the genuineness of the advances. It noted discrepancies in the addresses provided and alleged that the assessee did not produce necessary documents like receipt books and cash books. The Hon'ble Tribunal deleted the addition finding that the assessee had provided sufficient evidence to prove the genuineness of the advances. The Hon'ble Tribunal also noted that similar advances were accepted in previous and subsequent years and that the Revenue's approach was inconsistent. (AY. 2010-11)

1065 S. 68: Cash credits-Unexplained loan-Burden of Proof-Assessee submitted primary documents establishing identity and creditworthiness of creditor and genuineness of loan-Addition is deleted.
Assessee was asked to file details of loans taken during the year. Assessee filed three documents, namely, A/c confirmation, bank pass-book and PAN card, which were undisputably accepted by both AO and CIT(A). The A/c confirmation was duly signed by creditor and contained full address as well as PAN of creditor. Thus, identity of creditor was duly proved. Further, bank pass-book clearly showed that creditor received certain amount through clearing and loan was given to assessee out of it. Therefore, capacity/ creditworthiness of creditor was proved. Further, genuineness of loan was also established by bank pass-book, which clearly reflected that loan was taken through banking channel and there was no involvement or flow of cash. Thus, all the elements of section 68 were satisfied. Hence, assessee discharged primary burden cast upon him and still if AO was not satisfied, he ought to have made enquiry from creditor. However, he had not done any such enquiry and fastened tax liability upon assessee without any basis. Hence, the impugned addition was deleted. (AY 2019-20). [ITA No. 391/IND/2022 dated 18/08/2023]

Assessing Officer made addition for the share capital allotted treating the same as unexplained cash credit in terms of u/s 68 of the Act. The assessee has already discharged its onus u/s 68 of the Act by way producing required documents before the AO but the AO neither issued any notice u/s 133(6) nor summon u/s 131 of the Act for verification of the parties or documents filed in respect of those parties. The CIT(A) duly verified the documents and concluded that those subscribers were having sufficient creditworthiness to invest in the share capital of the assessee company. [S. 133(6)] 1067

Held that the assessee had filed the names of all the nine lenders, their respective permanent account numbers, addresses as well as the Income-tax returns of the lenders, which proved that they were filing tax returns before the Department; and the permanent account numbers details and addresses of the corporate entities proved the identity of all the nine lenders. The genuineness of the transactions was revealed from the bank statements highlighting the loan transactions. Order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed. Held that all the nine parties received the notices issued by the Assessing Officer under section 133(6) of the Act and pursuant thereto, had replied and filed confirmations of the unsecured loan transaction. Merely because the lenders did not appear before the Assessing Officer, that could not be the sole reason for drawing an adverse view against the assessee. Held that statement was recorded behind the assessee's back and no opportunity was given to the assessee hence the addition is not valid. Tribunal also held that opening balance cannot be added as cash credits. Order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed. (AY. 2009-10)

S. 68: Cash credits-Surrender of income-Business income-Survey-No sum credited in books-Cannot be assessed as income from undisclosed source. [S. 115BBE, 132,133A] 1068

Held that apart from business of manufacture of jewellery, the assessee did not have any other line of business or source of income. Therefore, to treat the unexplained income as derived from a source other than the business activity of the assessee would be assessing the income on surmises and conjectures when the assessee had made a disclosure with reference to the seized documents as other undisclosed income in the profit and loss account. Therefore, the provisions of section 68 read with section 115BBE of the Act were wrongly invoked. Section 68 of the Act can be invoked only where any sum is found credited in the books of account maintained by the assessee in the previous year and the assessee offers no explanation about the source and nature thereof. In the assessee's case there was no sum credited in the books but an income disclosed during the course of search with reference to incriminating material was shown with respect to which the provisions of section 68 could not be invoked. [S. 68]
On appeal by the Revenue, the Hon'ble Court held that both the CIT(A) as well as the ITAT have come to a concurrent factual finding that assessee was a 100% export oriented unit and was purchasing goods from various parties. Assessee was getting the goods manufactured from other manufacturers to whom payments had been made through banking channel. Both authorities have accepted the fact that manufacturers were supplying the goods with details of raw-materials consumed and the batch number and the AO had not even doubted the Batch Manufacture Record ("BMR"), Goods Received Note ("GRN"), delivery challans, etc. issued by the trans-porter with regard to supply of goods/supply of raw-materials. The AO had not even pointed out any defect in the tally on the quantity delivered. The AO, had not even made enquiry with the suppliers and the payment of Value Added Tax by assessee has also been ignored. Therefore, the CIT(A) and the ITAT came to a finding that the AO cannot, simply relying upon in-formation received by the Sales Tax Department, without doing any further conclude that the purchases made by assessee were not genuine. Assessee-HUF which is engaged in business of trading in gold and diamond jewellery. During year, assessee made purchases from two parties. Assessing Officer disallowed entire purchases on ground that said parties were engaged in business of providing accommodation entries. Commissioner (Appeals) held, that Assessing Officer while making addition of entire purchases had accepted sales. Therefore, Commissioner (Appeals) considering fact that Assessing Officer could not have disallowed entire purchases in absence of any finding on correctness of amount paid/payable to creditors, possibility of purchasing goods from grey market at lower rates and recording same at inflated price in books of account could not be ruled out and, hence, made an addition to 13.05 percent of gross profit. Commissioner (Appeals) deleted the addition. Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A). On appeal the Court held that both Tribunal as well as Commissioner (Appeals) having arrived at concurrent finding of fact that the Assessing Officer had not recorded any finding of any undisclosed investment found as a result of search by Excise Department and had only assumed undisclosed investment being source of purchases recorded for subsequent sales, Tribunal had rightly deleted addition made by Assessing Officer under section 69C. Assessee had exported Rice. Officers of Enforcement Directorate searched premises of assessee and alleged that it had mis-declared value of goods exported by it. On basis of show cause notice issued by Enforcement Directorate, Income tax department initiated proceedings under section 148 alleging that assessee had mis-declared value of goods exported by it. Assessing Officer made additions on basis of record of Enforcement Directorate. CIT(A) allowed the appeal of the assessee. Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A). On appeal, Tribunal held that since Enforcement Directorate had dropped proceedings against assessee and matter stood settled between assessee and Enforcement Directorate, foundation of proceedings under 1961 Act stood wiped out and, thus, there was no ground to make additions in returned income of assessee. Tribunal also recorded finding to effect that documents resumed by Enforcement Directorate related to sub-sequent assessment years and Income Tax Department could not make additions in returned income of a particular year with respect to which documents did not relate. On appeal the Court held that Tribunal is justified in deleting additions made by the Assessing Officer. No substantial question of law. (AY. 1988-99)

In the facts of the present case, Hon'ble Court has held that the department could not produce any evidence to conclude that any part of the investment was false or bogus. The burden to prove otherwise rested on the department. Unless the initial onus has been discharged by leading some evidence that led to the conclusion that the investment was never made, the burden that was cast on the department remained undischarged. S. 69: Unexplained investments-Income from undisclosed sources-Alleged bogus purchases -Sales accepted-Input VAT credit and TCS credit-Addition is deleted. [S. 68, 69C] 1080
Held that the assessee having established with evidence the factum of having made purchases from HJM (P) Ltd. by producing copies of bills of purchases and the mode of purchases, copy of VAT returns and also submitted the quantitative tally of the purchases made by it during the entire year, and the AO having not pointed out any infirmity in the same, there is no basis with the Department for treating the purchases made by the assessee from HJM (P) Ltd. as bogus. The assessee filed an appeal against confirmation of Rs. 10 lakhs by the learned CIT(A). The Tribunal held that in view of the fact that the assessee is engaged in the sale of two wheelers which are normally sold in cash, there was no justification on the part of the CIT(A) to sustain addition of Rs. 10 lakhs out of Rs. 19,78,514 sustained by AO since out of cash deposit of Rs. 48,80,000 made by the assessee in the bank account during the demonetization period the Revenue has already treated an amount of Rs. 29,01,486 as explained. Accordingly the Tribunal held that the cash deposited on sale proceeds, addition is deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

[S. 69C, 131, 133A(3)(iii), 254(1), ITAT R. 27]
Held that Rule 27 of the Income-tax (Appellate Tribunal) Rules, 1963, sup-ported the assessee's case since the issue was inherently related to the ground taken by the assessee before the Commissioner (Appeals), who deleted the additions on the merits but decided the legal aspect against the assessee. The assessee can argue the issue in the absence of any appeal or cross-objection filed by the assessee. Merely on the basis of statement in the course of survey, addition cannot be made. Tribunal also held that the Assessing Officer cannot ignore the registered document. Transaction pertaining to eight years prior to assessment year, no addition can be made. Marriage expenses of son is recorded in books of assessee's wife's proprietary concern hence, the deletion is affirmed. CIT(A) is justified in giving telescoping benefits to additional income and undisclosed outgoings. (AY. 2017-18)

Held that the assessee had filed an affidavit dated February 15, 2018 but neither the Commissioner (Appeals) nor the Assessing Officer had discussed the facts declared by the assessee in an affidavit. The Department did not dispute the contents of the affidavit dated February 15, 2018 wherein the assessee claimed that his only source of income was agricultural activity and he had not invested or expended the alleged amount. The assessee was never cross-examined by the Assessing Officer. Therefore, the averments contained in the duly sworn affidavit were to be accepted as correct unless rebutted by evidence. Assessing Officer made addition under section 69 on account of unexplained investment in liquor business of assessee. CIT(A) upheld the addition. On appeal the assessee submitted that source of investment was agricultural income earned by his family members. He also produced confirmation letters from family members along with pattadar passbooks of family members in support of their land-holdings and also produced copies of return of income of his family members, certificates issued by Village Revenue Officer evidencing their agricultural land holdings and return of income filed by his brother to prove his creditworthiness. Tribunal held that since assessee had furnished sufficient evidence to prove that source of investment was agricultural income earned by his family members, relief was to be granted to assessee to extent of Rs. 5 lakhs towards agricultural income and Rs. 2 lakhs towards loan from brother as explained, out of Rs 15 lakhs for which addition made under section 69. Tribunal also held that as the assessee has failed to produce sales bills to support sales admitted during year and neither produced books of account for verification, Assessing Officer was justified in rejecting book results of assessee and estimating net profit at 5 per cent of purchase price of the stock that was put to sale. Chandrasekhar Yernena v. ITO (2024) 209 ITD 307 (Visakha) (Trib.)

S. 69: Unexplained investments-Cash Credits-unexplained advances -Cash and stock discrepancies-Survey-Retraction-Senior Citizen -Retraction is valid -Shortage of stock -Gross profit rate of 8.02 Per Cent-Statement recorded under Section 131 has no evidentiary value in absence of corroborative evidence -Assessment of disclosed income is invalid -Diary found during survey -Entries giving names and amounts without other details -No inquiry made to establish genuineness of transactions -Addition is not justified-Excess cash found during survey -Addition is affirmed. [S. 131, 133A] 1092

Held that in the order of the Assessing Officer there was no whisper of rebuttal of the contents of the retraction letter as well as the affidavit filed by the assessee. He had summarily rejected the retraction and proceeded to make the additions in the hands of the assessee. The Commissioner (Appeals) had also rejected the retraction made by the assessee. The retraction letter and affidavit had been filed within a reasonable span of two weeks from the conclusion of the survey proceedings. The assessee duly explained that being a senior citizen, he was under great shock and mental agony and had written the letter once he was able to recover from the shock of the survey proceedings. It was not a case where the assessee had waited for issuance of the show-cause notice by the Assessing Officer before making the retraction from the surrender. For the two-week intervening period, the assessee had provided necessary explanation, which was reasonable given the facts and circumstances of the case so that the re-traction did not lose significance and could not be held as an afterthought. That the stock position was wrongly recorded by the survey team as evident from the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals), which support the contention advanced by the assessee that the surrender towards excess stock had been wrongly taken by the survey team based on incorrect facts, and that the survey team had completely faltered in determining both the value of stock per books of account and the stock physically found in the premises. The assessee's contention was, therefore, acceptable. While deleting the addition towards excess stock, the Commissioner (Appeals) had recorded a finding that there was, in fact, shortage of stock, which had been arrived at on the basis of material provided by the assessee during the assessment and duly verified by the Assessing Officer during the remand proceedings and, thus, could not be in dispute. The Commissioner (Appeals) had considered the shortage of stock as being outside the sale recorded in the books and directed application of gross profit rate of 10 per cent., which was restricted to 8. 02 per cent per accepted gross profit rate for the year under consideration, as alternately contended by the assessee. That the advances noted in the diary seized during the course of survey contained certain names with amounts written against those names without mention of any dates or description to show whether such amounts were received, or paid, by the assessee and the financial year thereof. No documentary material had been found during the course of survey to corroborate such entries nor was there any tangible material in the possession of the survey team to demonstrate that the assessee had undertaken any such transaction with the persons named therein. It was the duty of the Assessing Officer to at least examine such persons to establish the truthfulness of the transaction claimed to be undertaken, which he failed to do. Such noting had no link or connection with the business of the assessee. There was no material justifying the survey team seeking the assessee's surrender, which was taken under coercion and threat and, hence, unsustainable in the eyes of law. The assessee had demonstrated that the statement recorded during survey was factually incorrect and recorded under coercion. The addition made towards alleged advances, which had been sustained by the Commissioner (Appeals), was directed to be deleted. That as for the excess cash found over and above that recorded in the books of account was concerned, the retraction made by the assessee was not factually correct and could not be accepted. The Assessing Officer's action in bringing to tax the excess cash found during the course of survey, which was upheld by the Commissioner (Appeals), was confirmed. (AY. 2018-19)

Held that the land was purchased earlier through the sale deed and payment therefore, was made subsequently. There were several justifiable factors for the delayed payment against the purchase of land. No document was brought on record by the Department suggesting that the assessee had incurred the expenses in connection with the purchase of land in cash so as to apply the provisions of section 69 of the Income-tax Act, 1961. Merely because the assessee got the property transferred through registered sale without making payment to the vendor, the provisions of section 69 of the Act would not be attracted. (AY. 2015-16)

Tribunal restricted the disallowances at rate of 6 per cent of bogus purchases. As regards purchase of shares, order of CIT(A) deleting the addition is affirmed. S. 69: Unexplained investments-Unexplained money-Survey-Deeming provision-Statement in the course of survey-Bald allegation of Assessing Officer is not sufficient to consider income declared as unexplained investment-Income offered in the course of survey cannot be assessed as unexplained and has to be assessed as business income. [S. 69A, 115BBE, 133A] 1096

Allowing the appeal, Tribunal held that the assessee had declared the additional investments found as business income received by it in the normal course of business. Further, the quantum and basis of the amount surrendered had duly been stated by the assessee in its statement recorded during survey and as declared in the return of income. This had been accepted as it is, since the Assessing Officer nowhere denied or controverted these facts in the assessment order. The assessee had discharged its obligation to prove the source of investments declared by him, and the onus shifted to the Department to disapprove it. The income which was offered to tax stood credited in the profit and loss account of the assessee for the year. The Assessing Officer simply mentioned that the submissions of the as-sessee were not found acceptable as no cogent reasons supported by documentary evidence were being cited by him during survey. In case, the in-vestment was to be treated as unexplained, the Assessing Officer had to bring on record some conclusive evidence or convincing finding as how the investment was being treated as unexplained. In the circumstances, it was a bald allegation of the Assessing Officer to consider the income declared as an unexplained investment. As regards the difference in stocks found by the authorities had no independent identity and was part and parcel of the entire stocks. Therefore, it could not be said that there was an undisclosed asset which existed independently and so as to treat the receipts not declared to the Department as receipt from business. The assessee had been confronted with not just the discrepancies found during the course of survey but the nature and source thereof and it clearly emerged that the source of such income was from his business operations. The income of Rs. 1 crore surrendered during the course of survey could not be brought to tax under the deeming provisions of sections 69 and 69A of the Act and had been rightly offered to tax under the head Business income. (AY. 2019-20)

S. 69: Unexplained investments-Cash deposit of 3 lakh-Returned income of assessee is more than Rs. 50 lakhs, cash deposit of around 3 lakhs could not be treated as unexplained investment. 1097

Assessing Officer treated cash deposit of Rs. 3 lakh as unexplained investment of assessee. The order of the AO is affirmed by the CIT(A).

On appeal, the Tribunal held that explanation of assessee that cash deposit of Rs. 3 lakh had been received out of petty loans given to friends and relatives, could not be brushed aside lightly, considering returned income of assessee being more than Rs. 50 lakhs and sale consideration being more than Rs. 2 crore and moreover returned income and capital gain go on to show status of assessee thus, deposit of petty sum on different dates should not be looked upon adversely. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2013-14)

1098 S. 69: Unexplained investments-Survey-Amount surrendered-money lending-Assessable as business income-Cannot be taxed under deeming provision. [S. 28(i), 115BBE, 133A]
Assessee and his family was engaged in money lending business. During course of survey conducted upon assessee, promissory notes were found against which assessee family advanced loans. On basis of these notes, it transpired that there was change in debtors' balances as on 31-03-2016 and debtor's balances as on 15-09-2016. Since assessee could not explain said difference, it agreed to offer same in his return of income to extent of certain amount whereas balance sum was offered in hands of assessee's son. Assessee treated same as interest income and offered additional income as business income and paid due taxes thereon. Assessing Officer held that since assessee could not substantiate fact that advances were out of money lending business, income was assessed as undisclosed investments under section 69.
On appeal the Tribunal held that there is nothing on record that assessee had any other sources of income. Any discrepancy in debtors, in such a case, would be part and parcel of assessee's money lending business and it could very well be said that discrepancy had arisen out of unaccounted in-come earned by assessee from this business only, and therefore, same would be taxable as business income only. On facts, assessee had correctly offered additional income as business income only and provisions of section 69 read with section 115BBE would have no application. (AY. 2017-18)

1099 S. 69: Unexplained investments-Investment in purchase of a farm house-Survey-Reassessment is up held-Addition is deleted on the ground that no opportunity to cross examination is provided-No addition can be made ignoring the registered sale deed. [S. 133A, 147, 148]
During survey proceedings on third party it was found that assessee had purchased a farm house. It was further discovered that sale deed was registered at Rs. 1.2 crores at circle rate, but cash component of Rs. 5.41 crores was also paid over and above registered value of Rs. 1.2 crores and that furthermore, assessee had also received payments aggregating to Rs. 3.2 crores during relevant year from person acting on behalf of assessee in said transaction and therefore, even source of payment of Rs. 1.2 crores to seller might not be genuine. Based on said material, Assessing Officer issued notice under section 148 to assessee and thereafter made assessment by estimating cost of acquisition of property and making addition under section 69. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO.
On appeal the Tribunal held that information on basis of which Assessing Officer had initiated proceedings under section 147 was certain and it could be construed to be sufficient and relevant material on basis of which a reasonable person could have formed a belief that income had escaped assessment and, therefore, reassessment proceedings initiated by Assessing Officer were within jurisdiction and valid in eyes of law. However, since addition had been made by Assessing Officer ignoring documentary evidence in form of registered sale deed which is a best evidence for finding actual sale value and in absence of any other material to show that transactions involved cash outside sale consideration mentioned in sale deed and in absence of any corroborative evidence addition was not justified. Further considering fact that entire addition made by Assessing Officer was based on statements of witnesses which had been retracted thereafter and no opportunity of cross examination was granted to assessee by Assessing Officer, Commissioner (Appeals) erred in upholding addition made by Assessing Officer. (AY. 2012-13)

Maple Destinations and Dreambuild (P.) Ltd. v. DCIT (2024) 207 ITD 376 (Delhi) (Trib.)

S. 69: Unexplained investments-Survey-Cash and stock-Excess stock offered as business income-Deeming provision is not applicable-Special rate of tax inapplicable-Statement under section 131 is no evidentiary value in absence of corroborative evidence-Entries in the Diary-No supporting evidence-Addition is not valid. [S. 69A, 115BBE, 131, 133A] 1100
Held that the income surrendered during the course of survey could not be brought to tax under the deeming provisions of section 69A but has to be assessed to tax under the head "Business income" as rightly offered by the assessee. The question of application of section 115BBE did not arise and the normal rate of tax ought to apply. The Assessing Officer was directed to assess the income under the head Income from business or profession and apply the normal rate of tax. Held that once the assessee had explained that the excess cash found during survey was out of unrecorded sale transactions, in the absence of anything to the contrary on record in terms of any other activity undertaken by the assessee other than its business activity, the deeming provisions would not be attracted. The unrecorded cash had to be assessed under the head Business income as rightly done by the assessee. The question of application of section 115BBE did not arise and the Assessing Officer was directed to assess the income under the head "Income from business or profession" at the normal rate of tax. Held that a statement recorded under section 131 during the course of survey had no evidentiary value in the absence of any corroborative evidence on record. Therefore, the statement of the assessee recorded under section 131 during the course of survey and the subsequent affirmation thereof by the assessee by way of a surrender letter, could not, on a standalone basis and without any corroborative evidence, fulfil the statutory mandate of the deeming provisions of section 69A. As a logical corollary the statement and the subsequent affirmation could not be the basis for the assessment. Referred *CIT v. P. Balasubramanian (2013) 354 ITR 116 (Mad)(HC) CIT v. S. Held there were 77 entries in the diary found during the survey giving names and corresponding amounts. The names were incomprehensible without the full name, address, father's name and other identity details. There was no description of whether the respective amounts written against the names were received, or paid, by the assessee, the dates of such receipt or payment or the financial year of the transactions. There was no tangible material in the Revenue's possession to demonstrate that the assessee had made any such transaction with the so-called persons mentioned in the diary. There was no basis for making the additions. (AY. 2018-19)

1101 S. 69: Unexplained investments-Seized documents-Hard disk-Investment in shares under FDI route-Allegation of Hawala-Source of source also explained-Addition were made on merely based on suspicion-Addition is deleted. [S. 153C, 292C]

During search, a hard disk was seized from premises of assessee which contained data related to money to be sent and amount received in India through FDI route. Assessing Officer held that the assessee had sent certain million USD in hawala route to Cyprus to secure such funds through FDI route and hence same was to be taxed in hands of assessee-company. He held that amounts sent was undisclosed investment made by assessee for obtaining funds through FDI route to avoid tax incidence which had been introduced in its books and accordingly, made additions under section 69. CIT(A) upheld the order of the Assessing Officer.

On appeal the Tribunal held that there was no evidence to prove that amounts sent shown in hard disk was actually amounts sent by assessee-company in hawala route which had ultimately found its way in form of share capital and share premium under FDI route. Also FT&TR reference was made to Cyprus tax authorities, pursuant to which report duly con-firmed that one 'LGF fund' had raised monies through issue of shares and those monies had been utilized by them for making investment in shares of assessee-company under FDI route. Since source of source was also duly established and proved by assessee-company, addition made by Assessing Officer were merely based on suspicion and were to be deleted. (AY. 2013-14)

Tamilnadu State Marketing Corporation Ltd. v. ACIT (2024) 232 TTJ 233 / 38 NYPTTJ 1282 (Chennai)(Trib)

S. 69A : Unexplained money-Failure to consider TDS challans-Matter is remanded to the file of the Assessing Officer-Directed to pay cost of Rs. 15000 to the Tamil Nadu State Legal Services Authority. [S. 142(1), 143(3), 147, 148, Art. 226] 1104

Petitioner did not file return of income for relevant year. Pursuant to notice under section 148, proceedings were initiated against assessee. Assessee submitted that she sold a property during financial year 2017-18 and invested sale proceeds in fixed deposits and earned interest thereon and along with such reply, assessee attached several documents. Being dissatisfied with such reply as regards above mentioned interest income, show cause notice was issued. Assessee failed to reply thereto and impugned assessment order was passed thereafter.

On a writ petition filed by the assessee the Court held that since Assessing Officer took note of sale deed but income tax challan and TDS were not taken into consideration and assessee had not replied to show cause notice, matter is remanded back to Assessing Officer by imposing cost of Rs 15000 on assessee. Basheera Begum v. Jt. CIT (2024) 300 Taxman 160 (Mad.)(HC)

S. 69A : Unexplained money-Gift-Denied by donor-Order of Tribunal deleting the addition is set aside. [S. 260A] 1105

Allowing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held the Tribunal had deleted the addition merely on the ground that no opportunity was provided for cross-examination. On the basis of the statement made by the donor, the burden had shifted upon the assessee. The transaction was not genuine but colourable. Hence, the Tribunal had wrongly deleted the addition. The money had been routed indirectly from the firm to the assessee's account under the garb of gifts. Therefore, the order passed by the Tribunal pertaining to the deletion of the two amounts claimed by the assessee to be gifts was set aside and the order passed by the Assessing Officer was restored. S. 69A : Unexplained money-Non-resident-Books of account not maintained-Transfer to NRO account-Only source of income in India is from interest on bank account and interest on income tax refund and he was not obliged to maintain any books of account in India-Order of Tribunal deleting the addition is affirmed. [S. 260A] 1106

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue, the Court held that since assessee gave specific explanation of a split up of money in question and Tribunal meticulously examined and elaborately discussed documentary record in support of said explanation of money ingress in bank account of assessee, addition made under section 69A was rightly deleted. Court also held that provision under section 69A did not apply in case of assessee as his only source of income in India was from interest on bank account and interest on income tax refund and he was not obliged to maintain any books of ac-count in India. Held that as per S. 69A, the value of unexplained jewellery shall be deemed to be the income of that financial year in which the assessee is found to be the owner. The express terms of the charging provisions contained in S. 3 and 4 the subject of charge is the income of the 'previous year'. Each 'previous year' is a distinct unit of time for the purposes of assessment and the profits made or the liabilities or losses incurred before or after the previous year is immaterial in assessing the income in a particular previous year. Having regard to the express language used in S. 69A, AO can legally bring to tax unexplained jewellery in the hands of the assessee in that financial year in which the assessee is found to be the owner. [S. 132A, 153A, 292C]

AO made addition towards purported on-money in the hands of the assessee on the ground that there is a close proximity between date of sale of property on 23rd Dec., 2015 and reference of cash payment in the seized cash book on 31st Dec., 2015. CIT(A) deleted the addition.

On appeal the Tribunal held that cash book in excel sheet seized did not contain any reference to the name of the assessee or concerned property. No further incriminating material was found during the course of search in the case of the assessee or in the case of search of Poiisetty Somasundararn with regard to alleged payment of on-money. Moreover, the date of transfer of property was 23rd Dec., 2015, whereas the alleged cash payment was purportedly made on 31st Dec., 2015. No prudent person will transfer the property and receive cash on subsequent date. There is no admission of on-money payment in the statement recorded under S. 132(4) either in the case of Poiisetty Somasundararn or in the case of the assessee. Yellluri Chandrasekar Rao Authorized Representative of Poiisetty Somasundararn has denied payment of on-money. He further stated that cash was sent to Bangalore for the purpose of purchase of tobacco and that the said cash is not connected in any way to the immovable property transactions with the assessee. The managing partner of the assessee-firm had also denied receiving any on-money in cash from Poiisetty Somasundararn. The provisions of S. 132(4A) and 292C cannot applied in the case of the assessee. Tribunal held that merely on the basis of suspicion and surmise addition cannot be made, relied on *CIT v. [S. 132, 153C, 158BC] 1121
Tribunal held that considering the documents found in the course of search and seizure and explanations of the assessee, the Tribunal held that, fixed deposit receipts in name of wife; hence addition is deleted. Amount spent on marriage based on estimate basis, addition is restricted to 60% of estimated amount. No addition can be made on account of personal expenditure as no incriminating material is found. As regards rental payment the rent is estimated for 18 months. As regards payment of advance tax the assessee could not explain the source hence addition is affirmed. As regards overseas trip expenses and investment in benefit fund the assessee could not explain the source of investment hence the addition is justified. Seized passbook is incriminating material and the assesseee could not ex-plain the source the addition is justified. As regards payments towards transponder hire, purchase of allied equipment, uplinking facility, and telecom service provider there is no evidence of payment hence the addition is deleted. As regards bills found in assessee's name the issue remanded for re-examination. As regards imported car alleged received by gift which is denied by alleged gift giver. Matter remanded to determine real owner. As regards seizure of cash gold and silver article from premises of uncle no addition can be made in the assessment of the assesseee. Addition is deleted. (. Return of income is not filed under section 139 or in response to notice under section 148. CIT(A) after considering the remand report affirmed the addition. On appeal the Tribunal held since the deposits in the assessee's bank account represented two kinds of receipts, i. e., as a commission agent and in respect of drip irrigation system under the scheme of the State Government, there could not be a single percentage of commission for both these activities. Hence, the matter is remanded to the Assessing Officer with a direction to reconsider the issue and apply the appropriate rate for estimation of income. (AY. 2015-16)

S. 69A: Unexplained money-Delay of 89 days in filing of appeal-condoned-Unexplained investments-Not filed the return-Disputed sale consideration-Addition made on wrong assumption of facts-Addition is deleted-Income not exceeding the maximum amount-Provision of section. 249(4) cannot be invoked. [S. 115BBE, 147, 148, 154, 249(4)] 1127

Held, that as the assessee was pursuing remedy by way of application under section 154 of the Income-tax Act, 1961, which was dismissed by the National Faceless Appeal Centre, delay of 89 days in filing the appeal is condoned. Held that the sole basis for the initiation of the proceedings under section 148 was the information received from the National e-Assessment Centre, according to which, the sale deed had been executed for a sale consideration in respect of a property measuring 11 cents situated in Kavoor village, Mangalore Taluk, wherein the assessee was neither the purchaser nor the vendor. On the other hand, the assessee produced her sale deed showing sale of a property by M measuring 0-05. 75 acres situated in Kotekar village, Mangalore Taluk for a sale consideration lower than that shown in the former document. The assessee had produced the source for the transaction as loan availed of from a bank. The Assessing Officer had made addition on the basis of wrong assumption of facts. The addition made by the Assessing Officer under section 69A is deleted. Tribunal also held that without the addition, the assessee's income did not exceed the maximum amount and, hence, is not liable to tax. Therefore, no advance tax was payable and the invocation of section 249(4) by the Commissioner (Appeals) is not justified. (AY. 2018-19)

Assessee, an aged lady, was engaged in business of selling religious items like sandal wood, janoi, diva etc. in a Parsi Temple. Assessing Officer held that assessee had deposited cash aggregating to Rs. 20.32 lakhs in her bank account during period of demonetization. Assessing Officer assessed amounts of Rs. 7.20 lakhs as unexplained income of assessee under section 69A of the Act. CIT(A) upheld the order of the AO.

On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee was carrying on business on small scale for past several years and she is not required to maintain books of account under law. Considering her age and business activities carried on by her, claim of past savings of Rs. 7.20 lakhs is deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

1131 S. 69A: Unexplained money-Cash deposits-Educational institutions-Hostel fees from students-Matter remanded to the file of CIT(A) for fresh adjudication. [S. 10(23C)(iiiad), 12A]

Assessee is a charitable trust established primarily for providing education and running a school. Assessee filed its return of income declaring certain amount. Assessing Officer held that there were certain deposits in bank account of assessee trust including cash deposit of certain amount. Assessee submitted that cash deposits in question did not exclusively belong to trust but also included funds from two hostels. Assessing Officer held that deposits into bank account of assessee trust constituted unexplained cash/cheque credit and entire amount was added to total income of assessee under section 69A. Commissioner (Appeals) allowed appeal by deleting addition made by Assessing Officer concerning hostel fees, however, Commissioner (Appeals) did not adjudicate ground relating to denial of granting benefits of exemption under section 10(23C)(iiiad) stating that it was general and alternative in nature.

On appeal, the Tribunal held that since Commissioner (Appeals) had not decided on first ground of assessee, relating to exemption under section 10(23C)(iiiad) and assessee's contention that cash deposits in trust's bank account related to hostel receipts attributable to third parties had not been adequately substantiated through documentary evidence or a formal agreement establishing relationship between trust and hostel owners, matter is remanded back for fresh adjudication. Assessee is Karta of HUF. During demonetization period, assessee deposited cash in bank account. Assessing Officer made addition as unexplained money under section 69A and taxed same under section 115BBE. CIT(A) affirmed the addition.

On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had recorded cash deposits in his books of account and source of cash deposits during demonetization period was also maintained the Assessing Officer is not correct in invoking provisions of section 69A and charging tax under section 115BBE. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 69A: Unexplained money-Cash credits-Cash deposits in NRO account-Previous withdrawals-Addition is deleted [S. 69A, 147, 148] 1133

The Tribunal held that the assessee had related details about investments and details of bank statements which clearly proved that the assessee has made total withdrawals of R. 35. 80 lacs and deposited in NRO account of Rs. 27.50 lacs. The status of assessee was accepted by Assessing Officer as NRI. The assessee had not done any business activity during the said period and stayed in India for a very few days. The Tribunal held that the Assessing Officer had treated the cash deposit merely on the basis of human probability without bringing any adverse evidence on record that such cash deposit was unexplained money of assessee when the assessee was having sufficient money in his two NRE and one NRO account and explained the in-vestment during the relevant period. Therefore, the A. O. was not justified in making addition of Rs. 27.50 lakhs and hence, deleted the addition. Since the addition was deleted on merits, the issue related to validity of the assessment was held to be merely academic. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 69A: Undisclosed money-Cash deposits-Demonetization-Deposits tallying with cash sales, audited accounts, and no mismatch of purchases, sales, and stock-in-trade-Addition is not justified. [S. 68, 69] 1134

Held that it was not the case that the cash was deposited only during the demonetization period. The cash sales were more and in some months less. The assessee had referred to deposit slips and the statement of bank ac-counts. There was no document on the file to show the entire deposits made by the assessee during the demonetized currency. The deposits are tallied with the cash sales in the bank accounts of the assessee. The accounts of the assessee were duly audited and no mismatch of the purchases, sales, and stock-in-trade. Therefore, adding back the remaining amount was not justified. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 69A: Unexplained money-Cash deposits-Demonetization period-Agricultural income-Addition is deleted. [S. 115BBE] 1135

Assessee deposited cash in his bank account. AO made addition as unexplained money under section 69A. Considering the source of income of assessee i. e. agricultural income, cash in hand to extent of Rs. 4 Lacs out of past year savings and out of current agricultural income can safely be held to be available with him for sourcing the cash deposits in his bank account during the demonetization period. There was substance in the claim of assessee that as the government had demonetized the currency, therefore, it was for the said reason that he was compelled to deposit the demonetized currency available with him in his bank account, which, thus, justified the change in trend concerning the cash deposits in his bank account as in comparison to the earlier year. Held that the funds received by the assessee from JDS could not be treated as its own funds when the money trail unravelled by the Department itself clearly revealed the ultimate beneficiary to be VMS. There can be no other conclusion drawn from the facts before the Department but that of VMS being the ultimate beneficiary of the transactions, and the assessee only being intermediary in the entire process. No benefit could be derived from the appellate order passed in the case of VMS because that entity had applied for dispute resolution. The addition is not sustainable. Addition is deleted. 1137 S. 69A: Unexplained money-Cash deposits-Demonetisation-Statement of director-Addition made on basis of statement of director of RBPL and some CCTV footages obtained from bank-Addition is deleted. [S. 115BE, 132, 132(4A), 153C, 292C, Indian Evidence Act, 1872, 65B]
Assessee-company is engaged in business of gold bullion/ jewellery. A search under section 132 is carried out at residential premises of partners of JMK Exports and also at residential premises of director of RBPL. In course of search, director of RBPL a private company stated that he was given demonetized cash by one Rajesh Chawala who was one of directors of assessee-company, for depositing in bank accounts of RBPL and thereafter transferring funds to specified bank accounts on commission basis. On basis of said statement and some CCTV footages obtained from bank, Assessing Officer passed assessment order under section 143(3) read with section 153C making addition under section 69A to income of assessee. However, CCTV footage obtained from bank did not contain any conclusive evidence to establish that close relatives and associates of Rajesh Chawala were carrying demonetized cash for depositing in bank account of RBPL. Assessing Officer had not made detailed enquiry and had not brought any conclusive evidence to establish beyond reasonable doubt that it was assessee who had given demonetized cash for depositing in bank accounts of RBPL and Assessing Officer had also not made any enquiry with concerned banks to ascertain source of cash deposits. He had only made enquiry with one bank and on basis of that enquiry, it could not be concluded with certainty that close relatives/associates of Rajesh Chawala were carrying demonetized cash. Deposit slips indicating deposit of cash in bank account of RBPL contained signatures of persons other than close relatives/associates of Rajesh Chawala. On facts, addition under section 69A to income of assessee is directed to be deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

Assessee, engaged in embroidery and art work for over 40 years, earned below taxable income limit and did not file income returns. During demonetization, assessee deposited certain sum in joint bank accounts. In response to a section 142(1) notice, assessee filed return, explaining deposits as personal savings and cash from her taxpayer brothers. Assessing Officer passed an order under section 144, and made addition under Section 69A r. w. s 115BBE. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) upheld half addition, citing insufficient explanation.
On appeal the Tribunal held that deposit of certain sum was from maturity of fixed deposits and additionally, sum added to income of assessee's brother, was same amount deposited in their joint bank account. Entire addition is deleted. Tribunal also held that assessee had filed return of in-come and responded to notice of Assessing Officer, conditions for invoking Section 144 were not met and therefore, assessment made by Assessing Officer u/s. 144, would not sustain. Held that the submissions did not contain any evidence in regard to explanation of sundry creditors, gift received from relatives, loan returned, collected and deposited, advance paid in earlier return and deposits made in bank account. Once, there was no evidence and the assessee was a non-filer, the orders of the Commissioner (Appeals) and the Assessing Officer were to be confirmed. Tribunal also held that the assessee had applied for the permanent account number after demonetisation was announced. The notice under section 143(2) of the Act dated September 22, 2018 was by the jurisdictional Assessing Officer, the Income-tax Officer. The jurisdiction over the assessee was transferred to the Deputy Commissioner, International Taxation, only on September 18, 2019 whereas the assessee filed her return of income only on January 3, 2018. During search, gold and silver worth Rs. 1.11 crores was found. Assessee admitted during course of search that out of this valuables worth Rs. 70 lakhs were acquired out of its unaccounted sources of income. Assessing Officer held that assessee had only offered Rs. 41.03 lakhs for taxation in return of income out of surrendered amount made an addition of difference of Rs. 28.96 lakhs as unexplained investment under section 69A. CIT(A) affirmed the addition.

On appeal it was found that total gold jewellery found at time of search was 3592. 896 grams and valuable of silver was 26983 grams. In statement recorded during search assessee submitted that he was not aware about gold ornaments held by his mother, wife and himself, his son and his son's wife which family had received on various family occasions. Assessee submitted that to buy mental peace at time of search he surrendered a sum of Rs. 70 lakhs in respect of these valuables. As per CBDT guideline, total gold holding by 3 married ladies and two male members of 1700 grams was considered as reasonable and assessee had claimed 1450 grams-In respect of silver items/valuation, weight of found items was 26,983 grams out of which 17,400 grams was declared in wealth tax return and balance amount was considered as income. Addition made by Assessing Officer merely on reasons that assessee had at time of recording of statement under section 132(4) admitted lumpsum sum as unexplained investment which was not found correct could not be sustained. Income offered by assessee is justified, and therefore addition is deleted. Assessing Officer had made an addition of Rs. 3 lakhs treating as unexplained cash seized during search and Commissioner (Appeals) had granted relief of only Rs. 1 lakh to assessee considering stature of assessee.

On appeal the Tribunal held that therefore there is no reason to sustain addition of Rs. 2 lakhs in hands of assessee when assessee had disclosed income. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 69A: Unexplained money-Cash deposit-Demonetization-Bank account-Registered dealer under VAT Act-Addition is deleted as regards cash deposit and net profit is restricted to 3% of turnover as against 8% estimated by the Assessing Officer. [S. 44AD, 68, 69] 1144

The Assessee is a trader of electrical items. The Assessing Officer made an addition under section 69A in respect of cash deposited in to bank account during demonetization period. He also invoked provision of section 44AD and calculated net profit at rate of 8 per cent on rest amount which was also added back with total income of assessee. Commissioner (Appeals) affirmed order of Assessing Officer.
On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee is a registered dealer under VAT Act. Turnover declared by assessee was much higher turnover than determined by Assessing Officer in assessment. Further, Assessing Officer without considering earlier years net profit and nature of business had determined NP at rate of 8 per cent. Since cash deposit was part of turnover, addition made by Assessing Officer under section 69A and calculation of net profits was to be restricted to at rate of 3 per cent of turnover amount. S. 69A : Unexplained money-Sale of shares-Long term capital gains-Penny stock-Both purchase and sale transactions were carried out through banking channel and by transfer of shares, long-term capital gain could not be regarded as sham profit and thus addition was not justified. [S. 10(38), 45, 69C] 1145

Assessee purchased the shares of CCL International Ltd at Rs. 40 per share and sold shares of a company at Rs. 526. 47 per share much higher price than purchase price and claimed long-term capital gain as exempt under section 10(38). Assessing Officer treated long-term capital gain to be unaccounted income and invoking provisions of section 69A added same to assessee's income. He also treated a certain amount as unexplained transaction expenses and invoking provisions of section 69C added same to assessee's income. CIT(A) affirmed the addition.
On appeal the Tribunal held that since both purchase and sale transactions were carried out through banking channel and by transfer of shares and an astronomical increase in share price of a company in itself was not a justifiable ground for holding long-term capital gain to be an accommodation entry, long-term capital gain could not be regarded as sham profit and consequently addition under section 69A was not justified. of CBDT Instruction no. 1916 dated 11-5-1994 on subject, made an addition of certain amount under section 69A on account of excess jewellery found.
On appeal the Tribunal held that in view of decision in case of assessee's wife in Preeti Singh v. Asstt. CIT (2023) 156 taxmann.com 485 (Delhi)(Trib) on similar facts, since assessee had shown sufficient income in his return for preceding years which showed wealthy status of assessee and jewellery was received on several occasions from relatives, excess jewellery was very much reasonable. Assessee was asked to explain the source of cash deposits of Rs. 69 lakhs in its bank account during relevant year. It was explained that the assessee had paid VAT on the sales made and reported the same in its books of account. AO dismissed the claim of sales and went on to make addition of income u/s 69A treating the deposits as income from undisclosed sources and computed the tax as per provisions of section 115BBE. The CIT(A) held that the amount of Rs. 69 lakhs is duly recorded in the books of account which were audited under various laws applicable and supported by credible evidence like copies of invoices, stock register maintained on a day to day basis, VAT returns filed from time to time and order of VAT authorities accepting the sales made by the assessee during the year under consideration.

Assessing Officer had issued notice under section 148 having received in-formation with regard to time deposits made by assessee, a US resident involved in retail business in USA, with Canara Bank and addition was made under section 69B based on unexplained investment in time deposits. Commissioner (Appeals) carried out an inquiry in matter by exercising his powers under section 250(4) and evidence was sought with regard to remittances made to NRE Account maintained with Canara Bank and having discovered that actual time deposits made in Assessment year 2012-13 were of lesser amount and difference in two amounts was wrongly quoted by Canara Bank, and as regards balance sum, since source of remittances was income earned by assessee in USA, he had deleted entire addition. Tribunal affirmed the Order of the CIT(A).
On appeal the Court held that since Commissioner (Appeals) had exercised his powers under section 250(4) which was co-equal to that of Assessing Officer and it also took note of fact that notice was issued to concerned branch of Canara Bank under section 133(6) and it was only after information was received from Canara Bank and material evidence furnished by assessee, that addition was deleted. Held by Tribunal that the names of the assessee and her husband neither appeared in the agreement for sale nor they appended their signatures in the said document. Said document namely, the agreement of sale bears signatures of three persons out of six persons in the first two pages and does not bear the signatures of witnesses and the sellers. Such an incomplete document cannot have any evidentiary value in the eye of law and cannot be relied upon while making addition. The assessee was never allowed to cross examine the seller of the land. Addition is deleted. 1153 S. 69B: Amounts of investments not fully disclosed in books of account-Excess stock-Discrepancy in cost of building-Cash expenditure-Income disclosed in the course of survey-Tax cannot be levied by applying the deeming provision. [S. 40A(3), 115BBE, 133A]

The ITAT held that the Revenue did not point out that the excess stock has any nexus with any other receipts other than the business being carried on by the assessee. There was thus a clear nexus of stock physically so found with the stock in which the assessee regularly dealt in and recorded in the books of account with the business of the assessee and the difference in value of the stock so found was clearly in the nature of business income. It was therefore held that the income so surrendered cannot be brought to tax under the deeming provisions of section 69B and the same had to be assessed to tax under the head "business income". In absence of deeming provisions, the question of application of section 115BBE did not arise and normal tax rate would apply. The ITAT also held that there was no dispute that certain renovation and extension to the building was carried out by the assessee during the year, however, as far as the quantum of expenditure on renovation and extension was concerned, no material/documentation was found during the course of survey and the estimated amount of expenditure has been taken based on the statement of the assessee recorded at the time of survey. Even during the course of assessment proceedings, the AO further erred in not referring the matter to the valuation officer and in determining the amount of expenditure based on physical examination and applying specified rates. Therefore, the fact that the assessee had honoured the surrender so made in spite of the fact that there was no corroborative material against the assessee can't be held against the assessee and more so, cannot form the basis for invocation of deeming provisions which was done in the present case as the conditions stated therein were not satisfied. Accordingly, the ITAT directed the AO to tax the surrendered income at normal rates as applicable to the business income. The ITAT further held that once the assessee had surrendered the amount on account of cost of extension, renovation and the same was brought in the books of account, the same formed part of block of the building and the assessee was eligible for claim of depreciation thereon. As regards cash expenditure there was no finding that cash expenditure was found, which was not ac-counted for and therefore, it was not clear as to how the deeming provisions were invoked in this regard. Where the expenditure was held to be disallowable in terms of section 40A(3) which would mean that certain expenditure was incurred, accounted for in books of accounts and it was found to be incurred in cash in violation of section 40A(3), the question of unexplained expenditure or unaccounted expenditure did not arise for consideration. Hence, the action of the AO in invoking the deeming provisions in this regard were set aside. (AY. 2018-19)

Held that the income surrendered on account of investment in excess stock in the course of survey could not be brought to tax under the deeming provisions of section 69B of the Act and had to be assessed to tax under the head "Business income". S. 69B: Amounts of investments not fully disclosed in books of account –Statement in the course of survey-No evidentiary value-Addition is deleted [S. 115BBE, 131, 133A] 1155

Hon'ble Tribunal held that it is a settled proposition of law that the statement recorded under Section 131 during the course of survey has no evidentiary value in the absence of any corroborative evidence on record vide CIT v. S. Khader Khan 300 ITR 157 (Mad.). The Officer is not authorised to administer the oath and to take sworn statement which alone has evidentiary value as contemplated under law and such statement so recorded can be used in evidence under the Act. Therefore, the statement of one of the partners of the assessee firm without any corroborative evidence for the purpose of invoking the deeming provisions of Section 69B of the Act. Hon'ble Tribunal further held that there was a clear affirmation that land and building was purchased in the year 2014 and was reflected in the books of account. Further, in order to buy peace of mind and avoid litigation, an amount of Rs. 45 lakhs was offered on account of addition made to factory building and source whereof has been stated to be out of business income and the deeming provisions, therefore, cannot be invoked in the instant case. Hon'ble Tribunal further held that provisions of Section 69B read with Section 115BBE cannot be invoked in the instant case. (AY. 2018-19)

The Assessing Officer took the view that trade credits and creditor expenses were not genuine and that those creditors were merely book entries and had already been paid off in cash, and treated the sum as income of the assessee under section 69A of the Income-tax Act, 1961. The Commissioner (Appeals) restricted the additions to the profit element of 25 per cent. and the Tribunal affirmed this.

On appeal by the Department the High Court held that the Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal had correctly limited the additions made by the Assessing Officer to 25 per cent. The Supreme Court dismissed the Special Leave Petition filed by Revenue.

The assessee is engaged in the business of trading in resins and chemicals. The Assessing Officer held that had purchases from six parties who were declared by the Sales Tax Department as ingenuine dealers opined that the purchases in question did not have nexus with the corresponding sales and accordingly added the entire amount of purchases to the assessee's income under section 69C on the ground that there being unexplained payments qua the purchases in question. The Commissioner (Appeals) estimated the gross profit at 12.5 per cent on the purchases made by the assessee. As the assessee had shown gross profit at 4.74 per cent in the assessment year in question, the Commissioner (Appeals) reduced the same from 12.5 per cent and confirmed the addition to the extent of 7.76 per cent. The Tribunal, on appeals filed by both the revenue and assessee, ob-served that the Commissioner (Appeals) had rightly estimated the profit in regard to the purchases at 12.5 per cent. However, he was not correct in reducing the gross profit already returned by the assessee at 4.74 per cent out of 12.5 per cent for the reason that the gross profit returned by the assessee related to the sales made by it and did not have link to the purchases for which it might have procured bills by making savings in VAT, etc. the Tribunal partly allowed the appeal of the revenue and directed the Assessing Officer to estimate the income at 12.5 per cent on the purchases so made. It rejected the assessee's challenge to the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals).

On appeal the Court held that in absence of a cohesive and coordinated approach of Assessing Officer with Sales Tax Authorities, it would be difficult to come to a concrete conclusion in regard to such purchase being bogus merely on basis of general information so as to discard such expenditure and add same to assessee's income. Order of Tribunal is affirmed. No substantial question of law arose out of order of Tribunal. (AY. 2009-10, 2010-11)

S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Bogus purchases-Accommodation entries-Restriction of disallowance to 12. 5 Per Cent. by Commissioner (Appeals) reduced to Six Per Cent. by Tribunal-Order of Tribunal is affirmed-No substantial question of law. [S. 260A] 1161

Held, dismissing the appeal of the revenue the Court held that the Tribunal had duly analysed the facts before it had reduced the disallowance to six per cent. from 12.5 per cent. as restricted by the Commissioner (Appeals) and therefore, no interference was called for in its findings and order. In the judgment in PCIT v. Surya Impex (2023) 451 ITR 395 (Guj)(HC)) wherein, on the issue of accommodation entries provided by the same group alleged to have provided accommodation entry to the assessee, the court had held in favour of the assessee. The questions of law involved were of similar nature and were in the context of similar facts involving the same group. No other question of law arose. (AY. 2007-08)

1162 S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Bogus purchases-Tribunal confirmed 10% of alleged bogus purchases-On appeal High Court deleted the 10% of alleged bogus purchases confirmed by the Tribunal. [S. 260A]

The Assessing Officer disallowed the 100% of alleged bogus purchases. On appeal the CIT(A) accepted the sales tax and VAT Audit report restricted to 10 % of alleged bogus purchases. On appeal the Tribunal affirmed the order of the CIT(A) on the ground that the goods were purchased from the grey market.

On appeal the Court held that the sales were not in doubt. Court also held that apart from the inputs being received from the investigation wing, there is nothing concrete in the material on record that was used to confront the Appellant. If the counterparties in these purchases could not be produced years later, simply adopting a 10% margin for disallowance, without any cogent or convincing evidence, is unreasonable and arbitrary. It is repugnant for the ITAT to uphold such an addition of 10% of the allegedly bogus purchases to the income of the Appellant, despite returning a firm finding that the AO Order was untenable not being backed by cogent and convincing evidence. Accordingly, the Honourable High Court set aside the order of the Tribunal and allowed the appeals of the assessee.

1163 S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Bogus purchases-Statement of director-No independent enquiry was made-Deletion of addition by the Tribunal is affirmed-No substantial question of law. [S. 132, 143(3), 260A]

Assessee is engaged in manufacture of high-pressure seamless cylinders. Pursuant to search and seizure operations of group concerns of assessee, Assessing Officer on basis of statement made by a director of assessee held that assessee-company siphoned off cash by issuing cheques against bogus capital expenses debited in accounts of assessee-company. Accordingly, he made an addition on account of bogus purchases which was con-firmed by Commissioner (Appeals). The Tribunal held that capitalization could not be denied to assessee merely on a statement given by director of assessee, without adducing evidence of other necessary parties. It was found that assessee had produced certain documents including ledger ex-tracts of parties, confirmation from parties, bank statements and certificate from registered valuer showing construction of a building indicating pro-curement of steel for which said payments were made by cheque. Capitalization was denied solely based on statement made by only party recorded under section 131. No enquiry in this regard was made and no evidence generally was made available by Assessing Officer. Addition was deleted.

On appeal the Court held that since entire order of Assessing Officer was based merely on statement of Director of assessee without summoning or adducing additional/ supplementary evidence of any other person corroborating allegation regarding bogus payments made by assessee, Tribunal was justified in deleting the addition.

S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Bogus purchases-Order of Tribunal restricting 8% of purchases is affirmed. [S. 260A] 1164

Assessing Officer disallowed entire purchases, considering it unexplained expenditure under section 69C of the Act. On appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) held that since Assessing Officer did not doubt genuineness of payments made through banking channels and accepted total sales, entire purchases couldn't be disallowed. Instead, only profit element was considered, restricting unexplained expenditure to 8 per cent of total purchases. Tribunal accepted factual finding recorded by Commissioner (Appeals). On appeal dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that since both Commissioner (Appeals) and Tribunal concluded, based on facts, that 8 per cent was a reasonable figure, there was no justification for interfering with orders of lower authorities. S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Alleged bogus purchases-Income from undisclosed sources-No justification in making addition at the rate of 12. 5 percent. 1166

AO made addition at the rate of 12.5 per cent on alleged bogus purchases. CIT(A) has accepted that purchases were genuine (though made from unverifiable sources) because goods manufactured from such purchases were accepted by the AO and has also given his finding that the rates of pro-curement of such purchases by the assessee are either at par or even be-low the market rate on which the assessee has procured such alleged purchases. Accordingly, CIT(A) accepted the books of account of the assessee and calculated the profit @ 5.94 per cent, which is the GP rate declared by the assessee. No justification in making addition. Assessee is an agriculturist who purchased 6 acres of agricultural land for certain sale consideration. Assessing Officer alleged that assessee paid cash of Rs. 78 lakhs to seller over and above sale consideration mentioned in sale deed. The AO made addition. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO.

On appeal the Tribunal held that there was no documentary evidence unearthed by Assessing Officer which could show that assessee had paid huge amount over and above sale consideration mentioned in both sale deeds and moreover if testimony of one witness was discredited, there was no material with department on basis of which it could justify its action, as un-substantiated statement of witness was only basis of making addition. Held, that the additions made by the Assessing Officer were not only erroneous but was also contrary to the directions of the Dispute Resolution Panel. While the Assessing Officer had cast doubt on propriety of purchases of fabric made from Sun Gold Trade P. Ltd (STPL) on the basis of assessment order passed in the hands of the supplier, the Assessing Officer had accepted the corresponding sale transactions. The exclusion of purchases from the trading results was not permissible without corresponding exclusion of the sales in such trading activity for arriving at a fair and balanced view. The action of the Assessing Officer patently was contrary to the rudimentary principles of accounting. Addition is deleted. (AY. 2017-18)

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Tribunal held that the ledger confirmation of supplier, showing payment made, revenue had not disputed sales made by assessee. The assessee had regular transactions with supplier in respect of its business of trading in iron and steel. Identity of supplier had not been doubted by revenue and only genuineness and creditworthiness of purchases are disputed by Revenue. Assessee had furnished sufficient documents to prove its financial credit worthiness. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. (AY. 2016-17)

During search, a diary was seized from office of assessee which contained entries of substantial amount of cash expenses. Assessee was requested to provide explanation with respect to cash expenses during year under consideration. The assessee has filed the affidavit of Mr. Rohit Sharma who affirmed that the diary belong to him and written by him. The Assessing Officer held that the amount of cash expenses was unexplained and made addition u/s 69C of the Act. CIT(A) affirmed the addition.

On appeal the Tribunal held that contents of affidavit did not properly ex-plain entries as names of person paying amount and expenses paid were vaguely mentioned, names of relatives of assessee were also mentioned. In absence of specific details and other supporting documents, affidavit of Rohit Sharma is rejected and addition is affirmed. (AY. 2015-16)

Held that since Paul Brothers could not hand over possession of his land to the assessee due to ongoing legal disputes, the assessee, on signing of the memorandum of understanding, had made only an advance payment with an agreement to pay the remaining consideration after final settlement of the disputes. The amount was paid by Suresh Kumar Agarwal, Yogendra Kumar Agarwal, Deepak Kumar Sanwaria and Vivek Agarwal out of their personal sources, which they had admitted to being additional income in their respective returns of income filed in various assessment years. The payment made by Yogendra Kumar Agarwal was added in his hands on substantive basis per assessment order framed under section 153A. The payment could not be once again considered in the hands of the assessee-company. Therefore, the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) in confirming the addition on account of unexplained cash credit could not be sustained as the amount stood offered to tax in the payers' individual assessments. Accordingly, the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) was set aside with direction to the Assessing Officer to delete the addition. (AY. 2011-12 to 2014-15)

Assessing Officer treated entire purchases made by assessee from two par-ties as bogus purchases and added amount to assessee's income invoking section 69C. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO.

On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had filed details of purchases made from aforesaid parties and corresponding quantity of sales made, entire purchases could not have been added. Further source of purchases was from books, addition could not have been made under section 69C. Only gross profit rate of 3 per cent was to be applied over and above gross profit rate declared by assessee on bogus purchases. (AY. 2012-13)

1177 S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Composite trading and profit and loss account-Sales accepted-Failure to response to notices issued by Revenue-Ad-hoc disallowance of purchase of Milk is deleted.

Assessing Officer held that assessee showed 13 sundry creditors in respect of supply of milk to assessee-company. However, above creditors made sales of milk to assessee-company but barring few creditors, no payment was made to any of creditors by assessee-company throughout the year. In order to verify genuineness of transactions letters were issued by Assessing Officer to above creditors at addresses as furnished by assessee. However, letters issued were received back with postal remarks that ad-dresses were incomplete. Since assessee eventually failed to produce any of milk vendors, 20 per cent of expenditure incurred for purchase of milk from above named milk vendors is disallowed and added back by Assessing Officer to income of assessee. CIT(A) affirmed the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had maintained a composite trading and profit and loss account for current year and all expenses of nature had been debited and had not been doubted, there was no justification to doubt purchases by accepting sales and income. Held that the assessee had made bogus purchases and in turn it provided savings to the assessee in non-payment of State taxes. The Assessing Officer had not doubted the sales and hence the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) on this disputed issue was to be set aside and the Assessing Officer was directed to estimate the income at 12. 5 per cent on unapproved/bogus purchases. S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-The commission paid on bogus purchases and sales is covered by the gross profit already disclosed and offered to tax-No separate addition can be made. [S. 132, 133 of ITA, 1961] 1179

A search operation was conducted at the business premises of the Assessee. The assessee made bogus purchases and sales through a broker and paid cash commission at a certain rate on the total amount of these transactions. The Assessing Officer (AO) treated the cash commission paid as unexplained expenditure under Section 69C and made additions to the income of the assessee as according to him, the assessee did not provide proof of the cash commission rate claimed. The assessee contended that it had already disclosed and offered to tax the gross profit on bogus sales, which was accounted for in its books. The commission payment to the broker was covered by the quantum of gross profit already offered to tax. The assessee argued that making a separate addition for the commission would result in double taxation. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that the gross profit disclosed by the assessee covered the commission for procuring bogus purchases and sales. That since the commission was covered by the gross profit already offered to tax, no separate addition should be made. The Hon'ble Tribunal thereby directed deletion of the adjustment made, allowing the ground of appeal in favor of the assessee. (AY 2013-14 to 2018-19)

S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Income from undisclosed sources-bogus purchases-An addition of four percent of bogus purchases is held to be appropriate. [S. 68] 1180

Held that the assessee was unable to prove the genuineness of the purchase concerning the parties. However, when the AO asked the assessee to show the quantity and quality-wise details of the purchase and their corresponding consumption and sales, the assessee produced them. No infirmity had been found in those details. The assessee had purchased material from party A and procured bogus bills of the same material from party B. The overall facts and circumstances that there were other expenses and credit of taxes and duties required to be added, an addition of four percent of bogus purchases in the hands of the assessee would be appropriate. 1181 S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Bogus purchases-Purchases are recorded in the books and corresponding sales are accepted-The entire amount of alleged bogus purchases should not be added to income-Gross profit rate of 12.5% on such purchases is reasonable. [S. 133(6), 147]

The Hon'ble Tribunal upheld the decision of the Commissioner (Appeals), who had restricted the addition by estimating a gross profit (GP) rate of 12.5% on the total bogus purchases. The Hon'ble Tribunal reasoned that since the source of purchases had been debited in the books of account and cor-responding sales were accepted, it could not be held that these purchases were outside the books. That at most, it could be a case of purchases made from hawala dealers to inflate costs and suppress the GP rate. The Hon'ble Tribunal dismissed the Revenue's appeal, affirming that a GP rate of 12.5% was reasonable in such cases, following the principle laid down by the Bombay High Court in Pr. CIT v. Vishwashakti Construction(2023) 454 ITR 448 (Bom)(HC). (AY. 2009-10)

ITO v. Rajesh Amulakhrai Sanghvi (2024) 111 ITR 500 (Mum)(Trib.)

1182 S. 69C: Unexplained expenditure-Commission-Bogus purchases and sales-Gross profit offered to tax-No separate addition can be made.

The ITAT held that the assessee had been contending from the assessment proceedings that it has disclosed and offered to tax gross profit on bogus sales which has been accounted for in its books of accounts and the commission payment to the broker is therefore duly covered by the quantum of gross profit already offered to tax. The factum thereof has not been disputed by the revenue and at the same time, both the lower authorities have failed to give due effect to the same. On perusal of records, it is noted that the assessee has disclosed gross profit at the rate of 1. 60 per cent on bogus sales and therefore, the commission for procuring the bogus purchase and sale so determined by the AO stood covered by the said gross profit and there cannot be any separate addition in this regard. Therefore, the addition sustained by the CIT(A) was directed to be deleted. (AY. 2013-14, 2015-16, 2016-17, 2017-18, 2018-19)

Dismissing the appeals of the Revenue the Tribunal held that though the assessee had failed to substantiate the identity of the parties before the Assessing Officer, the entire transactions were made through banking channels. The sales were also executed depending on the purchase of materials. The purchases and sales were interlinked transaction. The Assessing Officer had not rejected the sales of the assessee. The calculation of addition at 12.5 per cent of the bogus purchases is acceptable. (AY. 2011-12)

Assessee is engaged in business of manufacturing and trading of petro-chemicals. It had purchased goods from 10 parties. Assessing Officer issued show cause notice under section 133(6) on ITBA portal to four parties based in J&K to verify genuineness of purchases and since no reply was received from these parties, he made addition of entire purchases made by assessee. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO.

On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had given addresses, GST No. PAN No., amount of purchases (Net of VAT), etc. -Bill/voucher/challan issued by parties mentioned details of assessee, excise duty paid, details of truck/challan no., order no. etc. from all parties. All items purchased were subjected to excise duty and assessee had given entire details of parties and their ledger account and that payment had been made through cheques. Since assessee had submitted all these details, addition made by Assessing Officer treating entire purchase as non-genuine simply because notice sent under section 133(6) through ITBA portal was not responded ignoring other evidences and details available on record was to be deleted. AO held that the assessee had made cash payments and source remained unexplained hence made under section 69C of the Act. During course of assessment proceedings the assessee explained that cash was actually 10lakh which was collected and received by Deepak thrice and the final time through Rahish Pal Singh. The assessee was asked to discharge his onus of explanation, nature and source of transaction. The ITAT held that the assessee had discharged his onus of explaining the nature and source of transaction during search proceedings. The court held that there is no justification on facts and in law for impugned additions which directed the ld. AO to delete. The appeal of assessee is allowed. (AY. 2020-21)

Held, that the loss incurred on the sale of shares on a stock exchange platform, where securities transaction tax is paid, is eligible to be set off against the long-term capital gains earned by the assessee from sale of unlisted shares. The AO is directed to set off the loss against the long-term capital gains. Relied on Royal Calcutta Turf Club v. CIT(1983) 144 ITR 709 (Cal)(HC), wherein the Court held that when the entire source

Assessing Officer disallowed assessee's claim for setting off Long-Term Cap-ital Loss from off-market transactions involving sale of listed shares to his sister concern. Assessing Officer deemed those transactions as a colourable device used to artificially reduce taxable income, since assessee maintained effective control over shares while creating losses to offset against future gains. Commissioner (Appeals) allowed assessee's claim, stating it was legitimate tax planning. On appeal the Tribunal held that from records that assessee transferred said listed securities to his partnership firm, which paid him consideration while he retained control over securities and this artificial transaction created a long-term capital loss for set-off against cur-rent and future gains without any actual loss. Transaction under consideration created extraordinary rights and obligations that did not align with principles of fairness, and was an arrangement designed primarily for tax evasion. Accordingly the order of Commissioner (Appeals) is set aside and the order of the Assessing Officer be restored. (AY. 2017-18)

1188 S. 70 : Set off of loss-One source against income from another source-Same head of income-Short term capital loss-Under provisions of section 70(2), STCL arising from any asset could be set off against STCG arising from any other asset under a similar computation made irrespective of different rate of tax. [S. 70(2)]
The assessee, a tax resident of USA, was registered with the Security Exchange Board of India (SEBI) as a Foreign Portfolio Investors (FPI) for carrying out investment activity in Indian capital markets. The assessee claimed short-term capital gain (STCG) on the sale of derivatives taxable at rate of 30 per cent and during the year, the assessee had also claimed short-term capital loss (STCL) taxable at rate of 15 per cent and the same was set off against the STCG which was taxable at rate of 30 per cent as referred above. In addition to that, the assessee had also claimed brought forward STCL taxable at the rate of 15 per cent to set off against the balance STCG earned on sale of derivatives. The Assessing Officer after referring provisions of section 70(2) held that the STCG on derivatives taxable at rate of 30 per cent and STCL taxable at the rate of 15 per cent were not falling under similar computation and, therefore, disallowed the claim of set off. DRP affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that under provisions of section 70(2), STCL arising from any asset could be set off against STCG arising from any other asset under a similar computation made irrespective of different rate of tax. JS Capital LLC v. ACIT (IT) (2024) 206 ITD 142 (Mum)(Trib.)

S. 71 : Set off of loss-One head against income from another-Constitutional validity of sub-S. (3A) of S. 71 inserted by Finance Act, 2017-Income from house property from any other head of income at Rs. 2 lakh-Not violative of Art. 14 and 19(1(g) of the Constitution of India. [S. 22, 23, 71(3A), Art. 14, 19(1)(g), Art. 226] 1189

The asseessee challenged the constitutional validity of Sub-S. (3A) of S. 71 only aims at capping the set off of losses under the head of "Income from house property" from any other head of income at Rs. 2 lakh is violative of Article 14 and 19(1)(g) of the Constitution of India. Dismissing the petition the Delhi High Court held that neither the old provisions, as they existed, nor the amended provisions endeavour to create or disturb any indefeasible right in favour of the assessee so as to allow him to claim any legitimate expectation to set off the amount in the manner canvassed by him. In the absence of any such crystallized right, the argument of the assessee that the concerned amendment is violative of Art. 14 of the Constitution does not hold any water. Additionally, the insertion of sub-S. (3A) does not take away the benefits of deduction provided to the assessee in toto, rather it only attempts to circumscribe the indefinite amount of set off to a certain amount. Impugned provision does not create an absolute restriction on the taxpayer's pre-existing right to claim the deduction in question and the capping of Rs. 2 lakh is meant to prevent the abuse of the relevant provision. Tool adopted to prevent this abuse is also reasonable and it is not the case of the assessee that the legislature had a less restrictive tool to achieve the object. Therefore, the law is proportionate with the object sought to be achieved and cannot be faulted for being violative of Art. 19. Further, it is vividly discernible from a plain reading of the amended provision that the said amendment came into effect only from 1st April, 2018 i.e., period commencing after the passing of the Act of 2017.

S. 72: Carry forward and set off of business losses-Carry forward and set off losses-Change in share holdings-Companies which public are not substantial interested-Tribunal was justified in directing the AO to expunge the concluding remark brought forward loss is not allowed to be carry forward-Unabsorbed depreciation and capital losses do not fall within the scope and ambit of S. 79 [S. 32(2), 79, 254(1), 260A, 1922 Act, S. 24(2), 24(3)] 1190

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that on appeal the Tribunal held that it was not within the remit of the AO, dealing with the assessment year in issue, to make an observation concerning an aspect that would fall within the jurisdiction of the AO, when the aspect concerning carry forward and set off losses would come to the fore. A textual reading of S. 79 makes it evident that it does not empower an AO, who exercises jurisdiction qua a particular assessment year, to place limitations on the ad-judicatory powers of the AO who would be called upon to deal with the matter in subsequent years. Furthermore, there is another facet of the matter that, Revenue's counsel has failed to address while invoking the provisions of S 79. This concerns the right of the assessee, albeit as per law, to carry forward 'unabsorbed depreciation' and 'capital losses'. A perusal of s. 79 would show that unabsorbed depreciation and capital losses do not fall within its scope and ambit. There is no practical efficacy in the assessee carrying forward business losses, unabsorbed depreciation, and capital losses unless there is a possibility of setting off those losses in the future, albeit subject to the provisions of the Act. These are the aspects that the concerned AO would examine in the relevant assessment year in which such set off is claimed. Order of Tribunal is affirmed. Relied on *CIT v. 1191 S. 74: Losses-Capital gains-Short term capital loss from sale of shares-Issue of bonus shares-Sale of original shares-Loss is allow-able to be set off against the long term capital gain-Allegation of colourable device is not accepted. [S. 45]

Mindtree Ltd. announced bonus shares at the ratio of 1:1. As a result of is-sue of bonus shares, the price of share reduced almost to half its original price. Taking advantage of such reduction in price of shares, the assessee sold the shares purchased earlier resulting in short term capital loss of Rs. 9,11,83,666/-. According to the AO, by adopting colourable device of selling the shares of Mindtree Ltd. having anticipated the reduction in price due to issuance of bonus shares, assessee arranged its affairs in a manner so as to derive maximum benefit by selling the shares purchased earlier at loss and deferring the sale of bonus shares to future dates so as to derive exempt long term capital gain. He concluded that adopting unfair means the assessee has reduced its tax liability on account of long term capital gain derived on sale of shares of Avendus Capital Pvt. Ltd. Accordingly, he disallowed the short term capital loss of Rs. 9,11,83,666/-and added back to the income of the assessee as long term capital gain. CIT(A) allowed the claim of the assessee. On appeal the Tribunal held that the conclusion drawn by the AO is wholly irrational and unsustainable. When the transactions relating to purchase and sale of shares are beyond doubt and are not in the nature of sham transaction even there is no such allegation by the Assessing Officer, the short term capital loss derived by the assessee from sale of shares cannot be prevented from being set off against the long term capital gain by alleging adoption of colourable device. There is no requirement under the law that the assessee has to pay more tax. If the assessee arranges her affairs within the legal framework and through legitimate means to reduce its tax liability, the Assessing Officer cannot prevent her from doing so. When there is no evidence on record to doubt the genuineness of the transactions entered into by the assessee, the resultant capital loss derived out of such transaction cannot be disallowed. [S. 12, 12A, 12AA, 800G(5)(vi), Art. 226, Form No. 10G]
Assessee filed an application for renewal of exemption under section 80G(5). Commissioner (E) denied renewal of exemption under section 80G on ground that assessee had not properly maintained accounts and proofs of expenses made by it had not been produced. On Writ petition filed by the assessee the Punjab and Haryana High Court held that there was no specific finding recorded by Commissioner (E) that assessee had failed to meet out its aims and objects. It was also not denied that except for period in question, ever before, renewal under said provision of law i.e. section 80G, was rejected. Grant of registration/exemption under section 80G, in favour of assessee-society, right from 1974 was also an admitted position. Since entire donations and the amount received by assessee–society were solely utilized for purpose of charitable functions, merely because there was an infirmity in submission of income-tax return and Form 10B was not submitted, would not result in presumption that assessee-society was not per-forming charitable functions. Since there was no specific finding recorded by Commissioner(E) that assessee-society had failed to meet out its aims and objects and that funds received by assessee-society had been utilised for any profit, personal gains or any other purposes, impugned order passed by Commissioner(E) was to be set aside and matter was to be remanded back for reconsideration.

[S. 10(23C), 12A, 80G(5), 119(2)(b), Art. 14, 226] 1193

CBDT, vide Circular No. 8 of 2022 dated 31-3-2022, extended time limit with respect to both existing trusts and new trusts for registrations under sections 10(23C), 12A and 80G(5). However, CBDT, while extending time limit further vide impugned Clause 5 (ii) of Circular No. 6 of 2023, dated 24-5-2023, did not grant extension to new trusts for filing forms for application of registration under clause (iii) of first proviso to section 80G(5) of the Act. The assessee filed writ petition challenging the circular as arbitrary. Al-lowing the petition the Madras High Court held that, revenue could not provide any rationale for such a classification. Even though new trusts as well as existing trusts had no right to demand for extension of time as a matter of right, when revenue had thought it fit to extend time, considering hard-ship, there was no material placed before Court, nor any reasoning as contained in impugned order that new trusts did not face hardship in respect of filing of application under section 80G(5) alone. Further, leaving out clause in respect of section 80G(5) alone, that too only in respect of new trusts did not in any manner relate to object sought to be achieved by impugned circular nor did it provide any basis for discrimination/classification. Differential treatment was not based on any substantial distinction that was real and pertinent to object of circular. Therefore, clause 5(ii) of circular No. 6/2023, dated 24-5-2023 was arbitrary and violative of article 14 of Constitution of India and accordingly, would be ultra vires Constitution. 1194 S. 80G : Donation-Application for approval of institution-Genuineness of activities are not in doubt-Quantum of charitable activities cannot be the basis for granting approval-Order of Tribunal directing to grant the approval is affirmed. [S. 80G(5) R. 11AA]

Assessee applied for approval under section 80G(5)(vi) of the Act. CIT (E) rejected application, citing a deficiency in significant charitable activities as per examination of charity accounts. On appeal, Tribunal held that lack of significant charitable activities did not invalidate genuineness of trust's activities. It clarified that there's no specific timeframe mandated for carrying out charitable activities under section 80G(5)(vi) and as Commissioner didn't provide reasons for rejecting application based on specified conditions, Tribunal directed Commissioner to grant approval under section 80G(5) of the Act. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Rajastan High Court held that the Tribunal was justified in granting approval under section 80G(5) to the assessee-charitable trust. The Tribunal had found that the Commissioner did not raise any objection with regard to the genuineness of the assessee's activities, that his objection was only with the volume of activities carried out by the assessee on the ground that in eight months no significant charitable activities had been carried out by it. On the facts the Tribunal had held that as per rule 11AA(5), the Commissioner could reject the application for approval under section 80G, after recording the reasons for such rejection in writing, if he was satisfied that one or more conditions laid down in clauses (i) to (v) of sub-section (5) of section 80G were not fulfilled, that since the Commissioner had not recorded any reason that the assessee had failed to fulfil the statutory conditions, his order rejecting the application for approval could not be affirmed and that therefore, the Commissioner was directed to grant approval under section 80G(5). No substantial question of law.

It filed an application under clause (iii) of first proviso to section 80G(5) on 28-3-2023 for getting final approval. Commissioner (E) taking view that assessee had commenced activities in year 2018-19 itself held that assessee was required to file application in Form No. 10AB on or before 30-9-2022, which it failed to submit and accordingly rejected application as having not been filed within prescribed time-limit. On appeal the Tribunal held that in view of judicial precedents on subject assessee could have filed application for grant of final approval on or before 30-9-2023 which further stood ex-tended to 30-6-2024 vide Circular No. 7 of 2024, dated 25-4-2024, application for grant of final approval under section 80G(5) could not be rejected on ground that same was not filed before 30-9-2022. Matter restored to file of Commissioner (E) for de novo consideration.

1207 S. 80G: Donation-Time limit for filing application for final registration-Application moved had been moved well within prescribed time period i.e., before expiry of six months of provisional registration-Not barred by limitation. [S. 80G(5)(iii), Form No. 10AB]

Assessee had moved an application for provisional registration which was allowed on 24-8-2023. It filed an application in Form No. 10AB for seeking final registration under section 80G(5)(iii) on 4-9-2023-Commissioner (E) rejected said application on ground that same was filed beyond time limit prescribed under clause (iii) of first proviso to section 80G(5) and various other circulars issued by Department from time to time. Tribunal held that since application seeking final registration had been moved well within prescribed time period i.e., before expiry of six months of provisional registration, same is not barred by limitation. CIT (E) is directed to admit application of assessee as filed within stipulated period and examine same on mer-its as per law. (AY. 2024-25)

S. 80G: Donation-Granted provisional registration-Prior to expiry of due date application was filed-Rejection order is set aside and matter is remanded with a direction to treat assessee's application dt. 22/08/2023 as filed within time limit. [S. 80G(5)(iv)] 1208

Assessee's application for provisional registration under section 80G(5)(iv) was accepted by revenue and certificate to that effect vide order dt. 15/11/2021 was issued. Assessees vide its application dated 22-08-2023 applied for regular/final 80G approval/registration. Application is rejected by Commissioner (E) in limine on ground that application was barred by limitation. On appeal the Tribunal held that CBDT vide Circular No. 06/2023 had extended time limit upto 30/09/2023 in all cases where due date for making application had expired prior to such date. Therefore, assessee's application was filed well within extended time limit and in consequence impugned order of rejection was to be set aside and matter was to be remanded with a direction to treat assessee's application dt. 22/08/2023 as filed within time limit.

Parner Vipassana Samiti v. CIT (2024) 209 ITD 370 (Pune) (Trib.)

S. 80G: Donation-Time limit for applying for regular registration-Provisional application up to Assessment Year 2024-25-Application in Form 10AB within six months before expiry of provisional approval-Application is within prescribed time limit-Matter is remand-ed to the file of CIT(E). [S. 80G(5)] 1209

Assessee filed an application for approval under section 80G(5) on 26-9-2023. Commissioner (E) held that activities of assessee had commenced in 1986, hence assessee was liable to make application for approval under section 80G(5) on or before 30-6-2021 which was extended to 30-9-2022 by various circulars of CBDT. He rejected the application on ground that it was filed beyond statutory time limit. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee had provisional approval under section 80G(5) up to assessment year 2024-25. As per proviso to section 80G(5) time limit where assessee had already received provisional approval is six months before expiry of provisional approval or within six months of commencement of its activities whichever is earlier. Since the assessee had made application in Form 10AB on 26-9-2023, which is within prescribed time limit and thus, it was valid application. Therefore Commissioner (E) is directed to treat application as filed within statutory time and verify assessee's eligibility as per Act. Matter is remanded to the file of CIT(E).

Chopade Charitable Trust v. CIT (2024) 209 ITD 489 (Pune) (Trib.)

S. 80G: Donation-Deductions to be restricted to 10 Per Cent. of gross total income-Entitled to deduction in respect of donations to institute registered under section 80G(2)(a)(iiif)-Claim shown separately in computation of total income-No infirmity in Commissioner (Appeals) directing Assessing Officer to verify claim and grant it-Not claimed benefit of sections 11 and 12 of the Act, there was no question of granting the benefit of carrying forward the deficit of this year to the next year. [S. 11, 12, 80G(2)(a)(iiif), 80GGA] 1210

Held that donations to entities approved under section 80G(2)(a)(iiif) were not mentioned under section 80G(4) of the Act. The Commissioner (Appeals) was right in restoring the matter to the Assessing Officer to grant deduction to the assessee under section 80G of the Act in respect of donations to Tata Institute of Social Sciences registered under section 80G(2)(a)(iiif) of the Act after verification and his order was to be con-firmed. That the deduction under section 80GGA of the Act was clubbed with deduction under section 80G of the Act in the return of income but shown separately in the computation of total income. It could not be said that the assessee had not claimed such deduction in the return of income. It was not the claim of the Revenue that in the return filed by the assessee such functionality was available at that time. In view of this, there was no infirmity in the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) directing the Assessing Officer to verify the claim and grant it while giving effect to the appellate order. Held that as the assessee had not claimed benefit of sections 11 and 12 of the Act, there was no question of granting the benefit of carrying forward the deficit of this year to the next year. The assessee trust had commenced its activities on 17.01.1992. The assessee has already received provisional approval in Form 10AC u/s. 80G (5)(iv) for a period commencing from 21.10.2022 to AY 2025-26. It sought approval u/s 80G(5)(iii) by filing Form No. 10AB on 30. 03. 2023 which was rejected by Ld. CIT(E) on the ground that the assessee had violated the mandatory timelines as statutorily provided. However, on further appeal, after taking into consideration the order passed by the co-ordinate bench in the case of CIT-1982 *Charitable Trust v. 1212 S. 80G: Donation-Commenced its activities much prior to grant of provisional approval under section 80G(5)-Assessee would be entitled to file application for grant of regular approval under section 80G(5) prior to six months of expiry of provisional approval. [S. 80G(5), Form No. 10AB] Assessee-trust is granted provisional approval under section 80G(5) on 1-10-2021 valid upto the period 30-9-2024. Subsequently, it filed application in Form No. 10AB under clause (iii) of first proviso to sub-section (5) of section 80G on 29-9-2023. Commissioner (E) denied grant of approval on ground that assessee had not filed application within prescribed time limit under clause (iii) of first proviso to section 80G(5). On appeal the Tribunal held that where provision produces a manifestly absurd and unjust result which could never have been intended by Legislature, courts may modify language used by Legislature or even 'do some violence' to it, so as to achieve obvious intention of Legislature. Thus, reasonable construction of clause (iii) of proviso to section 80G(5) would be to read into it condition that in place of word 'earlier' word 'later' be substituted. Since assessee-trust commenced its actual activities on 16-3-2011, in view of construction of clause (iii) of proviso to section 80G(5), assessee trust would be entitled to file application for regular approval prior to six months of expiry of provisional approval, i.e., on or before 31-3-2024. Accordingly it could not be said that application for grant of regular approval was barred by limitation and matter is remanded back for disposal afresh. (AY. 2024-25)

Assessee trust is an old Trust which was registered on 6-3-2004. It was granted provisional approval under section 80G(5) on 26-10-2022 and filed application for grant of final approval under section 80G(5) on 28-3-2023. Commissioner (E) held that benefit of circular No. 6/2023 dated 24-5-2023 of CBDT for filing belated application under clause (i) of first proviso to section 80G(5) was available till 30-9-2022 only and since assessee did not file application under section 80G(5) within time limit, application was to be rejected. The Tribunal allowed the appeal filed by the assessee and held that since assessee trust had filed application for grant of final approval under section 80G(5) within a period of six months from date of grant of provisional registration and it could have filed application for grant of registration under section 80G(5) in Form 10AB up to 30-9-2023 in view of extension granted to registration of trust under section 12A till 30-9-2023, application for grant of final registration under section 80G(5) could not be denied only on ground that same was not filed before 30-9-2022.

The Tribunal allowed the appeal filed by Muthi Trust, directing the Commissioner of Income Tax (Exemptions) to reconsider the application for Section 80G approval on merits. The CIT(E) had rejected the trust's application for renewal under Section 80G(5) due to a delay in filing Form No. 10AB. The Tribunal noted that while the timeline for filing Form 10AB for recognition under Section 12AB had been extended until 30. 09. 2023 vide CBDT Circular No. 6/2023 dated 24.05.2023, this extension had not been explicitly applied to applications under Section 80G. Hon'ble High Court of Madras in Sri Nrisimha Priya Charitable Trust (WP Nos. 27030 of 2024) held that clause 5(ii) of Circular No. 6 of 2023 dated 24.05.2023 is illegitimate, arbitrary and ultra vires the Constitution of India and that the extension shall apply to applications under section 80G(5) also. The Tribunal relying on its own decision and Madras High Court's ruling in Sri Nrisimha Priya Charitable Trust v. CBDT (2024) 470 ITR 710 (Mad)(HC) remanded the case back to the CIT(E).

The assessee was already approved / registered u/s. 80G(5) of the Act since 2008. Pursuant to amendment carried out in 2020, the assessee applied for provisional approval u/s. 80G(5)(iv) instead of applying for u/s. 80G(5)(i) of the Act. The assessee was granted provisional registration in Form 10AC vide order dated 24.04.2021 for period from 24.04.2021 to A.Y. 2024-25. The application for final registration u/s. 80G(5)(iii) was filed afresh on 25.08.2023 but the same was rejected by the CIT(E) on the ground that the time-limit prescribed for making an application for final approval under section 80G of the Act was at least six months prior to the expiry of the period of the provisional approval or within six months of the commencement of its activities, whichever is earlier. On appeal, after taking into consideration the orders of co-ordinate benches, the Tribunal held that the object and intention behind CBDT Circular No. 7 of 2024 dated 25.04.2024 is not to deprive institutions of its benefit and therefore, the assessee will also be entitled to the benefit of the said Circular No. 7 of 2024 and the application of the assessee will not be rejected by the CIT(E) finding any fault in the application that the assessee may file afresh application in form 10A in accordance with Circular No. 7 of 2024.

Assessee filed application in Form 10AB for approval under section 80G(5). Said application was rejected by Commissioner (E) on ground that despite issuing show cause notice, dated 3-8-2023, assessee neither filed any sub-mission nor sought any adjournment. On appeal it was contended that the alleged notice dated 3-8-2023 was not served upon assessee due to technical glitch as seen in screen shot of ITBA Portal wherein e-mail address of assessee was not reflected. The Tribunal held that the application of assessee was rejected without giving fair and reasonable opportunity. It was further found that CBDT in a recent Circular No. 7/2024 dated 25-4-2024 had extended time period for filing application in Form 10AB for seeking approval under section 80G(5) up to 30-6-2024. The assessee is also should get the benefit of such relaxation. Matter is remanded to the file of CIT(E) to consider case of assessee on merit and examine object and activities of assessee and pass order in accordance with law.

S. 80G: Donation-Expenditure towards CSR activities are an allowable deduction. [S. 37(1)] 1218
Assessee contributed Rs. 30 lakhs to various educational and charitable trusts and claimed 50% of this amount as a deduction under section 80G. Revenue rejected said claim, arguing that only voluntary donations qualified for section 80G deduction, whereas CSR contributions were statutory obligations. CIT(A) up held the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that on insertion of Explanation 2 to section 37(1) vide Finance (No. 2) Act, 2014 CSR expenses were excluded from business expenditure and it specified that donations to Swachh Bharat Kosh and Clean Ganga Fund were not deductible under section 80G. Nonetheless, this implied that other donations under section 80G were deductible if conditions were met. Since assessee's contributions did not fall under specified exceptions, they were entitled to section 80G deduction for their donations. (AY. 2020-21)

Assessee-trust was established on 6-5-2011, received initial approvals under sections 12A and 80G for promoting education. Amendments to sections 12A and 80G in 2020 mandated re-application for approval within three months from 1-4-2021. Reapplying as a charitable institution under section 12AB, Trust obtained provisional registration under section 80G(5)(iv) until assessment year 2024-25. Subsequently, trust applied for permanent registration under section 80G(5). Commissioner (E) rejected the application solely due to belated filing of application under section 80G(5)(iii) in Form No. 10AB on 23-11-2022. On appeal the Tribunal held that Circular No. 6 of 2023 dated 24-05-2023 clarified that even in case, where application in Form No. 10AB is rejected by Commissioner (E) on or before issuance of circular dated 24-5-2023, assessee-trust could make fresh application in Form 10AB on or before 30-09-2023. Since Commissioner (E) did not consider said circular while rejecting final registration under section 80G(5), in such situation, order passed by Commissioner (E) is set aside with a direction to reconsider Form No. 10AB for final registration under section 80G(5) by giving proper opportunity of being heard. S. 80G: Donation-Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) activities-Mandatory nature of CSR expenditure does not justify disallowance of same under section 80G, if other conditions of section 80G are fulfilled. [S. 37(1), Companies Act 2013 S. 135] 1220
Assessee-company claimed deduction under section 80G in respect of donations. It had suo-motu disallowed expenditure incurred as part of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) activities in accordance with provisions of section 37(1). Assessing Officer disallowed deduction claimed by assessee by holding that donations had been made to meet statutory requirement of provisions of Companies Act 2013 and were accordingly not voluntary donation to be allowable under section 80G. Held by Tribunal that section 80G falls in Chapter VIA, which comes into play only after gross total income has been computed by applying computation provisions under various heads of income, including Explanation 2 to section 37(1) and, thus, there was no correlation between suo-moto disallowance in section 37(1) and claim of deduction under section 80G. Act permits deduction of donations as per section 80G, even though, assessee was not gaining any benefit out of any reciprocity from donee and, similarly, mandatory nature of CSR expenditure does not justify disallowance of same under section 80G, if other conditions of section 80G were fulfilled. 1221 S. 80G: Donation-Approval-Application was filed beyond six months of commencement of activities-Tribunal directed the Commissioner (E) to grant exemption registration under section 80G(5)(iii) of the Act. [S. 80G(5)(iii), Form No 10AB]

Assessee is a Bar Association existing since 1924. Assessee filed an application in Form no. 10AB for grant of regular registration under section 80G(5)(iii). This application of assessee was rejected by Commissioner for reason that initially provisional registration was granted to assessee and assessee had also commenced its activities. However, application for regular registration was moved beyond six months of commencement of activities, thus, this application was not maintainable. On appeal the Tribunal held that time limit to make an application for grant of regular registration under section 80G(5)(iii) in Form no. 10AB was still available to assessee upto end of June, 2024. Assessee had already been granted registration under old regime. Further, though assessee had applied for grant of registration under section 80G quite late but its activities were gone into by authority and those activities were found to be charitable in nature. There was no change in those activities, therefore, there could not be any doubt about activities of assessee for grant of regular registration under section 80G(5)(iii). Registration under section 80G(5)(vi) was granted in perpetuate in 2019 which was cancelled because of change of law by Parliament, otherwise, there was no change in activity of Bar Association. On facts the Tribunal directed the CIT(E) to grant exemption registration under section 80G(5)(iii) of the Act.

[S. 80G(5)(iii)]

Assessee was granted provisional approval under section 80G(5)(vi) till assessment year 2024-25. Assessee filed an application under section 80G(5)(iii) on 27-1-2023. The said application was rejected by Commissioner (E) on ground that since activities of assessee were already commenced before date of provisional approval on 19-11-2019, assessee was required to file application within six months from date of provisional approval.

On appeal following the ratio of the judgement of the Tribunal, vide order dated 5-1-2024 in Kailash Math Trust v. CIT (E) [ITA no. 1177/PUN/2023], held that words 'within six months of commencement of its activities' are to be interpreted to be applicable in those cases where trust or institutions have not started activities at time of grant of provisional approval. On facts since provisional approval granted to assessee would be valid till assessment year 2024-25, application filed by assessee would be within time limit permissible under section 80G(5)(iii) and since Commissioner (E) rejected application filed by assessee only on this technical ground and had not analysed application on merits as per requirements of section 80G(5), matter is remanded back for de novo consideration.

S. 80G: Donation-Application-For existing trust and institutions, time-limit for applying for regular registration is within six months of expiry of provisional registration-Matter remanded. [S. 80G(5)] 1224
Held that the assessee was allotted land by letter dated December 23, 2022 and applied for regular approval under section 80G(5) on April 23, 2023. The activities of the assessee-trust in the real sense started from the day when the beneficiary actually got benefits of the activities carried out by the institution in furtherance of its objects and mere receipt of donation was not a commencement of charitable activities. At the worst for the purpose of counting six months the date of allotment of land was to be taken. The Tribunal restored all the appeals to the Commissioner (E) for reconsideration of their applications under section 80G(5) and to allow them approval under section 80G(5) in accordance with law. It had been granted provisional approval in Form No. 10AC on 6-4-2022 under clause (iv) of first proviso to sub-section (5) of section 80G for period commencing from 6-4-2022 to assessment year 2025-26. It filed an application in Form No. 10AB for approval under clause (iii) of first proviso to sub-section (5) of section 80G on 2-12-2022. Commissioner (E) held that since assessee got provisional approval under section 80G(5), it was required to file application in Form No. 10AB within time period of at least six months prior to expiry of period of provisional approval or within six months of commencement of its activities, whichever was earlier, as stated in clause (iii) of third proviso to sub-section (5) of section 80G and having noted that assessee had not filed application within time limit rejected same as not maintainable. On appeal the Tribunal held that since Tribunal had power to condone delay, hence, delay is to be condoned and matter is remitted to Commissioner (E) to decide application afresh on merits.

1227 S. 80G: Donation-Provisional approval under clause (iv) to first proviso to section 80G(5)-Application for final approval under clause (iii) to first proviso to section 80G(5) could not be rejected on ground that institution had already commenced its activities even prior to grant of provisional registration. [S. 80G(5),Taxation and Other Laws (Relaxation and Amendment of Certain Provisions) Act, 2020] Assessee was already registered/approved under section 80G(5) as a charitable institution since 1999. However, post amendment brought into relevant provisions of section 80G vide Taxation and Other Laws (Relaxation and Amendment of Certain Provisions) Act, 2020 with effect from 1-4-2021, assessee applied for provisional approval under clause (iv) to first proviso to section 80G(5). Assessee was granted same on 10-3-2023 for a period of 10-3-2023 to assessment year 2025-26. Thereafter, assessee applied for final approval under clause (iii) to first proviso to section 80G(5). Commissioner (E), rejected application of assessee observing that assessee had already commenced its activities since long even prior to grant of provisional registration, and further, since time period for making application mentioned in clause (iii) to first proviso to section 80G(5) had already expired on 30-9-2022 vide CBDT Circular No. 18/2022, therefore, assessee could not be granted final registration under section 80G(5). On appeal the Tribunal held that after grant of provisional approval, application for final registration could not be rejected on ground that institution had already commenced its activities even prior to grant of provisional registration and under such circumstances, date of commencement of activity would be counted when an activity was undertaken after grant of provisional registration either under clause (i) or clause (iv) to first proviso to section 80G(5). Since the assessee had applied for final registration after grant of provisional registration, application filed by assessee was within limitation period and, therefore, Commissioner (E) is directed to grant provisional approval to assessee under clause (iii) to first proviso to section 80G(5) and then decide application for final registration. S. 80G: Donation-Provisional approval-Application for approval can-not be rejected on ground that institution has already commenced its activities even prior to grant of provisional registration-The application filed by assessee being within limitation period, order of Commissioner (E) is set aside-CIT(E) is directed to decide the application for final registration within three months of receipt copy of order. [S. 12AA, 80G(5)(iii), 80G(5)(iv)] 1228

Assessee, a charitable institution under section 12AA, was granted provisional approval under section 80G(5)(iv). Assessee thereafter applied for final approval under section 80G(5)(iii). Application is rejected by Commissioner (E) on ground that time limit prescribed for making an application for final approval was at least six months prior to expiry of period of provisional approval or within six months of commencement of its activities, which-ever is earlier and since time period for making application mentioned in section 80G(5)(iii) had already expired, assessee could not be granted final registration under section 80G(5). On appeal the Tribunal held that after grant of provisional approval, application could not be rejected on ground that institution has already commenced its activities even prior to grant of provisional registration and date of commencement of activity will be counted when an activity is undertaken after grant of provisional registration either under clause (i) or clause (iv) to first proviso to section 80G(5). Assessee-trust is allowed provisional registration under section 80G(5). Assessee-trust applied for regular approval which was rejected on ground that application for registration had been filed beyond statutory period of six months from commencement of charitable activities. On appeal it was con-tended that the assessee-trust was under bona fide belief that it had applied for regular approval well within time limit from commencement of its activities. The Tribunal condoned the delay of 178 days in filing of application under section 80G(5) and directed CIT(E) to reconsider and pass an order in accordance with law.

Assessee-trust was granted provisional approval under clause (iv) of first proviso to section 80G(5) for period commencing 23-9-2021 to assessment year 2024-25. Assessee filed application in Form No. 10AB on 17-3-2023 which was beyond time limit prescribed under clause (iii) of first proviso to section 80G(5). Commissioner (E) rejected application holding that time-limit prescribed to file said Form 10AB was mandatory and he did not have power to condone delay.

On appeal to Tribunal held that CBDT Circular No. 6 of 2023 dated 24-5-2023 had extended time-limit to file forms for registration under section 12A and for recognition under section 80G up to 30-9-2023 but same was not extended to Form No. 10AB for renewal of recognition. Therefore time-line prescribed under clause (iii) of first proviso to section 80G(5) should be treated as directory and not mandatory especially considering transitional nature of amendment as brought out by Taxation of other laws (relaxation and amendment of certain provisions) Act 2020 for bringing new regime. Intention of CBDT in its circular clearly reflects their mind that once timeline prescribed for filing Form No. 10A for recognition under section 12A had been extended up to 30-9-2023, same may be treated as extended for forms namely Form No. 10AB for renewal of approval/recognition/registration under clause (iii) of first proviso to section 80G also. Matter is remanded back to file of Commissioner (E) for re-deciding issue on merits as per law.

[S. 80G(5),Form No 10AB]

Assessee-trust filed application in Form No. 10AB for grant of final registration under section 80G(5). Assessee-society is engaged in religious and charitable activities. It was granted registration under section 12AA. It was also granted provisional approval. It applied for regular approval under section 80G(5)(vi). Commissioner (E) rejected application for regular approval on grounds that objects of assessee were religious in nature and expenses incurred during last three years also exceeded 5 per cent of total income. Tribunal held that since assessee-society was formed with objects to provide education, research and training, etc. and expenditure incurred by it were not found to be religious in nature and Commissioner (E) had not clarified which were those expenses which exceeded 5 per cent of total income and how said expenses were religious in nature. Tribunal held that the assessee-society is eligible for grant of approval under section 80G(5).

Assessee-trust filed application for approval of trust under section 80G(5). Commissioner (E) rejected application of assessee on ground that assessee had mentioned in Form No. 10AB that one of its objects is religious in nature. Assessee submitted that there was a mistake in Form No. 10AB where it had selected one of objects as religious' object, inadvertently. Further, assessee also submitted that no expenditure towards religious activities was incurred by trust during previous year under consideration. Tribunal held that since Commissioner (E) had summarily rejected application without analyzing facts of assessee's case and without even specifying which of objects of assessee-trust, as per trust deed submitted before him, was religious in nature, matter is restored to file of Commissioner (E) for de novo consideration.

It filed an application in Form No. 10AB for approval under clause (iii) of first proviso to sub-section (5) of section 80G on 24-2-2023. Commissioner (E) held that since assessee got provisional approval under section 80G(5), it was required to file application in Form No. 10AB within time period of at least six months prior to expiry of period of provisional approval or within six months of commencement of its activities, whichever was ear-lier, as stated in clause (iii) of third proviso to sub-section (5) of section 80G and having noted that assessee had not filed application within time limit rejected same as not maintainable and also cancelled provisional approval granted in Form No. 10AC. On appeal the Tribunal held that in view of judicial precedent on subject that phrase 'whichever is earlier' used in clause (iii) of third proviso to section 80G(5) was applicable only to newly constructed trust and it does not deal with condonation of delay in case of old trust who made application before Commissioner (E) very late, delay in filing Form No. 10AB deserved to be condoned. Assessee, a company registered under section 8 of Companies Act, 2013, and granted registration under section 12A, had applied for approval under section 80G for its charitable activities. Commissioner rejected application, stating that assessee did not provide sufficient details about share transactions and documentary evidence of charitable activities. Assessee-trust was engaged in charitable activities since 1984. It was granted provisional approval under section 80G(5) for three years from 19-1-2023 to 2025-26. Assessee immediately within a week made an application in Form 10AD for final approval on 24-1-2023. However, said application was rejected by Commissioner (E) on ground that application was not filed within extended period of limitation which was up to 30-9-2022 as per CBDT Circular No. 6/2023, dated 24-5-2023. On appeal the Tribunal held that assessee never obtained approval of their fund in past, though their activities commenced in year 1984, so application of assessee was not to be treated as time barred. For obtaining approval under section 80G, primary condition was to first avail registration under section 12AB, which assessee had already been allowed. Since Commissioner (E) had not examined other requisite conditions for approval of fund under section 80G and dismissed application in limine, therefore, application of assessee was to be restored back to file of Commissioner (E) to examine other required conditions and pass order in accordance with law. Assessee-trust filed an application in Form no. 10AB seeking approval under section 80G. CIT (E) rejected application on ground that assessee had obtained approval under section 10(23C)(vi) with only one object i.e. 'education' but while applying for approval under section 80G, assessee had added two more objects which were relief to poor and medical relief without any verification or mention of same in trust deed. On appeal the Tribunal held that although main objects of assessee as per trust deed were relief to poor, education and medical relief but assessee had amended trust deed and deleted two objects i. e., relief to poor and medical relief and retained only one object of 'education'. As per amended deed, main object was only 'education' as stated in application filed under section 10(23C)(vi) and in Form no. 10AC issued by Principal Commissioner. By an inadvertent error, assessee had referred to all objects including objects deleted by way of amended deed. CIT(E) ought to have considered application filed by assessee in light of Form No. 10AC issued by Pr. Commissioner. However, since CIT(E) rejected application of assessee without considering amended deed, matter was to be remanded back to him for fresh adjudication.

The CIT(E) denied the application for final approval u/s 80G of the Act on the ground that the Assessee out of inadvertence had mentioned another Clause. On appeal the Tribunal observed that the same was not an illegality but rather the same was a rectifiable mistake. The Tribunal held that instead of getting the application withdrawn, ld. CIT (Exemption) was supposed to give opportunity to the Assessee to rectify the mistake i. e. the mentioning of the appropriate Clause. CIT (E) even could have suo-moto passed an order treating the said application under the relevant 'Clause-iii' of Section 80G (5) of the Act. Appeal allowed.

S. 80G: Donation-Rejection of application-Pendency of fresh application-Appeal is dismissed as infructuous. [S. 80G(5)(viii), Form No 10AB] 1244
Assessee is an old trust having commenced its activities in year 2010. It sought approval under section 80G(5)(iii) by filing Form No. 10AB on 25-9-2023. Commissioner (E) rejected application on ground that assessee had violated mandatory timelines as statutorily provided. Meanwhile CBDT vide Circular No. 7/2024 [F. No. 173/25/2024-ITA-I], dated 25-4-2024 has provided opportunity for assessee to avail fresh filing of application in Form No. 10AB up to 30-6-2024. As per the said circular that in cases where any trust, institution or fund has already made an application in Form No. 10AB, and where Principal Commissioner or Commissioner has passed an order rejecting such application, on or before issuance of this Circular, solely on account of fact that application was furnished after due date or that application has been furnished under wrong section code, it may furnish a fresh application in Form No. 10AB within extended time provided i.e. 30-6-2024. Tribunal held that since the assessee had filed a fresh application in Form No. 10AB and same was pending adjudication before Commissioner (Ex), appeal filed by assessee is academic, hence, infructuous. Matter remanded.

[S. 80-IA(9)]

Assessee, engaged in manufacturing vacuum insulated tanks, earned lease rent by letting out such tanks. Following earlier Tribunal decision in assessee's own case for AYs 1997-98 to 1999-2000, deduction was allowed under section 80HHC on lease rent treating it as business income. However, as per section 80-IA(9), where deduction has already been allowed under section 80-IA, no further deduction shall be allowed under any other section, including section 80HHC, on such income. Accordingly, claim of deduction under section 80HHC was restricted to the extent of profits already claimed under section 80-IA. (AYs. 2000-01, 2002-03, 2003-04, 2004-05)

S. 80IA: Industrial undertakings-Enterprises engaged in infrastructure development-Generation of power-Interest on Bonds issued by Grid Corporation in lieu of unpaid energy bills-Eligible for deduction-Order of High Court affirmed-SLP of Revenue is dismissed. [S. 80IA (iv)(a), 80IB, 80IC, Art. 136] 1250

Allowing the appeal the Court held that the assessee had no other source of income except through generation and sale of power. All its receipts and expenditure related to a single activity of power generation. The interest received from the bonds issued by the Grid Corporation had a direct nexus with its essential business activity as they are issued in lieu of the unpaid electricity bills and, therefore, was income derived from interest is eligible for deduction. Order of High Court is affirmed. SLP of Revenue is dismissed. (AY. 2002-03, 2003-04, 2007-08 to 2009-10)

S. 80IA: Industrial undertakings-Enterprises engaged in infrastructure development-Tribunal is right in coming to the conclusion that the permission obtained from the customs authority by the assessee vide a letter dt. 1st February 2013 is deemed to be the approval granted by the competent authority of the Central Government-Entitled to deduction under S. 80IA(4)(i). [S. 80IA(4)(i), 260A] 1251

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that the object behind the introduction of the provision namely S. 80-IA. While interpreting the scope of the condition (b) of sub-s. (4) of S. 80-IA, rigid interpretation of the provision as canvassed by the Revenue would only result in the assessees involved in genuine infrastructure development projects for and on behalf of the Government or local authorities would be denied the deduction merely on the ground that the State Government had created a nodal agency for working out of the finer details and nitty-gritty of such infra-structure developments. That the purpose of creating such nodal agencies as well as legislative intent of granting deduction to the assessee engaged in developing maintaining, or operating any infrastructure projects for Central Government or State Government or local statutory authority would frustrate. Undoubtedly the benefit of deduction provided for under S. 80-IA(4) is for a beneficial purpose, the purpose being to promote industrial undertakings or enterprises engaged in infrastructural developments etc. Therefore, the interpretation to be given to the said provision should advance the object for which the provision was introduced and not to frustrate it. 1252 S. 80IA: Industrial undertakings-Enterprises engaged in infrastructure development-Manufacture or production of Gitti from sand stone blocks-Amounts to manufacture or production. [S. 80IB, 260A]

The assessee claimed deduction under section 80-IA of the Income-tax Act, 1961 on its production of gitti from sand stone blocks. The Assessing Officer rejected the claim on the ground that such activity could not be categorized as "manufacturing" or "production". The Commissioner (Appeals) allowed the assessee's appeal. On appeal by the Department, the Tribunal reversed his order. On the appeal the Court held that the expression production used under section 80-IB, in which expressions manufacture and production both were used were synonyms with each other or the word production had a wider meaning than manufacture so as to include within the preview, an activity, which might not amount to manufacture but might still amount to production. Appeal of the assessee is allowed. Order of Tribunal is set aside. (AY. 2003-04)

1253 S. 80IA: Industrial undertakings-Enterprises engaged in infrastructure development-Telecommunications Services-Expansion of business by acquiring international and national long distance licences-Entitled to deduction. [S. 80IA(4)(ii)]

Held, dismissing the appeal, that no new undertaking had come into existence after March 31, 2005. The assessee had provided internet services from the assessment year 2002-03 and continued to provide internet services. The only difference was that it had expanded its business by adding to it a niche consumer base on acquisition of the international long distance and national long distance licences in the year 2008. The attempt of the Assessing Officer to excise a portion of the benefit, could not pass muster up-on perusal of the plain language of section 80-IA(4)(ii). The Tribunal did not err in deleting the disallowance made under section 80-IA. No substantial question of law. (AY. 2011-12)

1255 S. 80IA : Industrial undertakings – Enterprises engaged in infra-structure development – Adjustment of loss of other units – Separate books of account – Independent computation of profits – Adjustment of loss of other units not justified – Deduction cannot be denied where eligible units have shown profits and maintained separate accounts – Filing of individual Form No. 10CCB supports claim. [S. 80-IA(5), Form No. 10CCB]

Held that the assessee having shown profits from its eligible units and maintained separate books of account for each undertaking, deduction under section 80-IA cannot be denied by setting off losses from other units against the profits of eligible units. In terms of section 80-IA(5), each eligible undertaking is to be treated as a separate and independent unit, and the profit or loss is to be computed on a standalone basis. The assessee also filed individual audit reports in Form No. 10CCB for each unit, further supporting the independent computation. Hence, adjustment of losses from non-eligible or other units is not justified. (AY. 2020–21)

[S. 56 57(iii), 80IA(4)(iii), 80IA(12)] 1256
The AO disallowed the disallowance under section 80IA(4)(iii) of the Act. CIT(A) allowed the claim. On appeal the Tribunal held that notified under-taking and industrial park was transferred to the assessee partnership firm as capital contribution. As per the provisions of S. 80IA(12), if the under-taking is transferred and the said transfer is not by amalgamation or demerger, the benefit is available to the transferee undertaking. Transfer contemplated under S. 80IA(4)(iii) is qua the undertaking and not qua the assessee. As per para 9(4) of the Industrial Park Scheme, 2002 and para 10 of CBDT notification, if there is a transfer of the undertaking, the transferor and transferee should jointly intimate to the DIPP which is duly com-plied with. Therefore the transferee undertaking to claim deduction under s. 80-IA(4)(iii) for the remaining period. Proviso to S. 80-IA(12) applies only when there is a transfer of operation and maintenance of industrial park. On the facts of the case the entire undertaking which developed the industrial park has been transferred to the assessee and not merely the operation and maintenance. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. Interest on fixed deposits is not eligible deduction u/s 80IA. Interest income is assessable as in-come from other sources, however the interest expenditure for earning of interest is allowable as deduction. (AY. 2012-13)

S. 80IA: Industrial undertakings-Enterprises engaged in infrastructure development-Captive power plant-Supply of power to own unit-Sale of small portion to State grid corporation-Rate to be adopted-Market value-Rate at which State Electricity Board supplies to industrial consumers. [S. 80IA(8)] 1257
Held that in the concept of "open market "as used in the Explanation to section 80IA(8), market value in relation to any goods meant the sale price that such goods would ordinarily fetch in the open market. The market value of the power supplied by the State Electricity Board to industrial consumers should be construed to be the market value of electricity. It should not be compared with the rate at which power was sold to the State Electricity Board since the rate of power to a supplier could not be the market rate of power sold to a consumer in the open market. As a result, the rate charged by the State Electricity Board to its industrial consumer should be taken as the market value for computing the deduction under section 80IA and, consequently, also the transfer price for the power supplied to its aluminium unit by the assessee. Held, that the rate at which power is supplied to a supplier could not be the market rate of electricity purchased by a consumer in the open market. The rate at which the State Electricity Board supplied electricity to industrial consumers would have to be taken as the market value for computing deduction under section 80-IA of the Act. The assessee had adopted the price at Rs. 5. 60 per unit which was arrived at on the total charges paid by the assessee towards electricity purchased from the Tamil Nadu Electricity Board and other private power producers. Further, the Department had allowed the claim of the assessee for computing deduction under section 80-IA of the Act for the initial year, assessment year 2011-12, and a subsequent assessment year, 2020-21. Assessee is engaged in business of developing road, bridges etc., i.e. infrastructure facilities after entering into agreement with State/Central Government. It had filed its return of income claiming deduction under section 80-IA. Assessing Officer denied deduction under section 80-IA(4) by holding assessee to be contractor. On appeal Commissioner (Appeals) held that the assessee could not be termed as a contractor and since assessee had performed all tasks which was performed by developer, assessee is to be allowed deduction under section 80-IA. On appeal the Tribunal held that Commissioner (Appeals) while granting relief to assessee did not discuss elaborately about eligibility or otherwise of assessee to deduction under section 80-IA(4) vis-à-vis specific work orders executed by assessee. Even tender documents, agreements with Government for executing work, PERT chart, financial statements, men, material and machines deployed, roles and responsibilities performed by assessee, details of deployment of funds, details of statutory clearances obtained, penal provisions in agreements etc. were not provided by assessee. Matter is be restored back to Commissioner (Appeals) for fresh adjudication after making detailed analysis of all specific work executed by assessee in which assessee had claimed that it acted as developer and claimed to be eligible for deduction under section 80-IA(4) of the Act. (AY. 2007-08, 2008-09)

It also provided services to buyers by way of repair and maintenance of moulds sold to them and charged job work charges for such services-It claimed entire job work charges, which included receipt on account of sale of spare parts and repair and maintenance charges, as deduction under section 80-IB. Assessing Officer disallowed deduction under section 80IB. CIT(A) allowed the deduction. On appeal the Tribunal held that the assessee is entitle for deduction with respect of job work charges computed at 50 per cent. Held, that the matter had been stayed by the Supreme Court and the Tribunal in the assessee's case for the assessment years 2001-02, 2002-03 and 2005-06 had refrained from adjudicating the issue whether or not the Explanation inserted by way of amendment under section 80IB(9) of the Act was retrospectively applicable. The Tribunal set aside the issue and directed the Assessing Officer to wait for the verdict of the Supreme Court and thereafter decide the issue accordingly in the light of the judgment of the Supreme Court. Therefore, since the issue whether each "well" would constitute a separate undertaking and hence eligible for deduction under section 80IB(9) was dependent on whether the Explanation inserted to section 80IB(9) would operate with retrospective effect or not, the Assessing Officer was to decide the issue in accordance with the directions of the Supreme Court. Assessee developed a residential project and thus claimed deduction in terms of section 80IB(10). Assessing Officer denied claim on ground that some of flats constructed in Tower 'A' of its housing project had exceeded area of 1000 sq. ft. as envisaged under section 80-IB(10). However, it was found that assessee was claiming deduction on basis of approved plans of BMC, occupancy certificate issued by BMC, possession letters and agreements for sale of flats entered into with individual buyers. As per approved plans of BMC all flats in 'A' wing of building were having built up area of less than 1000 sq. ft. and as per possession certificate issued to buyers of flats, buyers had been given possession separately for each of individual flats. There was no evidence on record to indicate that assessee had combined two or more flats. Completion certificate was issued by competent authority, which could not have been issued if there was any violation of approved plans by municipal authorities. High Court held that benefit of Assessing Officer denied the claim on ground that as per DVO's report available there was violation related to two row houses having built up area more than 1500 sq. ft.. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. On appeal Tribunal allowed the claim. On appeal the Court held that in cases similar to assessee, Supreme Court CIT v. Sarkar Builders [2015] 232 Taxman 731/375 ITR 392 (SC), in held that, where position prior to 1-4-2005 was concerned, it was legitimate and permissible for assessee to claim deduction under section 80IB(10), as for such period (prior to 1-4-2005), concept of built-up area as inserted by clause (a) in section 80IB(14), which included inner measurement of residential unit at floor level, including projections and balconies, as increased by thickness of walls, but excluding common areas, shared with other residential units, could not be considered. Since in instant case project was sanctioned prior to 1-4-2005, concept of built up area introduced with effect from 1-4-2005 could not be applied retrospectively and thus, expression built up area would exclude balcony area. Assessee, a statutory organization, filed its return of income under section 139(1) claiming certain deductions under section 80IB(10) of the Act. Assessing Officer rejected said claim on ground that since assessee had not filed its original return within period prescribed under section 139(1), it would not be entitled to said deductions in view of section 80AC of the Act. On appeal the claim was allowed by the CIT(A) and Tribunal. On appeal the Court held that the assessee had a reasonable and bona fide cause for not filing return of income within time permitted under section 139(1) of the Act. Once the assessee had been held entitled to claim specifically computed deductions, was not to be burdened with taxes which it was otherwise not liable to pay under law. (AY. 2006-07)

Assessing Officer denied deduction on grounds that process applied by assessee did not amount to manufacture and product did not find mention in Fourteenth Schedule. Commissioner (Appeals) held that process applied by assessee amounted to manufacture and assessee was entitled for deduction. Tribunal held that process applied by assessee was manufacture but product shall stand excluded for deduction in view of Part B of Thirteenth Schedule to Act. Since part A of thirteenth schedule was applicable for State of Sikkim and legislature had not included pan masala in Part A of Thirteenth Schedule, pan masala without any tobacco content will not fall within purview of Entry 1 of Part A of Thirteenth Schedule and assessee is entitled for deduction under section 80IC(2)(a)(i) read with section 80IC(3). Held that there was no concrete evidence to come to the conclusion that there had been diversion of profits from the firm to the assessee. The Department had not challenged the sale price of the products sold by the firm to the assessee. Further, the Commissioner (Appeals) had observed that the products of the assessee involved substantial innovation whereas the products of the firm were generic. S. 80IC: Special category States-Eligible Profits-Disallowance of sales promotion expenses-Freebies-Enhancement of profits of eligible business-Directed to recompute eligible profits and allow deduction-Profit derived from sale of scrap-Eligible for deduction- [Central Board of Direct Taxes Circular No. 37 Of 2016, Dated 2-11-2016, S. 37(1)] 1277

The Hon'ble Mumbai Tribunal held that in the case of unabated or completed assessments under section 153A of the Income-tax Act, 1961, no additions can be made unless they are based on incriminating material found during the course of search under section 132. Additions made merely on the basis of reappraisal of existing records or interpretations not supported by any seized material—such as disallowance of SEZ losses under section 115JB, scientific research expenses under section 35(2AB), or tax paid on behalf of employees—were deemed unsustainable. Allegations of over-invoicing of raw material purchases were rejected where no direct purchases from the implicated party (Reynolds Petro) were made by the assessee, and the statements relied upon referred to a sister concern. In cases involving bogus purchases, only the embedded profit element was held taxable, not the entire purchase amount. Disallowance of professional fees paid to ACIAL was deleted due to denial of cross-examination, violating principles of natural justice. The Tribunal also held that expenditure incurred by a pharmaceutical company on patient education camps, sponsorships, conference registration, printing, and CRM/sales promotion (where items were below ₹ 1000) was allowable under section 37(1), as these did not benefit doctors directly. However, expenses like hotel and travel for doctors and air tickets were disallowed being in violation of MCI Regulations. ESOP expenses were held allowable, following the Biocon ruling. Deduction under section 80-IC was allowed on scrap sales as per earlier precedents. Excise and interest subsidies were treated as capital receipts not includible in taxable or book profits. Forex translation reserve gains were also excluded from book profit under section 115JB. Thus, the Tribunal reiterated that in absence of incriminating material, additions in unabated assessments are beyond the scope of permissible reassessment under section 153A. The auditor of the assessee-company had filed the balance-sheet with annexures, tax audit report and audit report under section 80-IC of the Act before the due date for filing the return, but had uploaded the return after the due date, despite the fact that digital signatures of the assessee were handed over to him much before the due date for filing the return. The late filing of return was not due to any fault of any of the officers of the assessee, but due to their tax consultants. The delay, supported by an affidavit and surrounding circumstances, was found to be beyond the Assessee's control. The Commissioner (Appeals) allowed the deduction, holding that Section 80AC's deadline could be relaxed as it is directory, not mandatory. The Tribunal upheld this view, confirming that all conditions under Section 80-IC were met, and the delay deserved to be condoned. The disallowance was rightly deleted. (AY. 2014-15)

1279 S. 80IC: Special category States-Fall in gross profit rate-Diversion of profits to subsidiary-May require scrutiny at the hands of the subsidiary under section 80IA (10) and not the Assessee. [S. 36(1)(va)S. 80IA(10)]
The Hon'ble Chandigarh Tribunal held that disallowance under section 36(1)(va) for delayed deposit of employees' contributions to PF and ESIC is justified even if made before the due date of filing the return, following the Supreme Court's decision in Checkmate Services. It further upheld the deletion of disallowance under section 36(1)(iii), where the assessee had advanced Rs. 90 lakhs to acquire office property from a lessor, holding it to be for business purposes, as substantiated by lease agreements, agreement to sell, and subsequent cancellation with recovery of the advance. The Tribunal affirmed that the advance had nexus with business and rejected the AO's presumption-based disallowance of interest, following consistent treatment by CIT(A) and acceptance in prior years. Regarding the alleged diversion of profits to a subsidiary (Jai Suspension Systems LLP) for claiming higher deduction under section 80-IC, the Tribunal held that any adjustment for such arrangements must be made in the hands of the eligible unit under section 80IA(10) read with 80IC(7), not in the hands of the assessee. On merits, the assessee justified the fall in gross profit rate due to a substantial increase in power and fuel costs, supported by documentary evidence, which was not rebutted by the AO. Additionally, the Assessee's receipt of non-compete fees from the subsidiary restricted it from selling to major customers, affecting its margins. The Tribunal held that no evidence was brought by the AO to prove profit diversion and thus upheld the CIT(A)'s deletion of the addition of Rs. 10.95 crore. Accordingly, all grounds raised by the Revenue were dismissed. (AY 2012-13, 20013-14)

S. 80IC: Special category States-Partnership firm to company-Change in status of company in terms of its composition does not brings into action provisions of section 80IC(4)(ii)-Entitle to deduction. [S. 80IC(2)(a)(ii), 80IC(4)(ii)] 1280

The business of assessee-company is to manufacture Milk and Milk based products at industrial area of Haridwar. It filed its Income-tax return declaring certain business income which is claimed to be 100 per cent exempt under section 80IC(2)(a)(ii). Assessing Officer disallowed claim under section 80IC on allegation that designated zone of assessee was not notified in circular of zones for section 80-IC and conversion of assessee to company from partnership was reconstruction of business. On appeal before Com-missioner (Appeals), assessee submitted notification stating that it's zone was covered as a designated zone under section 80-IC. However, Commissioner (Appeals) changed basis of disallowance, by pointing that turnover and stock in Tax Audit Report versus Financial Statements was different and Form No. 10CCB mentioned initial assessment year as assessment year 2009-10 and not assessment year 2007-08, being date of inception of partnership. On appeal the Tribunal held that since there is a mere change in status of company in terms of its composition same did not brings into action provisions of section 80IC(4)(ii). The assessee is entitled to deduction. Also held that when a company frequently engages in buying and selling shares with short holding periods, high transaction volumes, and with share trading as one of its stated business objectives, such income is to be treated as business income under Section 28(i) rather than capital gains, regard-less of whether the transactions are funded by idle own funds or classified as investments in the books. The Assessee, Supreme Treon Pvt. Ltd., contested the disallowance of a deduction claimed u/s 80-IC for its unit in Rudrapur, Uttarakhand on account of not filing its audit report in Form 10CCB before the due date of filing the ROI. As per the Department the due date for filing return for Assessee was 31.10.2015, however, as per the Assessee it was 30.11.2015, where the return was actually filed by the Assessee on 29.11.2015. The ITAT analyzed the provisions of section 139(1) and observed that the Assessee's return, filed on 29.11.2015, fell within the prescribed due date. It was emphasized that compliance with section 92E did not alter this deadline. Furthermore, the ITAT determined that the Assessee's filing of Form 10CCB alongside the return sufficed for claiming the deduction under section 80-IC. They highlighted that the intimation issued under section 143(1) did not provide a valid basis for denying the deduction. (AY. 2015-16)

Assessee is engaged in business of manufacturing pharmaceutical products. It had various manufacturing units, and its Sikkim unit was eligible to claim deduction under section 80IE. It had also two research and development centres. It claimed deduction in respect of manufacturing unit at Sikkim under section 80IE. Assessing Officer treated research and development expenditure to be inextricably linked with business of assessee including business relating to products that were manufactured in Sikkim unit for which deduction was claimed under section 80-IE and allocated said expenditure for computing deduction claimed under section 80-IE and partly disallowed deduction. CIT(A) deleted the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that since products developed in research and development centres were completely unrelated to products manufactured in Sikkim unit of assessee, allocation of research and development expenditure to Sikkim unit eligible for deduction under section 80-IE is rightly deleted by Commissioner (Appeals). AO noticed a discrepancy in the stock and the assessee was not able to produce any document to show that such closing stock was declared. The entire value of the stock was added to the income of the assessee. The Assessee pleaded that he should get the benefit of deduction under section 80JJA. The addition was made on account of undisclosed closing stock of Hindustan Sanitary Plaza, and this concern was dealing with the sanitary items. This income was not derived from the activity of manufacturing and hence, no deduction under section 80JJA qua closing stock was allowable. High Court also affirmed the order of the Tribunal disallowance of 10 percent of expenditure which are not supported by vouchers. (AY. 2014-15)

The assessee is in the business of manufacturing apparels, and it employed workmen routinely. It claimed deduction under section 80JJAA in respect of new regular employees, employed on permanent basic. The Assessing Officer held that workmen were not employed for a period of 300 days in previous year and, therefore, assessee was not entitled for said benefit. Assessee filed its return of income which was processed under section 143(1). Claim of deduction under section 80JJAA had been rejected by CPC for reason that assessee failed to file Form 10DA within prescribed time under Statute. CIT(A) upheld the disallowance. On appeal the Tribunal held that the chartered accountant of assessee had uploaded Form 10DA before due date of filing of return of income, and it was only because of procedural lapse/mistake on part of assessee that aforesaid form could not be accepted before due date of filing of return of income. Further, assessee had duly accepted Form 10DA before return of income was processed by CPC. Held, that since the assessment order had been passed prior to the decision rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of Mavilayi Service Co-Operative Bank Ltd. v. CIT (2021) 431 ITR 1 (SC) wherein many legal principles had been settled, the issue required to be examined afresh in the light of the decision of the Supreme Court. Accordingly, the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) was set aside and the issue restored to the Assessing Officer to examine the claim of deduction under section 80P(2)(a)(i) following the decision of the Supreme Court (Supra). Held that the issue regarding disallowance of deduction under section 80P(2)(d) of the Act was raised for the first time before the Tribunal. Besides, the assessee had raised a contention that if interest income was assessed under the head "Income from other sources", the corresponding expenditure incurred in earning interest income should be allowed as deduction. Since this was also a new contention, the issue was restored to the Assessing Officer for examining it in the light of decision of the High Court in the case of *Totgars Co-Operative Sales Society Ltd. v. Held, that the assessee had explained why it had collected the demonetised notes after the prescribed date of demonetisation and had stopped collection after the receipt of notification dated November 14, 2016 issued by the Reserve Bank of India, which had clearly clarified that the assessee-society should not collect the demonetised notes. Therefore, the deposit of demonetised notes collected by the assessee from its members would not be hit by the provisions of section 68 of the Act. Held that according to section 80P(2)(d) of the Act if the co-operative society makes any investment in another co-operative society, any interest or dividend earned from such investment was eligible for deduction. Section 2(19) of the Act defines" co-operative society" as a co-operative society registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, 1912 or under any other law for the time being in force in any State for the registration of co-operative societies. Section 2(10) of the Maharashtra Co-operative Societies Act, 1960 defines "co-operative bank" as a co-operative society which is doing the business of banking as defined in clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 5 of the Banking Companies Act, 1949 and includes any society which is functioning or is to function as an Agricultural and Rural Development Bank under Chapter XI. According to the definition, co-operative banks are also co-operative societies. The words of the statute were plain and clear and there was no room for applying any of the principles of interpretation. They were to be interpreted as they stood. Thus, the investments made by the assessee with co-operative banks in Maharashtra were investments made in co-operative societies. The Assessing Officer is directed to grant the assessee deduction of interest earned from co-operative banks under section 80P(2)(d) of the Act. (AY. 2015-16)

Held that assessee, a housing co-operative society, showed net surplus of Rs. 4,64,486 in its profit and loss account after netting out all maintenance expenses, assessee is eligible for deduction under section 80P(2)(c)(ii). Assessee has earned interest income on fixed deposits and claimed to set off same against income of society. Assessing Officer disallowed claim on ground that no expenditure was incurred wholly and exclusively for purpose of earning such interest income. CIT (A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that income earned by society by way of interest on bank fixed deposits was spent for maintenance and upkeepment of residential premises of society. Accordingly, the interest income earned from fixed deposits was directly linked with activity of maintenance of society. Tribunal held that interest income certainly reduced burden of contribution for maintenance by members of society. The Tribunal also held that the Assessing Officer was not justified in denying benefit to assessee simply on ground that assessee showed bank interest income under head other sources. Therefore, assessee-society had rightly set off interest income against maintenance expenses and addition made on this account was liable to be deleted. (AY. 2018-19)

The assessee, a State-level non-banking co-operative credit society, was held not to be a bank under S. 5(c) of the Banking Regulation Act, and thus not covered by the exception under S. 80P(4). It was entitled to deduction u/s 80P(2)(a)(i) in respect of interest from credit facilities to nominal and associate members, as such members are covered under S. 2(f) of the Karnataka Co-operative Societies Act. However, interest on loans to employees was not "attributable" to the business of the assessee and taxable as "income from other sources", subject to relief u/s 57 for proportionate cost and expenses. Interest on investments with co-operative societies qualified u/s 80P(2)(d), but interest from banks was taxable under "other sources". Guarantee commission payments were remanded to AO to verify admissibility u/s 37(1), as they were not covered under S.

1297 S. 80P : Co-operative Societies-Rental income and interest on deposits-Service charges shown as income from other sources-Matter remanded to the file of CIT(A). [S. 22, 24, 56, 57]
The Assessing Officer disallowed the deduction claimed by the assessee under section 57 of the Act out of service charges received and shown under the head "Income from other sources", on the ground that the assessee had already been allowed deduction under section 24 of the Act for these expenses while computing income from house property. The Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed the appeal of the assessee holding that the Assessing Officer had made addition on account of service charges protectively in the hands of the assessee as the service charges were received with regard to the property owned by the trust and need to be assessed in the hands of the trust substantively. Tribunal held that in the case of the assessee itself the Tribunal for the assessment years 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2009-10 had allowed the claim to deduction of service charges in favour of the assessee. However, the Commissioner (Appeals) had not taken into consideration the submissions of the assessee. Therefore, this issue was also to be restored to the file of the Commissioner (Appeals) for decision afresh after considering the submissions of the assessee and findings of the Tribunal and recording reasons in support of his findings. The assessee has filed its return of income as AOP for AY 2019-20 on 29.08.2019 by admitting NIL income after claim of deduction under section 80P(2a)(i) for Rs. 5.08 lacs. The CPC issued intimation u/s. 143(1) of the Act by denying exemption claimed on the ground that the status shown in the return of income as shown as AOP. Therefore, the assessee filed rectification application but the same was rejected. The appeal filed by the assessee against intimation and rectification order were rejected by the assessee. However, on further appeal, the Tribunal noted that u/s. 2(31) of the Act there is no distinct status for co-operative society and PAN of the assessee also shows status of the assessee as AOP/ BOI, that ITR-5 also mentions status of AOP/BOI and sub-status as cooperative society. The Tribunal held that considering the object of the society being lending money to its member the deduction was correctly claimed by the assessee in its return of income filed and so the reasons advanced by the revenue on this part had no force and were purely based on surmises and conjecture. Thus, the Tribunal directed the AO to allow the claim of the assessee as claimed in the ITR u/s. 80P (2)(a)(i) of the Act. (AY. 2019-20)

S. 80P : Co-operative Societies-Providing credit to members Eligible for deduction to extent of income earned from facilities extended to its members only-Matter remanded to Assessing Officer-Delay in filing appeal is condoned. [S. 80P(2)(a)(i), 253] 1299

Held that even if the credit facilities were provided for non-agricultural purposes to its members, the assessee was entitled for the benefit under section 80P(2)(a)(i) of the Act. Accordingly, the assessee was eligible for deduction under section 80P(2)(a)(i) of the Act but to the extent of the income which has been earned from the facilities extended to its members only. The assessee had failed to satisfy the lower authorities that credit facilities were provided to its members only and not to non-members. Therefore, the assessee was directed to file the necessary details to the Assessing Officer and the Assessing Officer was directed to allow deduction under section 80P(2)(a)(i) to the assessee for the income earned through or from its members after providing the assessee reasonable and proper opportunity of being heard. Delay in filing appeal is condoned, relied on N. Balakrishnan v. M. Krishnamurthy (1998) 7 SCC 123 relied on. (AY. 2015-16) Enayetpur S. K. U. S. Ltd. v. ACIT (2024) 111 ITR 75 (SN)(Kol)(Trib)

Held that the entire interest income on the investment made with co-operative banks had been considered as income under section 56 of the Act and no expenditure under section 57(iii) had been allowed for earning such interest income. Therefore, the assessee is eligible for deduction of the cost for earning of such income. [S. 57, 80P(2)(a)(i), 80P(2)(d)] 1301

Assessee was a co-operative society engaged in business of providing credit facilities only to its members. Assessing Officer held that the assessee is not eligible to claim deduction under section 80P since it is not a cooperative society. CIT(A) held that interest income received on investments with co-operative banks is not eligible for deduction under section 80P(2)(a)(i) as well as section 80P(2)(d), however, partly allowed deduction under section 80P(2)(a)(i). On appeal the Tribunal held that since interest income received by assessee is not attributable to main business of assessee, same could not be allowed as deduction under section 80P(2)(a)(i). However where the assessee had received interest from co-operative bank, issue of whether eligible to get deduction under section 80P(2)(d) on such inter-est income received from co-operative banks, being a bank in terms of apex Court decision in Kerala State Co-operative Agricultural and

1302 S. 80P : Co-operative Societies-Miscellaneous income-Grant from Government for activities in terms of bye-Laws-Cannot be treated as income from other sources-Eligible for deduction. [West Bengal Co-operative Societies Act, 1973]
Held that the assessee is working only for the tribal members and the main purpose of the society was to provide mini bank service to its members and sale of fertilizers to its tribal members. Various grants were received from the West Bengal State Government. The West Bengal Tribal Development Co-operative Corporation Ltd., which was a Government of West Bengal undertaking, was an apex body over societies like the assessee. The miscellaneous income of Rs. 9,92,664 mainly constituted grants received from the West Bengal Government for various activities as per its registered bye-laws. Therefore, there was no reason to treat any of the miscellaneous in-come as income from other sources. Since the sum of Rs. 9,92,664 was in-come earned by the society for the purpose of its objects, it is eligible for deduction under section 80P of the Income-tax Act, 1961. (AY. 2017-18)

The appellant was a co-operative society engaged in the business of providing credit facilities to its members. The Ld. AO disallowed the claim for deduction of interest income earned on fixed deposits made with bank by holding it to be a co-operative bank and not a co-operative society. The Hon'ble CIT(A) affirmed the order of the Ld. AO. On appeal, the Hon'ble Tribunal relying on the decision in case of Ugar Sugar Works Kamgar & Dr. Shirgaokar Shaikshanik Trust Nokar Co-op Credit Society v. ITO in [IT Appeal No. 84 (PAN) of 2018, dated 27-5-2022] held that even the interest income earned by the cooperative society on deposits made out of surplus funds with the co-operative bank as well as schedule bank qualifies for deduction both under provisions of section 80P(2)(a)(i) and section 80P(2)(d) and therefore the reasoning given by the lower authorities on this issue cannot be accepted. S. 80P : Co-operative Societies-Interest-Co-Operative Banks and Nationalised Banks-Eligible for deduction. [S. 80P(2)] 1309
The appellant, a primary agricultural co-operative credit society, was engaged in providing credit facilities, supply of agricultural inputs and consumer goods to its members. It had claimed deduction in respect of interest income received on deposits pertaining to reserved fund with co-operative banks and other nationalized banks under section 80P(2)(a)(i). The Ld. AO was of the view that the investments with the banks were made from surplus funds which is not attributable to the activity of the Appellant in providing credit facilities to it's members and thus the Ld. AO disallowed the deduction claimed under Section 80P (2). Further, the Ld. CIT(A) relying on the decision of Hon'ble Andhra Pradesh High Court in case of Vavveru Co-operative Rural Bank Ltd [(2017) 396 ITR 371 (AP)(HC)] dismissed the ground of revenue. The Appellant Hon'ble Tribunal upheld the decision of the Ld. CIT(A) by following various decisions wherein it was held that in order to claim the deduction under Section 80P(2)(a)(i), the original source of the investment is to be seen. Since the original source was the activities listed in 80P(2)(a), the character of such income shall not be lost, especially since the statute uses the term 'attributable to' and not 'derived from' or 'directly attributable to. (AY 2018-19)

Miscellaneous incomes mainly constituted grants received from West Bengal Government for various activities as per its required byelaws. The Ld. The individual taxpayers while preparing their return of income using the Income Tax utility faced the issue of not being able to claim rebate under Section 87A. This was on account of a change in the utility done by the revenue with effect from 05-07-2024. Pursuant to the said modification, the Chamber of Tax Consultants filed a Public Interest Litigation before the Hon'ble High Court. The Hon'ble High Court held that whether rebate under Section 87A is available only from tax computed under Section 115BAC or also from tax computed under other provisions of Chapter XII is a highly debatable and contentious issue, and that the revenue would not be justified in restraining the assessee from claiming rebate under Section 97A by modifying the utility. Further, the Hon'ble High Court held that the provisions of Section 139D read with Rule 12 provide for filing return of income in electronic mode and empower the Board to make rules for class of persons who are required to file return of income. However, the said provisions do not empower authorities to design form on basis of their reading of law or provisions which debar an assessee from making a claim at threshold itself. (WP L. NO. 32 465of 2024 dt 20-12-2024) (AY. 2024-25) The Chamber of Tax Consultants v. Director General of Income-Tax Systems & Ors (2025) 302 Taxman 505 (Bom)(HC)

S. 90 : Double taxation relief-Elimination of double taxation-Review petition dismissed against order of Supreme Court that a notification under section 90(1) is a mandatory condition to give effect to a DTAA, or any protocol changing its terms or conditions, which has effect of altering existing provisions of law -DTAA-India-France. [Art. 10, 13] 1313

The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that interpretation of Expression 'is' occurring in DTAAs [clause IV(2) of India-Netherlands DTAA protocol-other two clauses in relation to France and Switzerland being similar] would have present signification, therefore, for a party to claim benefit of a same treatment clause, based on entry of DTAA between India and another state which was member of OECD, relevant date is entering into treaty with India and not a later date, when, after entering into DTAA with India, such country becomes an OECD member, in terms of India's practice. Further, a stipulation in a DTAA or a protocol with one nation, requires same treatment in respect to a matter covered by its terms, subsequent to its being entered into when another nation (which is member of a multilateral organization such as OECD), is given better treatment, does not automatically lead to integration of such term extending same benefit in regard to a matter covered in DTAA of first nation, which entered into DTAA with India, and in such event, terms of earlier DTAA require to be amended through a separate notification under section 90. Furthermore, notification under section 90(1) is a necessary and a mandatory condition for a court, authority, or tribunal to give effect to a DTAA, or any protocol changing its terms or conditions, which has effect of altering existing provisions of law. No case for review of above order was made out and, thus, review petition was dismissed.

The Hon'ble Delhi High Court relying on the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Ld. AO v. Nestle SA (2023) 155 taxmann.com 384 (SC) held that for a party to claim benefit of a "same treatment" clause, based on entry of DTAA between India and another state which is member of OECD, relevant date is entering into treaty with India and not a later date. Further, a stipulation in a DTAA or a protocol with one nation requires same treatment in respect to a matter covered by its terms, subsequent to its being entered into when another nation (which is member of a multilateral organization such as OECD), is given better treatment, does not automatically lead to integration of such term extending same benefit in regard to a matter covered in DTAA of first nation, which entered into DTAA with India, and thus, terms of earlier DTAA would require to be amended through a separate notification under section 90. Since issue raised by appellant was covered by said decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court, writ petition was to be closed.

S. 90 : Double taxation relief-Fees for included services-India – USA DTAA -IT Support services to achieve standardized IT environment-The amount received by the appellant on account of said services does not fall within the ambit of 'fee for included services-such services did not make available any technical knowledge, experience, skills, etc., to recipient - Not taxable as per India-USA DTAA. [S. 9(1)(vi), 9(1)(vii), Art. 12 of India-USA DTAA] 1317

The appellant was a company engaged in the business of designing, engineering and manufacturing systems for various automotive clients as well as rendering IT support services. It entered into an IT support services agreement to provide routine operational and maintenance support services to its sister concern in India. The Ld. Assessing Officer treated total remittances received by appellant on account of providing IT support services as fee for technical services under section 9(1)(vii) (b) and taxed same under section 115A at rate of 10 per cent. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that disaster recovery/back-up services, helpdesk support services, user administration, maintenance of IT infrastructure support services and telecom services provided by the appellant to its sister concern in order to achieve a standardized IT environment do not make available any technical knowledge, experience, skills, etc., to the recipient, since the latter cannot at any time independently manage the IT environment and therefore, the amount received by the appellant on account of said services does not fall within the ambit of 'fee for included services' as defined under art. 12 of India-US DTAA and hence, not taxable in India. [Art. 11, 13] 1318

The assessee was a Singapore based company claimed exemption on capital gains arising on account from sale of shares of an Indian company under the India Singapore DTAA. The assessee had furnished its Tax Residency Certificate and submitted that it was an actual operating entity in Singapore with all the proofs. The Ld. AO alleged that the assessee's case was of treaty shopping and denied exemption under the treaty. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that Tax residency certificate, even though it is not a conclusive evidence of tax residency of an entity, it certainly is a statutory evidence and the burden is on the Revenue to establish from the facts and circumstance that the entity has been formed and operated in a manner that the only intention was to take benefit of the tax treaty without there being actual intention of an economic activity. There is no finding of the AO or the DRP as to whether any inquiry was independently conducted to rebut the statutory evidence of tax residency. Thus, at first instance the initial burden was discharged by the appellant by filing the statutory evidence of tax residency in the form of TRC, and the same was not rebutted by any inquiry or evidence by the AO. Therefore, appellant was allowed exemption. (AY. 2017-18)

The appellant was on an overseas assignment and was exercising employment by rendering services in Australia. The appellant was qualified as tax resident of Australia for the subject year. The appellant continued receiving salary in India. The AO has denied the exemption claimed under Article 15(1) of the India- Australia DTAA on the premise that the TRC has not been furnished while ignoring that alternate evidence in support of the Tax Residency in Australia has been duly furnished i. e., Australia tax return is evidence of residency in the Australia and also evidences due payment of taxes in the Australia. The Hon'ble Tribunal, relying on co-ordinate bench ruling in Vishal Gulati and in Anjali Puri and of Ahmedabad ITAT's ruling in Sunil Chitranjan Muncif, judgment of Karnataka High Court in Prahlad Vijendra Rao, of Bombay High Court in Avtar Singh Wadhwan, and of Calcutta High Court in Sumana Bandyopadhyay held that "the exemption…claimed by the Assessee under Article 15(1) of the India-Australia DTAA…in respect of employment exercised/ services rendered in Australia to Nokia Australia be allowed" Further, from the concurrent reading of Section 5 dealing with scope of total income, Section 15 dealing with computation of total income under the head salary and chargeability thereof and Section 9 dealing with income arising or accruing in India with reference to the salaries and the services rendered in India, the Tribunal held that no taxability arises on the salary/allowances received by the appellant since the appellant is a non-resident and has rendered services outside India. The appellant, a tax resident of the USA, filed his Indian income tax return and claimed the benefit of FTC under section 90/91. However, the appellant inadvertently did not upload Form-67, which is required to claim FTC, along with the return. The appellant later uploaded Form-67 before the intimation under Section 143(1) was issued. The FTC claim was rejected by revenue on grounds that the appellant failed to comply with the obligation of filing Form-67 along with the return of income under section 139(1). The Hon'ble tribunal, relying on various judgements, held that the time-limit for filing Form No. 67 specified in R. 128(9) as it stood prior to 1st April 2022 is directory in nature and not mandatory. The Ld. AO as well as the Ld. CIT(A) denied appellant's claim for foreign tax credit despite the fact that Form No. 67 and its accompaniments were uploaded on the portal well before the issuance of intimation under s. 143(1), the matter was remanded back to the CIT(A) to give due credit to the USA income of the appellant and FTC as claimed after due verification. The appellant, a Singapore based company, was engaged in satellite telecommunication network services. The appellant had carried out installation activities at two different sites of said company for First installation, installation began on 14-6-2017 and ended on 11-11-2017 and Second installation began on 9-11-2018 and ended on 2-2-2018. Thus, cumulatively, the activities of supervisory/installation work began on 14-6-2017 and ended on 2-2-2018, which worked out to 233 days. Thus, according to the Assessing Officer, the activities of the assessee in India exceeded the threshold limit of 183 days as per article 5(3) and 5(4) of India-Singapore DTAA and hence, the assessee had a PE in India. Hence, both the receipts from sale of equipments and installation & commissioning services were taxable in India as business profits. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that the materials on record indicate that the two projects are independent of each other and have no connection. Merely because the installation and commissioning services were provided by the same sub-contractor or some of the personnel en-gaged in both the projects are common, it cannot be concluded that both the projects are one and single project. Further, it was held that from the facts and materials on record, it was quite clear that the appellant has furnished material evidences to demonstrate that the installation and commissioning services for the Bangaluru project commenced on 14th June, 2017 and ended on 29th July, 2027, aggregating to 46 days. Installation and commissioning services for the Gurugram project commenced on 8th Nov. 2017 and ended on 2nd Feb. 2018 lasting for an aggregate period of 87 days. Thus, in both the instances the threshold period of 183 days as provided in articles. 5(3) and 5(4) of the DTAA was not breached. The appellant has also demonstrated that both in terms of man-days and solar days, two projects will not constitute PE in India under arts. 5(3) and 5(4) of India Singapore DTAA. Accordingly, the service rendered in each project's sites did not exceed threshold limit of 183 days hence no profits out of sale equipments as well as installation and commissioning services can be taxed in India. S. 90 : Double taxation relief-Salary income earned in USA by a person resident in India-Since all the conditions mentioned in art. 16(2) of the DTAA are not attracted in the case of the Appellant, the income of the Appellant is taxable in USA and not in India-DTAA-India-USA [Art. 16(1), 16(2)] 1322

The appellant qualified as a resident and ordinarily resident of India during the subject year. The Ld. AO held that the global income of any individual resident was taxable in accordance with section 5(1). Hence, the salary received by the assessee from his foreign employer was chargeable to tax in India. The appellant stayed for less than 183 days in United States. There-fore, as per clause. (a) to art. 16(2) of the Indo-US DTAA, the income of the appellant is liable to be taxed in India. However, in view of the clause. (b) and (c), the salary income of the appellant is liable to be taxed in Unit-ed States as the remuneration was paid by the resident of the United States and therefore, clause.

(b) and (c) are not attracted in the case of the appellant. Accordingly, the Tribunal held that since the conditions mentioned in clause. (a), (b) and (c) to art. 16(2) of the Indo-US DTAA have to be applicable together or to say simultaneously and since all the conditions mentioned in art. 16(2) of the DTAA are not attracted in the case of the appellant, the income of the appellant is taxable in USA and not in India. A perusal of s. 90 r/w art. 16 of the DTAA would show that s. 90 did not bar in any manner the operation of the relevant provision of DTAA in respect of income earned by the appellant in other country, with whom the Central Government has entered a DTAA. Therefore, income is taxable in USA and not in India. (AY. 2016-17)

1323 S. 90: Double taxation relief-Foreign tax credit (FTC)-Form-67 filed before completion of assessment and after due date specified for furnishing return under section. 139(1)-Rejection of FTC is not justified-DTAA-India-Australia [S. 91, 139(1), 143(1), Rule 128, Form-67 Art. 24, Art. 226]
The appellant, who was employed in Kenya, filed his Indian income tax return and claimed the benefit of FTC under section 90/91. However, the appellant inadvertently did not upload Form-67, which is required to claim FTC, along with the return. The appellant later uploaded Form-67 before the completion of the assessment proceedings. The FTC claim was rejected by revenue on grounds that the appellant failed to comply with the statutory obligation of filing Form-67 along with the return of income under section 139(1). On filing a writ petition, the Hon'ble High Court held that the returns were filed without FTC, however the same was filed before passing of the final assessment order and the filing of FTC in terms of the rule 128 is only directory in nature. The rule is only for the implementation of the provisions of the Act, and it will always be directory in nature. The Hon'ble High Court relied on the decision of Supreme Court in the case of CIT v. G. M. Knitting Industries (P.) Ltd (2016) 71 taxmann.com 35/ (20015) 376 ITR 456 (SC) which held that when the returns were filed without furnishing Form 3AA and the same can be filed the subsequent to the passing of assessment order. This decision applies to the case under consideration and therefore, the matter is remitted back to the revenue to make reassessment by taking in-to consideration the details of FTC filed by the appellant. The revenue is directed to give due credit to the Kenya income of the appellant and pass the final assessment order. (AY. 2019-20) (SJ)

1324 S. 90: Double taxation relief-Valid registration certificate-Interest income earned from Indian companies -Denial of exemption under article 24 is not justified-DTAA-India-UAE [Art. 24(2)(b)(ii)]
The appellant was a FPI and a tax resident of the UAE. It had claimed exemption from tax in India on interest income earned from debt securities by virtue of benefit provided under article 24 of the India-UAE DTAA. The CIT(A) denied the benefit of Article 24 on the ground that the mobile number entered '9999999999', being a fraud number, the company was a fraud company and did not belong to the Abu Dhabi Government. The Hon'ble tribunal held that when the appellant has provided all other details to the Ld. AO, then he should have verified the PAN and the address provided in the return to see whether the appellant is an Abu Dhabi Government owned company i.e., Abu Dhabi Investment Authority. The appellant had shown its valid registration as category of foreign portfolio investor obtained with SEBI and holds a valid residency certificate and given the particulars of income, therefore, there is no reason to doubt that it is not the authority as mentioned in art. 24. Accordingly, the appellant is entitled to benefit, and denial of exemption is not valid. (AY. 2019-20)

S. 90: Double taxation relief-Capital gains-Sale of shares-Exempt from tax-DTAA-India-Mauritius. [S. 90(2), 90(2A) Art. 13, 27A] 1325

The Appellant claimed exemption from taxation of capital gains arising on sale of shares under article 13(4) of India-Mauritius DTAA. Though, the Assessing Officer has made various allegations to conclude that the assessee is a conduit entity, however, such conclusion is not backed by any substantive and cogent material brought on record. The TRC issued by the competent authority of a particular country determines the tax residency of a particular person/entity which is accepted by the Revenue in Circular No. 789, dt. 13th April 2000. Followed, UOI v. Azadi Bachao Andolan (2003) 184 CTR 450, 263 ITR 706 (SC), Blackstone Capital Partners (Singapore) VI FDI Three Pte. Ltd. v. Asstt. CIT (2023) 331 CTR 1 222 DTR 265, 452 ITR 111 (Delhi) (HC). Thus, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that since the departmental authorities have failed to establish that the assessee is a conduit company, the TRC issued by the competent authority in Mauritius would not only determine the residential status of the assessee, but also its entitlement under the treaty provisions. The Appellant had been consistently filing its return of income in India and had been availing of the treaty benefits with respect to such income for all such years without being denied the treaty benefits in any of those years. The Dispute Resolution Panel could not have sustained the draft addition without assigning any reasons for drifting from the rule of consistency. It could, hence, be sufficiently established that the transaction, which the Ld. AO had alleged to be out of tax evasion and treaty shopping, was, in fact, a long-term investment decision by an entity, which had sufficient managerial and operational structure to run an entity based in Singapore. Therefore, denial of exemption is not justified. (AY. 2017-18)

1327 S. 90 :Double taxation relief-Capital gains-Sale of shares-Tax Residency certificate issued by Mauritius tax authority is unquestionable-Not shell or conduit company-Beneficial owner of capital gains-Capital gains is exempt from taxation-The Ld. AO is directed to factually verify the aspect, if the shares were acquired after April 1, 2017 and sold prior to March 31, 2019, the benefit under article 13(3B) could be given to that extent. [Art. 13(3A), 27A]

The appellant, a tax resident of Mauritius, was an investment holding company. It transferred unlisted equity shares acquired by it during FY 2015-16 and FY 2016-17 and the resultant capital gains were claimed exempt under Article 13 of the India- Mauritius DTAA. However, the Ld. AO was of the view that the company lacked commercial substance as all decisions relating to investment activities and management were taken outside Mauritius and that the entity was set up in Mauritius only for the purpose of claiming treaty benefit. The Ld. DRP held that the benefit of the Article 13(3B) would not be available to a conduit company. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that tax authorities in India could not go behind the tax residency certificate issued by another tax jurisdiction. The Central Board of Direct Taxes Circular No. 789 of April 13, 2000 (2000) 243 ITR 57 (St) clarified that tax residency certificate shall serve as sufficient evidence of the taxpayer's residence and beneficial ownership for applying the Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement. No cogent evidence had been brought on record to establish that the appellant was a shell or conduit company and not the beneficial owner under the tax treaty. The Ld. AO had, surprisingly, not invoked Chapter X-A despite his belief that the transactions could be treated as a tax-avoidance arrangement. There was nothing on record to suggest that the Ld. AO had invoked the General Anti-Avoidance Rules. The reasoning of the Ld. AO was without any substance, not backed by credible evidence in concluding that the appellant was not entitled to claim benefit under article 13(3B) in view of the restrictions imposed under the limitation of benefit clause of article. The Dispute Resolution Panel had misconceived the factual position and misconstrued the provisions in the treaty. As the appellant had acquired the shares prior to April 1, 2017, neither article 13(3A) nor article 13(3B) would apply. On the contrary, the appellant would be covered under article 13(4) of the tax treaty rendering the entire capital gains exempt from taxation. As applicability of article to the subject transaction was a misnomer, the reasoning of the Dispute Resolution Panel was unacceptable. The appellant was entitled to claim exemption under article 13(4) on the capital gains derived from sale of unlisted equity shares acquired prior to April 1, 2017. However, as the appellant submitted that in the earlier assessment year it had derived short-term capital gains on sale of equity shares and had claimed benefit under article 13(3B), the Ld. AO was directed to factually verify this aspect and, if the shares were acquired after April 1, 2017 and sold prior to March 31, 2019, the benefit under article 13(3B) could be given to that extent. S. 90 : Double taxation relief-Foreign tax credit-Filing of Form 67 with certificates and statements is mandatory-Directory with respective to time-limit-DTAA does not prescribe filing requirement for foreign tax credit it will prevail over provisions of domestic law-Form, certificate and statements filed with return belatedly but be-fore actually processing or before final assessment made is sufficient compliance-Entitled to credit-DTAA-India-USA. [S. 6,90A, 91, 139(1) 139(4), R. 128(9), Form No 67, Art. 25, 26] 1328

The Hon'ble Tribunal held that article 25 of the DTAA entitles the appellant to claim credit against the U.S.A. taxes paid or deducted from the in-come, prescribing no filing compliance therefor. The compliance required under rule 128(9) was neither nullified by article 25 nor article 26 of the DTAA. Article 26 prescribes non-discrimination while dealing with additional or other requirements prescribed under domestic laws of the contracting State. Therefore, the contention that since the DTAA prescribed no filing requirement for foreign tax credit will prevail over the provisions of rule 128 prima facie failed. It is a well-settled law that the rules are sub-ordinate piece of legislation, enacted to facilitate the carrying out of the objective of main legislation, i. e., provisions of the Act. The very purpose and object of insertion of rule 128 was to allow foreign tax credit and it was so prescribed by sub-rule (1). Therefore, the mandate of sub-rule (9) was subservient to sub-rule (1). The insertion of rule 128 was under the provisions of section 295(2) (ha) of the Act which empowered the Board to prescribe procedure for granting of relief or deduction of any Income-tax paid in any foreign country outside India under section 90 or 90A or 91, against the In-come-tax payable under the Act. This ipso facto clarified that the compliance envisaged under sub-rule (9) was procedural in nature and that filing of form 67 with certificates and statements was mandatory as it relates to the essence of foreign tax credit claim to be allowed as matter of substance, but directory with respective to the time-limit within which it was to be made as it was merely a matter of convenience rather than substance. As the matter of fact, rule 128 prescribed no consequences for delayed compliance or non-compliance. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that filing of form 67, the certificate and statements as envisaged under sub-rule (8) at any time before it was actually processed or before the final assessment was actually made was sufficient compliance with sub-rule (9) of rule 128, and the appellant was entitled to claim foreign tax credit. Appellant, a company incorporated in Mauritius and was engaged in business of investment activities. During year under consideration, appellant transferred shares of Indian companies and thereby earned long term capital gains (LTCG) on such transfers and claimed LTCG as exempt as per article 13(4) of India-Mauritius Tax Treaty. The Ld. AO denied treaty benefits to appellant on the ground that appellant was a mere conduit entity without any economic substance. The Ld. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that appellant was an investment fund, which pooled capital from investors from various countries through series of funds investor vehicles/ feeder funds creating a master fund which was used for investment into various entities in India. Further, appellant was earlier also making investment and divestments and still held investment in various other companies. There was no allegation of Ld. AO on basis of any evidence that any investment flowing from India was received for creating appellant. Since investments were held for over five years before they were transferred and day to day administrative activities of appellant company were as per law of land and except for suspicion there was no evidence with Ld. AO to rebut statutory evidence of presumption of genuineness of business activity of appellant on basis of TRC held by appellant, the Ld. AO was not justified in denying treaty benefits to appellant. 1337 S. 90: Double taxation relief-A resident of Mauritius earning income from the transfer of shares of Indian companies should be subject to capital gains tax exclusively in Mauritius, rather than in India-Appeal of Revenue is dismissed-DTAA-India-Mauritius [Art. 13 (4)]

The appellant is a limited liability company incorporated in Mauritius, and it had submitted the copy of the tax residency certificates issued by the Mauritius Tax Authorities for the relevant period during the assessment proceedings. It derived income by way of Capital gains from transfer of shares of Indian companies and claimed that such income was taxable only in Mauritius as per the DTAA between India and Mauritius.

The Ld. AO accepted the claim of the appellant and passed an order u/s 143(3) r. w. s. 144C (13) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 (the Act) allowing the benefit of the DTAA to the appellant. The Revenue filed an appeal against the order of the AO before the Tribunal. The Tribunal dismissed the appeal of the Revenue and upheld the order of the AO. The Tribunal held that the appellant was entitled to the benefit of the DTAA between India and Mauritius as it had submitted the tax residency certificates issued by the Mauritius Tax Authorities and thus being a Mauritius resident deriving income by way of gains from transfer of shares of Indian companies, it was liable to capital gains tax only in Mauritius and not in India as per paragraph 4 of Article 13 of the DTAA between India and Mauritius. It also noted that the AO had accepted the claim of the appellant in the assessment order as well as the remand report and there was no material to controvert the same. (AY. 2017-18)

The Ld. TPO had made adjustment towards management fee on the ground that the assessee could not establish cost benefit from fee paid to AE and also failed to furnish necessary evidence to establish rendering of services by the AE. The Tribunal set aside the issue to the file of the Assessing Officer with a direction to re-examine the claim of the assessee in light of agreement between the parties and any other evidence that may be filed by the assessee to prove its claim. Further, the Tribunal held that for the purpose of benchmarking the interest receivable on outstanding receivable from AE, the LIBOR + 200 basis points is the appropriate rate of interest to be considered by the Assessing Officer, being the rate similar to the interest rate on foreign currency receivables and advances. That on the amendment to section 92B of the Income-tax Act, 1961, with retrospective effect from 1 April 2002, it was not open for the assessee to agitate the question whether or not the interest on outstanding receivables was an international transaction requiring separate benchmarking. Fol-lowing the order of coordinate bench in assessee's own case for AY 2018-19, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that the interests of justice would be met by restoring the issue of adjustments for global and regional management overhead allocation fee to the file of the Assessing Officer/ Transfer Pricing Officer for fresh factual verification as per law in view of the need for the assessee to file the additional documentary evidence in support of its claim. The assessee was to submit all the relevant material before the Officer. (AY. 2018-19)

S. 92B : Transfer pricing-International Transaction-Arm's length price-Avoidance of tax-Corporate Guarantee-International Transactions-Guarantee fee at 0.5 per cent is justified-Deduction of tax at source-Matter remanded to the Assessing Officer. [S. 92C] 1341

Held that section 92B of the Act provides for the meaning of international transactions and under the Explanation, the expression international trans-action includes capital financing, include any type of long-term or short-term borrowings, purchase or sale of marketable securities or any type of advance, payments or deferred payment or receivable or any other debt arising during the course of business. Since the inclusive definition of inter-national transaction includes the activities relating to capital financing and borrowings, new corporate guarantee transaction also falls under the category of international transactions. That the calculation of the corporate guarantee fee at 0.5 per cent. is justified and the excess amount added in the hands of the assessee is to be deleted. As regards the claim of the assessee that the Assessing Officer had not granted tax credit, the issue is restored back to the file of Assessing Officer for necessary verification. (AY. 2018-19)

Assessee company is a wholly owned subsidiary of Kellog USA and is a distributor of products manufactured by its AE and also manufactures its own products in India under license from AE and, thus, incurred AMP expenditure in India for promotion of the brand. The learned TPO made an adjustment to the in-come of the assessee on account of AMP expenditure incurred in India. On appeal before the Hon'ble Mumbai Tribunal, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that the Tribunal in earlier years had consistently held that AMP expenditure incurred by the assessee in India cannot come within the purview of the international transaction. Further, the assessee has also submitted that since there is no arrangement/agreement between the assessee and the AE for incurring such expenditure to promote the brand of the AE, it cannot be said that there is an international transaction relating to AMP expenditure. Therefore, in view of decision in assessee's own case for earlier assessment years, since apart from being a distributor of products manufactured by its AE, assessee manufactured its own products in India under license from AE, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that the AMP expenditure incurred by assessee in India to promote brand would not constitute international transaction requiring any TP adjustment. [Art. 136] 1345

Assessee received certain amount on account of Interest on receivables wherein Credit agreed between assessee and its AEs was 30 days. The learned TPO pointed out that working capital adjustment was already made and therefore, no addition should be made on account of interest on receivables because it was not an independent transaction and it should be considered together as per rule 10A(d). The Hon'ble Bangalore Tribunal held that extra credit allowed could be considered as an independent inter-national transaction and same be compared with internal CUP being aver-age cost of total funds available to assessee and directed the learned TPO to find out cost of total funds available to assessee and same were to be adopted as internal CUP for benchmarking of this independent international transaction i.e. allowing extra credit in addition to agreed credit period of 30 days. The Hon'ble Karnataka High Court upheld order of the Hon'ble Tribunal. [Art. 136]

Assessee is engaged in online market support services and reported its international transactions for receipts for services rendered. A Reference was made to learned TPO who applied TNMM to benchmark international trans-actions and arrived at ALP and while arriving at ALP, the learned TPO allocated certain common expenditure wherein tax authority applied first principle of apportionment, which resulted in proportionate allocation of expenditure attributable to concerned segments. After completion of this step, a sum of Rs. 9. 79 crores remained as un-allocable costs. For this, assessee sought to use "headcount" method for allocation as allocation principle to ascribe segment to which expenses were to be considered. However, assessee's arguments with respect to application of 'headcount' basis was rejected by the learned TPO, learned DRP and later by Hon'ble Tribunal. Hon'ble High Court held that since tax authorities broadly agreed that expenditure for unallocable costs could be allocated on basis of proportionate turnover of concerned segment and having done so, alternative was open to accept one or other principle i. e. turnover method or headcount method therefore, choice of assessee in relying upon headcount principle per se could not be rejected. Since tax amount involved in instant SLP was less than Rs. 2 crores, SLP was to be dismissed on account of low tax effect. (AY. 2008-09)

Assessee had applied TNMM but the learned TPO proceeded to apply the CUP method and conducted a search on the Bloomberg database to find the sale price of rice. Without ascertaining or explaining in detail whether the rates were for products exported from India or from any other country or specifying whether the rates relate to controlled or uncontrolled transactions or whether it relates to retail or wholesale market, the learned TPO simply proceeded on the basis of Bloomberg database. Assessee also submitted that it realized more price on exports than the rates quoted by the custom authorities. The learned DRP also did not accept assessee's objections in its entirety. The Hon'ble Mumbai Tribunal accepted that these were the mistakes in the order of learned TPO, inasmuch as the learned TPO without realizing the factual aspects, simply rejected the method adopted by assessee. The assessee-company was engaged in the business of manufacture and sale of internal combustion engines, spares, components (including bought-outs) thereof & generating sets, service of engines & gensets/generating sets & allied equipment, etc. The assessee made payment of royalty to its foreign based AE for providing technical know how and technical knowledge for manufacturing of engines to be sold to the customers. The assessee benchmarked this transaction alongwith other international transactions of export sales under overall 'manufacturing segment'. It used TNMM to benchmark all its international transaction. The Transfer Pricing Officer segregated the international transaction of payment of royalty from other international transactions of the assessee and used CUP method to benchmark said transaction. Tribunal up held the order of the Transfer Pricing Officer. On appeal High Court held that where the assessee had used TNMM to benchmark all its international transactions, it was not open to TPO to subject only one element, i.e., payment of royalty for use of technology, to an entirely different CUP method as this would lead to chaos and be detrimental to interests of both assessee and revenue. Appeal of the assessee is allowed. Adjustment was deleted. (AY. 2015-16 to 2017-18)

On appeal the Hon'ble Tribunal held that the assessee had demonstrated the kind of services rendered by it to its AEs as well as non-AEs by placing reliance on agreements and it was argued before the Hon'ble Tribunal that the assessee deals with AEs as well as independent parties being network partners in all regions of the world wherever there were no affiliates of the parent company of the assessee; that agreements of the assessee with its AEs and non-AEs were in equal ratio; that the learned DRP had rejected internal TNMM because the assessee had not carried out an internal FAR and proper identification of revenue and costs vis-à-vis the audited accounts. With these observations, the Hon'ble Tribunal set aside the order passed by the learned TPO and learned AO and directed the assessee to carry out internal FAR and identify proper revenue and costs vis-à-vis the audited ac-counts to establish internal comparability under TNMM as most appropriate method. The Hon'ble Tribunal also held that if the assessee failed to demonstrate the internal FAR and identification of proper revenue and costs vis-à-vis the audited accounts, it would file details in respect of external comparables under TNMM as most appropriate method and the TPO would decide the issue as per law. During the pendency of this appeal, the learned TPO vide order dt. 31st Oct., 2019 held that it is the external TNMM which should be applied as the most appropriate method. Reasoning of the Tribunal in the impugned order is robust and without any flaw. For, the ultimate aim of the transfer pricing exercise is to determine an accurate value of the ALP for the purpose of taxation and the appellate authorities are not pre-cluded from adopting a method different from that adopted by the assessee in transfer pricing report. There was no advertising agreement obtaining between the assessee and its AE. The last agreement was entered into on 1st April, 2005, which apparently, had come to an end. The learned TPO had used comparables furnished by the assessee for employing the BLT tool, in ascertaining the ALP qua AMP activities. Concededly, the assessee's net operating margin was 3.29 per cent, whereas, the arithmetic mean of the net operating margin of comparables chosen by the learned TPO was 2.09 per cent. The learned TPO had accepted other international transactions under the TNMM em-ployed by the assessee, except for AMP activities. The Hon'ble Delhi Tribunal deleted the said addition. On appeal before the Hon'ble Delhi High Court, the Hon'ble High Court held that the comparables chosen by the learned TPO had a net margin lower than that registered by the assessee, it would persuade the Court to hold that no upward adjustment concerning AMP expenses ought to have been made. Lastly, the application of the BLT tool, by the learned TPO, in determining ALP, injected the order issued by him, which was incidentally approved by the learned DRP, with a legal error. S. 92C : Transfer Pricing-Arm's length price-Avoidance of tax-International transaction-Intra-Group services-Application of Arm's Length Price adjustment resulting in reduction of income chargeable to tax-Transfer pricing provisions cannot be applied. [S. 92(1), 92(3), 92B, 260A] 1360

The learned Dispute Resolution Panel having treated the arm's length price of the intra-group services received by the assessee as nil, the Hon'ble Del-hi Tribunal held that the price paid for these intra-group services was to be taken out from the computation of remuneration receivable in respect of information technology enabled services rendered by the assessee. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that when as a result of computation of income on the basis of the arm's length price, the income of the assessee was lowered or the loss was increased, the provisions of computation of income could not be on the basis of the arm's length price, that viewed in this perspective, on the facts, the determination of the arm's length price of the intra-group service at nil value did not lower the profits of the assessee inasmuch as the revenue of the assessee from the information technology enabled services would reduce correspondingly, and more than the adjustment, as a result of loss of mark up as well, that the computation of income from international transactions on the basis of arm's length price, in the given situation, would result in lowering the income of the assessee vis-a-vis the in-come "computed on the basis of entries made in the books of account in respect of the previous year in which the transactions were entered into", that therefore, the transfer pricing provisions could not be invoked in respect of intra group services, which formed part of the cost base of the assessee. Accordingly, the Hon'ble Tribunal had held that section 92(3) of the Act did not permit and prohibited computation of income on the basis of arm's length price in such a situation because the application of arm's length price adjustment would result in erosion of Indian tax base as visualized by the scheme of section 92(3) of the Act. On appeal by the Revenue, the Hon'ble High Court dismissing the appeal, held that no exception could be taken to the view as expressed by the Hon'ble Tribunal. No question of law arose.

The Hon'ble Delhi Tribunal held that WDV methodology is to be rejected bearing in mind undisputed mandate of rule 10B which requires identification of ALP from point of view of uncontrolled price method as being referable to a comparable uncontrolled transaction. Assessee is engaged in international transactions of sale of Paclitaxel and Disodium Pamidronate. Assessee adopted TNMM as most appropriate method. The learned TPO rejected TNMM and came to conclusion that it would be CUP method which was liable to be viewed as most appropriate method for purpose of determining ALP and made TP adjustment. The learned Commissioner(Appeals) held that the learned TPO had merely re-lied upon prices prevailing in different markets and regions and had clearly failed to bear in mind factors imbibed in rule 10B(2) and that the learned TPO had simply used database of export rates maintained by IBIS which did not satisfy stringent conditions of comparability regarding CUP Method and since the learned TPO had not satisfied even these basic requirements, TNMM was MAM and since net margins earned from sale of Paclitaxel and Disodium Pamidronate being higher at 14. 10 per cent as against other sales at 10. 90 per cent, international transaction of sale of Paclitaxel and Disodium Pamidronate satisfied arm's length principle and it did not warrant an addition as done by the learned TPO. S. 92C : Transfer Pricing-Arm's length price-Avoidance of tax-International Transaction-Comparable-Employee cost filter-Different business model cannot be accepted as comparable-Extraordinary event of amalgamation cannot be accepted as comparable-Company engaged in KPO services cannot be accepted as comparable. [S. 260A] 1365

The Hon'ble Bombay High Court while dismissing the appeal of the Revenue held that where assessee was rendering IT enabled services to its AE, a company which outsourced services to be rendered by it and thus had out-sourcing business model, could not be accepted as comparable. A company in whose case extraordinary event of amalgamation took place during relevant year, was not acceptable as comparable. Where assessee was rendering IT enabled services to its AE, a company engaged in providing KPO services could not be accepted as comparable. (AY. 2009-10)

S. 92C : Transfer Pricing-Arm's length price-Avoidance of tax-International transaction-Distribution and sale of cosmetic product-Comparable –Rule of consistency-Order of Tribunal rejecting the comparable is affirmed. [S. 260A] 1366

Assessee-company is engaged in distribution and sale of cosmetic products. In order to benchmark its international transactions, assessee selected certain comparables. The learned TPO rejected certain comparables selected by assessee and selected one company, Meedicare Ltd, as comparable thereby making upward ALP adjustment. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that Medicare Ltd could not be considered as comparable entity. On further appeal to the Hon'ble High Court, the Hon'ble High Court held that similar matter had been resolved inter parties for assessment year 2014-15 where-in Medicare Ltd had been excluded from list of comparables to determine ALP and upward adjustments of income proposed had not been undertaken as well. Following the rule of consistency, the appeal of Revenue is dismissed. (AY. 2019-10 to 2012-13)

The Hon'ble Bombay High Court while dismissing the appeal of the Revenue held that comparison has to be made between two equals. The Hon'ble Tribunal had firstly observed that RPM as adopted by assessee would clearly be applicable, however, in very next paragraph, it had proceeded to undertake quantification of arm's length price in relation to AMP expenditure, since aforesaid observations were clearly inconsistent and in-compatible, matter was to be remanded for considering appeal afresh. (AY. 2008-09)

1369 S. 92C : Transfer Pricing-Arm's length Price-Avoidance of Tax-International Transaction-Comparables-Exclusion of companies with large functional and segmental dissimilarities-Appreciation of facts-No substantial question of law. [S. 92CA(3), 260A]
The Hon'ble Delhi High Court held that there was no error in the decision of the Hon'ble Tribunal in rejecting the company 'Infosys BPO' as a comparable since it was functionally dissimilar to the assessee as it was largely en-gaged in software development, assuming all risks leading to higher profits, which was not in the case of the assessee. That the other comparable rightly rejected by the Hon'ble Tribunal was the company ('A') which had high on-site development expenses whereas the assessee was engaged only in offshore activities and therefore, the two were not comparable on functional level. The learned Transfer Pricing Officer had failed to analyse as to how the engineering design services of A could be compared with low end information technology enabled services of the assessee and had not discussed its segmental details. That the high end knowledge process out-sourcing services provider could not be compared with the information technology enabled services, which fell under the category of business process outsourcing services provider. The comparable e-Clerx was a leading knowledge process outsourcing company founded in the year 2000, and by the assessment year 2008-09, it had reached an employee strength of about 2000. It focussed on automation and process re-engineering in order to eliminate wasteful steps, and to automate repetitive ones, so as to minimize the need for human intervention and present their clients costs savings, which exceeded those from simple wage arbitrage, which in turn reduced the need for costly, high skilled resources and gave it ability to scale solutions quickly, both for existing clients and also for new ones. In contrast, the assessee had employed fresh young graduates, engaged in simply punching in data. That the findings as regards rejection of the three comparables being findings of fact and there being no proposed question alleging any perversity, no substantial question of law arose.

Dismissing the appeals of the Revenue the Hon'ble Delhi High Court held that the issues in the appeals for the assessment years 2012-13 and 2013-14 were pari-materia with those that arose in the assessment year 2007-08 to assessment year 2010-11. The Department did not prefer an appeal against such order dated October 22, 2018 passed by the Hon'ble Tribunal and the order had attained finality. The Hon'ble Tribunal had, in sum, sought to re-examine the issue, in the light of the directions contained therein. Therefore, the appeals for the assessment years 2012-13 and 2013-14 did not give rise to any question of law. (AY. 2012-13, 2013-14)

S. 92C : Transfer pricing-Arm's length Price-Avoidance of Tax-International Transaction - AMP expenses incurred for products of AE- TPO comparables had net margin lower than that selected by assessee - No upward adjustment warranted [S. 92CA, 260A] 1371

Assessee incurred Advertising, Marketing and Promotion ("AMP") expenses on behalf of its Associated Enterprise. Assessee claimed that it had received compensation for AMP expenses in terms of higher profitability for products. The learned Transfer Pricing Officer ("TPO") rejected Assessee's claim and made addition on account of AMP expenses. The Hon'ble Tribunal accepted Assessee's claim and deleted addition on AMP expenses made by the TPO. The Hon'ble High Court dismissed Revenue's appeal t and held that Assessee had received compensation for AMP expenses incurred by it in terms of higher profitability on products sold and the fact that comparables chosen by learned TPO had net margin lower than that selected by Assessee, no upward adjustment was required. S. 92C :Transfer pricing adjustment - Payment to AE for availing administrative service - Assessee's failure to furnish evidence -TPO determined ALP of administrative service at nil – No substantial question of law 1372

The Hon'ble High Court dismissed Assessee appeal and observed that all the three authorities below have given concurrent findings of fact that the Assessee had failed to furnish evidence to demonstrate that administrative services were actually rendered by the Associated Enterprises ("AE") and the Assessee had received such services. The learned Transfer Pricing Officer had rightly determined Arm's Length Price of administrative service fee at nil. The Hon'ble High Court held that every Assessment Year ("AY") is a separate unit which is governed by its own peculiar facts. The Hon'ble Tribunal has clarified that its decision would not prejudice the Assessee's claim in any other AY, as it has to be decided based on the evidences produced to establish the claim of receipt of services from AE. The Hon'ble High Court placed reliance on the decision of PCIT v. Make My Trip India Pvt Ltd (2017) 399 ITR 297 (Delhi HC) held that difference of opinion be-tween the parties, as to the appropriateness of one or the other methods to calculate the arm's length price, cannot per se be a ground for interference and the appropriateness of the method unless shown to be contrary to the Income-tax Rules, 1962. The Hon'ble High Court observed that as per the provisions of section 92C of the Act, the ALP cannot be determined by comparing prices charged to group companies, i.e., controlled transaction. The learned TPO ought to have arrived at ALP of Assessee's sale to its Associated Enterprises by only comparing it with an uncontrolled transaction of sale and therefore, the approach of the learned TPO was contrary to provisions of the law. The Hon'ble High Court affirmed the order of the Hon'ble Tribunal which held that the comparison has to be region/country specific, which the learned TPO has completely ignored. (AY. 2004-05)

[S. 92CA, 260A]

The Assessee had entered into Advance Pricing Agreement ("APA") with CBDT on 6 August 2019 covering transactions related to various Assessment Years ("AY") (2013-14 to 2021-22). For particular AY 2012-13, eighteen transactions were covered under APA. Out of the eighteen transactions, it was agreed that sixteen transactions will be benchmarked by using the other method while the remaining two transactions will be benchmarked by using Transaction Net Margin Method ("TNMM") and Resale Price Method ("RPM"). In the set aside proceedings under the order of the Hon'ble High Court, the Hon'ble Tribunal directed the learned TPO to consider the Function, Asset and Risk ("FAR") of the year under consideration with FAR of the years in APA. The Revenue sought to challenge this direction on the ground that so far as particular AY 2012-13 was concerned, the APA could not have been used as the basis for benchmarking. The Assessee defended the order of the Hon'ble Tribunal on the ground that the Hon'ble Tribunal keeping in mind the principles captured in the APA, passed order with the caveat put in place that the learned TPO needs to verify as to whether the FAR is the same. The Hon'ble Tribunal, placed reliance on a series of decisions, held that even if the year under dispute is not covered by APA, if the FAR is same, APA should be adopted for international transactions for the year under dispute. The Hon'ble High Court upheld the order passed by the Hon'ble Tribunal as it was passed after taking into consideration several judgments on the issue and held that no error has been committed by the Tribunal concerning either in the application of law or on facts. [S. 92B] 1376

The Hon'ble Tribunal held that in absence of any valid reason for exclusion of comparable, it should be treated that the assessee has taken 'U' turn, since the Assessee in its TP study has included L&T Infotech Ltd and Persistent Systems Ltd in the final list of comparables, further, the assessee has not provided any reason as to how the said company is functionally dissimilar with the assessee. Therefore, there is no error in the reasons given by the TPO to include the above company in the list of final comparables. With regard to the interest on outstanding receivable, the Hon'ble Tribunal directed the learned TPO to adopt appropriate rate of interest by considering the currency in which the outstanding receivable is denominated by the Assessee Company and its Associated Enterprises. [S. 92B] 1377

The Hon'ble Tribunal following the decision of Hon'ble Madras High Court in case of Redington (India) Ltd. (430 ITR 298) held that corporate guarantee is an international transaction requiring benchmarking. Further, following the decision of coordinate bench of Hon'ble Tribunal in case of Aurobindo Pharma Ltd (152 taxmann.com 469), directed the learned TPO to adopt the ALP of corporate guarantee at 0.5% on the guaranteed amount. Further, for the issue of interest on outstanding receivable the Hon'ble Tribunal observed that interest on outstanding receivables due from Associated Enterprises ("AE") is an international transaction requiring separate bench-marking. The loan attributable to the AE is deemed to have been consumed in a country outside India. The Hon'ble Tribunal directed the learned AO/TPO to accept the arm's length interest rate on similar foreign currency receivables/advances as LIBOR+200 points to be accepted for determining ALP of notional interest on delayed recovery. The Hon'ble Tribunal upheld the order of the Hon'ble CIT(A) and held that expenses on advertisement and publicity, business promotion and participation in trade events at the request of the overseas Associated Enterprises which are reimbursed, should be treated as pass through cost and all other items of expenses are to be considered as part of the cost base of the as-sessee and should be marked-up. The Hon'ble Tribunal observed that the Assessee is engaged in manufacturing and trading of colour concentrates and additive masterbatches and that the Assessee has not shown any rational basis of allocation of common expenses between both segments on the basis of gross profit and therefore, the order of the learned TPO on allocation of common expenses on the basis of revenues from the two segments is proper. Further, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that the adjustment will be warranted only if there is a difference between the rate of custom duty paid by the assessee and comparables therefore, in the above case no adjustment is allowable on account of the custom duty as there is no difference in the rate of custom duty paid by the assessee and the comparable companies.

The Hon'ble Tribunal held that the Comparable Uncontrolled Price method is not the most appropriate method for benchmarking the international trans-action of 'Sale of finished goods in cases where there is difference in product, geography, timing or quantity sold etc. Since, in the instant case there is a huge difference in quantities of products sold by the assessee to its AE and non-AEs, CUP is not the most appropriate method. The Hon'ble Tribunal dismissed Revenue appeal and upheld the view of the Hon'ble CIT(A) who was justified in accepting the Assessee's contention that the Transactional Net Margin Method should be applied in respect of international transaction of sale of finished goods. S. 92C : Transfer pricing – License fee for time and billing software – ALP determined at NIL without prescribed method – Adjustment deleted- IT cost allocation – Cost-to-cost recharge – ALP deter-mined at NIL without prescribed method – Adjustment deleted. 1381
Tribunal held that where the assessee had benchmarked the payment of license fees to its AE using the CUP method, supported by an expert valuation report and comparable royalty data, the TPO erred in determining the ALP at NIL without following any of the prescribed methods under section 92C r. w. Rule 10B. Following the Bombay High Court and earlier Tribunal rulings in assessee's own case, the adjustment was deleted. Tribunal held that payment made by the assessee to its AE towards global IT services, allocated on a cost-to-cost basis, was benchmarked using CUP and support-ed by agreements and third-party invoices. The TPO determined the ALP as NIL without applying any prescribed method, which was contrary to law. Relying on earlier years' decisions and jurisdictional precedents, the Tribunal deleted the adjustment. (AY. 2010–11)

Held that providing corporate guarantee to an AE is an international trans-action under Explanation to section 92B. However, following judicial precedents and industry practice, the TP adjustment was restricted to 0. 5% of the guaranteed amount, as opposed to the higher rate adopted by the TPO. Held that where a loan is advanced to an AE out of funds borrowed from banks, the assessee must recover at least the same rate of interest from its AE as it pays to the bank. Charging a lower rate results in shifting of profits outside India, and in such a case, BEPS (Base Erosion and Profit Shifting) principles apply. Undercharging interest constitutes an international transaction requiring ALP adjustment under section 92C. (AY. 2010–11)

1385 S. 92C : Transfer pricing – Interest on advances to AEs – Quasi capital claim rejected – Adjustment justified – Matter remanded for rate determination- Corporate guarantee – International transaction – Adjustment restricted to 0. 8%.
Held that the assessee advanced funds to overseas AEs without charging interest, claiming they were quasi capital. The Tribunal ruled that the nature of the advance must be examined at the time of making the loan, not retrospectively based on later equity conversion. As there was no evidence that the advances were intended as quasi capital when made, the TPO rightly treated them as loans. Commercial expediency or availability of interest-free funds are not valid defences against TP adjustment. Held that furnishing corporate guarantees to overseas AEs constitutes an international transaction under Explanation to section 92B. Since the assessee had voluntarily agreed to charge 0. 8% guarantee commission during the assessment, the Tribunal upheld the CIT(A)'s order restricting the TP adjustment to that rate. No further enhancement was warranted. (AYs. 2010–11 & 2011–12)

Held that a company engaged in development and sale of software products (Kals Information Systems Ltd.) cannot be compared with the assessee, which is engaged only in software development services. In the absence of segmental data and due to functional differences, the company was directed to be excluded from the list of comparables. Held that Infosys Ltd., having a turnover of ₹ 19,416 crore compared to the assessee's ₹ 1,171 crore, fails the 10x turnover filter. Following Karnataka High Court ruling in Acusis Software India (P.) Ltd., such a high-scale company is not comparable to a mid-sized software service provider and must be excluded. Held that Bodhtree Consulting Ltd., having revenue from software services, products, and diversified business lines, cannot be compared with the assessee providing only software development services. Functional dissimilarity and absence of proper segmental reporting warranted its exclusion.

Held that Sonata Software Ltd. had RPTs exceeding the accepted threshold of 25% of total revenue, making it ineligible as a comparable. Applying the RPT filter and relying on Delhi Tribunal's decision in Fiserv India (P.) Ltd., the Tribunal directed exclusion of this company. (AY. 2009–10)

S. 92C : Transfer pricing – Management and administrative services – ALP cannot be determined at nil without applying a prescribed method. 1387
Held that the assessee availed a bundle of services including management, finance, and administrative support from its AE and made payments under a formal agreement. The TPO determined the ALP of the finance and general administration service component at nil, treating them as stewardship services and alleging lack of evidence of receipt or business necessity. The Tribunal observed that the assessee had submitted agreements, debit notes, and emails substantiating service receipt, and that the TPO failed to apply any of the prescribed methods under section 92C to determine the ALP. Merely concluding that services were unnecessary or not evidenced and thus assigning a nil ALP, without methodical benchmarking, was held to be contrary to law. Further, similar payments had been accepted in earlier years. Accordingly, the TP adjustment was deleted. (AY. 2012–13)

S. 92C : Transfer pricing – Functional dissimilarity – Company manufacturing auto suspension springs not comparable to tubular product manufacturer- Import filter – Company using only indigenous raw materials rightly excluded- Functional dissimilarity – Company manufacturing diversified auto components not comparable- Import filter – No raw material import by selected company – Not comparable– RPT filter – Comparable having high related party transactions to be excluded- Intangible ownership – Mere presence of intangibles not sufficient for exclusion- Application of MAP rate to non-UK AEs – Requires similarity in FAR – Matter remanded. 1388
Held that a company engaged in manufacturing auto suspension springs and coil springs was functionally different from the assessee, which was en-gaged in manufacturing tubular products like brake and fuel line systems. Due to the difference in nature of the products and the manufacturing process, the selected company was not a valid comparable. Held that the selected company was manufacturing coil springs using only indigenous spring steel as raw material, while the assessee imported 50% of its raw materials. This material difference in sourcing affected the cost structure, justifying exclusion of such company by the TPO based on the import content filter. Held that a company engaged in manufacturing shock absorbers, struts, front forks, bimetal strips and bearings was not functionally comparable with the assessee, who was into tubular product manufacturing. Owing to the difference in functions, assets and risks, such a company was not suitable for benchmarking purposes. Held that where the assessee imported 50% of its raw materials for manufacturing tubular products, a company manufacturing spring and spring leaves without importing any raw material was rightly excluded due to a significant difference in sourcing strategy and cost structures, applying the import filter. Held that the selected company had related party transactions (RPT) of 37.17%, exceeding the generally accepted RPT threshold of 25%. Such high RPT impacts pricing and independence of operations, and the company was rightly excluded from the set of comparables. Held that although the selected company owned certain intangibles, the TPO found that such intangibles were not of the nature that materially affected margins or gave the company a unique advantage. As the assessee failed to demonstrate any margin-distorting impact, the company was rightly retained in the list of comparables. Held that the 18% margin fixed under the MAP resolution for UK AEs cannot be automatically applied to non-UK AE transactions unless it is shown that price-influencing factors are similar. Since the assessee did not file a detailed FAR analysis comparing UK and non-UK transactions, the matter was remanded to the TPO for fresh consideration. (AY. 2007-08)

The Hon'ble Tribunal observed that since market quotes were available on corresponding dates and when corresponding data was not available on the date of contract entered between the Assessee and its Associated Enterprise, the "other method" had been rightly applied by the Assessee. The learned Transfer Pricing Officer has failed to analyse the transfer pricing documentation prepared by the Assessee. The Assessee had considered all the market quotations available while maintaining the transfer pricing report and considering the contemporaneous nature of documentation process as provided under the relevant provisions of the Act. The learned Assessing Officer and the learned Transfer Pricing Officer were to exclude the said company selected as comparable from the final set of comparables. S. 92C : Transfer pricing – Arm's length price - Avoidance of tax -International transaction- Transfer Pricing adjustments- Advertisement, marketing and promotional expenses-Administrative and business promotion activities for products sold in India-International transaction – TPO accepted overall margins in trading segment including AMP expenses as operating cost – No separate adjustment for AMP expense-incorrect margin of comparable-working capital adjustment. [S. 92CA, 143(1)(a)] 1391

The Hon'ble Tribunal deleted the Transfer Pricing adjustment and held that no adjustment is warranted separately with respect to advertising, marketing, and promotional expenses where the learned Transfer Pricing Officer had already accepted the overall margin of the trading segment which included the advertisement, marketing and promotional expenses as part of the operating cost. for,. Further, on the issue of miscalculated margins of a comparable, the Hon'ble Tribunal remitted the matter to the file of learned Transfer Pricing Officer to consider the correct margins of the companies. Further, there was a difference between the working capital of the Appellant and comparable and therefore, the Hon'ble Tribunal directed the learned Assessing Officer/ Transfer Pricing Officer to re-compute the working capital adjustment taking into consideration the details submitted by the Assessee (AY. 2018-19)

Lenovo India P. Ltd. v Dy. CIT (2024) 113 ITR 560 / 148 taxmann.com 237 (Bang)(Trib)

S. 92C : Transfer pricing – Arm's length price - Avoidance of tax -International transaction - Corporate guarantee fees- charged at rate of 1 percent- justified-Optionally convertible loans to subsidiary without charging interest- Quasi-capital in nature – non-conversion of loans to equity - entitled to interest at commercial rate – arm's length-No transfer pricing adjustment on interest on loans warranted-Reimbursement of expenses-assessee's business interest in overseas jurisdiction -No adjustment. [S. 92CA] 1392

The Appellant had charged corporate guarantee fee of 1 per cent from all AEs, however, the learned Transfer Pricing Officer relying on the bench-marking of corporate guarantee in the earlier assessment year at 2.52 per cent as Arm's length price, proposed an adjustment. The learned DRP held that corporate guarantee should be charged at 1.5 per cent from AE (average of 2 percent and 3 per cent). Further, relying on the decision of Appellant in its own case for earlier assessment year, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that ALP of bank guarantee charged by assessee at 1 per cent was correct. Further, on the issue of Optionally convertible loans to subsidiary on which no interest had been charged, the Hon'ble Tribunal held that the convertible loans advanced to the assessee were in the nature of quasi-capital in the sense that, substantive reward or true consideration for such loan was not interest simplicator on the amount advanced, but was an opportunity to own the capital on certain favourable terms.

Further, the Appellant had made reimbursement for products wherein assessee was intellectual owner and played role of entrepreneur whereas associate entity was only a distributor. The learned Transfer Pricing Officer noted that in FAR analysis in TP report, assessee had been classified as contract manufacturer, and, accordingly, TPO held that AE could not be said to have incurred expenses on behalf of assessee-company. Since Assessee reasonably demonstrated through documents that expenses were incurred in respect of assessee's business interest in overseas jurisdiction, no adjustment could be made (AY. 2015-16)

The Hon'ble Tribunal held that parent company's commitment to providing its subsidiary with the resources it needs to meet its financial obligations or to get credit. The format of the letter of comfort asked for by the bank was not available, its impact on the interest to be charged on the loan could not be estimated. The adjustment made to the interest rate by the learned Assessing Officer in treating the letter of comfort as a bank guarantee could not be upheld, the Assessee's alternative argument of treating the interest rates prescribed under the head "Safe Harbour Rules", that is, under Rule 10TD(2A)(5) of the Rules, which was 6 months LIBOR plus 400 bps, was acceptable. The learned Assessing Officer was directed to treat this rate as the arm's length price of the international transaction and make adjustment accordingly. The identical upfront fee of 1.25 percent of the bank loan was charged. Therefore, the letter of comfort called for a separate adjustment to the interest. The Arm's length price adjustment to be made accordingly. (AY. 2018-19)

The Hon'ble Tribunal held that there is fine line of difference between business process outsourcing and knowledge process outsourcing. It is difficult to determine the involvement of human intelligence or skills in the set of process or activities. It is subjective and needs proper analysis of process of work. The activities carried on by the Assessee and the parent company were similar. It was difficult to evaluate how much skills or intelligence were applied in providing support services by the assessee. However, the Assessee had submitted the statement of work to substantiate the extent of support services provided by it. Eclerx was to be excluded from the final comparables list on the ground of functional dissimilarity and absence of segmental data. Further, Accentia technologies Ltd and TCS e-serve are to be excluded due to exceptional financial results and significant turnover difference respectively.. Further, the learned

Transfer Pricing Officer had adopted an ad hoc two percent for finalising the working capital adjustment without assigning any reasons for adopting the percentage. The Hon'ble Tribunal remanded the matter to the learned Transfer Pricing Officer to adopt a reasonable percentage on actual basis based on the data available on record. Further, for the issue of short grant of TDS credit, the learned Assessing Officer was to verify the records submitted by the Assessee on the merits as per law after providing reasonable opportunity of being heard. The Hon'ble Tribunal held that companies selected as comparables whose segmental data is not available, having functional disparity with Assessee, undergoing extraordinary event of amalgamation are to be excluded from list of comparables. Further, the revenue is against the direction of DRP to reduce service tax refund from operating expenses. However, relying on the decision of AMD India P. Ltd ITA No. 521/M/2015 ITA No. 1126/M/2015 CO 54/M/2015 13 vs. ITO, 114 taxmann.com 703 (Bang.) and Capstone Securities Analysis P. Ltd. v. DCIT 105 taxmann.com 62 (Pune), the Hon'ble Tribunal held that service tax refund is operating revenue and the assessee has also furnished a table indicating that even if service tax re-fund is ignored the variation between the ALP and value of international transaction is less than 5%, hence, the international transaction would be within tolerance limit. Thus, the service tax refund or service tax written back is operating revenue while computing profit level indicator. (AY. 2010-11)

The Hon'ble Tribunal dismissing the Revenue appeal and held that Resale Price Method is most appropriate method. The Hon'ble Tribunal also held that the Revenue could not show that those entities were functionally not comparable with the Assessee. The companies selected as comparables might have lower margins but those had to be included in the comparability analysis if they were functionally comparable with the Assessee. The Hon'ble Tribunal deleted the Transfer Pricing adjustment affirming the order of the Hon'ble CIT(A). (AY. 2012-13)

In the Transfer Pricing Study report both, the Assessee and the learned Transfer Pricing Officer committed error of considering comparable companies engaged in Financial & Leasing services (Hire purchase and leasing services, Investment services, other financial services and other consultancy services) to benchmark the subject international transaction instead of considering comparable companies engaged in providing Marketing support services. The Hon'ble Tribunal remanded the matter to the lower authorities relying on the order of the earlier years. (AY. 2005-06, 2006-07)

[R. 10B]

The Hon'ble Tribunal held that the Assessee's turnover was less than two hundred crore rupees. The companies which had turnover exceeding two hundred crore rupees. The companies having turnover more than two hundred crore rupees could not be considered as comparables even if they were otherwise comparable. The application of the turnover filter was justified on the basis of the classification of companies as per the report of Dun and Bradstreet. Those four comparables were to be excluded. That the three companies SB, AC and HC were not considered as comparables by the learned Transfer Pricing Officer as they were persistent loss-making companies. As per the functional results provided by the Assessee, SB had shown profits in one year, and AC and HC had shown profits continuously. The Assessee had not raised any specific objection before the lower authorities. The issue was thus remitted back to the learned Assessing Officer/Transfer Pricing Officer/Dispute Resolution Panel for fresh consideration for decision as per law. The Assessee was given liberty to file necessary documents to substantiate its case. That with respect to the transfer pricing adjustment on notional interest on outstanding trade receivables, the learned Transfer Pricing Officer had himself allowed a credit period of ninety days, and all invoices had been received within that period. The is-sue was remanded to the Transfer Pricing Officer to recompute the adjustment considering an interest rate being six months LIBOR plus three hundred and fifty basis points instead of the mark-up of four hundred and fifty basis points applied by the Transfer Pricing Officer. This adjustment was to be made only if the invoices raised by the Assessee were not collected within the credit period of ninety days. (AY. 2016-17)

S. 92C : Transfer pricing-Arm's length price-Avoidance of tax-International transaction-Share application money-Treated as loan and transfer pricing adjustment made imputing interest-Addition is deleted. 1401

Held, that the transfer pricing adjustment made by imputing interest on share application money had been deleted by the Tribunal in the assessee's own case in the assessment year 2016-17 on the ground that the amount was refunded before the allotment of preference shares, and the transaction of subscription of preference shares itself was not found to be bogus or sham. Since, the transfer pricing adjustment made in this year was a continuation of earlier year's action of the Transfer Pricing Officer and since the earlier year's transfer pricing adjustment had been deleted by the Tribunal, the Assessing Officer was directed to delete the transfer pricing adjustment. [S. 80IA] 1402

Held, that the arm's length price of interest on outstanding receivables adopted by the assessee at LIBOR plus 200 basis points had been accepted by the Tribunal in the earlier years. No distinguishing feature was pointed out by the Revenue in these two years, to take a different view. Accordingly, the view taken by the Commissioner (Appeals) was held to be proper. Held that the Commissioner (Appeals) had given a categorical finding that ANJ was not functionally comparable. No material was brought to contradict finding of the Commissioner (Appeals). The Commissioner (Appeals) was justified in rejecting this company. Held, that the Tribunal had been consistently upholding the yield spread approach and also splitting of differential interest in the ratio 50 : 50 between the assessee and its associated enterprises. Order of CIT(A) is affirmed. Held that since, the Tribunal consistently upheld the practice of adopting internal comparable uncontrolled price in respect of transaction of sale of power to non-eligible undertaking and since the Commissioner (Appeals) had followed the order passed by the Tribunal in the earlier years, which had been upheld by the High Court in one of the years, the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) on this issue was to be upheld. [S. 92B]

Tribunal held, that advertisement, marketing and promotion expenses did not constitute an international transaction. The arm's length price adjustment made in this respect was deleted. The Tribunal in the assessee's own case for the preceding two years had held in favour of the assessee. The payment of royalty on the import of goods by the assessee from its associated enterprises was governed by the licence agreement which was effective since the year 2005. There was no legal bar on the commercial terms arranged by the assessee in respect of payment of royalty of the net sales. The Special Valuation Branch of the Customs Department had given a categorical finding that royalty was not included in the invoice value of the goods imported by the assessee. While arriving at his conclusion, the Trans-fer Pricing Officer had nowhere recorded or referred to any material which could demonstrate that royalty payment by the assessee was embedded in the process of the imported goods. It was merely a presumption which could not be upheld looking to the facts of the case and corroborative material placed on record. The upward adjustment in respect of payment of royalty was thus, to be deleted. [S. 80IA (8), 92BA, 92F]
Held that the other units of the assessee bought electricity from third par-ties at the same price which was paid to the eligible businesses. The assessee was a captive service provider for generating electricity and to sup-ply and distribute to the manufacturing unit which otherwise would have bought electricity from the open market. The price to be seen was that which the manufacturing unit paid in the open market. Accordingly, there was no infirmity in the contention of the assessee that the rate to be considered was the rate at which purchases were made from third parties. The safe harbour rules do not apply to clause (i) of the Explanation to section 80-IA of the Act. The rates at which power was available through the Indian Energy Exchange could not be applied as these rates were applicable to distribution companies and not to the consumers. The adjustment was deleted. (AY. 2019-20)

S. 92C : Transfer pricing-Arm's length price-Avoidance of tax-International transaction-Most appropriate method-Royalty-The profit split method could not be applied-The transactional net margin method is held to be the most appropriate method. [R. 10B(1)(d)] 1405
Held that there was no basis for the conclusion that the technology in question was to be used by a start-up or that the assessee was a start-up. The technology in question was that of a foreign company and was being used by the assessee on a continuing basis. There was no basis for the conclusion that the useful economic life of the technology would only be five years. In any event, the passage of time could not be the basis to discard the transactional net margin method as the most appropriate method. Even going by rule 10B(1)(d) of the Income-tax Rules, 1962, there should be some contribution by each of the parties to a transaction for earning profits from the sale of goods or the provision of services. Then, the contribution of each of the parties would be identified and the profit would be split be-tween those parties. In the case of the assessee, the technology was given by the foreign company for which royalty was paid. The use of the technology in the manufacture and sale of the products contribute to the profits of the assessee. The foreign company had nothing to do with that. The first condition for application of the profit split method was thus not met. The profit split method would apply only in a case involving the transfer of unique intangibles or in multiple interrelated international transactions which cannot be valued separately for determining the arm's length price. It may have been true that the assessee aggregated payment of royalty with the transaction of manufacturing as it was closely linked and adopted the transactional net margin method but that did not mean that the transactions were so interrelated that they could not be evaluated separately for applying the profit split method. Further, the assessee did not make any unique contribution to the transaction. The profit split method could not be applied. The transactional net margin method was held to be the most appropriate method. (AY. 2018-19)

S. 92C: Transfer pricing-Arm's length price-Avoidance of tax-International transaction-Specified domestic transaction-Comparables-Gujarat Fluorochemicals Limited-Inox Air Products Limited-Excluded-Purchase and subsequent sale of capital asset-Matter remanded. [S. 92CA] – Ditto cases of particular comparables should not be reported. 1406
Assessee was in a Project Engineering line of business, which executed turnkey contracts relating to industrial gases plants, a process gas solutions line of business, etc. The issue involved is selection of comparable for computation of ALP of international transaction of purchase of raw materials and sale of finished goods. The first comparable involved is Gujarat Fluorochemicals Limited (GFL). The Assessee submitted that in Assessee's own case, the DRP has excluded this concern on account of functional disparity in AYs

2012-13, 2013-14, 2014-15. Held, GFL is to be excluded from list of comparables. With respect to Inox Air Products Limited, the Assessee submitted that it is not specifically in the line of manufacturing gases but it also has a host of other activities. The TPO had not examined its segmental accounts and not worked out how much component of its revenue is from the same area of operation as the Assessee is engaged in. Further TPO failed to compute true operating profit margins as well as considering the adjustment for working capital before adopting true percentage of margin for compare. Therefore, matter remanded back to AO to re-examine the issue and exclude the two aforementioned comparables from the list of 12 comparables finalised by TPO. The second issue is with respect to transfer of fixed asset. The Assessee had purchased two second-hand nitrogen generating plants which were manufactured in UK and installed in China. One of these plants were sold by the Assessee to its AE in Indonesia. The Assessee furnished additional evidence to show that it had paid customs duty which was not considered and that the Assessee had actually incurred a loss on sale. The ITAT held that this is a specific instance of purchase and sale of a plant for which it is quite difficult to find a comparable. It is a specific item for whom very limited customers would be there. Therefore, this issue was also remitted for re-examination at the level of AO. Appeal allowed. (AY. 2011-12)

[S. 92CA(4), Art. 226] 1410

Allowing the petition the Court held that a bare perusal of S. 92CA would reveal that in order to compute the ALP of the international transactions, the AO 'may' refer the matter to the office of the TPO, with prior permission of the Principal CIT or CIT. Furthermore, the mandate of S. 92CA(4) would reflect that the AO shall calculate the total income of the assessee in conformity with the ALP determined by the TPO. In cases, where certain international transactions may have a bearing on the computation of total income, the AO ought to refer the matter to the TPO in order to determine the ALP of the international transactions and the AO, while computing the total income of the assessee, has to proceed in conformity with the ALP determined by the TPO. It is a settled position of law that if the legislative scheme prescribes an act to be done in a certain manner, it ought to be done in that manner, and that manner alone. The order passed by the AO without affording an opportunity of hearing to the assessee, proceeded to add an amount to the total income of the assessee, which addition was neither determined nor directed by the TPO, as the ALP of the international transaction related to the demerger of the business. Accordingly where Assessing Officer did not make any reference to TPO for transactions covered by Transfer Pricing Regulations and he simply incorporated suggestion and adjustment made by TPO in an earlier year in the assessment order, such addition is not in compliance with pro-visions contained in section 92CA and, same is set aside. 1414 S. 115A : Foreign companies-Tax- Royalty -Determination of tax in certain cases-New agreement was not an extension of the erst-while licence and Technical Assistance Agreement Tax rate is therefore 10. 56% under section 115A instead of 20 % under the India-Italy DTAA-No substantial question of law. [S. 9(1)(vi), 260A, Art. 12]
Assessee is in the business of manufacture of motorized two wheelers and three and four-wheeled light goods transport vehicles. It received royalty income and technical fees for services rendered to its India AEs. It entered into two agreements with its AE. Assessing Officer after considering both agreements, concluded that second agreement was only an extension of first agreement and, therefore, tax rate applicable would be 20 per cent and not 10.56 per cent. Tribunal held that there was difference between the two agreements and also law as prevailing and old agreement provided that trademarks to be used by assessee were only restricted to Ape 501 and Ape 601, whereas, as per new agreement assessee had provided license to manufacture and sell vehicles under name of Ape, which encompassed all kinds of vehicle. Tribunal also held that territory which was covered under old agreement was different from territory that was covered under new agreement and thus, the second agreement was not an extension of the earlier agreement. Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that as the new agreement is not an extension of the licence and Technical Assistance agreement (old agreement) tax rate applicable to royalty paid under the new agreement, should be 10. 56% under section 115A instead of 20 % under the India-Italy DTAA.

S. 115BAA: Tax on income of certain domestic companies-Determination of tax in certain cases-Delay in filing Form 10-IC-Technical problem on portal-Form filed within extended time grant-ed by Income-Tax Authorities-Benefit of concessional rate of tax cannot be denied. [S. 115BAA(2), 139(1), Form No. 10-IC] 1415

Dismissing the appeal of the Revenue the Court held that from the findings recorded by the Tribunal, it could be noticed that the assessee while filing the return of income opted to be taxed under the provisions of section 115BBA of the Act. However, it could not upload form 10-IC on account of technical some problem on the Income-tax Business Application portal at the relevant time. During the relevant period, the time to file form 10-IC was extended up to June 30, 2022. The assessee filed the form before the Assessing Officer on June 29, 2022. A copy of the form was placed before the Commissioner (Appeals). This was the first year in which the assessee was to avail of such benefits. Since the assessee could not upload form 10-IC, on the portal on account of technical error, there being no fault of the assessee, it could not be deprived of the benefit particularly when this was the first year for availing of such benefits. S. 115BAA: Tax on income of certain domestic companies-Determination of tax in certain cases-Delay in filing of Form 10-IC-Circular extending the time for filing of return-Eligible for concessional tax rate under section 115BAA. [S. 139(1), Form No. 10-IC] 1416

Assessee-company engaged in the manufacturing of flexible films, filed its income-tax return for assessment year 2021-22 on 30-12-2021, and opted for reduced taxation under section 115BAA. However, CPC calculated the tax liability without considering this provision, resulting in an additional tax demand. Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed appeal, citing assessee's failure to file Form 10-IC within stipulated deadline as per Circular No. 06/2022 dated 17-3-2022. On appeal it was contended that Circular No. 19/2023 issued by CBDT allowed for condonation of delay in filing Form No. 10-IC for AY 2021-22, and it had met all conditions specified in Circular, including timely filing of income-tax return, selection of taxation under section 115BAA, and electronic filing of Form No. 10-IC before deadline. Since assessee had fulfilled all conditions specified in said circular and had filed Form No. 10-IC within stipulated timelines, it would be eligible to claim concessional tax rate under section 115BAA. 1419 S. 115BBC : Anonymous donations-Determination of tax in certain cases-Charitable Trust-Anonymous donations received in the Hundi cannot be taxed under Section 115BBC(1) of the Act-Order of Tribunal is affirmed-No substantial question of law. [S. 10(23C)(v), 11, 12, 12A, 80G (5), 115BBC(2)(b), 260A]

The Assessing Officer held that the assessee trust had received aggregate donations of Rs. 228.25 crores, out of which, Rs. 159.12 crores were by way of "hundi collections", which were 'anonymous donations'. The Assessing Officer held that the assessee being a charitable trust, and as the anonymous donations exceeded 5% of the total donations, the same were taxable under section 115BBC(1) of the Act. On appeal the CIT(A) deleted the addition. Tribunal also affirmed the order of the CIT(A). On appeal by the Revenue, the Court held that the provisions of Section 80G cannot be intermixed, with what is provided by Section 115BBC(2)(b) of the Act. Both the provisions stand compartmentalized and are independent of each other. It would be too far-fetched to reach to a conclusion that merely because the assessee was registered under Section 80G of the Act, it cannot be a religious trust, so as to fall outside the purview of Section 115BBC (2)(b) of the Act. Such an approach would amount to an inappropriate reading of the provisions of Section 80G as also Section 115BBC(2)(b). The very foundation of the operation and effect of Section 115BBC(2)(b) is a conclusive ascertainment, and a factual determination of a trust being religious and charitable as ascertained from the contents of the trust deed. Once such requirement is satisfied, any anonymous donation received by such trust would be eligible / entitled to the benefit of an exemption from tax, by the applicability of sub-section 2(b) of Section 115BBC. On the other hand, Section 80G certainly lays down quantum test that is the amounts spent for its purposes to ascertain whether the charitable trust is eligible for registration or not, which is clear from the provisions of Section 80G (5B) of the Act. Honourable Court relied on the decision in K. Ravindranathan Nair v. CIT (2001) 1 SCC 135 and affirmed the order of the Tribunal as there is no substantial question of law. Tribunal held that reading of the provisions of S. 115BBC along with the Circular No. 14 of 2006, dt. 28th Dec., 2006 explaining its provisions re-veals that S. 115BBC was intended to check inflow of unaccounted monies into the institutions such as universities, educational institutions, medical institutions, etc. and it required that all such institutions ought to maintain complete details and records of the donors. Anonymous donations received by trusts, which exist solely for religious purposes or both religious and charitable purposes, are not to be taxed under S. 115BBC. [S. 68, 148, 148A, 149, Art. 14, 226] 1421

Writ petition was filed to quash the notice issued under section 148 on the ground that S. 115BBE is unconstitutional. Dismissing the petition the Court held that it is settled law that statutory Acts and their provisions are not to be declared unconstitutional on the fanciful theory that power would be exercised in an unrealistic fashion or in a vacuum or on the ground that there is an apprehension of misuse of statutory provision or possibility of abuse of power. It must be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that administration and application of a particular law would be done "not with an evil eye and unequal hand". Consequently, at this stage, S. 115BBE cannot be held unconstitutional on the ground that there is an apprehension of misuse of the said provision. Further, it is settled law that the Act provides a complete machinery for assessment/reassessment of tax and the assessee is not permitted to abandon that machinery to invoke jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Consequently, the writ petitions and pending applications were dismissed. (AY. 2015-16, 2017-18)

S. 115JB : Company-Book profit-The provision of S. 115JB is not applicable to Banking companies. [The Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970, S. 11, Companies Act, 2013, S. 3, 129] 1427

Assessee-bank is neither formed nor registered under the Companies Act, 1956, nor it is an existing company as per the definition given in s. 3(1)(ii). Once it is not a company under the Companies Act, then the first condition referred to in cl. (b) of s. 115JB(2) is not fulfilled, and consequently, second proviso below s. 129(1) of the Companies Act is also not applicable. Deeming fiction in s. 11 of Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970 is created only for the purposes of the IT Act. Same would not ipso facto make such bank a 'company' for the purposes of the Companies Act, 2013, unless the conditions specified in s. 3 thereof are fulfilled. There is no provision to deem a nationalised bank to be a company for the purposes of s. 3 of the Companies Act, 1956. Fiction created by s. 11 of the Acquisition Act does not imply that the assessee-bank is a company for the purpose of the Companies Act to which cl. (b) of sub-s. (2) of s. 115JB is applicable. Second proviso to sub-s. (1) of s. 129 of the Companies Act has no application to the corresponding new bank as it is not a banking company for the purpose of the said provision. Expression "company" used in s. 115JB(2)(b) is to be inferred to be company under the Companies Act and not an entity which is deemed by a fiction to be a company for the purpose of the IT Act-Accordingly, cl. (b) to sub-s. (2) of s. 115JB inserted by Finance Act, 2012 w. e. f. 1st April, 2013 is not applicable to the banks constituted as 'corresponding new bank' in terms of the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970 and therefore, the provision of s. 115JB cannot be applied to such banks. The assessee filed its return of income and claimed refund of excess DDT paid on dividend distributed. The assessee claimed that as the DDT represents tax on dividend income, the assessee should be granted the benefit of article 11 of the India-Italy Double Tax Avoidance Agreement (India-Italy DTAA) and that the Dividend Distribution Tax (DDT) on the dividend declared and paid by the assessee to Piaggio & C. S. p. A., Italy, being tax on dividend income should be paid at the rate prescribed in the India-Italy DTAA. Consequently, excess tax (DDT) paid by the assessee should be re-funded to it. The Assessing Officer rejected the claim of the assessee for refund of excess DDT. CIT(A) affirmed the order of the AO. On appeal the Tribunal held that the DDT is a charge oon profits of company and not a charge in the hands of the shareholder or tax paid on behalf of the share-holder by the domestic company. Therefore, DTAA does not get triggered at all when a domestic company pays DDT under section 115-O. However, wherever contracting states to a tax treaty intend to extend treaty protection to a domestic company paying dividend distribution tax, only then, that domestic company can claim benefit of DTAA. [S. 115QC, Companies Act, 1956, S. 77A, 100-104] 1434

Assessee-company paid consideration for purchase of its own shares from its shareholders in accordance with the scheme sanctioned by the High Court. The purchase had been completed on 31-5-2016. Assessing Officer held that said payment would attract provisions of section 115QA and, accordingly, levied tax under section 115QA and treated assessee as assessee-in-default under section 115QC. CIT(A) deleted the levy under section 115QA. On appeal the Tribunal held that since assessee had carried out capital reduction under provisions of sections 100-104 of Companies Act, 1956 and same had been completed on 31-5-2016, capital reduction carried out by assessee would not be covered in definition of buyback as per Explanation (i) to section 115QA and tax on distributed income to shareholders was not payable by assessee-company. Prior to 1-6-2016 if company purchases its own shares in accordance with provisions of section 77A of Companies Act, such domestic companies were required to pay tax under section 115QA and after 1-6-2016 if company purchases its own shares in accordance with any of provisions of any law relating to companies, buyback tax liability would arise in hands of company. Held that the assessee had filed the details of expenses, vouchers, to substantiate its claim that the advertisement and business promotion expenses were recurring expenses incurred during the normal course of the business exclusively for the purpose of business. Further, the Assessing Officer in his remand report after examination and verification of these details on a text check basis stated that the expenses were incurred by field staff for giving various gifts, travel facilities, etc., to doctors for promoting the products of the assessee. Therefore, from the remand report, it was sufficiently evident that the Department had accepted that the expenses under the head key account manager and customer relation management were incurred for the benefit of the doctors. Since no material had been brought on record by the Department to show that the doctors were employees of the assessee, the addition made by the Assessing Officer under section 115WB(2)(d) and (o) of the Act is deleted. Assessee submitted return of income under section 44ADA. CPC issued notice to him under section 139(9) and asked him to remove defects in his re-turn of income within 15 days. Assessee could not remove said defects within the stipulated time. An application was submitted by assessee on E Nivaran Portal of CPC and CPC asked him to file revised return. However, assessee once again pointed out to CPC that because of certain technical reasons revised return could not be uploaded on Portal. Assessee made an application before concerned authority and requested to condone delay in filing return of income. Application of assessee was rejected on the ground that the assessee had failed to show genuine hardship. On writ the Court held that the assessee had pointed out that lock down during period between March, 2020 to April, 2020 resulted in delay, such delay in filing application for rectification. High Court condoned the delay and directed the petitioner to file a revised return. (AY. 2019-20)

S. 119 : Central Board of Direct Taxes-Circular-Condonation of delay of 18 days in filing of return-Beyond control of assessee-CBDT's Circular No. 13/2023 dt. 26-07-2023-Delay in filing return of in-come is condoned. [S. 80AC(ii) 80P(2) (a)(i), 119(2)(b), 139(1), 143(1),143(3), Art. 226] 1438

The assessee society filed it's return of income for the Asstt. Year: 2018–19 on 10–11–2018 wherein the deduction u/s 80P was claimed. The return of income was processed u/s 143(1) vide intimation dtd. 02–07–2019 followed by the regular assessment u/s 143(3) r. w. s. 144B of the Act with denial of deduction u/s 80P of the Act. The AO denied the deduction u/s 80P for the delay of 18 days in filing the return of income before the due date u/s 139(1) of the Act. Aggrieved with the assessment order, the assessee society preferred an appeal before the CIT (Appeals). In the meantime, the CBDT issued the Circular No. 13/2023 dtd. 26–07–2023 authorizing CCsIT/DGsIT to condonation the delay in filing income tax returns by cooperative societies claiming deduction under section 80P for various assessment years starting from 2018–19. Accordingly, the assessee society filed an application on 19–10–2023 with the Chief CIT placing reliance upon the CBDT's Circular (supra). The Chief CIT passed the order dtd. 04–07–2024 rejecting the application for condonation of delay of 18 days. On Writ Petition, the Court observed and held that the assessee society has filed the re-turn of income delayed by 18 days and the delay occurred due to reasons beyond its control. The Court also referred the CBDT's Circular (supra) and held that the delay in filing the return of income was to be condoned and the order passed by the CCIT is liable to be quashed. The Hon'ble High Court held that PCIT is not justified in rejecting the application made under section 119(2)(b) of the Act for condoning the delay in filing the returns without appreciating that genuine human issues faced by the assessee. The non filing of returns within the stipulated time was due to ill health of spouse of the Chartered Accountant otherwise the assessee is diligent in filing the returns. S. 119: Central Board of Direct Taxes-Circulars-Condonation of delay-Delay of two days in filing the Return of income for Assessment Year 2021-22-Delay is condoned. [S. 115BAA, 139, Form No 10-IC, Art. 226] 1440

The Petitioner had made an application for condonation of delay on 13th August, 2022, for condoning the delay of two days in filing the Return of In-come for Assessment Year 2021-22 due to technical difficulties on Income-tax portal and an incident of fire at office of Chartered Accountant leading to stoppage of electricity supply to entire building. Despite repeated re-minders, the same had not been decided by the Assessing Officer/Respondent. In support the Petitioner has also relied on to the Circular No. 19 of 2023 (F No. 173/32/2022-ITA-I) dated 23rd October, 2023 issued under Section 119, read with Section 115 BAA of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and Rule 21AE of the Income Tax Rules, 1962, in the present case, the delay is of two days in filing of the Return, however, since the Petitioner had filed its Form 10 IC on 22nd February, 2022, the Petitioner was entitled to the benefit of Clause 3 (iii) of the said Circular in condoning the delay for filing Form 10-IC. 1441 S. 119: Central Board of Direct Taxes-Circulars Condonation of delay-Charitable or religious trust-Delay in filing Form 9A due to change in procedure. [S. 11(6), 119(2), Form Noo. 9A, Art. 226]

The assessee-trust filed its nil return of income along with Form 10B claiming exemption under section 11. The assessee filed Form 9A on 20-12-2019 on the Income Tax portal along with revised computation. It was noted that assessee adopted this course pursuant to CBDT Circular No. 30/2019, dated 17-12-2019, extending relief for condoning delay in filing such Form 9A, which included assessment year in question i. e. 2017-18. The jurisdictional Assessing Officer wrongly linked and mixed up such issue of belated filing of Form 9A with disallowance of the assessees claim of deduction towards depreciation and capital expenditure under section 11(1), made by the assessee in the assessment proceedings. The assessee during the assessment proceeding for assessment year 2017-18 uploaded a revised note on the Income-tax Portal along with revised computation of income rectifying the mistake in such computation, namely claim of depreciation on fixed assets under section 11(6); expenses towards capital expenditure was revised to certain amount along with deduction under section 11(1) 'Explanation 1' clause (2) of Rs. 57. 28 lakhs being interest income accrued but not received. Such note of revised computation of income duly furnished/uploaded by the assessee. Circular issued by way of delegated legislation empowered Commissioner of Income Tax to consider and condone applications for delay in filing Form 9A within time, on ground of sufficient cause. The powers and statutory discretion conferred on the commissioners to condone delay under section 119(2)(b) ought to be judiciously exercised so that undue hardship to the assessee is avoided. A contrary view would militate against the true meaning, purport and language of Sec-tion119(2)(b) of the Act which aims at mitigating hardships and ensuring substantial justice to genuine assessee who should not be non-suited purely on hyper technical ground and ipse dixit of the assessing officer. [S. 11, 12A, 119(2(b), Form No 10B, Art. 226]
The Audit report was prepared in time, i.e. on September, 20, 2017. Due to technical reasons the said report was not uploaded and the same was up loaded on April 10, 2019

i. e. after a delay of 2.5 years but before passing of the assessment order on September 24, 2021. The CIT(E) rejected the application for condonation of delay. On writ allowing the petition the Court held that where for reasons beyond the control of the assessee some delay has occurred in filing the report, the ITO, for reasons to be recorded, has been authorised to condone the delay in furnishing the auditor's report and accept it at a belated stage. It has been clarified that the exemption available to the trust under section 11 may not be denied merely on account of delay in furnishing the auditor's report. The word shall occurring in section 12A cannot, under the circumstances, be read as a must making it mandatory for the trust to furnish the auditor's report along with the filing of the return. Section 119(2)(b) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 had been enacted with a specific purpose empowering the authorities concerned to condone the delay on the part of the assessee in furnishing or in submitting of the returns or an appropriate application within a reasonable period of time. The provision does not provide for any specific period of time within which the application for condonation of delay needs to be filed and has been enacted to ensure that genuine hardship which an assessee may face can be avoided by condoning the delay, if any, that has occurred and an appropriate application seeking for condonation of delay is filed. Accordingly the Court held that the order rejecting the application is quashed the delay is condoned and the Respondent is directed to pass an appropriate order in accordance with law. (AY. 2017-18)

S. 119 : Central Board of Direct Taxes-Voluntary filing of return-Waiver or reduction-Interest under sections 234A, 234B and 234C of the Act [S. 119(2)(a), 139, Form 15H, Art. 226] 1443

The assessee filed the returns voluntarily without detection. The assessee mad an application for waiver of interest levied under sections 234A, 234B and 234C of the Act. Commissioner rejected the application for waiver of interest. On writ the Court held that the word detection would have to be understood in terms of the provisions of the IT Act while in layman knowledge the detection would be coming to know of a particular aspect alone, but in terms of IT Act, the provisions of s. 142 and 148 would come into play i. e., where there is a evasion on the part of any assessee which comes to the knowledge of the AO and he initiates proceedings by issuing notice under s. 142(1) that it can be said that the AO has detected such an action of evasion of tax. It is also noticed and admitted position that till the date, assessee filed his returns and deposited the tax, no notice under s. 142 was issued nor any notice under s. 148 was issued as has been noticed in the impugned order also. In the present case interestingly, the AO came to know about the Form 15H and information mentioned therein which admittedly was signed by the assessee on dotted lines. Having come to know about such information and that the assessee had not filed his returns for several years and letters seem to have been sent by the AO to the assessee on 30th Jan., 2000. Upon receiving the same, the assessee has filed his returns on 3rd Feb., 2000 i. e., within a period of four days. He thereafter has also sent a letter and he has also deposited the tax. In view there-of, it cannot be said that the IT return was not filed voluntarily without detection of the AO. Interests levied under section 234A, 234B and 234C is directed to be waived. (AY. 1990-91 to 1999-2000)

Assessee's application for condoning the delay in filing the return of income for the asst. yrs. 2016-17 has been rejected on the ground that it was filed after the time period prescribed for condoning the delay of six years as per the Circular No. 9 of 2015, dt. 9th June, 2015. On writ the Court held that considering the fact that the assessee had raised his grievances as early as on 26th Feb., 2019 and also approached the Public Grievance Portal of the Prime Minister's Office and in pursuance to which the assessee was refund-ed Rs. 2,32,549 in respect of the two assessment years i. e., 2017-18 and 2018-19, the application dt. 31st May, 2023 should not be treated in isolation as it dates back to 26th Feb., 2019 when, the assessee raised her grievance for the first time. Thus, the application can be said to be on time, hence the order is set aside. Assessee should be permitted to rectify the returns of income for the AY.. 2016-17. Assessee should approach the assessing authority within a period of ten days from today and rectify the errors/defects in the returns. After the assessee rectifies the errors, his claim for refund should be processed in accordance with the law. (AY 2016-17)(SJ)

1445 S. 119 : Central Board of Direct Taxes-Circular-Charitable purpose-Revised return of income-Delay-Condonation of delay-Genuine hardship-Bona fide reasons to be understood in context of circum-stances-Application for condonation of delay was allowed. [S. 2(15),11(1)),119(2(b), 139(5), Art. 226]
Allowing the petition the Court held that the assessee having made out a case of genuine hardship in its favour, rejection of the application filed for condonation of the delay under section 119(2)(b) in filing the revised return of income under section 139(5) had no justification. The authority had neither in the rejection order under section 119(2)(b) nor in the counter affidavit, denied the entitlement of the assessee to claim set off of past years' deficit under section 11. Rather, the Commissioner (Appeals) in his order had acknowledged the entitlement of the assessee to such claim. The assessee had established the requirement of "genuine hardship", as enumerated under section 119(2)(b). Therefore, the finding of the Commissioner (Exemption) that the assessee had failed to demonstrate "genuine hard-ship", was misconceived, and unsustainable. The assessee had filed its re-turn for the assessment year 2021-22 on the due date of March 15, 2022. The time limit for filing the revised return of income under section 139(5) was December 31, 2022. On the observation of the Commissioner (Appeals) and finding no other alternative, the assessee had filed an application under section 119(2)(b). The assessee had clearly stated in its application filed under section 119(2)(b) that it had inadvertently erred in claiming the past years' deficit. Its claim was genuine and unless the time limit for filing revised return making such claim was extended, the assessee would be in genuine hardship. The authority without taking into consideration the genuine hardship of the assessee had mechanically rejected the application which was unsustainable. That in view of the provisions of section 119(2)(b) read with the circular dated June 9, 2015 ([2015] 374 ITR (St.) 25) issued by the Central Board of Direct Taxes, which stipulated that an application for claim of refund or loss was to be made within six years from the end of the relevant assessment year for which such application or claim was made, the last date for filing of revised return for the assessment year 2021-22 was December 31, 2022 and the assessee had made the application under section 119(2)(b) on October 16, 2023 which was within six years time limit, as stipulated in the circular for condonation of delay in filing the revised return under section 139(5). When the assessee had filed the application indicating its genuine hardship, it should have been considered in the proper perspective and not rejected. Accordingly, the order rejecting the application for condonation of delay in filing the revised return under section 139(5) was quashed and set aside. The authority concerned is directed to take follow up action in accordance with law. (AY. 2021-22)

S. 119 : Central Board of Direct Taxes-Circular-Delay in filing return-Condonation of delay-National Company Law Tribunal-Revised books of account-Genuine hardship-Power vested in Authority to be judicially exercised-The assessee could file before the jurisdictional Assessing Officer physical returns of income based on books of account revised under section 130(2) of the 2013 Act, as taken on record by the National Company Law Tribunal for the assessment years 2015-16 to 2020-21 within the time stipulated in this order. [S. 119(2)(b). 139(4), Companies Act, 2013, S. 130, Art. 226] 1446

Allowing the petition, the Court held that the reasons given by the Central Board of Direct Taxes for refusing permission were not sustainable. The National Company Law Tribunal, while ordering recast of accounts has kept the rights of the Government to continue with the proceedings pending be-fore the Serious Fraud Investigation Office, Enforcement Directorate and Central Bureau of Investigation. Unless the Income-tax Department permitted filing of the return of income based on the recast books of account, it would not be able to examine the veracity or the genuineness and correctness of the claim of the assessee nor be able to examine the complicity of the former key managerial personnel and their impact on the assessment as well as other proceedings. That only when the returns of income based on the books of account revised by the auditors appointed by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs were allowed to be filed and examined, could the assessment orders be passed under section 143(1) or 143(3) or reopening of the assessment under section 147 be considered. That when by the order under section 130(2) of the Companies Act, 2013 passed by the National Company Law Tribunal on an application filed by the Ministry of Corporate Affairs and the accounts had been recast and accepted by the National Company Law Tribunal and also filed with the Registrar of Companies under the Ministry of Corporate Affairs, the Department could not raise frivolous objections and hold that the delay in filing the returns of income based on the revised books of account should not be even be condoned. That the assessee could file before the jurisdictional Assessing Officer physical returns of income based on books of account revised under section 130(2) of the 2013 Act, as taken on record by the National Company Law Tribunal for the assessment years 2015-16 to 2020-21 within the time stipulated in this order. The Assessing Officer was to make assessments in accordance with law considering the revised returns of income filed based on revised books of account for these assessment years. Hence, any assessment order passed under section 143(3) or 144C for any of these assessment years for which the revised returns of income had been filed were set aside. Consequential notices issued and orders passed, if any, were also set aside. That accepting the revised returns of income based on the revised books of account would not absolve the concerned other authorities from any action that should be taken on the basis of earlier books of account based on the on-going investigation. If after the investigation, these revised accounts were required to be recomputed, the assessee could not raise the issue of limitation for a period of three years from the date on which the assessment order was passed. The calculation of time for the period of limitation provided under section 149 would commence from the date the assessment orders were passed for each of the assessment years. The pending assessment proceedings for the assessment years 2021-22 and 2022-23 could not be proceeded with until the assessment orders were passed for the assessment years 2020-21 and 2021-22. 1447 S. 119 : Central Board of Direct Taxes-Condonation of delay-Genuine hardship to be construed liberally-Delay in filing Form 10CCB-Special category States-Rectification of mistake-Duty of Assessing Officer-Application for rectification pending disposal for almost six years-Assessing Officer is duty bound to pass order expeditiously. [S. 80IC, 143(1), 154, 264, Art. 226]

The Assessing Officer had denied the deduction under section 80IC in the intimation under section 143(1) without mentioning any reasons, the assessee filed an application under section 154 for rectification. Despite reminders the rectification application was not disposed of. Contending that since the audit report in form 10CCB was not filed due to the inadvertence of his chartered accountant which possibly could have been the reason for denial of deduction under section 80IC, and form 10CCB was uploaded, the assessee filed an application for revision under section 264 before the Principal Commissioner seeking grant of deduction under section 80IC. The petition was dismissed on the ground of limitation since it was filed after a period of two and half years. The assessee continued to pursue the pending rectification application. The assessee approached the Central Board of Direct Taxes for condoning the delay, and to direct the Assessing Officer to allow the rectification application. The Board rejected the application on the ground that the reasons stated by the assessee, i.e., inadvertence on the part of its chartered accountants in uploading form 10CCB was general and no reasonable cause was shown to justify the genuine hardship being faced by the assessee. On a writ petition held that no assessee would stand to benefit by filing a delayed claim, more so, where the assessee would get a tax advantage or benefit by way of deduction under section 80-IC. The fact that an assessee had realized that he would pay more tax if he did not get the benefit of deduction under section 80-IC would be a "genuine hardship". The order passed by the Central Board of Direct Taxes under section 119 indicated its disregard for judicial orders. The order was quashed. The Court also held that the Assessing Officer was duty bound to pass an order on the application under section 154 which had been pending for almost six years, instead of making baseless statements that there was no mistake apparent from record for which rectification was sought. The Legislature has conferred power on the Principal Commissioner under the Income-tax Act, 1961 to enable the authorities to do substantive justice to the assessees to condone the delay for disposing of matters on the merits. Routinely passing orders without appreciating the reasons why the pro-visions for condonation of delay have been provided in the Act defeats the cause of justice. There cannot be a straitjacket formula to determine what is "genuine hardship". [Relied, *Bilawala (K. S.) v. PCIT (2024) 463 ITR 766 /158 taxmann.com 658 (Bom)(HC) R. K. Madhani Prakash Engineers J. On writ allowing the petition the Court held that S. 119(2)(b) only empowers the Board to admit an application or claim for exemption, deduction, re-fund or any other relief under the Act, after the expiry of the period specified by or under the Act for making such application or claim and deal with the same on merits, in accordance with law. The Circular No. 9 of 2015, dt. 9th June, 2015, empowers the Principal Chief CIT/the Principal CIT to con-sider the merits of the refund claim while exercising the delegated power under S. 119(2)(b), which would amount to circumvent the provisions of the Act. The PCCIT or the PCIT has no power to consider the merits of the refund application and what is required to be considered is the merits of the application for condonation of delay only.
